Distribution of Securities

Securities may be issued on a continuing basis to Citigroup Global Markets Limited, Citigroup Global Markets Inc. and/or Citigroup Global Markets Europe AG and/or any additional dealer appointed under the Citi Global Medium Term Note Programme (the "Programme") from time to time by the Issuers (each a "Dealer" and together the "Dealers") which appointment may be for a specific issue or on an ongoing basis. In relation to each issue of Securities, the Dealer(s) will be specified in the applicable Issue Terms. However, each Issuer reserves the right to sell Securities directly on its own behalf to other entities and to offer Securities in specified jurisdictions directly to the public through distributors, in accordance with all applicable rules and regulations. Securities may be resold at prevailing market prices, or at prices related thereto, at the time of such resale, as determined by the Issuer or the relevant Dealer. Securities may also be sold by the Issuer through the Dealer(s), acting as agent of the Issuer.

In connection with your acquisition of Securities issued under this Base Prospectus, an affiliate of the Issuer may provide product and sales services to you ("Services"). Each affiliate provides such Services on its own behalf. Notwithstanding the foregoing, Citi and its affiliates (including the Issuer and any such affiliates of the Issuer) have previously agreed to share revenue in respect of any Securities based on the respective contributions by such Citi companies, including the provision by such affiliate(s) of Services. Accordingly, a portion of the revenue received by the Issuer from you in respect of the Securities is allocable to such affiliate(s) and is received by the Issuer on behalf of such affiliate(s). For a list of affiliates providing Services in specific countries, please see <https://www.citibank.com/icg/docs/Affiliates.pdf>.

Pursuant to this Base Prospectus, Securities may be issued whose return (in respect of any interest payable on such Securities and/or their redemption amount) is linked to one or more security indices ("Security Index Linked Securities") or one or more inflation indices ("Inflation Index Linked Securities") or one or more commodity indices ("Commodity Index Linked Securities") or one or more commodities ("Commodity Linked Securities") or one or more shares ("Share Linked Securities") or one or more depositary receipts ("Depositary Receipt Linked Securities") or one or more exchange traded fund ("ETF") shares ("ETF Linked Securities") or one or more mutual funds ("Mutual Fund Linked Securities") or one or more currency exchange rates ("FX Rate Linked Securities") or one or more bespoke or proprietary indices ("Bespoke Index Linked Securities") or one or more Dividend Futures Contracts ("Dividend Futures Contract Linked Securities") or one or more rates ("Rate Linked Securities") or one or more preference shares ("Preference Share Linked Securities") or one or more bonds ("Bond Linked Securities") or one or more debt securities ("Debt Security Warrants"). The aforementioned Securities together, "Underlying Linked Securities", as more fully described in this Base Prospectus. ETF Linked Securities which are linked to crypto assets may not be sold to retail investors unless such retail investors are well-informed investors.

In addition, Notes may be issued whose return (in respect of interest payable on such Notes and/or the repayment of principal on such Notes) is linked to the credit of one or more specified entities ("Credit Linked Notes") or a package skew position (as described above) ("Index Skew Notes") or linked to a notional transaction, which is a hypothetical credit default swap or index linked swaption (or such other transaction as is specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement) in relation to one or more specified entities ("Credit Linked Warrants"). Credit Linked Notes which are admitted to trading on a regulated market or publicly offered within the EEA will only reference Reference Entities which have securities admitted to trading on a relevant market.

Supplement or, if applicable, a separate drawdown prospectus which describes the effect of the agreement reached in relation to such Securities, will be made available.

Approvals of the Base Prospectus

Each of the Citigroup Inc. Base Prospectus, the CGMHI Base Prospectus and the CGMFL Base Prospectus (in each case, as defined below) has been approved as a base prospectus by the Commission de Surveillance du Secteur Financier (CSSF), as competent authority (the "Competent Authority") under Regulation (EU) No. 1129 of 14 June 2017 (the "EU Prospectus Regulation"). The CSSF only approves this Base Prospectus as meeting the standards of completeness, comprehensibility and consistency imposed by the EU Prospectus Regulation. Approval by the CSSF should not be considered an endorsement of the Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor, the CGMFL Guarantor or the quality of the Securities. The CSSF assumes no responsibility for the economic and financial soundness of the transactions contemplated by this Base Prospectus or the quality or solvency of any of the Issuers, the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMFL Guarantor. Investors should make their own assessment as to the suitability of investing in the Securities.

The Luxembourg Stock Exchange's regulated market is a regulated market for the purposes of the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive (Directive 2014/65/EU) (as amended, "MiFID II"). By approving a prospectus, in accordance with the EU Prospectus Regulation, the CSSF does not engage in respect of the economic or financial opportunity of the operation or the quality and solvency of any of the Issuers, the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMFL Guarantor.

Application has also been made to the Luxembourg Stock Exchange for Securities (excluding Exempt Securities (as defined below)) issued under the Programme to be admitted to trading on the Luxembourg Stock Exchange's regulated market and to be listed on the Official List of the Luxembourg Stock Exchange, but there can be no assurance that any such listing will occur on or prior to the date of issue of the relevant Securities or at all. An electronic copy of this Base Prospectus, the relevant documents incorporated by reference herein, and the Issue Terms of such Securities will be published on the website of the Luxembourg Stock Exchange at www.luxse.com, for so long as the Securities are listed on the Luxembourg Stock Exchange.

In addition, application has been or may also be made for Securities (other than Exempt Securities) issued under the Programme:

- (a) during the period of twelve months after the date of this Base Prospectus to be admitted to the official list (the "Official List") and to trading on the regulated market of the Irish Stock Exchange plc, trading as Euronext Dublin ("Euronext Dublin");
- (b) to be listed on the NASDAQ Stockholm AB and admitted to trading on the regulated market of the NASDAQ Stockholm AB;
- (c) to be listed on the Italian Stock Exchange and admitted to trading on the electronic "Bond Market" organised and managed by Borsa Italiana S.p.A. (the "MOT");
- (d) to be listed on the official list of the Frankfurt Stock Exchange (Börse Frankfurt AG) and admitted to trading on the regulated market of the Frankfurt Stock Exchange (Börse Frankfurt AG);
- (e) during the period of 12 months after the date of this Base Prospectus to be listed on the regulated market of Euronext Paris ("Euronext Paris");
- (f) during the period of 12 months after the date of this Base Prospectus to be listed on the AIAF Fixed Income Market (the "AIAF Market") and admitted to trading on the Spanish Stock Exchange; and
- (g) during the period of 12 months after the date of this Base Prospectus to be listed and admitted to trading on the regulated market of the Warsaw Stock Exchange (Giełda Papierów Wartościowych w Warszawie) (the "Warsaw Stock Exchange") (the "WSE Regulated Market"), but, in each such case, there can be no assurance that any such listing will occur on or prior to the date of issue of any Securities, as the case may be, or at all. Each of the markets listed at (a) to (d) above is a regulated market for the purposes of MiFID II.

This Base Prospectus (as supplemented as at the relevant time, if applicable) is valid for 12 months from its date in relation to Securities which are to be admitted to trading on a regulated market in the EEA. The obligation to supplement this Base Prospectus in the event of a significant new factor, material mistake or material inaccuracy does not apply when this Base Prospectus is no longer valid.

The requirement to publish a prospectus under the EU Prospectus Regulation only applies to Securities which are to be admitted to trading on a regulated market in the EEA and/or offered to the public in the EEA other than in circumstances where an exemption is available under Article 1(4) and/or 3(2) of the EU Prospectus Regulation. References in this Base Prospectus to "Exempt Securities" are to Securities for which no prospectus is required to be published under the EU Prospectus Regulation. The CSSF has neither approved nor reviewed information contained in this Base Prospectus in connection with Exempt Securities and has neither reviewed nor approved any information in relation to the admission to trading of Securities on a multi trading facility ("MTF") or any market which is not a regulated market for the purposes of MiFID II, including, for the avoidance of doubt, the KASE (as defined below). The CSSF has neither approved nor reviewed information contained in this Base Prospectus in connection with Securities to be listed on and/or admitted to trading, in the case of Notes, in the "Bonds" category of the "Debt Securities" sector of the "Main" market of the KASE. Application has been made to the Luxembourg Stock Exchange for the approval of the Citigroup Inc. Base Prospectus, the CGMHI Base Prospectus and the CGMFL Base Prospectus as Base Listing Particulars (the "Citigroup Inc. Base Listing Particulars", the "CGMHI Base Listing Particulars" and the "CGMFL Base Listing Particulars", respectively, and together, (the "Base Listing Particulars") with respect to Securities (including the Exempt Securities) issued by CGMFL and Exempt Securities issued by Citigroup Inc. and CGMHI as a base prospectus for the purposes of Part IV of the Luxembourg act dated 16 July 2019 on prospectus for securities. Application has also been made to the Luxembourg Stock Exchange for Securities (including Exempt Securities) issued by each Issuer during the 12 months from the date of the Base Listing Particulars to be admitted to the Official List of the Luxembourg Stock Exchange and to trading on the Luxembourg Stock Exchange's Euro MTF Market (the "Euro MTF").

Application has also been made to Euronext Dublin for the approval of the Base Listing Particulars. Application will be made to Euronext Dublin for Securities issued during the 12 months from the date of the Base Listing Particulars to be admitted to the Official List and to trading on the global exchange market (the "Global Exchange Market") which is the exchange regulated market of Euronext Dublin. Issuers on the Global Exchange Market, a multilateral trading facility ("MTF"), are not subject to the same rules as issuers on a regulated market. The risk in investing in securities on GEM may therefore be higher than investing in securities listed on a regulated market. Investors should take this into account when making investment decisions.

Each Citigroup Inc. Base Listing Particulars, the CGMHI Base Listing Particulars and the CGMFL Base Listing Particulars constitutes admission particulars for the purposes of the International Securities Market Rulebook (the "ISM Rulebook"). Application has been made to the London Stock Exchange for Securities issued by each Issuer during the 12 months from the date of the Base Listing Particulars to be admitted to trading on the International Securities Market of the London Stock Exchange which is a multilateral trading facility (the "ISM").

The International Securities Market (the "ISM") of the London Stock Exchange plc (the "London Stock Exchange") is a market designated for professional investors. Securities admitted to trading on the ISM are not admitted to the Official List of the Financial Conduct Authority ("FCA"). The London Stock Exchange has not approved or verified the contents of this Base Prospectus.

Application may also be made for Securities issued under the Programme:

but, in each such case, there can be no assurance that any such listing will occur on or prior to the date of issue of any Securities, as the case may be, or at all. None of the Euro MTF, the Global Exchange Market, the ISM and the stock exchanges or markets listed at (i) to (vii) above are regulated markets for the purposes of MiFID II.

Save where expressly provided or the context otherwise requires, where Securities are to be listed and/or admitted to trading on the Euro MTF, the Global Exchange Market, the ISM and the stock exchanges or markets listed at (i) to (vii) above references in this document to "Base Prospectus", "Citigroup Inc. Base Prospectus", "CGMHI Base Prospectus" and "CGMFL Base Prospectus" shall be construed to be to "Base Listing Particulars", "Citigroup Inc. Base Listing Particulars", "CGMHI Base Listing Particulars" and "CGMFL Base Listing Particulars", respectively.

Arthur Cox Listing Services Limited is acting solely in its capacity as Irish listing agent for the Issuer in connection with the Securities and is not itself seeking admission of the Securities to the official list or to trading on the regulated market of Euronext Dublin for the purposes of the EU Prospectus Regulation or the Global Exchange Market of Euronext Dublin.

Risk warnings

AN ISSUE OF SECURITIES MAY BE OF A SPECIALIST NATURE AND SHOULD ONLY BE BOUGHT AND TRADED BY INVESTORS WHO ARE PARTICULARLY KNOWLEDGEABLE IN INVESTMENT MATTERS. PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS OF SECURITIES SHOULD ENSURE THAT THEY UNDERSTAND THE NATURE OF THE RELEVANT SECURITIES AND THE EXTENT OF THEIR EXPOSURE TO RISKS AND THAT THEY CONSIDER THE SUITABILITY OF THE RELEVANT SECURITIES AS AN INVESTMENT IN LIGHT OF THEIR OWN CIRCUMSTANCES AND FINANCIAL CONDITION. IT IS THE RESPONSIBILITY OF PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS TO ENSURE THAT THEY HAVE SUFFICIENT KNOWLEDGE, EXPERIENCE AND PROFESSIONAL ADVICE TO MAKE THEIR OWN LEGAL, FINANCIAL, TAX, ACCOUNTING AND OTHER BUSINESS EVALUATION OF THE MERITS AND RISKS OF INVESTING IN THE SECURITIES AND ARE NOT RELYING ON THE ADVICE OF THE ISSUER, (IF APPLICABLE) THE CGMHI GUARANTOR, THE CGMFL GUARANTOR OR ANY DEALER IN THIS REGARD. SECURITIES MAY INVOLVE A HIGH DEGREE OF RISK, INCLUDING THE PRINCIPAL OR INITIAL INVESTMENT AMOUNT POTENTIALLY NOT BEING PROTECTED. INVESTORS MAY SUSTAIN A LOSS OF ALL OR PART OF THEIR INVESTMENT IN THE SECURITIES. SEE "RISK FACTORS" SET OUT IN THIS BASE PROSPECTUS.

Prospective investors should note that, in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates, the Events of Default in respect of the CGMHI Guarantor are limited to the events stated in General Conditions 11(a)(i) and 11(a)(ii) (Events of Default) relating to default in payment of principal, interest or termination amounts in respect of the Securities but will not include the insolvency or bankruptcy of the CGMHI Guarantor (or any similar event), any other default of the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee being (or being claimed not to be) in full force and effect. Therefore, even though the CGMHI Guarantor may be declared insolvent or have entered into bankruptcy proceedings or disclaimed the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, holders of Securities issued by CGMHI will not be able to trigger an Event of Default under the Securities and thus will not be able to cause the Securities to be immediately due and payable, and the Securities will not redeem until maturity (unless there has been an Event of Default due to non-payment of interest, principal or termination amounts or bankruptcy or other default of CGMHI in the meantime or the occurrence of any other applicable event triggering an early redemption of the Securities). It is possible that holders may receive a lower return at maturity than if they were able to accelerate the Securities for immediate repayment in such circumstances.

Investors in Warrants or Exercisable Certificates should note that the Conditions of such Securities do not contain events of default. Therefore, even though CGMHI, CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor may be declared insolvent or have entered into bankruptcy proceedings, holders of such Securities will not be able to cause the Securities to be immediately due and payable on an insolvency or bankruptcy of CGMHI, CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor.

The Securities, the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee constitute unconditional liabilities of the respective issuers. None of the Securities, the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation ("FDIC") or any other deposit protection insurance scheme.

Any investment in the Securities does not have the status of a bank deposit and is not within the scope of the deposit protection scheme operated by the CSSF. The Issuers are not regulated by the CSSF by virtue of the issue of any Securities.

EU Benchmarks Regulation: Article 29(2) statement on benchmarks

Amounts payable or assets deliverable under the Securities may be calculated or otherwise determined by reference to one or more "benchmarks" for the purposes of Regulation (EU) No. 2016/1011 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 8 June 2016 (the "EU Benchmarks Regulation"). A statement will be included in the applicable Final Terms in respect of any Non-exempt Offer of Securities (as defined herein) as to whether or not the relevant administrator of any relevant "benchmark" is included in the register of administrators of the European Securities and Markets Authority ("ESMA") under Article 36 of the EU Benchmarks Regulation and whether a public notice has been included in such register with respect to such administrator or whether the relevant benchmark falls within the scope of the EU Benchmarks Regulation. For the avoidance of doubt, such statement will be given as of the date of the relevant Final Terms and the Issuer will not have any ongoing notification obligations in relation to the status of any administrator on ESMA's register of benchmarks, unless such disclosure is required under the EU Benchmarks Regulation following the issue of a public notice in relation to a significant benchmark by any relevant competent authority or other relevant official body. Transitional provisions in the EU Benchmarks Regulation may apply such that the administrator of a particular "benchmark" (i) is not required to be included in the register of administrators at the date of the applicable Issue Terms or (ii) is not required to be included in ESMA's register as authorised, registered or, if located outside the European Union, recognised, endorsed or benefitting from equivalence, PROVIDED THAT such administrator has submitted an application for recognition or endorsement (as applicable) and unless and until such application has failed or been refused. Note also that from 1 January 2026 the scope of the EU Benchmarks Regulation will be reduced such that only critical Benchmarks, significant benchmarks, certain commodity benchmarks, EU Climate Transition Benchmarks and EU Paris-aligned benchmarks will remain in mandatory scope of the core provisions of the revised regime.

RISK FACTORS

Risks Relating to Citigroup Inc.

For a discussion of certain material risks and uncertainties that could impact Citigroup Inc.'s businesses, results of operations and financial condition (including market-related, strategic, operational, credit, liquidity, compliance and other risks), see "Risk Factors" in Part I, Item 1A of the Issuer's 2024 Annual Report on Form 10-K for the year ended 31 December 2024 (the "Citigroup Inc. 2024 Form 10-K") (pages 50-64) as set out below, which is incorporated by reference into this Base Prospectus, or the corresponding section of any future Annual Report on Form 10-K or Quarterly Report on Form 10-Q filed by the Issuer after the date hereof which is incorporated by reference into this Base Prospectus pursuant to a supplement to this Base Prospectus.

The ability of each of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor to fulfil its obligations under the Securities issued by Citigroup Inc., CGMHI or CGMFL, as the case may be, is dependent on the earnings of Citigroup Inc.'s subsidiaries

CGMHI is a holding company that does not engage in any material amount of business activities that generate revenues. CGMHI services its obligations primarily with dividends and advances from its subsidiaries. Its subsidiaries that operate in the securities businesses can only pay dividends if they are in compliance with applicable regulatory requirements imposed on them by federal and state regulatory authorities. Its respective subsidiaries may also be subject to credit agreements that also may restrict their ability to pay dividends. If such subsidiaries do not realise sufficient earnings to satisfy applicable regulatory requirements, or if such requirements are changed to further restrict the ability of such subsidiaries to pay dividends to CGMHI, CGMHI's ability to fulfil its obligations under the Securities issued by it may be adversely affected and consequently the value of and return on such Securities may also be adversely affected.

In addition, Citigroup Inc. (also the CGMHI Guarantor in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by CGMHI) is a holding company that does not engage in any material amount of business activities that generate revenues. It services its obligations primarily with dividends and advances from its subsidiaries. The ability of such subsidiaries to pay dividends or advances are dependent on a number of factors. For example, certain of Citigroup Inc.'s subsidiaries have co-branding and private label credit card relationships with various retailers and merchants through Group-branded cards and retail services credit card businesses. The five largest of these relationships constituted an aggregate of approximately 10 per cent. of the revenues of Citigroup Inc. and its subsidiaries (together the "Group") for 2022. These relationships could be negatively impacted by, among other things, the general economic environment, declining sales and revenues or other operational difficulties of the retailer or merchant, termination due to a breach by a Group entity or by the retailer or merchant, or other factors, including bankruptcies, liquidations, restructurings, consolidations and other similar events that would restrict the ability of the subsidiaries of Citigroup Inc. to pay dividends.

Moreover, Citigroup Inc.'s subsidiaries that operate in the banking, insurance and securities businesses can only pay dividends if they are in compliance with applicable regulatory requirements imposed on them by federal and state regulatory authorities. Respective subsidiaries may also be subject to credit agreements that also may restrict their ability to pay dividends. If such subsidiaries do not realise sufficient earnings to satisfy applicable regulatory requirements, or if such requirements are changed to further restrict the ability of such subsidiaries to pay dividends to Citigroup Inc., Citigroup Inc.'s ability to fulfil its obligations under the Securities issued by it and/or the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee (in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates) may be adversely affected and consequently the value of and return on the Securities issued by it or CGMHI (where such Securities have the benefit of a guarantee of the CGMHI Guarantor) may also be adversely affected.

The subsidiaries of CGMHI and Citigroup Inc. are also exposed to concentrations of risk, particularly credit and market risk, as they routinely execute a high volume of securities, trading, derivative and foreign exchange transactions with non-U.S. sovereigns and with counterparties in the financial services industry. As regulatory or market developments continue to lead to increased centralisation of trading activities, these subsidiaries could also experience an increase in concentration of risk to these industries. These concentrations of risk could limit the effectiveness of any hedging strategies and cause the subsidiaries to incur significant losses, impacting their ability to pay dividends.

Further, such dividends and/or advances, whether to CGMHI or Citigroup Inc. (or both), may be affected by macroeconomic, geopolitical and other challenges, uncertainties and volatilities and the presence of certain subsidiaries in emerging markets. For example, numerous uncertainties have arisen in relation to the potential impact of the UK's exit from the European Union and the U.S. federal government's indication that it may pursue protectionist trade and other policies. These and other global macroeconomic and geopolitical challenges have negatively impacted, and could continue to negatively impact, the businesses of CGMHI and/or Citigroup Inc.'s subsidiaries. The presence of certain subsidiaries in emerging markets subjects them to a number of risks, including sovereign volatility, foreign exchange controls and sanctions, and also increases their compliance and regulatory risks and costs. As a result, the dividends and/or advances subsidiaries are able to pay may be impacted which could have a negative effect on the ability of CGMHI or Citigroup Inc. to fulfil its obligations under the Securities and consequently the value of and return on such Securities may also be adversely affected.

The ability of CGMFL to fulfil its obligations under the Securities issued by it is dependent on CGML performing its counterparty obligations owed to CGMFL

CGMFL is subject to intra-group credit risk. From time to time, CGMFL enters into derivative transactions with CGML to offset or hedge its liabilities to Securityholders under Securities issued by it (which may include the Securities). As such, CGMFL is exposed to the credit risk of CGML in the form of counterparty risk in respect of such derivative transactions. In particular, CGMFL's ability to fulfil its obligations under the Securities is primarily dependent on CGML performing its counterparty obligations owed to CGMFL in respect of such derivative transactions in a timely manner, and any failure by CGML to do so will negatively affect the ability of CGMFL to fulfil its obligations under the Securities. Securityholders will not have any recourse to CGML under any such derivative transactions.

The military action by Russia in Ukraine, and related sanctions, export controls and similar actions or laws could adversely affect the Group's business activities and customers

The ongoing action of Russian military forces and support personnel in Ukraine has escalated tensions between Russia and the U.S., NATO, the European Union and the UK. The U.S. has imposed, and is likely to impose material additional, financial and economic sanctions and export controls against certain Russian organisations and/or individuals, with similar actions implemented and/or planned by the European Union, the UK and other jurisdictions. The packages of financials and economic sanctions imposed by the U.S., the UK, and the European Union, in various ways, constrain transactions with numerous Russian entities and individuals; transactions in Russian sovereign debt; and investment, trade, and financing to, from, or in certain regions of Ukraine. The Group's ability to engage in activity with certain consumer and institutional businesses in Russia and Ukraine or involving certain Russian or Ukrainian businesses and customers is dependent in part upon whether such engagement is restricted under any current or expected U.S., European Union, UK or other countries' sanctions and laws, or is otherwise discontinued in light of these developments. Sanctions and export controls, as well as any actions by Russia, could adversely affect the Group's business activities and customers in and from Russia and Ukraine. Moreover, actions by Russia, and any further measures taken by the U.S. or its allies, could have negative impacts on regional and global financial markets and economic conditions, including without limitation global energy markets. The extent of the impact on the Group will continue to depend significantly on future developments, which are uncertain and cannot be predicted.

Any negative impact of Russia's actions in Ukraine, and related sanctions, export controls and similar actions or laws on the Group, including the relevant Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMFL Guarantor, could adversely affect the ability of the relevant Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMFL Guarantor to fulfil its obligations under the Securities, and the value of and return on the Securities may also be adversely affected.

No Events of Default in respect of the CGMHI Guarantor with regard to insolvency or bankruptcy of the CGMHI Guarantor under the Conditions of Securities which are Notes or Certificates

In relation to Securities which are Notes or Certificates, you should note that there are no Events of Default in respect of the CGMHI Guarantor with regard to the insolvency or bankruptcy of the CGMHI Guarantor (or any similar event), any other default of the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee not being (or being claimed not to be) in full force and effect. Therefore, even though the CGMHI Guarantor may be declared bankrupt or enters into insolvency proceedings or disclaims the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, you, notwithstanding that you are a holder of Notes or Certificates issued by CGMHI will not be able to trigger an Event of Default under such Securities and thus will not be able to cause such Securities to be immediately due and payable, and the Securities will not redeem until maturity (unless there has been an Event of Default due to non-payment of interest or principal or bankruptcy or other default of CGMHI in the meantime). It is possible that you may receive a lower return at maturity than if you were able to accelerate such Securities for immediate repayment in such circumstances.

No Events of Default in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates

Investors in Warrants or Exercisable Certificates should note that the Conditions of such Securities do not contain events of default. Therefore, even though CGMHI, CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor may be declared insolvent or have entered into bankruptcy proceedings, holders of such Securities will not be able to cause the Securities to be immediately due and payable on an insolvency or bankruptcy of CGMHI, CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor.

Under U.S. banking law, Citigroup Inc. may be required to apply its available funds to support the financial position of its banking subsidiaries, rather than to fulfil its obligations under the Securities or the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, as applicable

Under longstanding policy of The Board of Governors of the U.S. Federal Reserve System, a bank holding company (such as Citigroup Inc.) is expected to act as a source of financial strength for its U.S. insured depository institutions and to commit resources to support such banks. As a result of that policy, Citigroup Inc. may be required to commit resources (in the form of investments or loans) to its U.S. insured depository institutions in amounts or at times that could adversely affect its ability to also fulfil its obligations under the Securities issued by it and/or the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, and consequently the value of and return on the Securities issued by it or CGMHI (where such Securities have the benefit of a guarantee of the CGMHI Guarantor) may also be adversely affected.

The inclusion of contractual stay provisions in the terms and conditions of the Securities could materially adversely affect the rights of Securityholders in a resolution scenario

In the autumn of 2017, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the FDIC and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency issued rules ("QFC Stay Rules") designed to improve the resolvability and resilience of U.S. global systemically important banking organisations ("G-SIBs") and the U.S. operations of foreign G-SIBs, by mitigating the risk of destabilising closeouts of qualified financial contracts ("QFCs") in resolution. Citigroup Inc. and its subsidiaries, including CGMHI, CGMFL and the CGMFL Guarantor, are "covered entities" subject to the QFC Stay Rules. Certain of the Securities (such Securities, "Covered Instruments"), the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee – to the extent those guarantees relate to Covered Instruments – may qualify as QFCs.

The QFC Stay Rules seek to eliminate impediments to the orderly resolution of a G-SIB both in a scenario where resolution proceedings are instituted by the U.S. regulatory authorities under the Federal Deposit Insurance Act or the Orderly Liquidation Authority under Title II of the Dodd Frank Act ("OLA") (together, the "U.S. Special Resolution Regimes") as well as in a scenario where the G-SIB is resolved under ordinary insolvency proceedings. To achieve this, the QFC Stay Rules require covered entities (such as Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, CGMFL and the CGMFL Guarantor) to ensure that their QFCs subject to the QFC Stay Rules (including any Securities which are Covered Instruments) (i) contain an express contractual recognition of the statutory stay-and-transfer provisions of the U.S. Special Resolution Regimes and (ii) do not contain cross-default rights against the covered entity based on an affiliate becoming subject to any type of insolvency proceeding or restrictions on the transfer of any related credit enhancements (including a guarantee) issued by an affiliate of the covered entity following the affiliate's entry into insolvency proceedings.

To address these requirements, the Terms and Conditions of the Securities contain an express contractual recognition that, in the event any of the relevant Issuer and (if applicable), the Guarantor becomes subject to a proceeding under a U.S. Special Resolution Regime, the transfer of Securities which are Covered Instruments, and (in relation to Covered Instruments) the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee (and the transfer of any interest and obligation in or under such Covered Instruments, the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee) from the Issuer or (if applicable) the Guarantor will be effective to the same extent as the transfer would be effective under such U.S. Special Resolution Regime.

In addition, the Terms and Conditions of the Securities contain an express contractual recognition that, in the event any of the relevant Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any of their affiliates becomes subject to a proceeding under a U.S. Special Resolution Regime, default rights against the Issuer, or (if applicable) the Guarantor with respect to the Covered Instruments, the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee are permitted to be exercised to no greater extent than they could be exercised under such U.S. Special Resolution Regime. For these purposes, "default rights" include the right to terminate, liquidate or accelerate a QFC or demand payment or delivery thereunder. See General Condition 24 (Acknowledgement of the United States Special Resolution Regimes) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates and General Condition 18 (Acknowledgement of the United States Special Resolution Regimes) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates.

Each of Citigroup Inc., as a U.S. entity incorporated in Delaware, and CGMHI, as a U.S. entity incorporated in the State of New York, could be placed into proceedings under OLA if certain determinations are made by the applicable U.S. regulatory authorities. However, under the law in effect as at the date of this Base Prospectus, although CGMFL and the CGMFL Guarantor are each "covered entities" for the purposes of the QFC Stay Rules and are required to include the above-described acknowledgements in relevant QFCs, neither CGMFL nor the CGMFL Guarantor, as non-U.S. entities, are eligible to be placed into proceedings under the U.S. Special Resolution Regimes.

The exercise of any power under the U.S. Special Resolution Regimes could materially adversely affect the rights of the holders of Securities issued by CGMHI or Citigroup Inc., (e.g. in respect of the right to demand payment), and accordingly, the price or value of their investment in any such Securities and/or the ability of such Issuer to satisfy its obligations under such Securities.

As at the date of this Base Prospectus, interpretation of the application of the relevant requirements and market practice is continuing to evolve. If you are in any doubt about the categorisation of any Securities as QFCs and the effect of any proceeding under a U.S. Special Resolution Regime on such Securities, you should take advice from such professional advisers as you may deem necessary.

Ability to Substitute the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMFL Guarantor in Insolvency

The Terms and Conditions of the Securities explicitly provide that nothing in General Condition 17 (Substitution of the Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates and General Condition 13 (Substitution of the Issuer or the CGMFL Guarantor) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates shall limit the ability of the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMFL Guarantor to be substituted upon or following the relevant entity becoming subject to a resolution, restructuring, or reorganisation or similar proceeding. This means any such substitution of the CGMHI Guarantor or the CGMFL Guarantor does not have to comply with the substitution criteria set out in General Condition 17 (Substitution of the Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates and General Condition 13 (Substitution of the Issuer or the CGMFL Guarantor) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates. Any such substitution could adversely affect the rights of Securityholders, the price and/or value of their investment in the Securities and/or performance under the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee, as the case may be.

A reduction of the Issuer's and/or, where the Issuer of Securities which are Notes or Certificates is CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor's and/or, where the Issuer is CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor's ratings may reduce the market value and liquidity of the relevant Securities

The value of the Securities is expected to be affected, in part, by investors' general appraisal of the Issuer's, the CGMHI Guarantor's, the CGMFL Guarantor's and/or their affiliates' creditworthiness. Such perceptions are generally influenced by the ratings accorded to the outstanding securities of the relevant Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor, the CGMFL Guarantor and/or any of their affiliates by standard statistical rating services, such as Moody's, S&P and Fitch. A reduction in the rating, if any, accorded to outstanding debt securities (if any) of the Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor, the CGMFL Guarantor and/or the securities issued by any of their affiliates by one of these rating agencies could result in a reduction in the trading value of the Securities.

Each rating agency may reduce, suspend or withdraw any credit ratings of an Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and/or the CGMFL Guarantor at any time in the future if, in its judgement, circumstances warrant a change. No rating agency is obligated to maintain its ratings at their current levels.

The rating agencies continuously evaluate Citigroup Inc. and its subsidiaries, and their ratings of Citigroup Inc.'s and its subsidiaries' long-term and short-term debt are based on a number of factors, including financial strength, as well as factors not entirely within the control of Citigroup Inc. and its subsidiaries, such as conditions affecting the financial services industry generally.

If a rating agency reduces, suspends or withdraws its rating of an Issuer and/or, where applicable, the Guarantor and/or any affiliate thereof, the liquidity and market value of the Securities and, where applicable, the Guarantor's ability to fulfil its guarantor obligations are likely to be adversely affected.

In addition, ratings downgrades by Fitch, Moody's or S&P could have a significant and immediate impact on Citigroup Inc.'s funding and liquidity through cash obligations, reduced funding capacity and derivative triggers and additional margin requirements. Ratings downgrades could also have a negative impact on other funding sources, such as secured financing and other margin requirements, for which there are no explicit triggers. Some entities may also have ratings limitations as to their permissible counterparties, of which Citigroup Inc. may or may not be aware. A reduction in Citigroup Inc.'s or its subsidiaries' credit ratings could also widen Citigroup Inc.'s credit spreads or otherwise increase its borrowing costs and limit its access to the capital markets. Any of the foregoing factors may negatively impact the value of and return on the Securities.

For information on the credit ratings of the Issuers, the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor, please refer to the sub-section entitled "Credit Ratings" in "General Description of the Programme" above.

Citigroup Inc. may not be able to maintain adequate liquidity or funding which may result in a negative impact on the market value of the Securities issued by it or (in the case of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by CGMHI) its ability to fulfil its guarantor obligations

As a global financial institution, adequate liquidity and sources of funding are essential to Citigroup Inc.'s businesses. Citigroup Inc.'s liquidity and sources of funding can be significantly and negatively impacted by factors it cannot control, such as general disruptions in the financial markets, governmental fiscal and monetary policies, regulatory changes or negative investor perceptions of Citigroup Inc.'s creditworthiness.

In addition, Citigroup Inc.'s costs to obtain and access secured funding and long-term unsecured funding are directly related to its credit spreads. Changes in credit spreads are driven by both external market factors and factors specific to Citigroup Inc., and can be highly volatile.

Moreover, Citigroup Inc.'s ability to obtain funding may be impaired if other market participants are seeking to access the markets at the same time, or if market appetite declines, as is likely to occur in a liquidity stress event or other market crisis. A sudden drop in market liquidity could also cause a temporary or lengthier dislocation of underwriting and capital markets activity. In addition, clearing organisations, central banks, clients and financial institutions with which Citigroup Inc. interacts may exercise the right to require additional collateral based on their perceptions or the market conditions, which could further impair Citigroup Inc.'s access to and cost of funding.

These factors may negatively impact the market value of the Securities issued by Citigroup Inc. or (in the case of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by CGMHI) Citigroup Inc.'s ability to fulfil its guarantor obligations.

Actions taken under the Banking Act in relation to the CGMFL Guarantor could materially adversely affect the value of and return on Securities issued by CGMFL

Under the Banking Act 2009 (the "Banking Act"), substantial powers are granted to HM Treasury, the Bank of England, the FCA and the Prudential Regulation Authority (the "PRA") (together, the "Authorities") as part of a special resolution regime (the "SRR"). These powers may be exercised in respect of certain UK entities (each a "relevant entity"), including certain PRA-designated investment firms such as the CGMFL Guarantor.

The SRR consists of five stabilisation options and two special insolvency procedures (bank administration and bank insolvency). The stabilisation options provide for: (i) private sector transfer of all or part of the business of the relevant entity; (ii) transfer of all or part of the business of the relevant entity to a bridge bank wholly owned by the Bank of England; (iii) transfer of all or part of the business of the relevant entity to an asset management vehicle owned and controlled by the Bank of England; (iv) writing down certain claims of unsecured creditors of the relevant entity and/or converting certain unsecured debt claims to equity, (the "bail-in option"), which equity could also be subject to any future cancellation, transfer or dilution; and (v) temporary public ownership (nationalisation) of all or part of the relevant entity or its UK holding company. In each case, the Authorities have wide powers under the Banking Act including powers to modify contractual arrangements in certain circumstances and powers for HM Treasury to disapply or modify laws (with possible retroactive effect) to enable the stabilisation powers under the Banking Act to be used effectively.

The SRR may be triggered prior to insolvency of the Guarantor

The purpose of the stabilisation options is to address the situation where all or part of a business of a relevant entity has encountered, or is likely to encounter, financial difficulties, giving rise to wider public interest concerns. Accordingly, the relevant stabilisation options may be exercised if (a) the relevant Authority is satisfied that a relevant entity is failing or likely to fail; (b) following consultation with the other Authorities, the relevant Authority determines that it is not reasonably likely that (ignoring the stabilising options) action will be taken that will result in the condition referred to in (a) ceasing to be met; and (c) the Authorities consider the exercise of the stabilisation options to be necessary, having regard to the public interest considerations (such as the stability of the UK financial system, public confidence in the UK banking system and the protection of depositors). It is therefore possible that one of the stabilisation options could be exercised prior to the point at which any insolvency proceedings with respect to the relevant entity could be initiated.

The terms of the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee may be modified without the consent of the Securityholders

If the stabilisation options were exercised under the SRR in respect of the CGMFL Guarantor, HM Treasury or the Bank of England may exercise extensive powers, including share transfer powers (applying to a wide range of securities), property transfer powers (including powers for partial transfers of property, rights and liabilities subject to certain protections in respect of the CGMFL Guarantor) and resolution instrument powers (including powers to make special bail-in provisions). Exercise of these powers could involve taking various actions in relation to the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee or the CGMFL

WEC Deed of Guarantee without the consent of the Securityholders, including (among other things) modifying or disapplying the terms of the relevant guarantee.

The taking of any such actions could adversely affect the rights of Securityholders, the price or value of their investment in the Securities and/or the ability of the CGMFL Guarantor to satisfy its obligations under the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee, as applicable. In such circumstances, Securityholders may have a claim for compensation under one of the compensation schemes existing under, or contemplated by, the Banking Act, but there can be no assurance that Securityholders would thereby recover compensation promptly or equal to any loss actually incurred.

A partial transfer of the CGMFL Guarantor's business may result in a deterioration of its creditworthiness

If the CGMFL Guarantor were made subject to the SRR and a partial transfer of its business to another entity were effected, the quality of the assets and the quantum of the liabilities not transferred and remaining with the CGMFL Guarantor (which may include the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and/or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee) will result in a deterioration in the creditworthiness of the CGMFL Guarantor and, as a result, increase the risk that it will be unable to meet its obligations in respect of the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and/or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee and/or eventually become subject to administration proceedings pursuant to the Banking Act. In such circumstances, Securityholders may have a claim for compensation under one of the compensation schemes existing under, or contemplated by, the Banking Act, but there can be no assurance that Securityholders would thereby recover compensation promptly or equal to any loss actually incurred.

As at the date of this Base Prospectus, the relevant Authorities have not made an instrument or order under the Banking Act in respect of the CGMFL Guarantor and there has been no indication that they will make any such instrument or order. However, there can be no assurance that this will not change and/or that Securityholders will not be adversely affected by any such order or instrument if made.

Macroeconomic, Geopolitical and Other Challenges and Uncertainties Could Continue to Have a Negative Impact on Citigroup Inc.

Various macroeconomic, geopolitical and regulatory factors have contributed to economic uncertainty in the U.S. and globally, including, but not limited to, those related to policies and actions of the U.S. administration, such as tariffs, and retaliatory actions by U.S. trading partners, significant volatility and disruptions in financial markets, a resurgence of inflation, increases in unemployment rates, increases in interest rates, slowing economic growth or recession in the U.S. and other countries and conflicts in the Middle East. The above risks could adversely affect Citigroup Inc.'s clients, customers, businesses, funding costs, cost of credit and overall results of operations and financial condition during the remainder of 2025 and future years. Please also see the "Risk Factors" section of Citigroup Inc.'s 2024 Form 10-K.

RISKS RELATING TO SECURITIES GENERALLY

Potential loss of some or all of the investment

You should be prepared to sustain a total or partial loss of the purchase price of your Securities.

Other than any Securities having a scheduled minimum redemption or settlement value, Securities purchased may be worthless on redemption or exercise. In addition, the Securities will only redeem or settle at an amount equivalent to at least the issue price if the applicable Issue Terms provide that the Redemption Amount at maturity or Cash Settlement Amount on exercise is an amount equivalent to at least such amount. If the Securities provide that the Redemption Amount or Cash Settlement Amount, as the case may be, may be less than the issue price, such Securities may be redeemed at an amount less than such price. If the Securities are redeemed or settled at less than the issue price or the Securities are terminated, cancelled or repaid early in accordance with their terms, the amount received by you, as a holder of such Securities, will be less than your initial investment.

Furthermore, the Securities may be traded in the secondary market or redeemed or terminated early or cancelled, and if so, the price for which a Security may be sold or redeemed early may be less than the principal amount of such Security and/or your initial investment in such Securities.

For Securities which are linked to Underlying(s), in order to recover and realise a return upon your investment, you must generally be correct about the direction, timing and magnitude of an anticipated change in the value of the relevant Underlying(s). Assuming all other factors are held constant, the more a Security is "out-of-the-money" and the shorter its remaining term to maturity or exercise, the greater the risk that you will lose all or part of your investment. The only means through which you can realise value from a Security prior to the maturity date or settlement date in relation to such Security is to sell it at its then market price in an available secondary market (if any). Fluctuations in the value or the yield (if applicable) or the relevant rates of exchange (if applicable) of the relevant Underlying(s) will affect the value of the relevant Securities. You risk losing your entire investment if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) does not move in the anticipated direction.

Further, you may receive no interest during the term of the Securities.

Securities are unsecured obligations and subject to the credit risk of the Issuer and/or Guarantor

All Securities will be unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of the Issuer and all Securities issued by it will rank equally among themselves and with all other unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of the Issuer. The obligations of the CGMHI Guarantor under the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee will be unsecured and unsubordinated and will rank pari passu with all other outstanding unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of the CGMHI Guarantor. The obligations of the CGMFL Guarantor under the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee will be unsecured and unsubordinated and will rank pari passu with all other outstanding unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of the CGMFL Guarantor. See General Condition 4 (Status) of the General Conditions of the Notes and Certificates and General Condition 4 (Status) of the General Conditions of the Warrants and Exercisable Certificates.

The Issuer's obligations under the Securities issued by it, the CGMHI Guarantor's obligations under the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee and the CGMFL Guarantor's obligations under the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee represent general contractual obligations of each respective entity and of no other person. Only Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by CGMHI will be guaranteed by the CGMHI Guarantor. Only Securities issued by CGMFL will be guaranteed by the CGMFL Guarantor. Securities issued by Citigroup Inc. will not be guaranteed by any entity.

Accordingly, all payments under the Securities are subject to the credit risk of the Issuer and, in respect of Notes or Certificates where the Issuer is CGMHI, of the CGMHI Guarantor or, where the Issuer is CGMFL, of the CGMFL Guarantor. Securityholders will not have recourse to any secured assets of the Issuer and, in respect of Notes or Certificates where the Issuer is CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor or, where the Issuer is CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor in the event that the Issuer or the relevant Guarantor is unable to meet its obligations under the Securities, including e.g. in the event of an insolvency, and therefore risk losing some or all of their investment.

A sale of Securities prior to their scheduled redemption or settlement date may result in a loss to the investor

The value of Securities prior to their scheduled redemption or settlement date varies as the price or level of the Underlying(s) (if any) varies, as well as due to a number of other interrelated factors, including (i) the trading price of the relevant Securities, (ii) the value and volatility of the Underlying(s), (iii) the remaining tenor, (iv) in the case of Cash Settled Securities, the probable range of any Redemption Amounts or Cash Settlement Amounts, (v) any change(s) in interim interest rates and dividend yields if applicable, (vi) any change(s) in currency exchange rates, (vii) the depth of the market or liquidity of the Underlying(s) and (viii) any related transaction costs. Depending on the above factors (e.g. if movements in the price or level of the Underlying(s) reduce the probable range of any Redemption Amounts or Cash Settlement Amounts), a sale of Securities prior to their scheduled redemption or exercise may be at a substantial discount from the original purchase price and you may lose some or all of your investment.

Impact of fees, commissions and/or inducements on the Issue Price and/or offer price

The issue price and/or offer price of Securities may include fees and/or other commissions and inducements (e.g. placement fees, distribution fees, structuring fees). Any such fees and/or other commissions and inducements will not be taken into account for the purposes of determining the price of such Securities in the secondary market and will result in a difference between the Issue Price and/or offer price of the Securities and the bid/offer price quoted by any intermediary in the secondary market. Any such difference will result in a decrease in the value of an issue of Securities and consequently a loss to the investor, particularly in relation to any such Securities sold immediately following the issue date or offer period relating to such Securities.

The secondary market

Securities may have no established trading market when issued, and one may never develop, so investors should be prepared to hold their Securities until maturity or exercise. If a market does develop, it may not be very liquid and may be sensitive to changes in financial markets and you may not be able to find a timely and/or suitable purchaser. If it is possible to sell Securities, they would be sold for the prevailing bid price in the market and may be subject to a transaction fee. The prevailing bid price may be affected by several factors including the performance of any relevant Underlying, prevailing interest rates at the time of sale, the time remaining to the stated maturity date, the creditworthiness of the Issuer and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor and factors affecting the capital markets generally. The introduction of additional or competing products in the market may also have a negative effect on the price of any Securities.

Consequently, you may not be able to sell your Securities easily or at all or at prices that will provide you with a yield comparable to similar investments that have a developed secondary market or at prices equal to or higher than your initial investment and in fact any such price may be substantially less than the original purchase price. Therefore, in establishing your investment strategy, you should ensure that the term of the Securities is in line with your future liquidity requirements. This is particularly the case should the relevant Issuer be in financial distress, which may result in any sale of the Securities having to be at a substantial discount to their principal amount or issue or offer price, or for Securities that are especially sensitive to interest rate, currency or market risks, are designed for specific investment objectives or strategies or have been structured to meet the investment requirements of limited categories of investors. These types of Securities generally would have a more limited secondary market and more price volatility than conventional debt securities. Illiquidity may have a severely adverse effect on the market value of Securities. The liquidity of Securities is also influenced by the type of investor to whom such Securities are sold. To the extent that an issue of Securities is or becomes illiquid, you may have to hold the relevant Securities until maturity or exercise before you are able to realise value.

The Issuer may, but is not obliged to, list an issue of Securities on a stock exchange or regulated market. If Securities are not listed or traded on any stock exchange or regulated market, pricing information for the relevant Securities may be more difficult to obtain and the liquidity of such Securities may be adversely affected.

If Securities are not listed or traded on a stock exchange or regulated market, they may be traded on trading systems governed by the laws and regulations in force from time to time (e.g. multilateral trading systems or "MTFs") or in other trading systems (e.g. bilateral systems or equivalent trading systems). In the event that trading in such Securities takes place outside any such stock exchange, regulated market or trading systems, the manner in which the price of such Securities is determined may be less transparent and the liquidity of such Securities may be adversely affected. You should note that none of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any Dealer grants any warranty to Securityholders as to the methodologies used to determine the price of Securities which are traded outside a trading system. However, where the Issuer or any of its affiliates determines the price of such Securities, it will take into account the market parameters applicable at such time in accordance with applicable provisions of law. Even if Securities are listed and/or admitted to trading, this will not necessarily result in greater liquidity.

Each of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any Dealer may, but is not obliged to, at any time purchase Securities at any price in the open market or by tender or private agreement. Any Securities so purchased may be held or resold or surrendered for cancellation. If such Securities are surrendered for cancellation, then the number of Securities outstanding will decrease, which will reduce liquidity for the outstanding Securities. Any such activities may have an adverse effect on the price of the relevant Securities in the secondary market and/or the existence of a secondary market.

Any of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor or any Dealer or affiliate of any such entity, as, where applicable, part of its activities as a broker and dealer in fixed income and equity securities and related products or otherwise, may make a secondary market in relation to any Securities and may provide an indicative bid price on a daily basis. Any indicative prices so provided shall be determined by the relevant party in its sole discretion taking into account prevailing market conditions and shall not be a representation by such party that any Securities can be purchased or sold at such prices (or at all) and any of the parties specified above may suspend or terminate making a market and providing indicative prices without notice, at any time and for any reason. In these circumstances, there may be no market for the relevant Securities and you should not assume that such a market will exist. Accordingly you must be prepared to hold the Securities until the maturity or exercise date, and may not be able to sell them prior to such date or, if you can, you may only be able to do so for a loss.

In addition, Securities issued pursuant to this Base Prospectus may be subscribed (upon issuance) by the Issuer itself or by its affiliate(s) for resales on the secondary market thereafter on the basis of investors' demand. Accordingly, in these cases investors purchasing the relevant Securities should be aware that there may not be a liquid secondary market for the relevant Securities immediately. Even if a market does develop subsequently, it may not be liquid. Furthermore investors should note that when subscribing the Securities the relevant Dealer may receive in consideration underwriting commissions and selling concessions. The Issuer may also offer and sell Securities directly to investors without the involvement of any Dealer. In addition, the Issuer or one of its affiliates may act as market maker, liquidity provider or specialist or perform other similar roles in connection with the Securities, including inter alia acting as intermediary performing the investment service of execution of orders; in such cases, the Issuer or one of its affiliates can purchase the Securities issued by itself. In light of the above circumstances, potential conflicts of interest may exist between the Issuer and/or its affiliates acting in the capacity of owners/holders of the Securities and/or market maker, liquidity provider or specialist or intermediary on the one hand and investors in the Securities on the other.

The relevant market maker, liquidity provider or specialist may act by virtue of agreements entered into with the Issuer and/or the Dealer/distributor, pursuant to which the parties undertake to sell the Securities on the secondary market at a price calculated on the basis of predetermined conditions and/or for a maximum predetermined quantity. Where the liquidity of the Securities is supported by one or more entities operating on the secondary market, there is a risk that the purchase price of the Securities is influenced by the activity of such entities if the purchase price is formulated on the basis of predetermined criteria. In such a case, in fact, the price may not reflect all the market variables and may not be indicative of the same and may, therefore, be different from the price that would have been determined independently on the market.

In addition, the Issuer reserves the right to cancel some or all of the Securities held by the Issuer itself and/or the relevant Dealer (or also by re-purchasing them from the relevant Dealer) at any time prior to the final maturity of the Securities. Accordingly, the aggregate principal amount or number of Securities outstanding at any time may be significantly less than the principal amount outstanding on the Issue Date, and this could have a negative impact on the investor's ability to sell the Securities in the secondary market. While this risk applies to all Securities, it may be particularly the case with regard to Securities listed and/or traded on Borsa Italiana S.p.A. trading venues. Any such right of cancellation shall be exercised in accordance with applicable laws, the terms and conditions of the Securities and the applicable rules of the relevant stock exchange(s) and markets, including as to notification.

Investors should therefore not assume that the Securities can be sold at a specific time or at a specific price during their life and should assume that Securities may need to be held for their scheduled term. The availability of any secondary market may be limited or non-existent and, if investors are able to sell the Securities, they may receive significantly less they would otherwise receive by holding the Securities for their scheduled term.

Change of law (including applicable tax law) or tax practice

The Terms and Conditions of the Securities are based on relevant laws in effect as at the date of this Base Prospectus. No assurance can be given as to the impact of any possible judicial decision or change to such laws or administrative practices after the date of this Base Prospectus and any such change could materially adversely impact the value of any Securities affected by it.

In addition any relevant tax law, regulations or practice applicable as at the date of this Base Prospectus and/or the date of purchase or subscription of any Securities may change at any time (including during any subscription period or the term of any Securities) and it is not possible to predict the precise tax treatment which will apply to the Securities at any given time. Any such change may have an adverse effect on you including that your Securities may be redeemed, terminated or cancelled before their due date, their liquidity may decrease and/or the tax treatment of amounts payable or receivable by or to you may be less favourable than otherwise expected by you.

Risks related to implementation of regulatory reform

Implementation of U.S. federal financial reform legislation may affect the value of Underlying(s) and the ability to hedge the Issuer's obligations under the Securities. This may in turn affect the market value, trading price and volatility of, and return on, the Securities. This is because the amounts received and/or value of assets deliverable under the Securities will depend on (among other things) the performance of any such Underlying(s) and the Securities may be subject to early redemption, termination or cancellation as a result of events related to hedging arrangements. In addition, amounts and/or assets due under the Securities may be reduced to reflect costs related to hedging arrangements.

For example, in October 2020, the CFTC adopted rules to establish revised or new limits on the size of the positions any person may hold in 25 agricultural, metals and energy futures contracts and futures, options and swaps that are economically equivalent to those futures contracts. The limits apply to a person's combined position in the specified 25 futures contracts and options on futures ("core referenced futures contracts"), futures and options on futures directly or indirectly linked to the core referenced futures contracts, and economically equivalent swaps. These rules came into effect on 1 January 2022 for covered futures and options on futures contracts and on 1 January 2023 for covered swaps. These limits may subject certain transactions to new forms of regulation that could create barriers and increase costs in relation to some types of hedging activity by the relevant Issuer and/or any Hedging Party or any of their respective affiliates. Other provisions of the Dodd-Frank Act require certain Underlying(s) or hedging transactions to be cleared, traded on a regulated exchange and reported to regulators, central data repositories and, in some cases, the public, which may also affect their value, volatility and cost. The Dodd-Frank Act also expands entity registration requirements and imposes business conduct requirements on persons active in the swaps market (which may include new capital and margin requirements), which may affect the value of the relevant Underlying(s) or value and/or cost of hedging transactions. Such regulation may consequently affect the market value, trading price and volatility of, and return on, the Securities.

Changes in exchange rates and exchange controls could result in a loss of the value of the Securities and payments in respect thereof in relation to the currency of your jurisdiction

An investment in Securities denominated or payable in a Settlement Currency and/or payable in a currency other than the currency of your jurisdiction ("your currency") entails significant risks that are not associated with a similar investment in a security denominated in your currency. These risks include, but are not limited to:

- the possibility of significant market changes in rates of exchange between your currency and the Settlement Currency and/or payment currency;
- the possibility of significant changes in rates of exchange between your currency and the Settlement Currency and/or payment currency resulting from the official redenomination or revaluation of the Settlement Currency and/or payment currency; and
- the possibility of the imposition or modification of foreign exchange controls by either your jurisdiction or foreign governments.

These risks generally depend on factors over which none of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor has any control and which cannot be readily foreseen, such as economic and political events and the supply of, and demand for, the relevant currencies.

In recent years, rates of exchange between some foreign currencies in which the Securities may be denominated and/or payable have been volatile. This volatility may be expected in the future. Fluctuations that have occurred in any particular exchange rate in the past are not necessarily indicative, however, of fluctuation that may occur in the rate during the term of any Security. Depreciation of the Settlement Currency and/or payment currency of a Security against your currency would result in a decrease in the effective yield of such Security below its coupon rate (if applicable) and could result in a substantial loss to you in terms of your currency.

Governments and monetary authorities have imposed from time to time, and may in the future impose, exchange controls that could affect applicable exchange rates as well as the availability of a Settlement Currency and/or payment currency at the time of payment of any amounts on any Security. There can be no assurance that exchange controls will not restrict or prohibit payments under the Securities which are denominated in any such Settlement Currency and/or payment currency. Even if there are no actual exchange controls, it is possible that a Settlement Currency and/or payment currency would not be available to the Issuer and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor when payments on a Security are due because of circumstances beyond the control of the Issuer and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor. Any such restriction, prohibition or unavailability of the relevant currency may negatively affect the value of and return on the Securities, and could result in a substantial loss to you.

The above risks may be increased if any Specified Currency and/or payment currency and/or your currency is the currency of an emerging market jurisdiction.

The unavailability of currencies could result in a loss of value of the Securities and payments thereunder

The currency in which payments on a Security are required to be made may be redenominated, for example, because such currency is:

- unavailable due to the imposition of exchange controls or other circumstances beyond the Issuer's and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor's control;
- no longer used by the government of the country issuing the currency; or
- no longer used for the settlement of transactions by public institutions of the international banking community.

Where the currency in which payments in respect of a Security is officially redenominated, other than as a result of Economic and Monetary Union in the EU, such as by an official redenomination of any such currency that is a composite currency, then the payment obligations of the Issuer and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor on such Security immediately following the redenomination will be the amount of redenominated currency that represents the amount of the Issuer's and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor's obligations immediately before the redenomination.

The Securities will not provide for any adjustment to any amount payable as a result of:

- any change in the value of the Settlement Currency and/or payment currency of those Securities relative to any other currency due solely to fluctuations in exchange rates; or
- any redenomination of any component currency of any composite currency, unless that composite currency is itself officially redenominated.

Accordingly, a currency redenomination may result in a material adverse loss of the value of and return on the Securities.

Certain considerations relating to public offers of Securities in the EEA

As described in the applicable Final Terms, Securities that are not Exempt Securities may be distributed by means of a public offer made in the specified Member State(s) of the EEA during an offer period specified in the applicable Final Terms. During such offer period, the Issuer and/or any other person specified in the applicable Final Terms may reserve the right to cancel such offer and/or to scale back applications for such offer in the event of over-subscription or such other circumstances as are specified in the applicable Final Terms. In such circumstances, an applicant investor may not be issued any Securities or may be issued a number of Securities which is less than the amount for which such applicant investor applied. Any payments made by an applicant investor or, in the case of public offers in Italy any amount segregated by a distributor as intended payment of the offer price by an applicant investor, for Securities that are not issued to such applicant investor for any such reason will be refunded. However, there will be a time lag in making any reimbursement, no interest or compensation will be payable in respect of any such amounts and the applicant investor may be subject to reinvestment risk.

RISK FACTORS

In addition, the Issuer and/or the other entities specified in the applicable Final Terms may terminate the offer early by immediate suspension of the acceptance of further subscription requests and by giving notice to the public in accordance with the applicable Final Terms. Any such termination may occur, even where the maximum amount for subscription in relation to that offer (as specified in the applicable Final Terms), has not been reached and, in such circumstances, the early closing of the offer may have an impact on the aggregate number of Securities issued. This may in turn have an adverse effect on the liquidity of the relevant Securities, with the result that you may not be able to sell the Securities prior to the maturity date or, if you can, that you may only be able to do so for a loss.

Further, you should note that, in certain circumstances, Securities may not be issued on the originally designated issue date, for example because either the Issuer and/or any other person specified in the applicable Final Terms has reserved the right to postpone such issue date or, following the publication of a supplement to this Base Prospectus the Issuer has decided to postpone such issue date to allow investors who had made applications to subscribe for Securities before the date of publication of such Supplement to exercise their right to withdraw their acceptances. In the event that the issue date is so delayed, no interest shall accrue (if applicable) until the issue date of the Securities and no compensation shall be payable.

Certain risks relating to public offers of the Securities in Italy

If the Securities are distributed by means of a public offer, under certain circumstances indicated in the applicable Final Terms, the Issuer and/or the other entities indicated in the applicable Final Terms will have the right to withdraw or revoke the offer, and the offer will be deemed to be null and void according to the terms indicated in the applicable Final Terms. Unless otherwise provided in the applicable Final Terms, the Issuer and/or the other entities specified in the applicable Final Terms may terminate the offer early by immediate suspension of the acceptance of further subscription requests and by giving notice to the public in accordance with the applicable Final Terms. Any such termination may occur even where the maximum amount for subscription in relation to that offer (as specified in the applicable Final Terms), has not been reached. In such circumstances, the early closing of the offer may have an impact on the aggregate number of Securities issued and, therefore, may have an adverse effect on the liquidity of the Securities. Furthermore, in such circumstances, investors who have already paid or delivered subscription monies for the relevant Securities will be entitled to reimbursement of such amounts, but will not receive any remuneration that may have accrued in the period between their payment or delivery of subscription monies and the reimbursement of the Securities.

The applicable Final Terms may also provide that the effectiveness of the offer of Securities is conditional upon admission to listing (in the case of a regulated market) or admission to trading (in the case of a multilateral trading facility) indicated in the applicable Final Terms, occurring by the Issue Date. In such case, in the event that admission to listing and/or trading of the Securities does not take place by the Issue Date for whatever reason, the Issuer may withdraw the offer, the offer will be deemed to be null and void and the relevant Securities will not be issued. As a consequence, the potential investor will not receive any Securities, any subscription rights the potential investor has for the Securities will be cancelled and they will not be entitled to any compensation therefor.

Furthermore, under certain circumstances, the Issuer and/or the other entities indicated in the applicable Final Terms will have the right to extend the offer period and/or to postpone the originally designated issue date, and related interest payment dates.

The issue price and/or offer price of the Securities may include subscription fees, placement fees, direction fees, structuring fees and/or other additional costs. Any such fees and/or costs may not be taken into account for the purposes of determining the price of such Securities on the secondary market and could result in a difference between the original issue price and/or offer price, the theoretical value of the Securities, and/or the actual bid/offer price quoted by any intermediary in the secondary market. Any such difference may have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities, particularly immediately following the offer and the issue date relating to such Securities, where any such fees and/or costs may be deducted from the price at which such Securities can be sold by the initial investor in the secondary market.

Where Securities are offered to the public, as the relevant Dealer(s) and any distributors act pursuant to a mandate granted by the Issuer and they receive fees on the basis of the services performed and the outcome of the placement of such Securities, potential conflicts of interest could arise.

In addition, if it is indicated in the Final Terms that the Issuer will adopt the distribution process on the MOT described in article 2.4.3, paragraph 7 of the rules of the markets organised and managed by Borsa Italiana, the circumstance that, pursuant to this distribution process, potential investors can monitor (via market operators) the progress of the proposed purchases of the Securities during the offer period, may have an impact on the progress and results of the offer. Investors should also note that, pursuant to the distribution process on the MOT indicated above, the proposed acquisition of the Securities during the offer period does not constitute conclusion of the contract, which remains subject to confirmation of the correct execution of the order and the issuance of the Securities.

Determinations and potential conflicts of interest

The terms of the Securities confer on the Issuer, the Calculation Agent and certain other persons some discretion in making judgements, determinations and calculations in relation to the Securities including, inter alia, Underlying(s) and the occurrence of various events. The Issuer, the Calculation Agent or such other persons will act (a) in respect of securities other than German Law Warrants, in good faith and in its sole and absolute discretion or in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner (as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) or (b) in respect of German Law Warrants, in its reasonable discretion and in good faith and a commercially reasonable manner, but there can be no assurance that the exercise of any such discretion will not affect the value of the Securities or result in the occurrence of an early repayment at an amount less than an investor's initial investment.

Where the Calculation Agent is an affiliate of the Issuer, potential conflicts of interest may exist between the Calculation Agent and Securityholders, including with respect to such judgements, determinations and calculations that the Calculation Agent may make pursuant to the Securities that may influence the amount receivable or specified assets deliverable in respect of the Securities.

Any of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor and/or their affiliates and/or any third parties or entities which are not subject to regulation under the laws of the United States, the EEA or the United Kingdom may be the sponsor of an Underlying and may publish values or prices or other projections of creditworthiness in respect of an Underlying. Any of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor and/or any of their affiliates may also from time to time engage in transactions involving Underlying(s) for their proprietary accounts or for other accounts under their management, subject to requirements of all applicable laws and regulations. Any of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor and/or their affiliates may also issue other derivative instruments in respect of any Underlying(s). Any of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor, and/or their affiliates may also act as underwriter or counterparty in connection with future offerings of shares or other securities or obligations related to an issue of Securities or may act as financial adviser to certain companies or companies whose securities are Underlying(s) in respect of one or more issues of Securities or in a commercial banking capacity for such companies. These activities may have a negative effect on the value of the relevant Underlying(s) and consequently upon the value of the Securities.

Any of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor, any Dealer and/or any of their affiliates may at the date of this Base Prospectus or at any time hereafter be in possession of information in relation to an Underlying that is or may be material and may or may not be publicly available to Securityholders. There is no obligation on any of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor, or any Dealer to disclose to any potential investors in Securities or to Securityholders any such information.

Any of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor, any Dealer and/or any of their affiliates may have existing or future business relationships with the issuer of, or other entity associated with, any Underlying(s) (including, but not limited to, lending, depositary, risk management, advisory and banking relationships), and will pursue actions and take steps that they or it deems necessary or appropriate to protect their and/or its interests arising therefrom without regard to the consequences for you, which could have a material adverse impact on the value of and return on the Securities.

Where Securities are offered to the public, as the relevant Dealer(s) and any distributors act pursuant to a mandate granted by the Issuer and they receive fees on the basis of the services performed and the outcome of the placement of such Securities, potential conflicts of interest could arise.

Realisation Disruption

Other than in the case of Preference Share Linked Securities, if "Realisation Disruption" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and a Realisation Disruption Event occurs (being, in summary, either (i) an event which imposes restrictions or taxes, charges or deductions in respect of the Securities and/or on hedging arrangements in respect of the Securities which would materially restrict, or materially increase the cost of, the Issuer's obligations under the Securities or materially restrict, or materially increase the cost of, any Hedging Party's obligations under any such hedging arrangements, or (ii) the occurrence or existence of any event which either materially restricts the exchange, delivery or transfer of the currency of payment of the Securities or of any hedging arrangements in respect of the Securities or restricts the determination of any exchange rate in relation to any such currency), then either (a) the terms and conditions of the Securities (including any payment or delivery obligations) may be adjusted in order to reflect the economic effect of the particular Realisation Disruption Event or (b) the Issuer may early terminate the Securities.

Any such adjustments by the Calculation Agent may include (but are not limited to): (i) payments under the Securities being made in a different currency to the previously specified payment currency of the Securities; (ii) deduction of applicable taxes, charges or deductions from payments due in respect of the Securities resulting in reduced amounts paid in respect of the Securities or delivery of any Entitlement being subject to payment by the relevant Securityholder of an amount equal to a pro rata portion of any such tax, charge or deduction; (iii) delay of payments or deliveries in respect of the Securities until the relevant restrictions are lifted; (iv) determination of relevant exchange rates by the Calculation Agent taking into consideration all available information that it deems relevant, which may result in a different rate to that which would have applied had the Realisation Disruption Event not occurred; and (v) (where legally permissible) in lieu of paying any cash amounts in respect of the Securities, procuring the physical delivery of any Underlying(s) (or vice versa). Any of the above adjustments could produce a materially different redemption to that originally anticipated in respect of the Securities and could have a material adverse impact on the value of and return on the Securities.

If the Securities are terminated early pursuant to (b) of the first paragraph above, the Issuer will pay to you, as a holder of such Securities, an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you would therefore sustain a loss.

See further Valuation and Settlement Condition 2(j) (Realisation Disruption) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates or Valuation and Settlement Condition 1(j) (Realisation Disruption) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates.

Occurrence of a Settlement Currency Disruption Event

If, in the opinion of the Calculation Agent, payment of any amount due in respect of the Securities cannot be made by the Issuer in the Settlement Currency on any date on which payment is scheduled to be made under the Securities due to the occurrence of a Settlement Currency Disruption Event (being (a) the imposition of restrictions on the transferability, purchase and holding of the Settlement Currency, (b) its non-acceptance by a clearing system or its disuse, (c) its illiquidity in the relevant market or (d) any other circumstances beyond the Issuer's control), then the Issuer shall be entitled to satisfy its obligations to Securityholders by either (i) delaying any such payment until after the Settlement Currency Disruption Event ceases to exist, or (ii) making such payment in United States dollars on, or as soon as reasonably practicable after, the relevant payment date. Any such delayed payment or payment in United States dollars will not constitute a default and Securityholders shall not be entitled to interest or any other payment in respect of any such delay and this could have a material adverse impact on the rights of Securityholders, the value of and return on the Securities.

See further General Condition 8(i) (Settlement Currency Disruption Event) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates or General Condition 7(k) (Settlement procedures and Agents – Settlement Currency Disruption Event) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates.

Occurrence of a RMB Disruption Event

A RMB Disruption Event refers to the occurrence of a RMB Inconvertibility, RMB Non-Transferability or RMB Illiquidity (each, as defined in the General Conditions). If "RMB Disruption Event" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and if such event occurs, the Calculation Agent may direct the Issuer to exercise its option to (a) postpone any payment in RMB due under the Securities to a later date (being 10 Business Days following the date on which such RMB Disruption Event ceases to exist); or (b) replace the Issuer's obligation to pay in RMB by an obligation to pay such amount in the RMB Relevant Currency converted using the RMB Spot Rate for the relevant RMB Determination Date. Alternatively, (if "Early Termination Option" is specified as applicable) the Issuer may early terminate each Security at its Early Termination Amount.

In case of (a) or (b), investors may receive a late payment or depending on the conversion rate that is applied, a payment less than the anticipated amount(s) due in respect of the Securities. If the Securities are early terminated pursuant to (b), the Issuer will pay to you, as a holder of such Securities, an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent or such other amount as specified in the applicable Issue Terms. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you would therefore sustain a loss.

See further General Condition 8(j) (Occurrence of a RMB Disruption Event) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates or General Condition 7(l) (RMB Disruption Event) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Certificates.

Illegality in relation to Securities

If "Early Termination for illegality" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and the Issuer determines that the performance of its obligations under an issue of Securities or (if applicable) the Guarantor determines that the performance of its obligations under the relevant Deed of Guarantee in respect of such Securities has become illegal in whole or in part for any reason, the Issuer may redeem or terminate the Securities early and, if and to the extent permitted by applicable law, will pay to you, as a holder of such Securities (i) where the early termination amount is determined by reference to the fair market value of the Securities, an amount calculated, notwithstanding such illegality, in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms and (ii) otherwise, an amount calculated pursuant to the relevant Condition or as specified in the applicable Issue Terms. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you would therefore sustain a loss.

See further General Condition 6(b)(ii) (Termination for Illegality) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates or General Condition 6(i) (Illegality in relation to the Warrants) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Certificates.

Section 871(m) Event

In circumstances that constitute a "Section 871(m) Event" (being the occurrence at any time of circumstances in which the Issuer, and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor and/or save where the applicable Issue Terms specify that "Section 871(m) Event (Hedging)" is not applicable, any Hedging Party is (or, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, there is a reasonable likelihood that, within the next 30 Business Days, the Issuer and/or (if applicable) the Guarantor and/or save where the applicable Issue Terms specify that "Section 871(m) Event (Hedging)" is not applicable, any Hedging Party will become) subject to any withholding or reporting obligations pursuant to Section 871(m) (as defined in "Risks relating to the United States tax treatment of the Securities") with respect to the relevant Securities and/or the Deed of Guarantee and/or, save where the applicable Issue Terms specify that "Section 871(m) Event (Hedging)" is not applicable, any underlying Hedging Positions), if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, an Early Termination Event will occur in which case the relevant Securities may be early terminated as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of such Securities.

If the Securities are so terminated early, the Issuer will pay to you, as a holder of such Securities, an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms or another amount as specified in the applicable Issue Terms. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could lose some or all of your investment.

Risks relating to the United States tax treatment of the Securities

The United States Tax Treatment of Certain Securities is Unclear

For U.S. federal tax purposes, the proper treatment and characterisation of Securities that are not treated as debt instruments (generally, Securities that do not provide for the return at maturity or settlement of a holder's investment) are unclear. As a result, the timing and character of income on such a Security are uncertain, and for a non-U.S. investor holding such a Security issued by a U.S. Issuer (as defined below under "Section G.9—Taxation of Securities—United States Federal Tax Considerations"), there is a risk that payments on such a Security, in particular payments that are made (or fixed) prior to maturity or settlement, may be subject to U.S. withholding tax. If withholding tax applies to a payment on such a Security, the Issuer will generally not be required to pay additional amounts in respect of amounts withheld. An investor may therefore receive a substantially reduced return on the Securities as compared to the return the investor would receive in the absence of such withholding.

In the case of Debt Designated Securities issued by a U.S. Issuer (both as defined below under "Section G.9—Taxation of Securities—United States Federal Tax Considerations"), there is a risk of recharacterisation as non-debt instruments if the Securities (such as certain Credit Linked Notes that are Debt Designated Securities) do not provide for the return of a holder's investment under all circumstances, in which case payments may be subject to U.S. withholding tax.

The U.S. Treasury Department and the Internal Revenue Service ("IRS") have requested comments on various issues regarding the U.S. federal income tax treatment of "prepaid forward contracts" and similar financial instruments and have indicated that such transactions may be the subject of future regulations or other guidance. In addition, members of Congress have proposed legislative changes to the tax treatment of derivative contracts. Any legislation, Treasury regulations or other guidance promulgated after consideration of these issues could materially and adversely affect the tax consequences of an investment in the Securities, possibly with retroactive effect.

Possible Taxable Event for U.S. Federal Income Tax Purposes

Certain modifications to the terms of the Securities could be treated as "significant modifications" of the Securities for U.S. federal income tax purposes, in which case the Securities would generally be treated, in whole or part, as retired and reissued. Significant modifications could include (but are not limited to) a designation by the Issuer of a Substitute for itself and the designation of a substitute or successor rate.

In the event of a significant modification, a U.S. Holder (as defined under "Section G.9—Taxation of Securities—United States Federal Tax Considerations" in this Base Prospectus) would generally be required to recognise gain or loss (subject to possible treatment as a recapitalisation or, in the case of loss, to the possible application of the wash sale rules) with respect to the Securities. Moreover, the treatment of the Securities after such an event could differ from their prior treatment. A changed treatment of the Securities could have possible withholding tax consequences to Non-U.S. Holders (as defined under "Section G.9—Taxation of Securities—United States Federal Tax Considerations" in this Base Prospectus). The after-tax return on the Securities after a significant modification may be less, and significantly so, than the return prior to such modification. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the risk of such an event.

Possible U.S. Federal Withholding Tax under Section 871(m)

Section 871(m) of the United States Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code"), and Treasury regulations promulgated thereunder (collectively, "Section 871(m)") impose a 30 per cent. (or lower treaty rate) withholding tax on certain "dividend equivalents" paid or deemed paid to Non-U.S. Holders (as defined under "Section G.9—Taxation of Securities—United States Federal Tax Considerations" in this Base Prospectus) with respect to certain financial instruments linked to U.S. equities or indices that include U.S. equities. This withholding regime generally applies to Securities that substantially replicate the economic performance of one or more underlying U.S. equities, as determined based on one of two tests set forth in the regulations. However, based on an IRS notice, Securities issued prior to 2027 will generally be subject to this withholding tax only if they have a "delta" of one with respect to the relevant underlying U.S. equity. Delta is generally defined as the ratio of the change in the fair market value of a financial instrument to a small change in the fair market value of the number of shares of the underlying U.S. equity. The regulations provide certain other exceptions to this withholding regime, in particular for instruments linked to certain broad-based indices that meet requirements set forth in the regulations as well as instruments linked to securities that track such indices. The Issuer will not be required to pay any additional amounts in respect of amounts withheld under Section 871(m), and an investor may therefore receive a substantially reduced return on the Securities as compared to the return the investor would receive in the absence of such withholding tax.

Prospective purchasers of the Securities should be aware that if a Section 871(m) Event (as defined in the Valuation and Settlement Schedule) occurs, an Early Termination Event may occur, in which case the relevant Securities may be terminated as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of such Securities. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Prospective purchasers of the Securities should consult their tax advisers regarding the potential application of Section 871(m) to a particular Security.

Reportable Transactions

In 2015, the U.S. Treasury Department and the IRS released notices designating certain "basket options", "basket contracts" and substantially similar transactions as reportable transactions. The terms "basket option" and "basket contract" refer to certain contracts in which a taxpayer receives a return based on the performance of a notional basket of referenced assets, provided that the taxpayer or its "designee" has, and exercises, discretion to change the assets or an algorithm underlying the contract. In addition, in July 2024 the U.S. Treasury Department and the IRS released proposed regulations that, if adopted in their current form, would deem any such transactions to be "listed transactions". If the Issuer, an index sponsor or calculation agent or other person were to exercise discretion under the terms of a Security or an index underlying a Security and were treated as a holder's "designee" for these purposes, unless an exception applied certain holders of the relevant Securities would be required to report certain information to the IRS, as set forth in the applicable Treasury regulations, or be subject to penalties. The Issuer might also be required to report information regarding the transaction to the IRS.

Prospective purchasers of the Securities are urged to consult their tax advisers regarding the U.S. federal tax consequences of an investment in the Securities.

Risks related to the EU Pillar Two directive

On 20 December 2021, the OECD/G20 Inclusive Framework on BEPS published the Global Anti-Base Erosion Model Rules (commonly referred to as Pillar Two). Pillar Two aims to ensure that multinational enterprise groups with annual consolidated revenues of €750 million or more are subject to a minimum effective tax rate of 15% in each jurisdiction where they operate.

The primary mechanism under Pillar Two is the income inclusion rule ("IIR"), pursuant to which a top-up tax is payable by a parent entity of a group if one or more constituent entities of the group have not been subject to an effective tax rate of 15%. In the event where the IIR does not apply at the ultimate parent entity level, a lower-level parent entity may be required to apply the IIR. A secondary fall back is provided by the undertaxed profit rule ("UTPR") in case the IIR has not been applied. The UTPR can be applied by (i) limiting or denying a deduction or (ii) making an adjustment in the form of a top-up tax. In addition, jurisdictions may implement a qualified domestic minimum top-up tax ("QDMTT"). A jurisdiction that incorporates the QDMTT becomes the first in line to levy any top-up tax from low-taxed entities located in its jurisdiction. It must compute profits and calculate any top-up tax due in the same way as the Pillar Two rules. Without a QDMTT, another jurisdiction, as determined by the Pillar Two rules, would be entitled to levy the top-up tax.

At EU level, Pillar Two is implemented through Council Directive (EU) 2022/2523 of 15 December 2022 on ensuring a global minimum level of taxation for multinational enterprise groups and large-scale domestic groups in the European Union (the "Pillar Two Directive"). EU Member States were required to transpose the Pillar Two Directive in their national laws by 31 December 2023 and the rules had to become effective for tax years commencing on or after 31 December 2023, with the exception of the UTPR, which will apply for tax years commencing on or after 31 December 2024. Luxembourg has transposed the Pillar Two Directive through the law of 22 December 2023, as amended. In that context, Luxembourg opted to implement the UTPR in the form of an additional tax and to apply a QDMTT applicable for tax years starting on or after 31 December 2023.

The implementation of Pillar Two could result in a higher tax burden for CGMFL and may adversely affect investor returns.

RISK FACTORS

Anti-tax avoidance directives

Directive 2016/1164/EU, the so-called anti-tax avoidance directive ("ATAD"), was adopted on 12 July 2016 to implement in the EU Member States' domestic legal frameworks common measures to tackle tax avoidance practices. ATAD lays down (i) controlled foreign company rules, (ii) anti-hybrid mismatches within the EU context rules, (iii) general interest limitation rules, (iv) a general anti-abuse rule, and (v) exit taxation rules. Following the adoption of ATAD, the EU Member States decided to go further as regards hybrid-mismatches with third countries, and adopted the Directive 2017/952/EU ("ATAD 2") amending the ATAD provisions with respect to anti-hybrid mismatches, on 29 May 2017. Luxembourg adopted (i) the Law of 21 December 2018 implementing ATAD with effect as of 1 January 2019 and (ii) the Law of 20 December 2019 implementing ATAD 2 with effect as of 1 January 2020 (except for the reverse hybrid mismatch rules, which have applied since 1 January 2022). These rules could increase the taxable base of CGMFL and/or reduce amounts available for distribution to Securityholders.

Risks relating to inflation

Inflation is the general increase in prices and fall in the purchasing value of money over time. Due to the impact of inflation, the same amount of money will buy fewer goods and services over time.

The real return (or yield) on an investment in Securities will be reduced by inflation. Consequently, the higher the rate of inflation, the lower the real yield on a security will be. If the inflation rate is equal to or greater than the yield under a security, the real yield a holder of such security will achieve will be zero or even negative. Accordingly, inflation may have a negative effect on the value of and return on the Securities, and you should consider the potential impact of inflation (including if the rate of inflation is anticipated to rise over the term of the Securities) before purchasing Securities.

Relatedly, if the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities provide that some or all of the principal shall be repaid at maturity, such scheduled principal repayment will not provide any protection from the effect of inflation over time and it may still be the case that the return on such Securities adjusted for inflation could be negative.

With regard to risks of Securities linked to one or more Inflation Indices, see "Risks associated with Securities linked to Inflation Indices".

Simultaneous risks and compounding of risks

More than one risk factor may have simultaneous effects with regard to the Securities such that the effect of a particular risk may not be predictable. In addition, more than one risk factor may have a compounding effect, which may not be predictable.

RISKS RELATING TO SECURITIES LINKED TO UNDERLYING(S)

General risks relating to Securities linked to Underlying(s)

An investment in Securities linked to Underlying(s) has significant risks that are not associated with a similar investment in a conventional security (e.g. a debt instrument that has a pre-determined specified principal amount, is denominated in your currency and bears interest at either a fixed or a floating rate based on nationally published interest rate references), as amounts due or assets deliverable in respect of such Securities are linked to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s).

The risks associated with a particular Security linked to Underlying(s) will depend on factors over which none of the Issuers, the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor has any control and which cannot readily be foreseen, and the return on Securities linked to Underlying(s) may attract certain of the same risks as an actual investment in the relevant Underlying(s). These risks include economic and political events and the supply of, and demand for, any relevant Underlying(s).

Each of these risks may have an impact on the level, price, rate or other applicable value of an Underlying, which may go down as well as up throughout the term of the Securities, and such fluctuations may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

Furthermore, in recent years, prices, rates, levels or values for various Underlying(s) have been highly volatile. Such volatility may be expected in the future. Fluctuations in the prices, rates, levels or values that have occurred in the past are not necessarily indicative, however, of fluctuations that may occur during the term of any Securities linked to Underlying(s).

In addition, the value of any relevant Underlying(s) may be determined or published by any Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and/or the CGMFL Guarantor or an affiliate of any such entity or determined or published by third parties or entities which are not subject to regulation under the laws of the United States, the EEA or the United Kingdom.

The risk of loss as a result of linking principal, interest and/or termination payments to Underlying(s) can be substantial and the payment of principal, interest and/or termination amounts may be contingent on the occurrence of certain events in respect of Underlying(s) which may not occur.

No rights of ownership in Underlying(s)

The Securities do not create an actual interest in, or ownership of, the relevant Underlying(s). Except in certain circumstances where the Securities are Physical Delivery Securities, a Security will not represent a claim against any Underlying and, in the event that the amount paid on redemption of the Securities is less than the nominal amount of the Securities, you, as a Securityholder, will not have recourse under any relevant Security to any security indices, inflation indices, commodity indices, commodities, shares, depositary receipts, exchange traded funds, mutual funds, currencies, bespoke or proprietary indices, dividend futures contracts, interest rates, preference shares, bonds, debt securities or other items which may comprise the relevant Underlying(s) in respect of such Securities. The exposure to the relevant Underlying(s) is notional and an investment in the Securities is not an investment in the relevant Underlying(s). Although the performance of the relevant Underlying(s) will have an effect on the Securities, the relevant Underlying(s) and the Securities are separate obligations of different legal entities. You will have no legal or beneficial interest in the relevant Underlying(s). Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on the Securities than you would have received had you invested directly in the Underlying(s) or through another product.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Security Indices

The level of a Security Index is generally based on the value of the component securities of that index ("component securities") although the level of a Security Index may not include the reinvestment of the yield on the component securities. Global economic, financial and political developments, among other things, may have a material effect on the value of the component securities and/or the performance of a Security Index, and this may in turn affect the value of and return on the Securities.

The risks of a particular Security linked to a Security Index will depend on the terms of that Security. Such risks may include the possibility of significant changes in:

- the prices of the component securities and the weighting of each component security within the relevant index or indices;
- other objective prices; and
- economic or other measures making up the relevant Security Index or indices.

Market volatility reflects the degree of instability and expected instability of the performance of a Security Index and the component securities. The level of market volatility is largely determined by the prices for financial instruments supposed to protect you against such market volatility. The prices of these instruments are determined by forces of supply and demand in the options and derivative markets generally. These forces are, themselves, affected by factors such as actual market volatility, expected volatility, economic factors and speculation. In recent years, currency exchange rates and prices for component securities have been highly volatile. Such volatility may be expected in the future. Fluctuations in the rates or prices that have occurred in the past are not necessarily indicative, however, of fluctuations that may occur during the term of any Security relating to Security Indices.

The above factors may have an effect on the performance of a Security Index, and this may in turn affect the value of and return on the Securities.

You should note that any dividends, other distributions assets and/or amounts paid to holders of the component securities will not be paid to the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor or to the holders of

RISK FACTORS

Securities. The return on Securities will thus not reflect any such assets and/or amounts which would otherwise be paid to investors that have made a direct investment in any such component securities. Consequently, the return on Securities may be less than the return from a direct investment in any such component securities.

In considering whether to purchase Securities linked to Security Indices, you should be aware that the calculation of amounts payable or, as applicable, assets due on Securities relating to Security Indices may involve reference to prices that are published solely by third parties or entities which are not regulated by the laws of the United States, the EEA, the United Kingdom or the jurisdiction of the particular investor.

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to a Security Index than you would have received if you had invested in the components of such index directly or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 1 (Security Index Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Security Indices.

The type and rules of the Security Index (or Security Indices) to which the Securities are linked may have an adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities

Price Return and Total Return Indices

The rules governing the composition and calculation of the relevant Security Index may stipulate that dividends paid on its components are included in the calculation of the index level (a "total return" index) or are not included in the calculation of the index level (a "price return" index).

Where Securities are linked to a "price return" index, holders of the Securities will not participate in dividends paid on the components comprising the Security Index. As a result, holders of Securities linked to such Security Index would lose the benefit of any dividends paid by the components of the Security Index and such Securities may not perform as well as a position where such holder had invested directly in such components or where they invested in a "total return" version of the Security Index, or in another product.

In the case of Securities linked to a "total return" index, net dividends (in the case of a "net total return" index) or gross dividends (in the case of a "gross total return" index) paid on its components are included in the calculation of the index level. In the case of a "net total return" index, dividends paid on its components may not be fully reinvested in the Security Index and accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to such Security Index than you would have received if you had invested in the components of such Security Index directly or in another product.

Decrement Indices

If the Security Index has a "decrement" feature, the return on such Security Index will be calculated by reinvesting net dividends or gross dividends (depending on the type and rules of such Security Index) paid by its components and by subtracting on a daily basis a pre-defined amount (a "Synthetic Dividend"). The Synthetic Dividend may be defined as a percentage of the index level or as a fixed number of index points. Investors should note that any of the following factors, where applicable, could adversely affect the value of and return on Securities linked to a "decrement" index:

- A Security Index with a "decrement" feature will underperform a "total return" index that is used as a base index to calculate such Security Index since the latter is calculated without the deduction of a Synthetic Dividend. Similarly, where such Security Index tracks the performance of a single component security, the Security Index will underperform a direct investment in such component security as such investment would benefit from dividends paid by the component security without the deduction of a Synthetic Dividend.
- A Security Index with a "decrement" feature will underperform the corresponding "price return" index if the amount of dividends paid by the components of such Security Index is less than the amount of the Synthetic Dividend deducted. Where such Security Index tracks the performance of a single component security, the Security Index will underperform a direct investment in such component security as such investment would benefit from dividends paid by the component security without the deduction of a Synthetic Dividend.

- Where the Synthetic Dividend is defined as a fixed number of index points (as opposed to a percentage of the index level), the Synthetic Dividend yield (calculated as the ratio of the fixed index point decrement to the relevant decrement index level) will increase in a falling equities market as the Synthetic Dividend is a fixed amount. In such scenario, the fixed deduction will have a greater negative impact on the index level of the relevant Security Index than if the Synthetic Dividend was defined as a percentage of the index level. It is even possible that in a steeply falling market scenario the index level could become negative, since the amount of decrement expressed in index points will not vary with the level of the decrement index.

Security Index Linked Warrants relating to a Contract

If, in relation to Security Index Linked Warrants relating to a Contract, the terms of the Contract are changed or modified by the applicable Related Exchange, the Calculation Agent shall make appropriate adjustments to the terms of the Warrants to account for such change or modification. In the event that the relevant Contract never commences or is permanently discontinued, the Calculation Agent shall determine the Official Settlement Price by reference to the closing level of the relevant Index on the Expiry Date as more fully set out in the Conditions. Such adjustments to the Conditions of such Warrants may have an adverse effect on the value of such Warrants.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Security Indices

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Security Indices include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for a Security Index in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of any Security Index (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, (b) such Security Index (i) not being calculated and announced by or on behalf of the relevant index sponsor but instead being calculated and announced by or on behalf of a successor to the relevant index sponsor or (ii) being replaced by a successor index, or (c) if Additional Index Provisions for China Connect Service are specified as applicable for a Security Index, Adjustment Events may, if so specified in the applicable Issue Terms, include that any component securities cease to be accepted as "China Connect Securities" or the China Connect Service is suspended or terminated which materially affects the routing of orders or holding of any component security and which is reasonably likely not to be temporary; or (d) any Additional Disruption Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event or the Calculation Agent may replace the Security Index that is the subject of the Adjustment Event with a new Security Index using, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the same or a substantially similar formula and method of calculation as used in the calculation of the level of such Security Index or, if the Securities are Exempt Securities, a Security Index selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement. Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustments may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If the Calculation Agent determines that a Security Index Adjustment Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, in respect of a Security Index, the relevant index sponsor announcing that it will make a material change to a relevant Security Index, the index sponsor permanently cancelling the index and no successor index existing or the index sponsor or any other person or entity acting on its behalf failing to calculate and announce the relevant index), then the Calculation Agent may determine whether such Security Index Adjustment Event has a material effect on the relevant Securities and, if so, shall either (A) calculate the relevant level of such Security Index in accordance with the formula for and method of calculating the relevant Security Index last in effect prior to the applicable change, cancellation or failure and/or (B) substitute the affected Security Index with a replacement index using, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the same or a substantially similar formula and method of calculation as used in the calculation of the level of such Security Index or, in the case of Exempt Securities, a Security Index selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement and determine any adjustment necessary to the terms of the Securities to account for such substitution and/or (C) make such adjustments to the terms of the Securities as it determines necessary or appropriate to account for the effect of such Security Index Adjustment Event. Any such calculation, substitution and/or adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no calculation or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Security Index Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances in which the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) no calculation or substitution can reasonably be made following a Security Index Adjustment Event, (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you may be less than your initial investment and you may therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Inflation Indices

The risks of a particular Security linked to Inflation Indices will depend on the terms of that Security. Many economic and market factors may influence an Inflation Index and consequently the value of Securities relating to Inflation Indices, including general economic, financial, political or regulatory conditions and/or events; and/or fluctuations in the prices of various assets, goods, services and energy resources (including in response to supply of, and demand for, any of them); and/or the level of inflation in the economy of the relevant country and expectations of inflation. In particular, the level of an Inflation Index may be affected by factors unconnected with the financial markets. Any such factor may either offset or magnify one or more of the other factors.

The performance of an Inflation Index will affect the amounts payable in respect of Securities relating to Inflation Indices and may result in investors receiving less than their original investment and/or no return on their investment, or in certain circumstances zero.

The rate of interest (if any) payable in respect of Inflation Index-linked interest Securities will vary for each interest payment due and may be less than that which would be payable on a conventional fixed rate, non-callable debt security of the Issuer of comparable maturity.

See Underlying Schedule 2 (Inflation Index Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Inflation Indices.

Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Inflation Indices where Monthly Publication applies

If an underlying closing level for an Inflation Index for a specified reference month has not been published or announced by five business days prior to the relevant payment date, then the Calculation Agent shall determine a substitute index level. Any such substitution may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for an Inflation Index in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of any Inflation Index (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, or (b) the imposition of increased or unexpected fees and costs for the use of such index on the Issuer and/or any of its affiliates by the relevant index sponsor which the Calculation Agent deems material), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event including, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustments may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If "Revision" is specified as applicable for an Inflation Index in the applicable Issue Terms, then any revision to an underlying closing level of an Inflation Index occurring before the relevant revision cut-off date shall be considered final and conclusive for the purpose of any determination made in respect of the Securities. If "No Revision" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms (or if "Revision" is not specified as applicable) then the first publication and announcement of an underlying closing level for such Inflation Index shall be final and conclusive. Further, if the Calculation Agent determines that the index sponsor of an Inflation Index has corrected an underlying closing level for such index to correct a manifest error no later than the earlier to occur of the relevant manifest error cut-off date and thirty calendar days following the first publication and announcement of such level, then the Calculation Agent may use the corrected level of such Inflation Index for the purposes of any calculation in respect of the relevant payment date. In the event of inconsistency between a revision and a manifest error correction, the manifest error correction shall prevail. Any such adjustment, revision or correction (or absence thereof) to any level of an Inflation Index may have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities.

If the Calculation Agent determines that either (a) a level for an Inflation Index has not been published or announced for two consecutive months and/or (b) the relevant index sponsor announces that it will no longer continue to publish or announce such Inflation Index and/or (c) the relevant index sponsor cancels such Inflation Index then the Calculation Agent may replace the originally designated Inflation Index with a successor index and make consequential adjustments to the terms of the Securities to account for such replacement. Any such adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities and, if no successor index can be determined, then an Early Termination Event shall occur with respect to the Securities.

If an index sponsor announces, in respect of an Inflation Index, that it will make a material change to a relevant Inflation Index then the Calculation Agent shall make such consequential adjustments to the terms of the Securities as are consistent with any adjustment made to any relevant fallback bond or as are necessary for such modified Inflation Index to continue as an Inflation Index for the purpose of the Securities. Any such adjustments may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, then an Early Termination Event shall occur with respect to the Securities.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances in which the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) no successor index can be determined or no adjustment can reasonably be made following a material change to a relevant Inflation Index, (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in applicable Issue Terms or an amount as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Inflation Indices where the Daily Publication applies

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Inflation Indices include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of the Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for inflation indices in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of an Inflation Index (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, or (b) (i) any relevant inflation index ceases to exist and is replaced by a successor rate that is reported, sanctioned, recognised, published, announced or adopted (or similar action) by the relevant Government Authority), (ii) the index sponsor and/or administrator of any inflation index officially designates or appoints a successor sponsor and/or administrator entity for that relevant rate or (iii) a change or modification is made to the methodology of the relevant inflation index which would affect the Securities (other than as described in (i) or (ii) above), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event including, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment(s) may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If the Calculation Agent determines that either (a) a level for an Inflation Index has not been published or announced for two consecutive months and/or (b) the relevant index sponsor announces that it will no longer continue to publish or announce such Inflation Index and/or (c) the relevant index sponsor cancels such Inflation Index then the Calculation Agent may replace the originally designated Inflation Index with a successor index and make consequential adjustments to the terms of the Securities to account for such replacement. Any such adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities and, if no successor index can be determined, then an Early Termination Event shall occur with respect to the Securities.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) no successor index can be determined, as described above, (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Commodity Indices

The level of a Commodity Index is generally based on the value of the commodities and/or other securities comprised in that Commodity Index and, as such, if investing in Securities relating to Commodity Indices you should also read "Risks associated with Securities linked to Commodities" below.

Global economic, financial and political developments, among other things, may have a material effect on the value of the commodities and/or futures contracts comprising a Commodity Index and/or the performance of such index, and this may in turn affect the value of and return on the Securities.

The risks of a particular Security linked to a Commodity Index will depend on the terms of that Security. Such risks may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the prices of the commodities and/or futures underlying the relevant index or indices; another objective price; and economic or other measures making up the relevant index or indices.

The above factors may have an effect on the performance of a Commodity Index, and this may in turn affect the value of and return on the Securities.

See Underlying Schedule 3 (Commodity Index Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Commodity Indices.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Commodity Indices

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Commodity Indices include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date or postponement of the valuation of a component of a Commodity Index due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for a Commodity Index in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of any Commodity Index (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, (b) such Commodity Index (i) not being calculated and announced by or on behalf of the relevant index sponsor but instead being calculated and announced by or on behalf of a successor to the relevant index sponsor acceptable to the Calculation Agent or (ii) being replaced by a successor index, (c) the imposition of increased or unexpected fees and costs for the use of such index on the Issuer and/or any of its affiliates by the relevant index sponsor which the Calculation Agent deems material, (d) the imposition of, change in or removal of any tax relating to any component of such Commodity Index or commodity relating to such component (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) which the Calculation Agent deems material or (e) any Additional Disruption Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event or the Calculation Agent may replace the Commodity Index that is the subject of the Adjustment Event with a new Commodity Index using, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the same or a substantially similar formula and method of calculation as used in the calculation of the level of such Commodity Index or, in the case of Exempt Securities, a Commodity Index selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement. Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustments may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If the Calculation Agent determines that a Commodity Index Adjustment Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, in respect of a Commodity Index, the relevant index sponsor announcing that it will make a material change to a relevant Commodity Index, the index sponsor permanently cancelling the index and no successor index existing or the index sponsor or any other person or entity on its behalf failing to calculate and announce the relevant index), then the Calculation Agent may determine whether such Commodity Index Adjustment Event has a material effect on the relevant Securities and, if so, shall either (A) calculate the relevant level of such Commodity Index in accordance with the formula for and method of calculating the relevant Commodity Index last in effect prior to the applicable change, cancellation or failure and/or (B) substitute the affected Commodity Index with a replacement index using, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the same or a substantially similar formula and method of calculation as used in the calculation of the level of such Commodity Index or, in the case of Exempt Securities, a Commodity Index selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement and determine any adjustment necessary to the terms of the Securities to account for such substitution and/or (C) make such adjustments to the terms of the Securities as it determines necessary or appropriate to account for the effect of such Commodity Index Adjustment

Event. Any such calculation, substitution and/or adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no calculation or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Commodity Index Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances in which the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) no calculation or substitution can reasonably be made following a Commodity Index Adjustment Event, (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Commodities

Movements in the price of any relevant Commodities may be subject to significant fluctuations that may not correlate with changes in interest rates, currencies or other indices and the timing of changes in the relevant price of a Commodity or Commodities may affect the actual yield of the Securities, even if the average level is consistent with their expectations. In general, the earlier the change in the price or prices of the Commodities, the greater the effect on yield of the Securities.

Commodity futures markets are highly volatile. Commodity markets are influenced by, among other things, changing supply and demand relationships, weather, governmental, agricultural, commercial and trade programmes and policies designed to influence commodity prices, world political and economic events, and changes in interest rates. Moreover, investments in futures and options contracts involve additional risks including, without limitation, leverage (margin is usually a percentage of the face value of the contract and exposure can be nearly unlimited). A holder of a futures position may find such position becomes illiquid because certain commodity exchanges limit fluctuations in certain futures contract prices during a single day by regulations referred to as "daily price fluctuation limits" or "daily limits". Under such daily limits, during a single trading day no trades may be executed at prices beyond the daily limits. Once the price of a contract for a particular future has increased or decreased by an amount equal to the daily limit, positions in the future can neither be taken nor liquidated unless traders are willing to effect trades at or within the limit. This could prevent a holder from promptly liquidating unfavourable positions and subject it to substantial losses. Futures contract prices in various Commodities occasionally have exceeded the daily limit for several consecutive days with little or no trading. Similar occurrences could prevent the liquidation of unfavourable positions and could therefore have a material adverse impact on value of and return on the Securities.

See Underlying Schedule 4 (Commodity Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Commodities.

Risk related to the possible rolling mechanism of commodity futures contracts

The yield on Securities relating to Commodities may not perfectly correlate to the trend in the price of the underlying Commodities as the use of such future commodity contracts generally involves a rolling mechanism. This means that the commodity futures contracts which expire prior to the relevant payment date under the relevant Securities are replaced with future commodity contracts that have a later expiry date. You may therefore only marginally benefit from any rise/fall in prices on such Commodities.

You should also consider that the relevant commodity futures contract(s) could have a trend which differs significantly from that of the relevant commodity spot market(s). The trend in the price of a commodity futures contracts compared to the underlying Commodity is closely linked to the present and future level of the production of the underlying Commodity or to the level of estimated natural reserves, particularly in the case of energy Commodities. In addition, the price of the relevant commodity futures contract may not be considered an accurate prediction of a market price, since it also includes the so-called "carrying costs" (such as, for example, warehouse costs, insurance covering the goods, transportation etc.), which also contribute toward the determination of the price of the commodity futures contracts. These factors which directly influence the Commodities prices substantially explain the imperfect correlation between the commodity spot markets and the commodity futures contracts. Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more commodity futures contracts than you would have received if you had invested in relevant commodity spot market(s) or in another related product.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Commodities

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Commodities include alternative provisions for valuation and/or provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such alternative provisions for valuation or postponement may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for Commodities in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of any Commodity (being, in each case if applicable, the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event including, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustments may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances in which the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) the occurrence of a disruption event and any relevant disruption fallbacks fail (or are deemed to fail) to provide a relevant price in respect of a Commodity and a valuation date, (c) any Additional Early Termination Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms (being an "abandonment of scheme" in relation to Commodities that are emissions) or, in the case of Exempt Securities only, any other event specified as such in the applicable Pricing Supplement, (d) a Section 871(m) Event or (e) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Shares

Securities linked to Shares will give rise to obligations of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor and will not give rise to any obligations of any share company, and accordingly you will have no recourse against any such share company.

No issuer of such Shares will have participated in the preparation of the applicable Issue Terms or in establishing the terms of the Securities and none of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any Dealer will make any investigation or enquiry in connection with such offering with respect to the information concerning any such issuer of Shares contained in such Issue Terms or in the documents from which such information was extracted. Consequently, there can be no assurance that all events occurring prior to the relevant issue date (including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of the publicly available documents described in this paragraph or in any applicable Issue Terms) that would affect the trading price of the Share will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning such an issuer of Shares could affect the trading price of the Shares and therefore the trading price of the relevant Securities.

RISK FACTORS

Except as provided in the applicable Issue Terms in relation to Physical Delivery Securities, Securityholders will not have voting rights or rights to receive dividends or distributions or any other rights with respect to the relevant Shares to which such Securities relate notwithstanding that, in relation to Exempt Securities and if so specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement, Securityholders may be entitled to receive payments calculated by reference to the amount of dividends, distributions or other payments that would be received by a holder of the relevant Shares. The return on such Securities may thus not reflect any dividends or other distributions which would be paid to you if you had made a direct investment in the relevant Shares. Consequently, the return on Securities linked to Shares may be less than the return from a direct investment in the relevant Shares.

The risks of a Security linked to Shares will depend on the terms of that Security. Such risks may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the price(s) of the Share or Shares. The value of Shares may go down as well as up and the value of any Share on any date may not reflect its performance in any prior period. There can be no assurance as to the future value of any Share or of the continued existence of any Share or share company. Accordingly, before making an investment decision with respect to Securities, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of the relevant Shares, as this may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

In addition, the calculation of amounts payable on such Securities may involve reference to the performance of one or more Shares over a period of time and to Shares, the issuer(s) of which are incorporated outside the United States, the EEA and the United Kingdom.

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more Shares than you would have received if you had invested directly in the Shares or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 5 (Share Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Shares.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Shares

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Shares include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for a Share in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of a Share (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, (b) a corporate action, de-listing, insolvency, merger event, nationalisation, tender offer (and/or, in the case of a Stapled Share, any Component Share Additional Adjustment Event or De-stapling Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms) and/or any Additional Disruption Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms) or (c) if Additional Provisions for Shares traded through the China Connect Service are specified as applicable for a Share, Adjustment Events may, if so specified in the applicable Issue Terms, include that the relevant shares cease to be accepted as "China Connect Securities" or the China Connect Service is suspended or terminated which materially affects the routing of orders or holding of the relevant shares and which is reasonably likely not to be temporary), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event or the Calculation Agent may replace the Share that is the subject of the Adjustment Event with a new Share selected by the Calculation Agent from an applicable reference index or otherwise selected by the Calculation Agent (regardless of whether such new Share is a Stapled Share) (and/or, in the case of a Stapled Share, the Calculation Agent may replace any Component Share of the Stapled Share with a new Component Share selected by the Calculation Agent (regardless of whether such new Component Share is contained in a relevant reference index)) or, in the case of Exempt Securities, selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement. Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment(s) or substitution may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) a Section 871(m) Event or (c) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks relating to Securities linked to Shares which have a Dividend Adjusted Performance feature

Where the Securities are linked to Shares and the applicable Issue Terms specify "Dividend Adjusted Performance" as applicable, this means the Securities reference the performance of relevant Share(s) adjusted to deduct a pre-determined amount (a "Target Dividend") on a pro-rata basis.

The Target Dividend is expressed as a fixed amount independent of the price of the relevant Share. Due to the price or performance of the relevant Share being adjusted for the difference between the actual declared dividend(s) and the Target Dividend(s) and the different dividend methodologies adopted, depending on the amount of the dividends actually declared by the relevant Share issuer, Securities with a "Dividend Adjusted Performance" feature may perform differently in comparison to Securities linked to the same Share(s) with actual dividends applied as they are declared. In particular, if the Target Dividend yield of the relevant Share in a relevant period is higher than the actual declared dividend yield of the Share during the same period, the price or performance of the Share, as adjusted for the Target Dividend will, underperform the Share which is not so adjusted and such underperformance will increase as the price of the relevant Share decreases. In such case, you will receive a lower return on the Securities as a result of the "Dividend Adjusted Performance" than if such feature was not applicable.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Depositary Receipts

Securities linked to Depositary Receipts will give rise to obligations of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor and will not give rise to any obligations of any depositary or any underlying share company, and accordingly you will have no recourse against any such depositary or underlying share company.

No issuer of such Depositary Receipts or any underlying shares related to such Depositary Receipts will have participated in the preparation of the applicable Issue Terms or in establishing the terms of the Securities and none of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any Dealer will make any investigation or enquiry in connection with such offering with respect to the information concerning any depositary or any related underlying share company contained in such Issue Terms or in the documents from which such information was extracted. Consequently, there can be no assurance that all events occurring prior to the relevant issue date (including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of the publicly available documents described in this paragraph or in any applicable Issue Terms) that would affect the trading price of the Depositary Receipt or the underlying share will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning such depositary or underlying share company could affect the trading price of the Depositary Receipts and therefore the trading price of the relevant Securities.

Except as provided in the applicable Issue Terms in relation to Physical Delivery Securities, Securityholders will not have voting rights or rights to receive dividends or distributions or any other rights with respect to the relevant Depositary Receipts and/or underlying shares to which such Securities relate notwithstanding that, if so specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement and, in relation to Exempt Securities only, Securityholders may be entitled to receive payments calculated by reference to the amount of dividends, distributions or other payments that would be received by a holder of the relevant Depositary Receipts and/or underlying shares. The return on such Securities may thus not reflect any dividends or other distributions which would be paid to you if you had made a direct investment in the relevant Depositary Receipts and/or underlying shares. Consequently, the return on Securities linked to

Depository Receipts may be less than the return from a direct investment in the relevant Depository Receipts and/or underlying shares.

The risks of a Security linked to Depository Receipts will depend on the terms of that Security. Such risks may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the price(s) of the Depository Receipts. The value of Depository Receipts may go down as well as up and the value of any Depository Receipt on any date may not reflect its performance in any prior period. There can be no assurance as to the future value of any Depository Receipts or of the continued existence of any depository and/or underlying share company. Accordingly, before making an investment decision with respect to Securities, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of Depository Receipts and relevant underlying shares, as this may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

In addition, the calculation of amounts payable on such Securities may involve reference to the performance of one or more Depository Receipts and the related underlying shares over a period of time and to Depository Receipts and/or underlying shares, the issuer(s) of which are incorporated outside the United States, the EEA and the United Kingdom.

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more Depository Receipts than you would have received if you had invested directly in the Depository Receipts or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 6 (Depository Receipt Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Depository Receipts.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Depository Receipts

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Depository Receipts include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for a Depository Receipt in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of a Depository Receipt and/or an underlying share (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging or (b) a corporate action, de-listing, insolvency, merger event, nationalisation, tender offer, written instructions being given by an underlying share company to the relevant depository to withdraw or surrender underlying shares or the termination of a relevant deposit agreement and/or any Additional Disruption Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event or the Calculation Agent may replace the Depository Receipt and/or the underlying share that is the subject of the Adjustment Event with a new Depository Receipt selected by the Calculation Agent (referencing, where "same underlying share and currency" is specified as the Depository Receipt Substitution Criteria in the applicable Issue Terms, the same underlying share and denominated in the same currency as the previous Depository Receipt (and, if no such Depository Receipt is selected or available, then the underlying share shall be substituted and a new Depository Receipt selected in respect of such new underlying share) or, in the case of Exempt Securities only, in accordance with any other criteria specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement) and/or a new share selected by the Calculation Agent from an applicable reference index, or, in the case of Exempt Securities only, in accordance with the criteria (if any) specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement. Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment(s) or substitution may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) a Section 871(m) Event or (c) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to ETF Shares

Securities linked to ETF Shares will give rise to obligations of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor and will not give rise to any obligations of the issuer of any ETF Shares, and accordingly you will have no recourse against any such issuer.

No issuer of ETF Shares will have participated in the preparation of the applicable Issue Terms or in establishing the terms of the Securities and none of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any Dealer will make any investigation or enquiry in connection with such offering with respect to the information concerning any such issuer of ETF Shares contained in such Issue Terms or in the documents from which such information was extracted. Consequently, there can be no assurance that all events occurring prior to the relevant issue date (including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of the publicly available documents described in this paragraph or in any applicable Issue Terms) that would affect the trading price of the ETF Share will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning such an issuer of ETF Shares could affect the trading price of the ETF Share and therefore the trading price of the relevant Securities.

Except as provided in the applicable Issue Terms in relation to Physical Delivery Securities, Securityholders will not have voting rights or rights to receive dividends or distributions or any other rights with respect to the relevant ETF Shares to which such Securities relate notwithstanding that, if so specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement and in relation to Exempt Securities only, Securityholders may be entitled to receive payments calculated by reference to the amount of dividends, distributions or other payments that would be received by a holder of the relevant ETF Shares. The return on such Securities may thus not reflect any dividends or other distributions which would be paid to you if you had made a direct investment in relevant ETF Shares. Consequently, the return on Securities linked to ETF Shares may be less than the return from a direct investment in the relevant ETF Shares.

The risks of a Security linked to ETF Shares will depend on the terms of that Security. Such risks may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the price(s) of the ETF Shares. The value of ETF Shares may go down as well as up and the value of any ETF Share on any date may not reflect its performance in any prior period. There can be no assurance as to the future value of any ETF Share or of the continued existence of any ETF Share or the issuer of such ETF Share. Accordingly, before making an investment decision with respect to Securities, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of ETF Shares, as this may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

In addition, the calculation of amounts payable on such Securities may involve reference to the performance of one or more ETF Shares over a period of time and to ETF Shares, the issuer(s) of which are established outside the United States, the EEA and the United Kingdom.

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more ETF Shares than you would have received if you had invested directly in the ETF Shares or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 7 (Exchange-Traded Fund (ETF) Share Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to ETF Shares.

RISK FACTORS

Risks relating to ETF Shares linked to crypto assets

Funds linked to crypto assets

Funds linked to crypto assets offer exposure to digital assets such as crypto currencies which are designed to act as a medium of exchange and do not represent legal tender. Use of crypto currencies in the retail and commercial marketplace is relatively limited and such currencies generally operate without central authority or banks and are not backed by any government or organized governing body. Crypto currencies are new and novel products, and their value is influenced by a wide variety of factors that are uncertain and difficult to evaluate. Information about crypto currency holdings is limited, as ownership of such crypto currencies is semi-anonymous and the accessible supply of such crypto currencies is unknown.

Crypto assets are an emerging asset class, and regulation in the United States and Europe is still developing, including with respect to market integrity, anti-fraud, anti-manipulation, cybersecurity, surveillance and anti-money laundering. Federal, state and/or foreign governments may restrict the use and exchange of crypto currencies and any such regulatory actions may adversely affect the value of such crypto currencies. Crypto currencies and their networks face significant challenges to scaling and have been and may continue to be subject to extreme market volatility.

Competition from other digital assets or so-called "central bank digital currencies" could adversely affect the value of crypto currencies. Political or economic crises may motivate large-scale sales of a crypto currency, which could result in a reduction in the prices of such crypto currencies and adversely affect an investment in securities linked to such assets (and therefore the return on the relevant Securities). Concerns about the perceived or actual environmental or other risks associated with, or bad publicity regarding, a crypto currency may lead to decreased participation in the related network or decreased interest in or use of such crypto currency, which could adversely affect the value of the crypto currency and therefore the value of and return on securities linked to such assets. The value of a crypto currency may fall to zero and may continue to be subject to sharp fluctuations, which may adversely affect the relevant Fund and any Securities linked to such Fund.

The value of crypto currencies could be adversely affected by the actions of crypto currency "miners". Your investment in the Securities could also be adversely affected by a temporary or permanent "fork" (or "split") of the crypto currency network and the relevant blockchain, with one version running pre-modified software and the other running modified software. Even when held indirectly, investment vehicles like a Fund linked to such assets may be affected by the high volatility associated with crypto currency exposure. Crypto currencies are susceptible to theft, loss, destruction and fraud.

Crypto currency exchanges and other trading venues on which crypto currencies trade are also relatively new and, in most cases, largely unregulated and may therefore be more exposed to operational problems, fraud and failure than established, regulated exchanges for securities, derivatives and other currencies. Crypto currency exchanges may stop operating or permanently shut down due to fraud, technical glitches, internet disruptions, hackers or malware (e.g., intentional network attacks), which may also affect the price of the relevant crypto currency. Events that negatively affect crypto currencies may negatively affect the performance of the relevant Fund and Securities linked to such Fund.

Correlation with the performance of the underlying crypto asset

A Fund may not fully replicate the performance of the underlying crypto asset due to the fees and expenses charged by the Fund or by restrictions on access to the underlying crypto asset due to other circumstances. Additionally, there is a risk that part or all of a Fund's holdings in its underlying crypto asset could be lost or stolen. Access to a Fund's underlying crypto asset could also be restricted by natural events (such as an earthquake) or human actions (such as a terrorist attack or cyberattack). All of these factors may lead to a lack of correlation between the performance of the relevant Fund and its underlying crypto asset. In addition, where the shares of a Fund are traded on a securities exchange and are subject to market supply and investor demand, the market value of one share of the relevant Fund may differ from the net asset value per share of such Fund.

During periods of market volatility, a Fund's underlying crypto asset may be unavailable in the secondary market, market participants may be unable to calculate accurately the net asset value per share of such Fund and the liquidity of the relevant Fund may be adversely affected. This kind of market volatility may also disrupt the ability of market participants to create and redeem shares of the relevant Fund. Further, market volatility may adversely affect, sometimes materially, the prices at which market participants are willing to buy and sell shares of a Fund. As a result, under these circumstances, the market value of shares of the relevant Fund may vary substantially from the net asset value per share of such Fund. For all of the foregoing reasons, the performance of a Fund may not correlate with the performance of its underlying crypto asset as well as the net asset value per share of such Fund, which could materially and adversely affect the value of Securities linked to the relevant ETF Shares in the secondary market and/or reduce any payment on the Securities.

Limited trading history

Funds linked to crypto assets are relatively new and such Funds may therefore have limited historical performance. Accordingly, historical information for the relevant Fund may only be available for a short period. Past performance should not be considered indicative of future performance.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to ETF Shares

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to ETF Shares include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for an ETF Share in the applicable Issue Terms. While ETF Shares are traded on an exchange and are therefore valued in a similar manner as a Share traded on an exchange, the Adjustment Events in relation to Securities linked to ETF Shares include certain adjustments which would be applicable to Securities linked to an underlying fund.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of an ETF Share (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, or (b) a corporate action, de-listing, insolvency, merger event, nationalisation, tender offer, fund modification, strategy breach, regulatory action, cross-contamination and/or any Additional Disruption Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event or the Calculation Agent may replace the ETF Share that is the subject of the Adjustment Event with a new ETF Share selected by the Calculation Agent (which, in relation to Index ETF Shares, shall be an ETF Share which, where a "related index" is specified in the applicable Issue Terms, tracks such related index, or an index substantially similar in formula and calculation method, or, in the case of Exempt Securities only, or which, in relation to Crypto EFT Shares, is an ETF Share which tracks an asset determined by the Calculation Agent to be substantially similar to the crypto asset tracked by the ETF Share the subject of the Adjustment Event or, in relation to any ETF Share, an asset selected by the Calculation Agent with reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement). Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment(s) or substitution may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) a Section 871(m) Event or (c) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Mutual Fund Interests

Securities linked to Mutual Fund Interests will give rise to obligations of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor and will not give rise to any obligations of any mutual fund administrator, adviser or manager in respect of a mutual fund, and accordingly you will have no recourse against any such mutual fund administrator, adviser or manager.

No mutual fund administrator, adviser or manager in respect of a mutual fund will have participated in the preparation of the applicable Issue Terms or in establishing the terms of the Securities and none of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any Dealer will make any investigation or enquiry in connection with such offering with respect to the information concerning any such mutual fund contained in such Issue Terms or in the documents from which such information was extracted. Consequently, there can be no assurance that all events occurring prior to the relevant issue date (including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of the publicly available documents described in this paragraph or in any applicable Issue Terms) that would affect the value of the Mutual Fund Interest will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning such mutual fund could affect the value of the Mutual Fund Interest and therefore the trading price of the Securities.

Except as provided in the applicable Issue Terms in relation to Physical Delivery Securities, Securityholders will not have voting rights or rights to receive dividends or distributions or any other rights with respect to the relevant Mutual Fund Interests to which such Securities relate notwithstanding that, in relation to Exempt Securities and if so specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement, Securityholders may be entitled to receive payments calculated by reference to the amount of dividends, distributions or other payments that would be received by a holder of the Mutual Fund Interests. The return on such Securities may thus not reflect any dividends or other distributions which would be paid to you if you had made a direct investment in relevant Mutual Fund Interests. Consequently, the return on Securities linked to Mutual Fund Interests may be less than the return from a direct investment in the relevant Mutual Fund Interests.

The risks of a Security linked to Mutual Fund Interests will depend on the terms of that Security. Such risks may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the value(s) of the Mutual Fund Interests. The value of Mutual Fund Interests may go down as well as up and the value of any Mutual Fund Interest on any date may not reflect its performance in any prior period. There can be no assurance as to the future value of any Mutual Fund Interest or of the continued existence of any Mutual Fund Interest or the issuer of such Mutual Fund Interest. Accordingly, before making an investment decision with respect to Securities, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of the relevant Mutual Fund Interests, as this may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

In addition, mutual funds may trade and invest in a broad range of investments such as debt and equity securities, commodities and foreign exchange and may enter into derivative transactions, including, without limitation, futures and options. Mutual Fund Interests may be illiquid and may only be traded on an infrequent basis. The trading strategies of mutual funds are often opaque. Mutual funds, as well as the markets and instruments in which they invest, are often not subject to review by governmental authorities, self-regulatory organisations or other supervisory authorities. Further, the value of Mutual Fund Interests may be affected by the performance of the relevant fund service providers and in particular the relevant fund adviser.

For the foregoing reasons, investing directly or indirectly in mutual funds is generally considered to be risky. If the underlying mutual fund does not perform sufficiently well, the value of the Securities will fall, and may in certain circumstances be zero.

In addition, the calculation of amounts payable on such Securities may involve reference to the performance of one or more Mutual Fund Interests over a period of time and to Mutual Fund Interests, the issuer(s) of which are established outside the United States, the EEA and the United Kingdom.

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more Mutual Fund Interests than you would have received if you had invested directly in the Mutual Fund Interests or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 8 (Mutual Fund Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Mutual Fund Interests.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Mutual Fund Interests

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Mutual Fund Interests include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for a Mutual Fund Interest in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of a Mutual Fund Interest (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, or (b) a corporate action, insolvency, merger event, nationalisation, adviser resignation event, fund modification, strategy breach, regulatory action, reporting disruption, cross-contamination, failure by a fund service provider and/or any Additional Disruption Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event or the Calculation Agent may replace the Mutual Fund Interest that is the subject of the Adjustment Event with a new Mutual Fund Interest selected by the Calculation Agent (in a fund which provides daily liquidity, the shares or units of which may be subscribed, sold to or redeemed by the fund (subject to giving no more than two fund business days' notice and no charges being imposed by the fund), and which in the determination of the Calculation Agent, has the same or substantially similar strategies, and the same currency as, the affected mutual fund). Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment may also include a monetisation whereby the Calculation Agent shall determine the value of the Mutual Fund Interest affected by the relevant Adjustment Event on a date selected by the Calculation Agent and shall make such adjustments to the terms of the Securities so that the Securities reference such value (and interest thereon) rather than such Mutual Fund Interest. Any such adjustment(s) or substitution may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) the Calculation Agent determines that no Monetisation can reasonably be effected, (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to currency exchange rates

An investment in Securities linked to currency exchange rates may bear similar market risks to a direct investment in foreign exchange.

Movements in currency exchange rates may be subject to significant fluctuations that may not correlate with changes in interest rates or other indices and the timing of changes in the currency exchange rates may affect the actual yield to you, even if the average level is consistent with your expectations. In addition, Securities linked to currency exchange rates may be linked to emerging market currencies and, as such, may experience greater volatility and less certainty as to future levels or as against other currencies. Emerging market currencies are highly exposed to the risk of a currency crisis happening in the future and this could result in the occurrence of a Disrupted Day.

Fluctuations in exchange rates and implied volatility of the relevant currency (or basket of currencies) will affect the value of the relevant Securities. Currency values may be affected by complex political and economic factors, including governmental action to fix or support the value of a currency/currencies, regardless of other market forces, which could have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on your Securities (see "Changes in exchange rates and exchange controls could result in a loss of the value of the Securities and payments in respect thereof in relation to the currency of your jurisdiction").

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more currency exchange rates than you would have received if you had invested directly in the relevant currency or currencies or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 9 (FX Rate Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to currency exchange rates.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to currency exchange rates where the EMTA Provisions are not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to currency exchange rates include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of the Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for currency exchange rates in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of a currency exchange rate (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, or (b) (i) any relevant currency exchange rate ceases to exist and is replaced by a successor rate that is reported, sanctioned, recognised, published, announced or adopted (or similar action) by the relevant Government Authority and (where the applicable Issue Terms specify "Commercial Usage" applies) the successor rate is applicable to commercial transactions, (ii) the sponsor and/or administrator of a relevant rate officially designates or appoints a successor sponsor and/or administrator entity for that relevant rate, (iii) a change or modification is made to the methodology of the relevant currency exchange rate (or any component thereof) which would affect the Securities (other than as described in (i) or (ii) above) or (iv) a relevant country has lawfully converted or exchanged its currency for a successor currency), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event including, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment(s) may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) a Section 871(m) Event or (c) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to currency exchange rates where the EMTA Provisions are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms

The terms and conditions of Securities linked to currency exchange rates include provisions dealing with the consequences of a Disrupted Day. These consequences shall be determined in accordance with the Disruption Fallbacks specified in the applicable Issue Terms and may include (i) where Valuation Postponement is specified in the applicable Issue Terms, postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, (ii) where First Fallback Reference Price or Second Fallback Reference Price is specified in the applicable Issue Terms, determination of the Underlying Closing Level for the relevant Valuation Date by reference to alternative prices for the applicable currency exchange rate, and (iii) where Calculation Agent Determination is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, the Calculation Agent determining the Underlying Closing Level for the relevant Valuation Date. Such alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of the Securities may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities. The Valuation Postponement provisions, if applicable, may result in a Securityholder receiving payments in respect of the Securities after the originally scheduled date for payment.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for currency exchange rates in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of a currency exchange rate (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, or (b) (i) any relevant rate ceases to exist and is replaced by a successor rate that is reported, sanctioned, recognised, published, announced or adopted (or similar action) by the relevant Government Authority, (ii) the sponsor and/or administrator of a relevant rate officially designates or appoints a successor sponsor and/or administrator entity for that relevant rate or (iii) a relevant country has lawfully converted or exchanged its currency for a successor currency), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event including, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs) and in the case of a successor rate, determination of the relevant rate by reference to the official successor rate. Any such adjustment(s) may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) a Section 871(m) Event or (c) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Bespoke Indices

The level of a Bespoke Index is generally based on the value of its components (each an "index component"), which may be securities, commodities, derivative instruments, indices or other types of assets or any combination of such assets, as described in the relevant index conditions and/or methodology and, as such, investors in Securities relating to Bespoke Indices should also read the other risk factors relating to Securities linked directly to such index components. Global economic, financial and political developments, among other things, may have a material effect on the value of the index components of a Bespoke Index and/or the performance of a Bespoke Index, and this may in turn affect the value of and return on the Securities.

RISK FACTORS

The risks of a Security linked to a Bespoke Index will depend on the terms of that Security and the relevant index conditions and/or methodology. Such risks may include the possibility of significant changes in:

- the levels, prices, rates or values (as relevant) of the index components of such Bespoke Index and the weighting of each such index component within such Bespoke Index;
- other objective prices; and
- economic or other measures observed for the purposes of such Bespoke Index.

The above risks may have an effect on the performance of a Bespoke Index, and this may in turn have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

As disclosed in the relevant index conditions and/or methodology, any distribution, dividend and/or amount ("distribution") paid to persons who have made an actual investment in any of the index components of a Bespoke Index may not be reflected in the level of such Bespoke Index. A distribution paid to persons who have made an actual investment in any of the index components of a Bespoke Index will not be paid to the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor or to the holders of Securities relating to such Bespoke Index. The return on such Securities will thus not reflect any such distribution. Consequently, the return on such Securities may be less than the return from a direct investment in any such index components.

A Bespoke Index reflects the performance of notional investment positions in its index components. There is no actual portfolio of assets in respect of such Bespoke Index to which any person is entitled or in which any person has any ownership interest, and no Bespoke Index creates any obligation of any person connected with any index component. A Bespoke Index merely identifies certain hypothetical investment positions, the performance of which will be used as a reference point for the purpose of calculating its level. The performance of a Bespoke Index may be different from the result of any actual investment in any one or more of its index components. In particular, any notional fees or costs deducted in the calculation of the level of the relevant Bespoke Index and any proportionate amount included in such level of any distribution in respect of any index component may be different from those arising in respect of any actual investment in any index component or combination of index components.

The strategy that a Bespoke Index aims to reflect may not be successful and other strategies using constituents which are the same as the index components of such Bespoke Index may perform better than such Bespoke Index.

You should read the relevant index conditions and/or methodology if investing in Securities relating to a Bespoke Index.

The Bespoke Index may not perform as anticipated and you could therefore lose some or all of your investment in Securities linked to a Bespoke Index.

See Underlying Schedule 10 (Bespoke Index Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Bespoke Indices.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Bespoke Indices

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Bespoke Indices include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day, such postponement or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for Bespoke Indices in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of any Bespoke Index (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the relevant Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the relevant Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, (b) such Bespoke Index (i) not being calculated and announced by or on behalf of the relevant index sponsor but instead being calculated and announced by or on behalf of a successor to the relevant index sponsor acceptable to the Calculation Agent or (ii) being replaced by a successor index, (c) the imposition of, change in or removal of any tax relating to any index component of such Bespoke Index or other asset relating to such index component (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or (d) any Additional Disruption Event specified in the applicable Issue Terms), then (A) the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the relevant Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event, or (B) the Calculation Agent may replace the Bespoke Index which is the subject of the Adjustment Event with either (1) a new index using, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the same or a substantially similar formula and method of calculation as used in the calculation of the level of such Bespoke Index, or (2) in the case of Exempt Securities only, a replacement index selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement. Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustments or substitution may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If a Bespoke Index Adjustment Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, in respect of a Bespoke Index, (a) the relevant index sponsor announcing that it will make a material change to such Bespoke Index, (b) the relevant index sponsor permanently cancelling such Bespoke Index and no successor index existing, or (c) the relevant index sponsor or any other person or entity acting on its behalf failing to calculate and announce such Bespoke Index), then the Calculation Agent may determine whether such Bespoke Index Adjustment Event has a material effect on the relevant Securities and, if so, shall either (i) calculate the relevant level of such Bespoke Index in accordance with the formula for and method of calculating such Bespoke Index last in effect prior to the applicable change, cancellation or failure, and/or (ii) substitute such Bespoke Index with a replacement index using, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the same or a substantially similar formula and method of calculation as used in the calculation of the level of such Bespoke Index or, in the case of Exempt Securities only, a replacement index selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, and determine any adjustment necessary to account for such substitution, and/or (iii) make such adjustments to the terms of the Securities as it determines necessary or appropriate to account for the effect of such Bespoke Index Adjustment Event. Any such calculation, substitution and/or adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no calculation or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Bespoke Index Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances in which the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) no calculation or substitution can reasonably be made following a Bespoke Index Adjustment Event, (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), then the relevant Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the relevant Securities are redeemed early, then the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks relating to "big data" indices

Securities may reference indices which use "big data" analytical techniques, or inputs which are based on "big data" analytical techniques (collectively "Big Data Analysis"). Depending on the index, the Big Data Analysis may be performed by the index administrator or a separate organisation (the "Analysis Provider"). Indices using Big Data Analysis typically use a large number of underlying inputs and advanced analytical techniques, potentially including a form of artificial intelligence or machine learning (such as attempting to identify and react to patterns as opposed to specific events or circumstances that have been defined). Examples include indices with objectives related to the determination of market sentiment or environmental, social and governance ("ESG") characteristics. Investors should be aware that the methodology for determining the Big Data Analysis may not be transparent and may not be fully disclosed in the index methodology document for the relevant index. The lack of full transparency may be due to a variety of reasons including, without limitation: challenges in describing a complex methodology in natural language; the use of a very large number of underlying data inputs from a wide range of sources (such that it is not practical either to list the individual inputs, or to do so without raising intellectual property and/or privacy issues); the Big Data Analysis could involve the exercise of discretion or judgement; and/or some or all of the methodology may be considered to be confidential or commercially sensitive. Investors should appreciate that the performance of such an index will be dependent on the Big Data Analysis, the underlying inputs, any changes over time in the determination methodology and/or underlying inputs, and any ongoing judgement or discretion exercised by the Analysis Provider. The use of Big Data Analysis may cause the index to perform in a manner that has not been anticipated in the design of the index, and, any such unanticipated performance may have an adverse impact on the performance and value of the Securities linked to it. Prior to investing in Securities linked to such an index, investors should carry out their own due diligence, without reliance on the Issuer or the relevant Guarantor, on the relevant index and the associated Big Data Analysis and Analysis Provider.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Dividend Futures Contracts

The value of a Dividend Futures Contract will generally track the dividends paid by the companies (each a "Relevant Company") comprised in the equity index (the "Relevant Index") relating to the relevant Dividend Futures Contract from time to time during one calendar year. Global economic, financial and political developments, among other things, may have a material effect on the performance of such Relevant Companies and therefore on the value of the dividends paid by such Relevant Companies and the value of the relevant Dividend Futures Contract, and this may in turn have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

Securities linked to Dividend Futures Contracts will give rise to obligations of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor and will not give rise to any obligations under the relevant Dividend Futures Contract or any obligations of any Relevant Company, and accordingly you will have no recourse against any sponsor of such Dividend Futures Contract or any such Relevant Company. No sponsor of the relevant Dividend Futures Contract will have participated in the preparation of the applicable Issue Terms or in establishing the terms of the Securities.

Not all types of dividends paid by a Relevant Company may be relevant for the purpose of determining the price of a Dividend Futures Contract (for example, in general, ordinary dividends declared by a Relevant Company (paid in cash or shares) are considered as realised dividends, which, if so provided in the contract specifications for the relevant Dividend Futures Contract, are relevant for the purpose of determining the price of such Dividend Futures Contract, whereas special or extraordinary dividends are not generally considered as realised dividends and therefore, if so provided in the contract specifications for the relevant Dividend Futures Contract, will not be relevant for the purpose of determining the price of such Dividend Futures Contract). Further, the Relevant Companies may change from time to time in accordance with the rules of the Relevant Index and such a change in Relevant Companies may have an adverse effect on the price of the Dividend Futures Contract and amounts payable in respect of the Securities. You should refer to the contract specifications for the Dividend Futures Contract and the index rules relating to the Relevant Index for details regarding the calculation methodologies (including which dividends will be included in the calculation of the Dividend Futures Contract) and adjustments which may be made thereto (including to the Relevant Companies to be included in the Relevant Index). You should note that the performance of similar Dividend Futures Contracts in respect of prior contract periods will not necessarily be indicative of the performance of the relevant Dividend Futures Contract to which the Securities relate.

The market value of the Securities may, at any time, be affected by certain factors relating to Dividend Futures Contracts which may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in:

- the Relevant Companies comprised in the Relevant Index and expectations relating to the dividends to be announced in relation thereto;
- market interest and yield rates;
- the time remaining to the final settlement date of the relevant Dividend Futures Contract; and

- economic, political and macro-economic factors.

Accordingly, before purchasing Securities linked to Dividend Futures Contracts, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of Dividend Futures Contracts and the performance of the Relevant Companies comprised in the Relevant Index by reference to which amounts payable under the relevant Securities are calculated, as this may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

In addition, the value of the dividends paid by the Relevant Companies may be influenced by many factors, including the earnings and dividend policy of each such Relevant Company, changes in applicable laws and regulations, global economic, financial and political developments and structural supply and demand factors. Relevant Companies may pay reduced dividends or no dividends in respect of the relevant contract period. The amount of dividends paid by Relevant Companies in respect of similar periods may bear no relation to dividends paid during the relevant contract period. Any such changes may have an adverse effect on the amount of relevant dividends paid by Relevant Companies and, in turn, the price of the relevant Dividend Futures Contract and amounts payable in respect of the Securities.

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more Dividend Futures Contracts than you would have received if you had invested directly in the Dividend Futures Contracts or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 11 (Dividend Futures Contract Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Dividend Futures Contracts.

Adjustments to Valuation Dates, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Dividend Futures Contracts

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Dividend Futures Contracts may include provisions dealing with the postponement of a Valuation Date due to the occurrence of a Disrupted Day or the variation of a Valuation Date following the announcement by the relevant Dividend Futures Contract sponsor that the expiry date of a Dividend Futures Contract will occur on an alternative date to that originally contemplated, such postponement, variation or any alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for Dividend Futures Contracts in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of any Dividend Futures Contract (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, (b) such Dividend Futures Contract (i) not being calculated and announced by or on behalf of the relevant Dividend Futures Contract sponsor but instead being calculated and announced by or on behalf of a successor to the relevant Dividend Futures Contract sponsor, or (ii) being replaced by a successor Dividend Futures Contract), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event including, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustments may have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If a Dividend Futures Contract Adjustment Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, in respect of a Dividend Futures Contract, (i) the relevant exchange and/or Dividend Futures Contract sponsor, as the case may be, announcing that it will make a material change or modification to a relevant Dividend Futures Contract, (ii) the relevant exchange and/or Dividend Futures Contract sponsor, as the case may be, permanently cancelling or discontinuing the Dividend Futures Contract or there otherwise being a permanent discontinuation in trading or trading never commencing in such Dividend Futures Contract and no successor Dividend Futures Contract existing, or (iii) any "final settlement price" not being displayed or published on the relevant electronic page or by the exchange at the relevant valuation time), then the Calculation Agent may determine whether such Dividend Futures Contract Adjustment Event has a material effect on the Securities and, if so, shall either (A) calculate the "final settlement price" of such Dividend Futures Contract by calculating the value of the relevant dividends for the applicable contract period for such Dividend Futures Contract by reference to the formula for and the method of calculation last in effect of any related dividend point index or such other sources as it deems appropriate and/or (B) make such adjustments to the terms of the Securities as it determines necessary or appropriate to account for the effect of the relevant Dividend Futures Contract Adjustment Event, and/or (C) substitute such Dividend Futures Contract with a replacement Dividend Futures Contract and determine any adjustment necessary to account for such substitution. Any such calculation, substitution and/or adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of the Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no calculation, adjustment or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Dividend Futures Contract Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances in which the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) no calculation, substitution or adjustment can reasonably be made following a Dividend Futures Contract Adjustment Event, (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Rates

The market value of the Securities may, at any time, be affected by certain factors relating to Rates which may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the level of the Rate, macroeconomic, political or financial factors, speculation and central bank and government intervention.

In recent years, Rates have been relatively low and stable, but this may not continue and interest rates may rise and/or become volatile. Fluctuations that have occurred in any Rate in the past are not necessarily indicative, however, of fluctuation that may occur in the Rate during the term of any Security. Accordingly, before purchasing Securities, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of the relevant Rates, as this may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

Depending on the terms of the Securities, you may receive no or a limited amount in respect of interest or redemption or delivery of fewer assets because of the performance of the relevant Rates and you may lose a substantial portion of your investment. In addition, you should ensure that you review the terms of the Securities in question as these may provide for amounts due or assets deliverable to be determined by reference to an option or formulae linked to the relevant Rate rather than being a conventional debt security referencing a Rate, such as one which bears interest at a specified floating rate of interest. Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more Rates than you would have received if you had invested in another product referencing a Rate.

See Underlying Schedule 12 (Rate Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Rates.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Rates

As the terms and conditions of Securities linked to Rates include provisions dealing with the consequences of a disrupted day, including referring to alternative price sources or determination of the relevant Rate by the Calculation Agent or by reference to quotes from reference dealers, such alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for Rates in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of any Rate (being, in each case if applicable, the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event. Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustments may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances in which the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) a Section 871(m) Event or (c) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to Preference Shares

Preference Share Linked Securities will give rise to obligations of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor. The Preference Share Company will have no obligations to investors in the Preference Share Linked Securities, and accordingly you will have no recourse against any such Preference Share Company. In particular, you will not benefit from any voting rights or distributions from or in respect of the Preference Shares or any income attributable to any securities or constituent comprised in any relevant Preference Share Underlying (as defined below). All rights arising in respect of the Preference Shares shall reside exclusively with the holder of the relevant Preference Shares (expected to be Citigroup Global Markets Limited or another affiliate of the Issuer). The return on such Securities may thus not reflect any distributions which would be paid to you if you had made a direct investment in the relevant Preference Shares or Preference Share Underlying(s). Consequently, the return on Securities linked to Preference Shares may be less than the return from a direct investment in the relevant Preference Shares or Preference Share Underlying(s).

Preference Share Linked Securities give investment exposure to the value of the Class of Preference Shares to which the relevant Securities are linked. The value of the relevant Preference Shares will depend on the Preference Shares Terms and Conditions of the relevant Class (in particular the applicable defined return and the performance of the applicable Preference Share Underlying(s)) and the financial condition and standing of the Preference Share Company. If the value of the Preference Shares decreases the value of the Preference Share Linked Securities and the redemption amount payable at their maturity are expected to decrease correspondingly. If you invest in the Preference Shares Linked Securities you risk losing all or part of your investment if the value of the relevant Class of Preference Shares declines over the investment term of such Securities.

If the Preference Share Company were to experience financial difficulties the Preference Share Company may be unable to fulfil its obligations under the Preference Share Terms and Conditions of each Class. In this scenario the value of the Preference Shares would be adversely affected and could be zero. As the Preference Share Linked Securities track the change in value of the Preference Shares any such reduction in the value of the Preference Shares is expected to have a corresponding effect on the value of the Preference Shares Linked Securities and the redemption amount payable at their maturity.

You should note that while the redemption amount of the Preference Share Linked Securities is linked to the value of the Preference Shares of the relevant Class which will be influenced (positively or negatively) by the value of the Preference Share Underlying(s), any change may not be comparable to a direct investment in the Preference Share Underlying(s) and may be disproportionate.

The risks of a Security linked to Preference Shares will depend on the terms of that Security and the relevant Preference Share Terms and Conditions. Such risks may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the price of the relevant Preference Shares. The value of Preference Shares may go down as well as up and the value of any Preference Share on any date may not reflect its performance in any prior period. There can be no assurance as to the future value of any Preference Share or of the continued existence of any Preference Share or the Preference Share Company. Accordingly, before making an investment decision with respect to Securities, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of the Preference Shares, as this may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

Preference Share Linked Securities are not principal protected. If you invest in such Securities you risk losing your entire investment if the value of the relevant Preference Shares and/or the relevant Preference Share Underlying(s) does not move in the anticipated direction.

Except for the publication of the value of the Preference Shares and as otherwise expressly set out in the conditions of the Securities, the Issuer will not have any obligation to keep the Securityholders informed as to matters arising in relation to the Preference Shares.

The issue price of the Preference Share Linked Securities may be more than the market value of such Securities as at the issue date, and more than the price at which the Securities can be sold in secondary market transactions.

The levels and basis of taxation on the Preference Share Linked Securities and any reliefs for such taxation will depend on your individual circumstances and could change at any time. The tax and regulatory characterisation of the Preference Share Linked Securities may change over the life of the Securities. This could have adverse consequences for you. You will therefore need to consult your tax advisers to determine the specific tax consequences of the purchase, ownership, transfer and redemption of the Preference Share Linked Securities.

Accordingly, you may lose some or all of your investment in Preference Share Linked Securities.

See Underlying Schedule 13 (Preference Share Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Preference Shares.

Postponement of valuation and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Preference Shares

As the terms and conditions of the Preference Shares include provisions dealing with the postponement of a valuation date, if any date used for the valuation or any determination of any Preference Share Underlying is delayed or the value/level of the relevant Preference Share Underlying(s) is determined using a fall-back in each case in accordance with the relevant Preference Share Terms and Conditions by reason of a non-scheduled trading day, a disrupted day or the occurrence of an adjustment event, such postponement or fall-back determined may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Preference Shares and in turn the Securities linked to the relevant Preference Shares.

The provisions relating to Adjustment Events will not apply to Preference Share Linked Securities however equivalent provisions are expected to be included in the Preference Share Terms and Conditions. The occurrence of any such equivalent adjustment event may result in an adjustment to the terms of the relevant Preference Shares or their early redemption. Any such adjustment will be reflected in the value of the Securities linked to the relevant Preference Shares and may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities. If the Preference Shares are to be redeemed early, the Securities linked to such Preference Shares will also be redeemed early.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being (a) a corporate action, insolvency, merger event, nationalisation, tender offer, or the receipt by the Issuer of notice that the relevant Preference Shares are to be redeemed early, (b) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, (c) a Section 871(m) Event, (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms), or (e) a Realisation Disruption Event), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount determined on the same basis as the final redemption amount of the Securities except that the "final reference level" for such purposes shall be deemed to be the fair market value of the Preference Share on the date of early redemption as determined by the Calculation Agent using its internal models and methodologies and taking into account such factor(s) as the Calculation Agent determines appropriate. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks associated with Securities linked to bonds

Bond Linked Securities will give rise to obligations of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor and will not give rise to any obligations of the issuer of any bond, and accordingly you will have no recourse against any such bond issuer.

No issuer of such Bonds will have participated in the preparation of the applicable Issue Terms or in establishing the terms of the Securities and none of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and any Dealer will make any investigation or enquiry in connection with such offering with respect to the information concerning any such issuer of Bonds contained in such Issue Terms or in the documents from which such information was extracted. Consequently, there can be no assurance that all events occurring prior to the relevant issue date (including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of the publicly available documents described in this paragraph or in any applicable Issue Terms) that would affect the trading price of the Bonds will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning such an issuer of Bonds could affect the trading price of the Bonds and therefore the trading price of the relevant Securities.

Except as provided in the applicable Issue Terms in relation to Physical Delivery Securities, Securityholders will not have voting rights or rights to receive distributions or any other rights with respect to the relevant Bonds to which such Securities relate notwithstanding that, in relation to Exempt Securities and if so specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement, Securityholders may be entitled to receive payments calculated by reference to the amount of distributions or other payments that would be received by a holder of the relevant Bonds. The return on such Securities may thus not reflect any distributions which would be paid to you if you had made a direct investment in the relevant Bonds. Consequently, the return on Securities linked to Bonds may be less than the return from a direct investment in the relevant Bonds.

The risks of a Security linked to Bonds will depend on the terms of that Security. Such risks may include, but are not limited to, the possibility of significant changes in the price(s) of the Bonds. The value of Bonds may go down as well as up and the value of any Bond on any date may not reflect its performance in any prior period. There can be no assurance as to the future value of any Bond or of the continued existence of any Bond or Bond issuer. Accordingly, before making an investment decision with respect to Securities, you should carefully consider, among other matters, the value and price volatility of the relevant Bonds, as this may affect the value of and return on the Securities.

In addition, the calculation of amounts payable on such Securities may involve reference to the performance of one or more Bonds over a period of time and to Bonds, the issuer(s) of which are incorporated outside the United States, the EEA and the United Kingdom.

Accordingly, you may receive a lower return on Securities linked to one or more Bonds than you would have received if you had invested directly in the Bonds or in another product.

See Underlying Schedule 14 (Bond Conditions) for the specific terms and conditions in respect of Securities linked to Bonds.

Disrupted Days, Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events in relation to Securities linked to Bonds

Certain events or occurrences described below will only be relevant if the associated Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events are specified as being applicable for a Bond in the applicable Issue Terms.

RISK FACTORS

If the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs in respect of a Bond (being, in each case if applicable, the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Securities or a Hedging Disruption or an Increased Cost of Hedging, then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event or the Calculation Agent may replace the Bond that is the subject of the Adjustment Event with a new bond selected by the Calculation Agent which has, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the same or substantially similar terms and conditions as the Bond or, in the case of Exempt Securities, selected by reference to such other criteria as specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement. Any such adjustment may include, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable or deliverable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment(s) or substitution may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) or substitution can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event shall be an Early Termination Event.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment or substitution can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event, (b) the occurrence of a Bond Event (being, in each case, if applicable, certain default, non-payment, restructuring, early redemption and bankruptcy related events with respect to the Bond or Bond Issuer), (c) a Section 871(m) Event or (d) a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event (if specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms)), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Investors should note that a Bond Event may occur prior to the Issue Date of the Securities and so investors are exposed to fluctuations in the creditworthiness of the relevant Bond Issuer and the risk of a Bond Event occurring prior to the Issue Date.

Not all Bond Events are triggered by events which are easily ascertainable, and disputes could arise as to whether a specific event did or did not constitute a Bond Event. Under the terms of the Securities, the Calculation Agent's determination will be binding on the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and Securityholders and this may be different from the view of Securityholders, other financial institutions and/or commentators. Securityholders will have no control over any such determination notwithstanding that they may have a significant impact on the return on the Securities.

Risks associated with Warrants linked to Debt Securities

In relation to Debt Security Linked Warrants, due to the character of the particular market on which a Debt Security is traded, the absence of last sale information and the limited availability of quotations for the relevant Debt Security may make it difficult for many investors to obtain timely, accurate data for the price or yield of such Debt Security.

RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH SECURITIES LINKED TO RATES AND BENCHMARK REFORM

The unavailability, disruption or discontinuance of any interest rate to which the Securities are linked will result in the application of certain fallback provisions

In relation to any event or circumstance affecting an interest rate, the fallback provisions described in Valuation and Settlement Condition 11 (Hierarchy Provisions and Adjustments) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates or General Condition 19 (Administrator/Benchmark Event) or General Condition 20 (Reference Rate Event Provisions) of the Terms and Conditions of the Warrants and Exercisable Certificates (the "Hierarchy Provisions") will be applied in the order set out therein, in each case where applicable for the relevant interest rate and the event or circumstance. If the first applicable option shown does not apply to the relevant interest rate and the relevant event or circumstance then the next option which does should be applied. It is possible that, following the application of such fallback provisions, the relevant rate could be determined on a different day than originally intended and/or may be determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion. There is a risk that the determination of the relevant interest rate in accordance with any of these fallback provisions may result in lower amounts payable to you under the Securities and a reduction in their market value.

Any adjustments to the Conditions (including the determination of any spread or factor howsoever defined) which the Calculation Agent determines are necessary or appropriate pursuant to the provisions of the Reference Rate Event Provisions and the Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions shall be made to the extent reasonably practicable, but also taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market) and may include, where applicable and without limitation:

- technical, administrative or operational changes that the Calculation Agent decides are appropriate;
- the application of any adjustment factor or adjustment spread; and
- (subject to compliance with applicable laws and/or regulatory guidance in the relevant jurisdiction) adjustments to reflect any increased costs to the Issuer of providing exposure to the replacement or successor rate(s) and/or benchmark(s).

Such adjustments may also be applied on more than one occasion, may be made as of one or more effective dates, may but do not have to involve the selection of a successor or replacement rate which is determined on a backwards-looking compounding basis by reference to a "risk-free rate" and which, unless the context otherwise requires or it is inappropriate, will be the relevant rate in relation to the then current and all future determination days.

Investors should refer to "Section C – Investment Considerations – Application of Fallback Provisions in respect of Reference Rates and Benchmarks" for an overview of how and when such fallback provisions apply.

In respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates, if a floating rate becomes unavailable it may be determined in the Calculation Agent's discretion or by alternative methods

If the relevant rate is unavailable and the Screen Rate Determination provisions of Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(a) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates apply, subject as provided in the relevant Hierarchy Provisions, the Calculation Agent shall determine the relevant rate in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to such sources as it deems appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market), which determination may be made by reference to quotations provided by third party banks.

If the ISDA Determination provisions of Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(b) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates apply, subject as provided in the relevant Hierarchy Provisions, if the relevant rate of interest cannot be determined by reference to the relevant ISDA Definitions (including the temporary cessation provisions set out in such ISDA Definitions, which may include reference bank quotations), then the rate of interest will be that determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to alternative benchmarks then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

If the relevant rate is unavailable and the SFRD (Non-Index) Fallback Provisions in Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(c)(iii) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates apply, subject as provided in the relevant Hierarchy Provisions, the amount of interest payable on such Securities will be determined using (a) the Bank of England's Bank Rate (for the purposes of this paragraph, the "Bank Rate") for such day plus the mean of the spread of the SONIA rate to the Bank Rate, or (b) if the Bank Rate is not available on such day, the SONIA rate published for the first preceding London Banking Day on which the SONIA rate was published. In respect of (a), there is no assurance that the characteristics of the Bank Rate and spread calculation will be similar to, or will produce the economic equivalent of, the SONIA rate upon which compounded daily SONIA is based. If the said rate and spread calculation provisions or alternative provisions for determining the SONIA rate in respect of a particular day become applicable, this could result in adverse consequences to the amount of interest payable on the Securities, which could adversely affect the return on, value of and market for the Securities.

If the relevant rate is unavailable and the SFRD (Index) Fallback Provisions in Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(c)(iii) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates or the SOFR Fallback Provisions in Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(d)(iii) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates apply, subject as provided in the relevant Hierarchy Provisions, the relevant SONIA Compounded Index value, or SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, will be determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to such sources as it deems appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

If the relevant rate is not published on the relevant page or by another authorised distributor, and is not otherwise provided by the relevant administrator and the €STR Fallback Provisions of Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(e)(ii) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates or the SARON Fallback Provisions of Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(f)(ii) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates apply, subject as provided in the relevant Hierarchy Provisions, the relevant €STR value or SARON value, as applicable, shall be deemed to be the rate equal to the last provided or published level for such rate.

If the relevant rate is unavailable or if TONIA ceases to exist and the TONIA (Non-Index) Fallback Provisions in Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(g)(iii) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates apply, the amount of interest payable on such Securities will be determined by the Calculation Agent in its sole discretion. If the alternative provisions for determining the TONIA rate in respect of a particular day become applicable, this could result in adverse consequences to the amount of interest payable on the Securities, which could adversely affect the return on, value of and market for the Securities.

If the relevant TONIA Index value is unavailable and the TONIA (Index) Fallback Provisions in Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(g)(iii) of the Terms and Conditions of the Notes and Certificates apply, the relevant rate shall instead be determined in accordance with the Compounded Daily TONIA – Non-Index Determination provisions (in relation to which TONIA OIS Compounding shall apply), in relation to which, see the immediately preceding paragraph.

As a result of any of the above, the return on your Securities may be lower than expected and/or the value of your Securities may be adversely affected and the Calculation Agent will have no responsibility to the Issuers or any third party as a result of having acted on any such quotations.

Failure by the Calculation Agent and/or the Issuer to give notice

Pursuant to the Reference Rate Event Provisions and the Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions, the Calculation Agent is required to notify the Issuer of certain determinations made in accordance with such provisions, and the Issuer is required to notify the Securityholders thereof or of certain elections to redeem the Securities. However, failure by the Calculation Agent to so notify the Issuer or failure by the Issuer to so notify the Securityholders will not affect the validity of any such determination or election.

The regulation and reform of "benchmarks" may adversely affect the value of and return on Securities linked to or referencing such "benchmarks"

Interest rate benchmarks play an important role in financial markets and it is therefore critical that benchmarks which are used extensively are robust and are based on active, liquid underlying markets. As a consequence, interest rates and indices or other figures which are deemed to be "benchmarks", have been the subject of national and international regulatory scrutiny.

Regulatory authorities and central banks view the overnight risk-free rates as providing the most robust benchmark interest rate available and are therefore strongly encouraging the transition away from interbank offered rates.

The EU Benchmarks Regulation and UK Benchmarks Regulation

The EU Regulation on indices used as benchmarks in financial instruments and financial contracts or to measure the performance of investment funds (the "EU Benchmarks Regulation") and the EU

Benchmarks Regulation as it forms part of UK domestic law by virtue of the European Union (Withdrawal) Act 2018 (as amended) and regulations made thereunder (the "UK Benchmarks Regulation"), and together with the EU Benchmarks Regulation, the "Benchmarks Regulations") are a key element of the ongoing regulatory reform in the EU and the UK and have applied since 1 January 2018 and been subject to subsequent amendments.

In addition to so-called "critical benchmarks", other interest rates, foreign exchange rates and certain indices, will in many cases be in scope of one or both versions of the Benchmarks Regulations as "benchmarks" where they are used to determine the amount payable under, or the value of, certain financial instruments (including (i) in the case of the EU Benchmarks Regulation, Securities traded on an EU regulated market or EU multilateral trading facility ("MTF"), and (ii) in the case of the UK Benchmarks Regulation, Securities traded on a UK recognised investment exchange or a UK MTF), and in a number of other circumstances.

The EU Benchmarks Regulation applies, subject to certain transitional provisions, to the provision of benchmarks, the contribution of input data, the administration of and the use of in scope benchmarks within the EU. Among other things, it (i) requires benchmark administrators to be authorised or registered (or, if non-EU-based, to be subject to an equivalent regime or otherwise recognised or endorsed) and (ii) prevents certain uses by EU supervised entities (such as CGML) of in scope benchmarks provided by administrators that are not authorised or registered (or, if non-EU based, not deemed equivalent or recognised or endorsed).

The UK Benchmarks Regulation contains most of the same provisions as the EU Benchmarks Regulation, but has narrower geographical scope of application. The UK Benchmarks Regulation applies to the provision of benchmarks, the contribution of input data to a benchmark and the use of a benchmark within the UK. The onus of compliance with the UK Benchmarks Regulation rests on UK benchmark administrators and UK supervised entities.

The EU Benchmarks Regulation and the UK Benchmarks Regulation also give regulators additional powers to intervene in relation to critical benchmarks (such as EURIBOR under the EU Benchmarks Regulation or certain FX rates and swap rates under the UK Benchmarks Regulation), including to support the orderly wind-down of a critical benchmark.

The ESMA maintains a public register of benchmark administrators and third country benchmarks pursuant to the EU Benchmarks Regulation (the "ESMA Register"). Benchmark administrators which were authorised, registered or recognised by the FCA prior to 31 December 2020 were removed from the ESMA Register on 1 January 2021. From 1 January 2021 onwards, the FCA maintains a separate public register of benchmark administrators and non-UK benchmarks pursuant to the UK Benchmarks Regulation (the "UK Register"). The UK Register retains UK benchmark administrators which were authorised, registered or recognised by the FCA prior to 31 December 2020.

Under the UK Benchmarks Regulation, the transitional provisions for third country benchmark administrators continue until 31 December 2030. However, under the EU Benchmarks Regulation the transitional provisions for third country benchmark administrators expire on 31 December 2025, although (in summary) if ESMA has received an application for recognition or endorsement of a third country administrator by such date, the benchmark concerned can be used in existing and new financial instruments and financial contracts, unless and until the administrator's application is refused. There is also a transitional provision applicable to certain spot FX benchmarks until the date of entry into force of the implementing act giving clarity on the scope of the spot FX exemption. This means that third country administrators of benchmarks remaining in-scope of the EU Benchmarks Regulation on 1 January 2026 will need to apply for recognition or endorsement imminently (to the extent they have not already) or benefit from equivalence for supervised entities to reference such benchmarks in new in-scope instruments from that date and, in relation to significant benchmarks, to avoid the application of certain restrictions on use of such benchmarks in existing in-scope instruments.

The EU Benchmarks Regulation and the UK Benchmarks Regulation could have a material impact on any Securities linked to or referencing a benchmark in scope of one/both of these regulations. For example:

- a rate or index which is an in scope benchmark within the meaning of the EU Benchmarks Regulation may not be used in certain ways by an EU supervised entity if (subject to applicable transitional provisions) its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration from any EU competent authority (or, if a non-EU entity, does not satisfy the "equivalence" conditions and is not "recognised" pending an equivalence decision and the benchmark is not endorsed). If the benchmark administrator does not obtain or maintain (as applicable) such authorisation or registration or, if a non-EU entity, "equivalence" is not available and it is not recognised and the benchmark is not endorsed, then the Securities may be redeemed prior to maturity;

- a rate or index which is an in scope benchmark within the meaning of the UK Benchmarks Regulation may not be used in certain ways by a UK supervised entity if (subject to applicable transitional provisions) its administrator does not obtain authorisation or registration from the FCA (or, if a non-UK entity, does not satisfy the "equivalence" conditions and is not "recognised" pending an equivalence decision and the benchmark is not endorsed). If the benchmark administrator does not obtain or maintain (as applicable) such authorisation or registration or, if a non-UK entity, "equivalence" is not available and it is not recognised and the benchmark is not endorsed, then the Securities may be redeemed prior to maturity; and
- the methodology or other terms of the benchmark could be changed in order to comply with the requirements of the EU Benchmarks Regulation or UK Benchmarks Regulation, as applicable, and such changes could reduce or increase the rate or level or affect the volatility of the published rate or level, and (depending on the terms of the particular Securities) could lead to adjustments to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent deems necessary or appropriate.

Any of the international or national reforms, or the general increased regulatory scrutiny of "benchmarks", could increase the costs and risks of administering or otherwise participating in the setting of a "benchmark" and complying with any such regulations or requirements. Such factors may have the following effects on certain "benchmarks": (i) discourage market participants from continuing to administer or contribute to the "benchmark"; (ii) trigger changes in the rules or methodologies used in the "benchmark" and/or (iii) lead to the disappearance of the "benchmark". Any of the above changes or any other consequential changes as a result of international or national reforms or other initiatives or investigations, could have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on any Securities linked to or referencing a "benchmark" and the Calculation Agent may be entitled to make corresponding adjustments to the conditions of the Securities.

In addition, Regulation 2025/914, which amends the EU Benchmarks Regulation, will apply from 1 January 2026. One of the key changes to the regime is that only benchmarks perceived to have the greatest economic relevance for the EU market will be in mandatory scope of the core provisions of the new regime. Such benchmarks will be those defined as critical or significant (determined based on quantitative or qualitative criteria), EU Paris-aligned benchmarks, EU Climate Transition benchmarks, and certain commodity benchmarks which will remain in scope of the mandatory application of the core provisions of the revised EU Benchmarks Regulation. An exemption will apply for certain FX benchmarks.

Other benchmarks will fall out of mandatory EU Benchmarks Regulation scope (other than certain limited provisions including in relation to statutory replacement of a benchmark, connected with cessation and/or non-representativeness).

For benchmarks that are in scope of the revised regime, similar risks will apply to those which apply to benchmarks in scope of the current regime. Investors should note however that benchmarks that fall out of scope of the revised regime (which have not been opted-in) will no longer be regulated in the same way from 1 January 2026. This means that previously mandatory requirements, for example, regulating governance, conflicts of interest, oversight functions, input data requirements, methodology and transparency of the methodology, requirements for contributors and in relation to input data, will fall away. Among other things, there is a risk that this could mean that the methodology of such benchmarks may be less robust, resilient or transparent (potentially being capable of being materially amended without consultation). This may reduce or increase or affect the volatility of the level of such benchmarks, or if the methodology is materially amended, trigger an adjustment to the terms of the Securities or an early termination.

The UK Benchmarks Regulation is also expected to be repealed and reformed in the near future. It remains to be seen what, if any, changes will be proposed and consequently what, if any, impact any such changes may have on the Securities.

Methodologies for calculating risk-free rates

Risk-free rates are generally backwards-looking and are calculated on a compounded or weighted average basis.

Interest on Securities which reference a backwards-looking risk-free rate is not determined until the end of the relevant interest calculation period. Therefore, you may be unable to reliably estimate in advance the amount of interest which will be payable on such Securities. Further, if such Securities become due and payable following an Event of Default, or are otherwise redeemed early on a date which is not an Interest Payment Date, where a separate amount in respect of accrued interest is payable, the final Interest Rate and/or Interest Amount payable in respect of such Securities shall be determined by reference to a shortened period ending immediately prior to the date on which the Securities become due and payable or are scheduled for redemption.

Developing markets for SONIA, SOFR, €STR, SARON and TONIA and potential impact on performance and returns

The market continues to develop in relation to adoption of SONIA, SOFR, €STR, SARON and TONIA as reference rates in the capital markets for sterling, U.S. dollar, euro, Swiss franc or Kazakhstani Tenge bonds, respectively, and their adoption as alternatives to the relevant interbank offered rates. In addition, market participants and relevant working groups are exploring alternative reference rates based on risk-free rates, including term SONIA, SOFR and €STR reference rates (which seek to measure the market's forward expectation of an average SONIA rate, SOFR or €STR over a designated term).

The market or a significant part thereof may adopt an application of risk-free rates that differs significantly from that set out in the Conditions and used in relation to Securities that reference such risk-free rates issued under this Base Prospectus. Term SONIA reference rates (which seek to measure the market's forward expectation of an average SONIA rate over a designated term) have been published from January 2021 and term SOFR rates have also become available for use. It is possible that market participants may seek to apply such term rates for capital markets issuances, although UK authorities have made clear their preference for the market to adopt a broad-based transition to SONIA compounded in arrears for new transactions, with use of a term SONIA reference rate being more limited.

The Issuer may in the future also issue Securities referencing SONIA, SOFR, €STR, SARON, TONIA or other risk-free rates that differ materially in terms of interest determination when compared with any previous SONIA, SOFR, €STR, SARON or TONIA or other risk-free rate referenced Securities issued by it under this Base Prospectus.

The development of new risk-free rates could result in reduced liquidity or increased volatility, or could otherwise affect the market price of any Securities that reference a risk-free rate issued under this Base Prospectus from time to time.

The new risk free rates have only a limited trading market, and an established trading market may never develop or may not be very liquid. Market terms for Securities indexed to the new risk free rates may evolve over time, and may lead to impacts on trading prices and values, and such Securities may not be able to be sold or may not be able to be sold at prices that will provide a yield comparable to similar investments that have a developed secondary market, and may consequently suffer from increased pricing volatility and market risk.

Similarly, the manner of adoption or application of risk-free rates in the Eurobond markets may differ materially compared with the application and adoption of risk-free rates in other markets, such as the derivatives and loan markets. You should carefully consider how any mismatch between the adoption of such reference rates in the bond, loan and derivatives markets may impact any hedging or other financial arrangements which you may put in place in connection with any acquisition, holding or disposal of Securities referencing such risk-free rates.

RISK FACTORS

Interest on Securities linked to a Reference Rate will be calculated using a Replacement Reference Rate selected by the Calculation Agent if a Reference Rate Event occurs

Occurrence of a Reference Rate Event

If the Reference Rate Event Provisions apply pursuant to the relevant Hierarchy Provisions, there is a risk that a Reference Rate Event may occur in respect of a Reference Rate (for an overview of how the Reference Rate Event Provisions apply, see "Section C – Investment Considerations – Application of Fallback Provisions in respect of Reference Rates and Benchmarks").

It is uncertain as to if or when a Reference Rate Event may occur in respect of a Reference Rate and the circumstances which could trigger such an event are outside of the Issuer's control. Whether a Reference Rate Event has occurred will be determined by the Calculation Agent, and any subsequent use of a replacement Reference Rate is likely to result in changes to the Conditions (which could be extensive) and/or interest or other payments under the Securities that are lower than or that do not otherwise correlate over time with the payments that could have been made on such Securities if the relevant Reference Rate remained available in its current form.

Subject to the Conditions, each Securityholder will bear the risks arising from any such change and will not be entitled to any form of compensation as a result of any such change.

Determination of alternative benchmark and any Adjustment Spread

If the Calculation Agent determines that a Reference Rate Event has occurred in respect of a Reference Rate, it will:

- (A) seek to identify a Replacement Reference Rate;
- (B) calculate the adjustment, if any, to the Replacement Reference Rate that it determines is required in order to reduce any transfer of economic value from (i) the Issuer to the Securityholders or (ii) the Securityholders to the Issuer, in each case that would otherwise arise as a result of the replacement of the Reference Rate with the Replacement Reference Rate (an "Adjustment Spread");
- (C) determine such other amendments to the Securities which it considers are necessary and/or appropriate in order to account for the effect of the replacement of the relevant Reference Rate with the Replacement Reference Rate (as adjusted by the Adjustment Spread); and
- (D) determine the timing for when the Replacement Reference Rate, Adjustment Spread and such other adjustments will become effective in relation to the relevant Securities.

You should be aware that:

- (I) the application of any Replacement Reference Rate (notwithstanding the inclusion of any Adjustment Spread), together with any consequential amendments (or, if applicable, any changes made following a material change), could result in a lower amount being payable than would otherwise have been the case;
- (II) more than one possible replacement rate may exist and, if so, it is possible that the Calculation Agent may select the least favourable replacement rate;
- (III) any such Replacement Reference Rate (as adjusted by any Adjustment Spread) and any consequential amendments (or, if applicable, any changes made following a material change) shall apply without requiring the consent of the holders of Securities; and
- (IV) if the Calculation Agent determines that it is not possible or commercially reasonable to adjust the terms of the Securities to account for the effect of any Reference Rate Event or to identify a Replacement Reference Rate or calculate an Adjustment Spread, then absent a determination that no Replacement Reference Rate or other amendments to the terms of the Securities are required, the Securities may, at the Issuer's option, be the subject of an early redemption, in which case you may lose some or all of your investment. There is no guarantee that a Replacement Reference Rate will be identified or that an Adjustment Spread will be calculated by the Calculation Agent.

The Adjustment Spread may be positive, negative or zero and/or determined pursuant to a formula or methodology. There can be no assurance that the replacement adjustment will fully mitigate the transfer of economic value between the Issuer and holders.

Interim adjustments

If, following a Reference Rate Event but prior to any adjustments or replacement having occurred, the relevant Reference Rate is required for any determination in respect of the Securities and at that time, no amendments have occurred in accordance with the foregoing and:

- (A) if the Reference Rate is still available, and it is still permitted under applicable law or regulation for the Securities to reference the Reference Rate and for the Issuer and/or the Calculation Agent to use the Reference Rate, the level of the Reference Rate shall be determined pursuant to the terms that would apply to the determination of the Reference Rate as if no Reference Rate Event had occurred; or
- (B) if the Reference Rate is no longer available or it is no longer permitted under applicable law or regulation for the Securities to reference the Reference Rate or for the Issuer and/or the Calculation Agent to use the Reference Rate, the level of the Reference Rate shall be determined by the Calculation Agent in its sole and absolute discretion, after consulting any source it deems to be reasonable, as (a) a substitute or successor rate that it has determined is the industry-accepted (in the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate for the relevant Reference Rate (including any temporary substitute or successor rate) or the rate published at the relevant time on the last day on which the Reference Rate was published or was permitted to be used in accordance with applicable law or regulation (the "Last Permitted Rate") or (b) if it determines there is no such industry-accepted (in the derivatives market) substitute or successor rate or the use of the Last Permitted Rate would not produce a commercially reasonable result, a substitute or successor rate that it determines is a commercially reasonable alternative to the Reference Rate, taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).

To the extent that any Securities reference a Reference Rate with respect to which a Reference Rate Event is likely to occur during the term of such Securities, prospective investors should be aware that the consequence of the occurrence of a Reference Rate Event described above will be realised if such a Reference Rate Event occurs.

The interests of the Calculation Agent in making the determinations described above may be adverse to your interests as a holder of Securities. The selection of a Replacement Reference Rate, and any decisions made by the Calculation Agent in connection with implementing a Replacement Reference Rate with respect to the Securities, could have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities. Further, there is no assurance that the characteristics of any Replacement Reference Rate will be similar to the relevant Reference Rate or that any Replacement Reference Rate will produce the economic equivalent of such Reference Rate. In particular, any of these fallback provisions may result in interest payments that are lower than, or do not otherwise correlate over time with, the payments that would have been made on the relevant Securities if the previous rate had continued being published in its current form.

Risks relating to the occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event

The occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event (if applicable) in respect of any relevant Benchmark may mean adjustments are made to the Securities which may include selecting one or more successor benchmarks and making related adjustments to the Securities, including if applicable to reflect any increased costs of the Issuer of providing exposure to the replacement or successor rate(s) and/or benchmark(s). Alternatively, early redemption of the Securities may apply if specified as applicable in the Issue Terms. For an overview of how the Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions apply, see "Section C – Investment Considerations – Application of Fallback Provisions in respect of Reference Rates and Benchmarks" below. Any such adjustment may have an adverse effect on the value of, return on or market for the Securities, and if the Securities are early redeemed, the amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore sustain a loss.

Risks relating to the discontinuance or unavailability of a Rate

If (x) the provisions of Underlying Schedule 12 relating to the determination of the Underlying Closing Level of a Rate on any Scheduled Trading Day in the event of the occurrence of any Disrupted Day and (y) the provisions relating to the consequences of any such Disrupted Day set out in the Conditions apply pursuant to the relevant Hierarchy Provisions, if (i) the relevant Electronic Page is not available, or (ii) the percentage rate of the relevant Rate for the relevant Scheduled Trading Day does not appear on the Electronic Page, and/or (iii) the relevant Rate is not provided or published by the relevant administrator or a relevant authorised distributor and/or (iv) a component of the relevant Rate is not provided or published, the Calculation Agent shall determine the underlying closing level for such Rate as it deems appropriate and in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner, having regard to such sources as it deems appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market)) and may make such adjustments to the Conditions as it determines necessary or appropriate to reflect any industry-accepted practices for the successor Rate, including applying an adjustment factor. Any such amendments may result in payments under the Securities being different from those originally anticipated, and could have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

Swap Rates may be materially amended or discontinued

Swap rates may be subject to reform in the future. These reforms may cause one or more swap rate(s) to be discontinued, to be modified, or to be subject to other changes. Any such consequence could also have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on Securities the payout of which is dependent on the performance of such swap rate.

If a swap rate ceases, different fallback provisions would apply based on the way in which the relevant swap rate is determined under the Conditions and the fallback provisions described in the relevant Hierarchy Provisions. Such fallback provisions will be applied in the order set out therein and where ISDA Determination applies, this will mean that any permanent cessation fallback provisions included as part of the applicable ISDA Definitions will not apply.

New swap rates linked to risk free rates have recently been developed, such as IBA's GBP SONIA ICE Swap Rate settings and USD SOFR ICE Swap Rate settings. However, there can be no guarantee that such rates will be liquid, and the method by which such new swap rates are calculated may change in the future. The Calculation Agent may make consequential changes to the Conditions if the methodology of a relevant rate is amended.

In the event that the administrator of a rate referenced by Floating Rate Securities or Rate Linked Securities amends the methodology of such Rate (including, without limitation, amendments to the time of publication of the relevant rate), the Calculation Agent may but shall not be required to make any related or consequential changes to the Conditions not otherwise provided for in the applicable fallback provisions (including, without limitation, any technical, administrative or operational changes, changes to timing and frequency of determining rates and making payments of interest and changes to the definition of Designated Maturity (where applicable)) that the Calculation Agent determines to be appropriate in a manner substantially consistent with market practice (or, if the Calculation Agent decides that adoption of any portion of such market practice is not administratively feasible or if the Calculation Agent determines that no appropriate market practice exists, in such other manner as the Calculation Agent determines is reasonably necessary). Investors should be aware that such changes to the Conditions may adversely affect the market value of, and return (if any) on, such Securities.

Risks in connection with "Shift" and "Lag" methodologies

Where (a) SONIA Floating Rate Determination, SOFR Floating Rate Determination or TONIA Floating Rate Determination (in any such case, other than where Index Determination applies) or (b) €STR Screen Rate Determination or SARON Screen Rate Determination is specified in the applicable Issue Terms as the manner in which the Floating Interest Rate is to be determined, a compounding method will also be specified in the applicable Issue Terms. These compounding methodologies have emerged as conventions for daily compounding of rates in arrears. The conventions differ in the period that each method uses when weighting each business day's overnight rate for the relevant risk free rate. The "Shift" approach (or "Compounding with Observation Period Shift") weights the relevant risk free rate according to the relevant number of days that apply in a separate observation period which 'shadows' the Interest Period (e.g. the observation period might start and end five business days preceding the relevant start and end of the Interest Period). The "Lag" approach (or "OIS Compounding" or "Compounding with Lookback") weights the relevant risk free rate according to the number of days that apply in the relevant Interest Period. Investors should be aware that divergence between the above methodologies could lead to a difference in the interest being determined even where the relevant risk free rate is the same for the Securities and may not be what investors expected.

Methodologies for determining interest payable in respect of Securities linked to SONIA, SOFR or TONIA may differ substantially

The amount of interest payable in respect of Securities linked to SONIA, SOFR or TONIA will be calculated by reference to (i) the rate of return of a daily compound interest investment (with the daily SONIA, SOFR or TONIA, as applicable, as the reference rate for the calculation of interest); or (ii) where Index Determination in respect of SONIA Floating Rate Determination, SOFR Floating Rate Determination or TONIA Floating Rate Determination applies, a screen rate, formula or value as may be published by the administrator of SONIA, SOFR or TONIA, as applicable. There can be no assurance that amounts of interest determined pursuant to (i) and (ii) will be similar, and over time the market may adopt an application of these methodologies that differs significantly from that set out in the Conditions. Further, investors should refer to "Developing markets for SONIA, SOFR, €STR, SARON and TONIA and potential impact on performance and returns" above for a description of the key risks relating to the development of risk free rates across the market generally.

RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH NOTES AND CERTIFICATES AND CERTAIN TYPES OF SECURITY AND PRODUCT FEATURES

The following risk factors relate only to Securities which are Notes or Certificates.

Securities which are issued at a substantial discount or premium

The market value of any Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued at a substantial discount or premium to their principal amount or issue or offer price tend to fluctuate more in relation to general changes in interest rates than do prices for more conventional interest-bearing securities. Generally, the longer the remaining term of such Securities, the greater the price volatility as compared to more conventional interest-bearing securities with comparable maturities. Such price volatility could lead to a greater loss than otherwise on any sale of the Security prior to its scheduled redemption or an inability to sell the Security in the secondary markets.

Meetings of Securityholders and Modifications

Securities other than French law Securities

The Terms and Conditions of the Securities contain provisions for calling meetings of Securityholders to consider matters which may have a general or specific effect upon your interests. Matters decided at such meetings may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities, and further, the vote of a defined majority may be binding on all Securityholders, including those Securityholders who did not attend and vote at the relevant meeting, and Securityholders who voted in a manner contrary to the majority.

The Terms and Conditions of the Securities also provide that the Issuer and, where the Issuer is CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor or, where the Issuer is CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor may make, without the consent of the Securityholders, (i) any modification to the Securities, the Fiscal Agency Agreement, the relevant Swedish Agency Agreement, the Finnish Securities Issuing and Paying Agency Agreement, the relevant Deed of Covenant, the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee and/or the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee which, in the opinion of the Issuer, is not materially prejudicial to the interests of the Securityholders or (ii) any modification to the Securities, the Fiscal Agency Agreement, the relevant Swedish Agency Agreement, the Finnish Securities Issuing and Paying Agency Agreement, the Deeds of Covenant, the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee and/or the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee which is of a formal, minor or technical nature or is made to correct a manifest error or proven error or to comply with mandatory provisions of the law. In determining what is "materially prejudicial", the Issuer shall not consider the individual circumstances of any Securityholder or the tax or other consequences of such modification in any jurisdiction. Any such amendment to the Securities could have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities or, without limitation, a Securityholder's tax, regulatory or accounting treatment of such Securities.

French Law Securities

In the case of French Law Securities, the Terms and Conditions of the Securities can only be amended if there is a quorate meeting of the Securityholders in accordance with Article L.225-98 of the French Code de Commerce or a written decision of the Securityholders in accordance with French law. The positive vote of two-thirds (for a meeting of Securityholders) or three-quarters (for a written decision of the Securityholders) or more of such Securityholders present or represented will bind the remaining Securityholders.

In respect of French Law Securities which have a Specified Denomination of at least EUR100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date) or which can be traded in amounts of at least EUR100,000 (or its equivalent in the relevant currency as of the Issue Date), the Issuer may amend the Conditions of the Securities without the consent of the Securityholders to correct a manifest error.

See further General Condition 12 (Meetings of Securityholders, Modifications, Determinations and Rounding).

Obligor Regulatory Event

If "Early Termination for Obligor Regulatory Event" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and an Obligor Regulatory Event occurs (being, in summary, a change in law after the Trade Date which results in the Issuer and/or the Guarantor (i) becoming subject to less favourable capital adequacy treatment, (ii) suffering any increased costs in connection with the Securities, including any costs associated with hedging the Securities or costs in maintaining any applicable capital reserves in respect of the Securities or (iii) being materially restricted from performing any of its obligations under the Securities and/or the relevant Deed of Guarantee, as applicable), the relevant Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of such Securities.

If the Securities are so redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to you, as a holder of such Securities, an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms or such other amount as is specified in the applicable Issue Terms. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you would therefore sustain a loss.

See further General Condition 6(c) (Early termination following the occurrence of an Obligor Regulatory Event).

Adjustment Events, Early Termination Events and Realisation Disruption for Securities other than Underlying Linked Securities

In respect of certain Notes or Certificates which are not Underlying Linked Securities, certain Adjustment Events and Early Termination Events and Realisation Disruption may be specified as being applicable in the applicable Issue Terms.

For such Securities, if the Calculation Agent determines that an Adjustment Event occurs (being, in each case if applicable, (a) the occurrence at any time of a change in law affecting any underlying hedging position in relation to the Securities (such that holding, acquiring or disposing of any hedging position becomes or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited) or materially increasing the Issuer's costs in relation to performing its obligations in respect of the Notes or (b) a disruption in the hedging arrangements relating to the Securities or (c) an increased cost in relation to the hedging arrangements relating to the Securities (an "Increased Cost of Hedging"), then the Calculation Agent shall make such adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as the Calculation Agent determines necessary to account for the effect of such Adjustment Event including, in the case of an Increased Cost of Hedging, adjustments to pass on to Securityholders any such Increased Cost of Hedging (including, but not limited to, reducing any amounts payable in respect of the Securities to reflect any such increased costs). Any such adjustment(s) may have an adverse effect on the value of such Securities and, if the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably so be made, such Adjustment Event may be an Early Termination Event if specified to be applicable in respect of the relevant event in the applicable Issue Terms.

If an Early Termination Event occurs (being, if applicable, circumstances where the Calculation Agent determines that no adjustment(s) can reasonably be made following an Adjustment Event), the Securities may be redeemed as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. If the Securities are redeemed early, the Issuer will pay to each Securityholder an amount calculated in accordance with the method specified in the applicable Issue Terms, as determined by the Calculation Agent. The amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could therefore lose some or all of your investment.

If a Realisation Disruption Event occurs, then either (a) the terms and conditions of the Securities (including any payment or delivery obligations) may be adjusted in order to reflect the economic effect of the particular Realisation Disruption Event or (b) the Issuer may redeem the Securities, as further described under "Realisation Disruption" above.

Substitution of CGMFL and/or the CGMFL Guarantor and CGMHI and/or the CGMHI Guarantor

In relation to Securities issued by CGMFL or Securities issued by CGMHI where "Substitution provisions" are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor and/or CGMHI or the CGMHI Guarantor may, at any time, without the consent of the holders, but subject to certain conditions, substitute for itself another company.

In relation to Securities issued by CGMFL, depending on whether "Additional Requirements" are specified as being applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, amongst other conditions, the substitute company, on the date of such substitution, must either (i) be, in the opinion of CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor, as the case may be, of at least equivalent standing and creditworthiness to it, or (ii) unless CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor unconditionally guarantees the fulfilment of the obligations of the substitute company, demonstrate a long term credit rating from at least one internationally recognised credit rating agency active in the international capital markets (including but not limited to Standard & Poor's, Moody's Investors Service and Fitch Ratings) which is at least as high as CGMFL or the CGMFL Guarantor (as the case may be) being substituted.

Any such substitution could have a material adverse impact on the rights of Securityholders, the value of and return on the Securities issued by CGMFL or Securities issued by CGMHI and/or performance under the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee or the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee (as the case may be).

See further General Condition 17 (Substitution of the Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor).

Green Bonds, Social Bonds and Social Finance Bonds

You should refer to the "Investment Considerations" section of this Base Prospectus for information relating to Green Bonds, Social Bonds and Social Finance Bonds and any relevant frameworks.

Whilst it is the intention of the Group to apply an amount equivalent to the net proceeds of any Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds in, or substantially in, the manner described in this Base Prospectus and/or the applicable Issue Terms, there can be no assurance that the relevant projects or uses the subject of, or related to, any Eligible Green Projects, Eligible Green Assets, Social Finance Assets or the assets comprising any Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio will be capable of being implemented in, or substantially in, such manner and/or in accordance with any timing schedule and that accordingly such proceeds will be totally or partially disbursed for such projects and assets. Nor can there be any assurance that such projects and assets will be completed within any specified period or at all or with the results or outcome (whether or not related to the environment) as originally expected or anticipated by the relevant Issuer. In addition, a relevant framework may be amended by the Group from time to time in a manner which may affect the value of relevant Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds, as applicable.

There is currently no clear definition (legal, regulatory or otherwise) of, or market consensus as to what constitutes, a "green", "social", "inclusive", "sustainable" or any equivalently-labelled project or asset or as to what precise attributes are required for a particular project or asset to be defined as "green", "social", "inclusive", "sustainable" or any such other equivalent label. A clear definition or consensus may not develop or if market consensus is developed, such consensus may be different from the relevant framework or may significantly change over time which may affect the value of any Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds. Consequently, investments in businesses or projects described in the relevant framework and any related opinions and/or reports may not meet your expectations, taxonomies or standards or other investment criteria or guidelines regarding such "green", "social", "inclusive", "sustainable", "affordable housing" or other equivalently-labelled performance objectives or any binding or non-binding legal, regulatory or other standards regarding any direct or indirect environmental or social impact (including any present or future applicable law or regulations or by-laws or other governing rules, policies or investment mandates applicable to you) and there can be no assurance that adverse social, environmental and/or other impacts will not occur from such businesses or projects.

Further, any Green Bonds, Social Bonds and Social Finance Bonds issued under the Green Bond Framework, the Social Finance Framework or the Social Bond Framework (each as defined below) are not intended to be compliant with Regulation (EU) 2023/2631 on European Green Bonds and optional disclosures for bonds marketed as environmentally sustainable and for sustainability-linked bonds (the "EU Green Bond Regulation"). It is not clear if the establishment under the EU Green Bond Regulation of the EuGB label and the optional disclosures regime for bonds issued as "environmentally sustainable" could have an impact on investor demand for, and pricing of, green use of proceeds bonds that do not comply with the requirements of the EuGB label or the optional disclosures regime, such as the Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds issued under this Base Prospectus. It could result in reduced liquidity or lower demand or could otherwise affect the market price of any Green Bonds issued under this Base Prospectus that do not comply with those standards proposed under the EU Green Bond Regulation. You should have regard to any descriptions of the relevant projects and eligibility criteria in any applicable framework and the applicable Issue Terms and determine for yourself the relevance of such information and such opinions and/or reports and whether all your applicable standards will be met.

Any opinion, certification or report of any third party (whether or not solicited by the Group) that may be made available in connection with Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds (including with respect to whether any businesses or projects fulfil any green, social, inclusive, sustainability and/or other criteria) may be withdrawn, subject to amendment or may not be maintained. In addition, the provider of any such opinion, certification or report may not be subject to any specific oversight or regulatory regime. Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds may also be listed or admitted to trading on a dedicated "green", "environmental", "social", "inclusive", "sustainable" or other equivalently-labelled segment of any stock exchange or securities market (whether or not regulated), but you should be aware that the criteria for such listings or admission to trading may vary and may not meet your expectations and there is a risk that any such listing or admission to trading may not be maintained by the relevant Issuer or may be withdrawn. This may adversely affect the market value of any Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds with the effect that you may be unable to realise all or part of your investment.

Failure by the relevant Issuer or any other relevant entity to allocate (or cause allocation of) an amount equal to the net proceeds as described in the relevant framework or provide reports, or the failure of any external assurance provider to opine on any relevant framework or on any report's conformity with the Group's sustainability strategy or the relevant framework or the withdrawal of any report or any certification that the Group is not complying in whole or in part with any matters for which such opinion or certification is opining or certifying, as the case may be, will not constitute an event of default under or trigger any early redemption rights (whether by the relevant Issuer or any Securityholder). In addition and for the avoidance of doubt, the proceeds of any Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds will not be segregated by the relevant Issuer or any other entity in the Group from its capital and other assets and there will be no direct or contractual link between any Green Bonds, Social Bonds or Social Finance Bonds and any Eligible Green Assets, the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio, or Social Finance Assets, respectively.

Any of the above factors (and any events that negatively affect the value of any other Securities of the Issuer that are intended to finance "green", "social", "inclusive", "sustainable" or equivalently-labelled projects or assets) could have a material adverse effect on the value of such Securities and investors may be unable to realise all or part of their investment.

Risks relating to different governing laws in respect of certain Securities and guaranteesFrench Law Securities have the benefit of an English law guarantee

French Law Securities issued by CGMHI have the benefit of a guarantee of the CGMHI Guarantor pursuant to the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee and French Law Securities issued by CGMFL have the benefit of a guarantee of the CGMFL Guarantor pursuant to the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the All Monies Guarantee. French Law Securities and any non-contractual obligations arising out of or in connection with them are governed by, and shall be construed in accordance with, French law and the Paris courts have exclusive jurisdiction to settle any dispute arising out of or in connection with the French Law Securities. However, each of the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee, the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and the All Monies Guarantee and any non-contractual obligations arising out of or in connection with it are governed by, and shall be construed in accordance with, English law. In respect of the All Monies Guarantee, the English courts have exclusive jurisdiction to settle any dispute including a dispute relating to non-contractual obligations arising out of or in connection with it. Accordingly, it is possible that Securityholders, wishing to enforce their rights in respect of French Law Securities, may need to bring claims under differing governing laws and/or in different jurisdictions against the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor and this, in turn, could prolong and/or increase the costs to be incurred in respect of any proceedings in relation to such claims and, potentially, affect the ultimate payout.

Risks relating to Fixed Rate Securities or Securities which pay a Non-Contingent Interest Amount

Investment in Fixed Rate Securities or Securities which pay a Non-Contingent Interest Amount involves the risk that if market interest rates subsequently increase above the rate or amount paid on such Securities, this will adversely affect the value of the Securities.

Risks relating to Fixed/Floating Rate Securities

Fixed/Floating Rate Securities may bear interest at a rate that converts from a fixed rate to a floating rate or from a floating rate to a fixed rate. Where the relevant Issuer has the right to effect such a conversion, this will affect the secondary market in, and the market value of, the Securities, since the relevant Issuer may be expected to convert the rate when it is likely to result in a lower overall cost of borrowing for the relevant Issuer. If the relevant Issuer converts from a fixed rate to a floating rate in such circumstances, the spread on the Fixed/Floating Rate Securities may be less favourable than then prevailing spreads on comparable Floating Rate Securities tied to the same reference rate. In addition, the new floating rate at any time may be lower than the rates on other floating rate Securities issued by the relevant Issuer. If the relevant Issuer converts from a floating rate to a fixed rate in such circumstances, the fixed rate may be lower than the prevailing market rates.

Risks relating to Inverse Floating Rate Securities

Inverse Floating Rate Securities have an interest rate equal to a fixed rate minus a specified reference rate (which may be a rate determined by reference to the Floating Rate Securities provisions, the CMS Interest Linked Securities provisions or the Spread Securities provisions as specified in the applicable Issue Terms). The market values of those Securities typically are more volatile than market values of other conventional floating rate debt securities based on the same reference rate (and with otherwise comparable terms). Inverse Floating Rate Securities are more volatile because an increase in the reference rate not only decreases the interest rate of the Securities, but may also reflect an increase in prevailing interest rates, which further adversely affects the market value of these Securities.

Securities subject to a cap

Where the terms of the Securities provide that the amounts payable or deliverable is subject to a cap, your ability to participate in any change in the value of the relevant interest rates and/or Underlying(s) over the term of the Securities will be limited, no matter how much the level, price or other applicable value of the relevant interest rates and/or Underlying(s) increases in a way which would otherwise operate to increase the relevant amount payable to more than the cap level. Accordingly, the value of or return on the Securities may be significantly less than if the cap had not applied or you had purchased another product not subject to a cap.

New York Law Securities which pay interest at a variable rate

Any tranche of New York Law Securities with an aggregate principal amount of less than U.S.$2,500,000 is subject to usury limits which limit the amount of interest which may be paid on such Securities. In addition to any maximum interest rate that may be applicable to any Securities which pay interest at a variable rate, the interest rate on such Securities will in no event be higher than the maximum rate permitted by the law of the State of New York. As of the date of this Base Prospectus, the maximum rate of interest under provisions of the New York penal law, with a few exceptions, is 25 per cent. per annum on a simple interest basis.

Risks relating to Spread Securities

Spread Securities have an interest rate determined by reference to any of: (a) one (1) minus the result of a specified spread rate minus another specified spread rate; or (b) a specified spread rate minus another specified spread rate; or (c) the lesser of: (i) a specified spread rate plus or minus a spread cap margin, and (ii) the sum of: (A) a specified percentage rate per annum, and (B) the product of (I) a multiplier, and (II) the difference between two specified spread rates, and, in each case, plus or minus a margin (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms), and multiplied by an interest participation rate (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms).

Each of the specified spread rates referred to in the preceding paragraph may be (i) a single specified rate, (ii) the sum of more than one specified rate or (iii) one specified rate minus another specified rate.

Accordingly, Spread Securities may be subject to variable interest rates, can be volatile instruments, and/or may pay limited or no interest in respect of an interest period.

Risks relating to Range Accrual (Expanded) Securities

Range Accrual (Expanded) Securities have an interest rate multiplied by an accrual rate which is determined by reference to the number of days in the relevant interest period on which one or more accrual condition(s) are satisfied. An accrual condition may be satisfied on any relevant day if the relevant reference observation is, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms:

- (a) equal to or above the specified barrier; or
- (b) above the specified barrier; or
- (c) equal to or below the specified barrier; or
- (d) below the specified barrier, or the relevant reference observation is, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms:

- (a) either equal to or above, or above, the specified lower range; and
- (b) either equal to or below, or below, the specified upper range.

A reference observation may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms as (i) a single reference rate, (ii) a basket of two or more reference rates, (iii) the difference between two reference rates, (iv) the difference between the sums of two sets of reference rates or (v) a currency exchange rate.

The interest rate of Range Accrual (Expanded) Securities may be a rate equal to or calculated by reference to a specified fixed interest rate, a floating interest rate, a CMS swap rate (or if specified in the applicable Issue Terms, either the lesser of or the difference between two CMS swap rates) or a Synthetic Forward Rate.

The accrual rate may be subject to a cap or a floor and may be multiplied by a leverage factor.

Accordingly, Range Accrual (Expanded) Securities may be subject to variable interest rates, can be volatile instruments, and/or may pay limited or no interest in respect of an interest period.

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify that the "Protected Range Accrual Provisions" apply, where the accrual factor is greater than the specified protection level, the accrual factor shall be deemed to be 100 per cent. and the full amount of the interest amount for the relevant interest period will be paid even if the relevant accrual condition(s) are not satisfied on each relevant day in the relevant interest period.

Digital Securities

Digital Securities have an interest rate which will either be:

- (a) the specified back up rate; or
- (b) if the specified digital reference rate as of the relevant interest determination date is either, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, (i) greater than, (ii) greater than or equal to, (iii) less than or (iv) less than or equal to the specified reserve rate, the specified digital rate.

Each of the rates referred to in the preceding paragraph may be (a) a fixed rate or (b) a rate determined by reference to the Floating Rate Securities provisions, the CMS Interest Linked Securities provisions, the Spread Securities provisions or FX Rate Conditions. Therefore, Digital Securities may be subject to variable interest rates, can be volatile instruments and may pay limited or no interest in respect of an interest period.

Digital Band Securities

Digital Band Securities have an interest rate (which may be a fixed interest rate, a floating interest rate, a CMS interest rate or a rate equal to one specified rate (which may be a floating interest rate or a CMS interest rate) minus another specified rate (which may be a floating interest rate or a CMS interest rate)) which will be determined in relation to an interest period by reference to within which band either, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms:

- (a) the specified reference rate falls; or
- (b) the result of one specified reference rate minus another specified reference rate falls.

Each of the specified reference rates referred to in paragraphs (a) and (b) above may be a rate determined by reference to the Floating Rate Securities provisions, the CMS Interest Linked Securities provisions or FX Rate Conditions.

The interest rate for the interest period will be equal to the rate specified as the band rate for the appropriate band within which, in the case of (a) the reference rate falls or, in the case of (b) the result of one specified rate minus another specified rate falls. In addition, different reference rates may apply in respect of different interest periods and interest payment dates.

Therefore, Digital Band Securities are subject to the performance of, in the case of (a) the reference rate or, in the case of (b) the result of one reference rate minus another reference rate and, as any relevant reference rate is a variable interest rate, the Digital Band Securities may be volatile instruments and may pay limited or no interest in respect of an interest period.

Volatility Bond Securities

Volatility Bond Securities have an interest rate determined by reference to the absolute value of a specified volatility bond rate 1 minus a specified volatility bond rate 2 all, plus or minus a margin (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms), and multiplied by an interest participation rate (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms). Each of the specified volatility bond rates referred to above may be (i) a single specified rate, (ii) the sum of more than one specified rate or (iii) one specified rate minus another specified rate, each of which may be a fixed interest rate, a floating interest rate, a CMS interest rate or a forward rate.

Therefore, Volatility Bond Securities may be subject to variable interest rates, can be volatile instruments and may pay limited or no interest in respect of an interest period.

If the "Shout Option" is specified to be applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, following valid exercise of the Shout Option for a relevant interest period by all the Securityholders, the reference rate(s) comprising volatility bond rate 1 shall be determined by reference to the implied forward rate for such reference rate(s) as determined by the Calculation Agent on the date on which the Shout Option is exercised. The reference rate(s) so determined may result in less interest being paid in respect of the relevant Interest Period if the relevant implied forward rate(s) determined on the relevant date are less than the spot reference rate(s) which would have been used for the determination of volatility bond rate 1 had the Shout Option not been exercised.

In addition, the Shout Option may only be exercised by the Securityholders of all the Securities outstanding on the relevant date. If the Shout Option is exercised by less than all the Securityholders on the relevant date, any such exercise shall not be valid and the Shout Option shall not be validly exercised. This may result in you receiving less interest you would have received had such option been validly exercised by all the Securityholders.

Synthetic Forward Rate Securities

Synthetic Forward Rate Securities have an interest rate determined by reference to a formula similar to the determination of a forward rate which aims to provide exposure to specified rate(s) through the formula and to provide a higher return than by providing exposure directly to such specified rate(s). However, there is no guarantee that such Securities will achieve the expected return. In addition, such Securities may be subject to a cap or a floor and may be multiplied by a leverage factor.

Each of the specified rates referred to in the preceding paragraph may be (i) a single specified rate, (ii) the sum of more than one specified rate or (iii) one specified rate minus another specified rate which, in each case, may be (a) a fixed rate or (b) a rate determined by reference to the Floating Rate Securities provisions or the CMS Interest Linked Securities provisions.

Therefore, Synthetic Forward Rate Securities may be subject to variable interest rate, can be volatile instruments and may pay limited or no interest in respect of an interest period.

Previous Coupon Linked Securities

Previous Coupon Linked Securities are Securities which have an interest rate (a "Previous Coupon Linked Interest Rate") determined from a previous coupon reference rate, plus or minus a margin (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms), and multiplied by an interest participation rate (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms). The previous coupon reference rate for an interest period is a rate equal to: (a) the interest rate for the immediately preceding interest period and/or interest payment date (such rate, a "Previous Coupon", such period, a "Preceding Interest Period" and such payment date, "Preceding Payment Date"), (b) plus or minus a specified rate (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms) multiplied by an interest participation rate (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms), and (c) plus or minus another specified rate (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms) multiplied by an interest participation rate (if specified in the applicable Issue Terms). The Previous Coupon for a Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date (as applicable) is the interest rate determined in accordance with the interest basis applicable to such Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date, which may be the Previous Coupon Linked Interest Rate determined for the Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date where the interest basis applicable to such Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date is specified in the applicable Issue Terms as Previous Coupon Linked Securities.

The Previous Coupon for a Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date (as applicable) may also be a fixed interest rate (if the applicable interest basis for such Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date is Fixed Rate Securities), floating interest rate (if the applicable interest basis for such Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date is Floating Rate Securities), a CMS interest rate (if the applicable interest basis for such Preceding Interest Period and/or Preceding Payment Date is CMS Interest Linked Securities) or any other rate of interest determined in accordance with the applicable interest basis for such Preceding Interest Period and/or such Preceding Payment Date.

A specified rate may be a fixed interest rate, a floating interest rate, a CMS interest rate or any other reference rate specified in the applicable Issue Terms and determined in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Securities. Previous Coupon Linked Securities may therefore also be Fixed Rate Securities, Floating Rate Securities, CMS Interest Linked Securities, Inverse Floating Rate Securities, Range Accrual Securities, Digital Securities, Spread Securities and/or Volatility Bond Securities and/or Synthetic Forward Rate Securities (or any combination of the foregoing).

Therefore, Previous Coupon Linked Securities may be subject to variable interest rates, can be volatile instruments and may pay limited or no interest in respect of an interest period.

FX Performance Securities

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify the "FX Performance Securities Provisions" to be applicable, the interest rate otherwise determined in accordance with the relevant interest provisions in respect of an interest period/interest payment date (an actual coupon rate) will be adjusted to reflect changes in a settlement currency exchange rate by applying the "performance" of the relevant currency exchange rate (being (i) either a specified amount or a settlement currency exchange rate or the currency exchange rate on a specified date (e.g. the trade date) divided by (ii) either a specified amount or a settlement currency exchange rate or the currency exchange rate on a different specified date (e.g. a specified FX performance valuation date for the relevant interest period/interest payment date)) to such actual coupon rate.

This will mean that you are exposed to fluctuations in the settlement currency exchange rate which may operate to reduce the interest rate for the relevant interest period/interest payment date.

Reserve Coupon Securities and Redemption Reserve Securities

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify the "Reserve Coupon Securities Provisions" to be applicable and Relevant Option is specified to be Option 1, if the interest rate otherwise determined in accordance with the relevant interest provisions in respect of an interest period/interest payment date (an actual coupon rate) is greater than the reserve coupon rate specified for the relevant interest period/interest payment date in the applicable Issue Terms, (i) the Interest Rate for the relevant interest period/interest payment date shall be capped at the reserve coupon rate and (ii) the amount by which such actual coupon rate exceeds the reserve coupon rate shall be carried over to "top up" the rate of interest for any succeeding interest periods/interest payment dates for which the actual coupon rate is less than the reserve coupon rate, PROVIDED THAT the Interest Rate for any succeeding interest period/interest payment date shall not exceed the reserve coupon rate. The total reserve coupon for the final interest period shall then either (i) where this is a positive number, be applied to increase the Redemption Amount of the Securities or (ii) where this is a negative number, be applied to reduce the Redemption Amount of the Securities.

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify the "Reserve Coupon Securities Provisions" to be applicable and Relevant Option is specified to be Option 2, where the actual coupon rate is less than zero during the specified Initial Reserve Period, the interest amount for the relevant Interest Period will be floored at zero and the amount by which such actual coupon rate is less than zero will be added to the reserve coupon. The average of the reserve coupons for each Interest Period during the specified Initial Reserve Period will then be applied over the Remaining Reserve Period (being the remaining term of the Securities) to reduce the amount of interest paid to investors over that period. In the event that the Securities are also Redemption Reserve Securities, the sum of the Redemption Reserve Amounts during the Redemption Reserve Period shall then either (i) where this is a positive number, be applied to increase the Redemption Amount of the Securities or (ii) where this is a negative number, be applied to reduce the Redemption Amount of the Securities.

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify the "Reserve Coupon Securities Provisions" to be applicable and Relevant Option is specified to be Option 3, where the actual coupon rate for an Interest Period is less than the specified Floor, the interest amount for the relevant Interest Period will equal the Floor and the amount by which such actual coupon rate is less than the Floor will be added to the total reserve coupon. The total reserve coupon will then be used to reduce the amount of any interest rate for future Interest Periods where the actual coupon rate is greater than the Floor. In addition, where the total reserve coupon for the final Interest Period is greater than zero, the total reserve coupon will be applied to reduce the Redemption Amount of the Securities (subject to the application of any floor applied to such Redemption Amount).

This may mean that, for certain interest periods, the amount of interest payable will be less than the amount of interest which would have been payable had the cap not been applied and, where applicable, the Redemption Amount in respect of the Securities may be reduced.

Global Interest Cap Securities

Where the Global Interest Cap Securities Provisions are specified to be applicable, the total amount of interest payable in respect of the Securities shall not be greater than the cap amount. If, in respect of an interest payment date, the total amount of interest paid in respect of the Securities prior to the application of the Global Interest Cap Securities Provisions (and, if so specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the FX Performance Securities Provisions) is greater than such amount, the interest amount payable in respect of such interest payment date shall be capped such that the total amount of interest payable in respect of the Securities in respect of each interest payment date up to (and including) the relevant interest payment date does not exceed the cap amount and no further interest will be payable in respect of the Securities after such date.

This will decrease the amount that would have been payable had such cap not been applied and will result in no interest being paid in respect of the Securities after the cap has been reached. This will also adversely affect the secondary market value of the Securities compared to the value of comparable securities in the market which do not have this feature.

Auto Floor Securities

Where the Securities are Auto Floor Securities, the specified floor will be applied to the actual coupon amount determined in respect of the Securities where such actual coupon amount is less than the specified floor, but such floor will only be applied to a number of such interest periods up to the specified Initial Floorlets Number. Where the actual coupon amount is less than the specified floor for more than such number of interest periods during the term of the Securities, the specified floor will not be applied to all such actual coupon amounts and this will decrease the amount that would have been payable had such floor been applied to all interest periods.

Auto Cap Securities

Where the Securities are Auto Cap Securities, the specified cap will be applied to the actual coupon amount determined in respect of the Securities where such actual coupon amount is more than the specified floor, but such cap will only be applied to a number of such interest periods up to the specified Initial Caplets Number. Where the actual coupon amount is more than the specified cap for more than such number of interest periods during the term of the Securities, the specified cap will not be applied to all such actual coupon amounts. Where a cap is applied, this will decrease the amount that would have been payable had such cap not been applied.

Restructure Interest Rate Securities

If a Securityholder holding all of the outstanding Securities of a Series of Restructure Interest Rate Securities makes a valid request that the Issuer restructure the interest basis relating to such Securities and it accepts the Restructure Rate (which may be a fixed, floating or variable rate) proposed by the Issuer, the interest basis of such Securities will be changed for the relevant interest period(s) and/or interest payment dates. If so specified in the applicable Issue Terms, a fee may be payable by the Securityholder in respect of the relevant restructuring.

You should note that any Restructure Rate provided by the Issuer will be determined in its discretion acting in a commercially reasonable manner and that, as any Restructure Rate may only be accepted at the time provided by the Issuer which will be prior to the interest period(s) and/or interest payment dates to which it will apply, the Securityholder cannot be certain at the time of acceptance whether such Restructure Rate will be higher or lower than the Interest Rate that would otherwise have applied under the Securities.

In addition, in respect of Securities for which there is a Maximum Number of Restructure Rate Acceptances, you should also note that it is only possible for a valid Restructure Rate request and a valid Restructure Rate acceptance to be given by the Sole Securityholder where the maximum number of acceptances has not already been given and that this may already have been given by any prior Sole Securityholder(s).

Securities which are issued with variable interest rates or which are structured to include a multiplier or other leverage factor are likely to have more volatile market values than more standard securities.

Securities with variable interest rates can be volatile investments. If they are structured to include multipliers or other leverage factors, or caps or floors, or any combination of these features or other similar related features, their market values may be even more volatile than those for securities that do not include these features. Any such volatility may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

Securities may have, at the option of the Issuer, (where the applicable Issue Terms specify "Switcher Option" applies), or shall have (where the applicable Issue Terms specify "Automatic Change of Interest Basis" or "Lock-in Change of Interest Basis" applies), more than one interest basis applicable to different interest periods and/or interest payment dates. See "Switcher Option" and "Lock-in Change of Interest Basis and Lock-in Redemption Securities" below.

Such Securities may also be Floating Rate Securities, Inflation Rate Securities, DIR Inflation Linked Securities, Inflation Linked Interest Securities, CMS Rate Securities, Inverse Floating Rate Securities, Range Accrual Securities, Digital Securities, Digital Band Securities, Spread Securities, Volatility Bond Securities, Synthetic Forward Rate Securities and/or Previous Coupon Linked Securities (or any combination of the foregoing).

Any such volatility may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the Securities.

Switcher Option

If the applicable Issue Terms specify "Switcher Option" to be applicable, the Securities may bear interest at a rate that converts, at the option of the Issuer, from one specified rate to another specified rate (the "Second Rate"). Where the Issuer has the right to effect such a conversion, this will affect the secondary market and the market value of such Securities since the Issuer may be expected to convert the rate when it is likely to produce a lower overall cost of borrowing. The Second Rate may be less favourable than then prevailing spreads on comparable securities linked to the same reference rate. In addition, the Second Rate at any time may be lower than the rates on other Securities.

If the Issuer has the right to convert the interest rate on any Securities from one interest basis to another interest basis, this may affect the secondary market and the market value of the Securities concerned.

Lock-in Change of Interest Basis and Lock-in Redemption Securities

If the applicable Issue Terms specify "Lock-in Change of Interest Basis" to be applicable for the relevant Securities, the interest basis in respect of the Securities will change on the occurrence of one or more lock-in event(s) as provided therein. The interest basis that would apply following the occurrence of the relevant lock-in event(s) (the "changed interest basis") may be less favourable than then prevailing spreads on comparable securities linked to the same reference rate(s). In addition, the changed interest basis at any time may be lower than the rates on other Securities.

A "lock-in event" will occur if, in respect of a lock-in determination date, the specified lock-in reference observation is, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms: (a) equal to or above the specified lock-in barrier, or (b) above the specified lock-in barrier, or (c) equal to or below the specified lock-in barrier, or (d) below the specified lock-in barrier.

A lock-in reference observation may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms as (i) a Floating Interest Rate, (ii) a CMS Interest Rate, (iii) a Spread Interest Rate, (iv) a Relevant Spread Rate, (v) a Spread Reference Rate or (vi) an FX Rate.

A lock-in barrier may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms as (i) a fixed rate, (ii) a Floating Interest Rate, (iii) a CMS Interest Rate, (iv) a Spread Interest Rate, (v) a Relevant Spread Rate, (vi) a Spread Reference Rate, (vii) an FX Rate, (viii) the sum of more than one rate or (ix) one rate minus another rate.

In addition, if the applicable Issue Terms specify that the Securities are "Lock-in Redemption Securities", the redemption amount payable on redemption of the Securities will be linked to the performance of the relevant FX Rate. Therefore, if the value of the Underlying does not move in the anticipated direction, the amount repaid to you could be substantially less than your initial investment and you could sustain a loss (see also "Risks associated with Securities linked to currency exchange rates" above).

Mandatory early redemption or "autocall"

If "Mandatory Early Redemption Provisions" are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, then such Issue Terms will specify what constitutes a "Mandatory Early Redemption Condition" or a "Mandatory Early Redemption Barrier Event" and, following the satisfaction of the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Condition and the occurrence of a Mandatory Early Redemption Event or the occurrence of a Mandatory Early Redemption Barrier Event, the Securities will be redeemed on the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Date and the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Amount or Early Exit MER Amount, as the case may be, specified in the applicable Issue Terms will become payable on the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Date, provided that, where a "Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon" is specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the Issuer shall also pay the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon on the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon Payment Date in respect of the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Date. No further amount shall be payable in respect of such Securities after the Mandatory Early Redemption Date. In this case, you are subject to a reinvestment risk, as you may not be able to replace your investment in such Securities with an investment that has a similar profile of chances and risks as the relevant Securities.

If any Securities are redeemed early in accordance with the above, the amount you receive will be limited to the Mandatory Early Redemption Amount or Early Exit MER Amount, as the case may be, and (if applicable) the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon irrespective of the value of the relevant Underlying(s) or any other reference factor(s) applicable to such Underlying(s). Furthermore, you will not benefit from any movement in the price of relevant Underlying(s) or other reference factor(s) that may occur during the period between the relevant date of early redemption and the maturity date.

Where the "Rollerball MER Condition" is specified as the Mandatory Early Redemption Condition, the Securities will redeem on the mandatory early redemption date in respect of which the relevant rollerball reference observation is, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms: (a) equal to or above the specified rollerball barrier; or (b) above the specified rollerball barrier; or (c) equal to or below the specified rollerball barrier; or (d) below the specified rollerball barrier.

A rollerball reference observation may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms as (i) a Floating Interest Rate, (ii) a CMS Interest Rate, (iii) a Spread Interest Rate or (iv) an FX Rate.

A rollerball barrier may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms as (i) a fixed rate, (ii) a Floating Interest Rate, (iii) a CMS Interest Rate, (iv) a Spread Interest Rate, (v) an FX Rate, (vi) the sum of more than one rate or (vii) one rate minus another rate.

Where the "TARN MER Condition" is specified as the Mandatory Early Redemption Condition, the Securities will redeem on the mandatory early redemption date on which the total interest payable in respect of the Securities (including the interest payable in respect of the interest period ending on or about such mandatory early redemption date but without taking into account any excluded interest) is equal to or greater than, the TARN Rate specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

Unless the Mandatory Early Redemption Amount or, as the case may be, Early Exit MER Amount (together with (if applicable) the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon) is a specified fixed amount and such amount is greater than your initial investment in the Securities, then you should note that, unless a scheduled minimum redemption amount is specified in all circumstances, then you may lose all or part of your investment.

Where "Mandatory Early Redemption Event override" is specified in the applicable Issue Terms and a Mandatory Early Redemption Barrier Event or a Mandatory Early Redemption Event occurs prior to the Maturity Date of the Securities, the Securities will be early redeemed in accordance with the Mandatory Early Redemption provisions and not the final redemption provisions which may result in payment of a lower amount than would have been payable had the final redemption provisions prevailed.

Optional early redemption

If "Optional Early Redemption Provisions" are specified as applicable, following the satisfaction of the relevant Optional Early Redemption Condition and the occurrence of an Optional Early Redemption

Event, the Securities may (at the option of the Issuer) be redeemed on the relevant Optional Early Redemption Date and the Optional Early Redemption Amount will become payable on the Optional Early Redemption Date. No further amount shall be payable in respect of such Securities after the Optional Early Redemption Date. In this case, you are subject to a reinvestment risk, as you may not be able to replace your investment in such Securities with an investment that has a similar profile of chances and risks as the relevant Securities.

Where "OER Underlying Trigger Condition" is specified as the Optional Early Redemption Condition, the Securities may (at the option of the Issuer) be redeemed if either (i) the fair market value of the Securities (determined as provided in the Conditions and, where applicable, converted into the settlement currency and (where "OER Underlying Currency Conversion" applies) the currency of the Underlying) at the prevailing exchange rate, is at any time less (or equal to or less than, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) than the specified trigger level in respect of the Securities or (ii) the value of the Underlying is at any time less than (or equal to or less than, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) the specified trigger level in respect of the Underlying.

If the Securities are redeemed early in accordance with the above, the amount you receive will be limited to the Optional Early Redemption Amount irrespective of the value of the relevant Underlying or any other reference factor(s) applicable to the Underlying. Furthermore, you will not benefit from any movement in the price of relevant Underlying or other reference factor(s) that may occur during the period between the relevant date of early redemption and the maturity date.

You should note that, where the Optional Early Redemption Amount is the fair market value of the Securities less any costs to unwind any related hedging arrangements, you may lose all or a substantial amount of your investment.

Securities subject to optional redemption by the Issuer (Issuer Call)

An optional redemption feature of Securities, as set out in General Condition 6 (Redemption and Purchase) and any related provisions in the applicable Issue Terms, is likely to limit their market value. During any period when the Issuer may elect to redeem Securities, the market value of those Securities generally will not rise substantially above the price at which they can be redeemed. This also may be true prior to any redemption period.

The Issuer may be expected to redeem Securities when its cost of borrowing is lower than the interest rate on the Securities. At those times, an investor generally would not be able to reinvest the redemption proceeds at an effective interest rate as high as the interest rate on the Securities being redeemed and may only be able to do so at a significantly lower rate. You should consider reinvestment risk in light of other investments available at that time.

Inflation Linked Redemption Securities

Inflation Linked Redemption Securities pay a fixed amount at maturity that is linked to the performance of an Inflation Index

Rate Linked Redemption Securities

The redemption amount in respect of Rate Linked Redemption Securities is determined by reference to either (i) a single rate or (ii) the difference between (or "spread" of) two rates (the "RL Final Level"). The RL Final Level may be positive, zero or negative with the result that, where the RL Final Level is negative, the Rate Linked Redemption Amount may be less than the amount originally invested in the Securities and, subject to any Minimum Redemption Amount, may be zero. A leverage factor may also be applied to the RL Final Level which will operate to magnify the effect of the RL Final Level on the Redemption Amount, in particular, the effect of any negative value. See also "Risks associated with Securities linked to Rates" above.

Interest Linked Redemption Securities

Where the Securities are expressed in the applicable Issue Terms to be Interest Linked Redemption Securities and the redemption amount is specified to be the Interest Linked Redemption Amount, the redemption amount payable on maturity will be the sum of (i) the principal amount of the Securities plus (ii) all the interest amounts determined in respect of the Securities (the "SumAIA"). The SumAIA may be a positive or negative value or zero. As such, the resulting redemption amount may be less than the value of your investment which will negatively impact the return on your investment. No amounts of interest will otherwise be payable in respect of Interest Linked Redemption Securities.

Risks relating to Securities that are Physical Delivery Securities

Settlement disruption event and failure to deliver

In the case of Physical Delivery Securities, if a Settlement Disruption Event occurs or exists on any date specified for the delivery of the relevant Entitlement, settlement will be postponed until the next Settlement Business Day in respect of which there is no Settlement Disruption Event. The Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) in these circumstances may select to deliver the relevant Entitlement in such other commercially reasonable manner as it may select or it may pay the Disruption Cash Redemption Amount in lieu of delivering the Entitlement.

If, in relation to Physical Delivery Securities, "Failure to Deliver due to Illiquidity" is specified as applying in the applicable Issue Terms and it is impossible or impracticable, in the opinion of the Calculation Agent, to deliver, when due, some or all of the Relevant Assets where such failure to deliver is due to illiquidity in the market for such Relevant Assets, the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) has the right to pay the Failure to Deliver Redemption Amount in lieu of delivering some or all of such Relevant Assets which are affected by such illiquidity.

If "Aggregation of Entitlements" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, Physical Delivery Securities which are held by the same Securityholder will be aggregated for the purpose of determining the aggregate Entitlements in respect of such Securities and such aggregate Entitlements will be rounded down to the nearest Tradeable Amount of the Relevant Asset(s), in such manner as the relevant Calculation Agent shall determine. If "Aggregation of Entitlements" is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, the Entitlement in respect of each Security will be rounded down to the nearest whole multiple of the Tradeable Amount of the Relevant Asset(s) in such manner as the relevant Calculation Agent shall determine. Amounts of the Relevant Asset less than the Tradeable Amount shall not be delivered and no cash or other adjustment will be made in respect of such rounding unless "Cash Adjustment" is specified as applying in the applicable Issue Terms, in which case, the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) shall pay you a cash amount equal to the value of any such lesser amount.

Consequently, Securityholders may not receive the Entitlements that they expect to receive, may receive less than they would otherwise expect or may receive a cash amount instead.

Issuer's option to Substitute Assets or to pay the Alternate Cash Redemption Amount

If the Securities are Physical Delivery Securities, the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) may, if the Calculation Agent determines that the Relevant Asset or Relevant Assets, as the case may be, comprises securities which are not freely tradeable and deliverable, elect either (i) to substitute a Substitute Asset or Substitute Assets, as the case may be, for the Relevant Asset or Relevant Assets, or (ii) not to deliver or procure the delivery of the relevant Entitlement or the relevant Substitute Asset or Substitute Assets, as the case may be, to the relevant Securityholders, but in lieu of such delivery to make payment to the relevant Securityholders on the Maturity Date or Settlement Date (as applicable) of the Alternate Cash Redemption Amount. In these circumstances, Securityholders may receive assets which are different to, or cash instead of, the assets that they expected to receive.

Expenses

All Expenses arising from the delivery of the Entitlement in respect of Physical Delivery Securities shall be for the account of the relevant Securityholder.

Expenses in respect of Physical Delivery Securities shall be deducted by the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) from any cash amount owing to you and paid by the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) on your behalf or paid by the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) on your behalf by converting such amount of the Relevant Asset(s) due to be delivered as necessary to pay the Expenses, as specified by the Securityholder in the relevant Asset Transfer Notice. If any Expenses are not so paid, you shall be deemed to authorise the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) to convert and the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) may convert such amount of the Relevant Asset(s) into cash sufficient to cover the Expenses in respect of the relevant Security from which the relevant Intermediary shall deduct such Expenses.

Variation of Settlement

In respect of Physical Delivery Securities, the Issuer (where Settlement via Intermediary is not specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) or the relevant Intermediary (where Settlement via Intermediary is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms) has an option to vary settlement in respect of such Securities and, in lieu of delivering or procuring delivery of the relevant Entitlement, to pay an amount determined to be equal to the fair market value of the Entitlement on the Maturity Date or Settlement Date (as applicable).

In such circumstances, you will not receive any Relevant Assets as the Securities will only be cash settled and the redemption amount you receive may be significantly less than your initial investment in the Securities. Furthermore, you would not benefit from any increase in the price of the Relevant Assets that would have otherwise been deliverable if the Securities had been settled by physical delivery after the date of determination of such fair market value.

Risks relating to Securities that are Dual Currency Securities

If the Securities are Dual Currency Securities, then amounts payable in respect of the Securities will be determined by converting all amounts due under the Securities from the Denomination Currency into the DC Relevant Currency by multiplying such amount by the Dual Currency Exchange Rate for the relevant specified valuation date. In such circumstances, amounts that you receive in respect of the Securities are also linked to the performance of the Underlying which is the exchange rate used for such conversions. This will mean that you are exposed to fluctuations in the settlement currency exchange rate which may operate to reduce the amounts payable in respect of the Securities and you should therefore also have regard to the risk factors relating to Securities linked to a currency exchange rate as set out above (in particular the risk factor entitled "Risks associated with Securities linked to currency exchange rates").

RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH WARRANTS AND EXERCISABLE CERTIFICATES AND CERTAIN TYPES OF SECURITY AND PRODUCT FEATURES

The following risk factors relate only to Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates.

A wide range of Warrants and Exercisable Certificates may be issued under this Base Prospectus. A number of these Securities may have features which contain particular risks for potential investors. Set out below is a description of the most common features and certain features of Call Warrants, Put Warrants, Call Spread Warrants, Put Spread Warrants, Delta One Warrants and Participation Certificates.

Limitations on Exercise

Maximum Exercise Number

If a Maximum Exercise Number is specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the Issuer will have the option to limit the number of Warrants exercisable on any date (other than on the final exercise date) to the maximum number specified in the applicable Issue Terms and, in conjunction with such limitation, to limit the number of Warrants exercisable by any person or group of persons (whether or not acting in concert) on such date. In the event that the total number of Warrants being exercised on any date (other than the Expiration Date) exceeds such maximum number and the Issuer elects to limit the number of Warrants exercisable on such date, a Warrantholder may not be able to exercise on such date all Warrants that such Warrantholder desires to exercise. In any such case, the number of Warrants to be exercised on such date will be reduced until the total number of Warrants exercised on such date no longer exceeds such maximum, such Warrants being selected by the Issuer. Unless otherwise specified in the Conditions and/or in the applicable Issue Terms, the Warrants tendered for exercise but not exercised on such date may be automatically exercised on the next date on which Warrants may be exercised, subject to the same daily maximum exercise limitation and delayed exercise provisions.

Minimum Exercise Number

If a Minimum Exercise Number is specified in the applicable Issue Terms, a Warrantholder must tender, or, in the case of automatic exercise, hold, the specified minimum number of Warrants at any one time in order to exercise on any Exercise Date and, if specified in the applicable Issue Terms, if tendering or holding a number at any one time greater than the Minimum Exercise Number, such number must be an integral multiple of the number specified in the applicable Issue Terms in order to exercise. Thus, Warrantholders with fewer than the specified minimum number of Warrants or not having the requisite integral multiple will either have to sell their Warrants or purchase additional Warrants, incurring transaction costs in each case, in order to realise their investment. Furthermore, holders of such Warrants incur the risk that there may be differences between the trading price of such Warrants and the Cash Settlement Value (in the case of cash settled Warrants) or the Physical Settlement Value (in the case of Physical Delivery Warrants) of such Warrants.

Time Lag after Exercise or Early Termination

Unless otherwise specified in the applicable Issue Terms, in the case of any exercise or termination of cash settled Warrants, there may be a time lag between the Actual Exercise Date or the Early Termination Event, as the case may be, and the time the applicable Cash Settlement Amount (including, in the case of Fixed Rate Warrants, accrued interest) relating to such exercise or the Early Termination Amount relating to such Early Termination Event, as the case may be, is determined. Any such delay will be specified in the applicable Issue Terms or the applicable Conditions. However, a delay in such determination could be significantly longer than anticipated, particularly in the case of either a delay in the exercise of Warrants arising from any daily maximum exercise limitation or the occurrence of a Disrupted Day or a Market Disruption Event (if applicable) or following the imposition of any exchange controls or other similar regulations affecting the ability to obtain or exchange any relevant currency (or basket of currencies) in the case of Currency Warrants or following the occurrence of a Realisation Disruption Event. Any such delay could decrease the relevant Cash Settlement Amount of the Warrants being exercised or the Early Termination Amount relating to the relevant Early Termination Event from what it might otherwise have been and may result in such Cash Settlement Amount or Early Termination Amount, as the case may be, being zero. Warrantholders will not be compensated in respect of any such delay and it will not be possible to withdraw Exercise Notices in respect of Warrants which have been exercised.

In relation to Physical Delivery Warrants, there will be a time lag between the Actual Exercise Date or the Early Termination Event, as the case may be, and the time the relevant Entitlement is delivered. Any such delay will be specified in the applicable Issue Terms or the Conditions. However, a delay in delivery could be significantly longer, particularly in the case of either a delay in the exercise of Warrants arising from any daily maximum exercise limitation or upon due determination by the Calculation Agent that a Settlement Disruption Event occurred at any relevant time. The value of the assets comprising the relevant Entitlement could increase or decrease during this period and could result in the value of the relevant Entitlement being less than any applicable Exercise Price or possibly zero. Warrantholders will not be compensated in respect of any such delay and it will not be possible to withdraw Exercise Notices in respect of Warrants which have been exercised.

Variation of Settlement

If, in the case of Exempt Warrants, the applicable Pricing Supplement in respect of any Warrants represented by a Global Security indicate that the Issuer has an option to vary settlement in respect of any Actual Exercise Date relating to such Warrants, the Issuer may elect (1) not to pay the relevant Warrantholders the relevant Cash Settlement Amount, but to deliver or procure delivery of the relevant Entitlement or (2) not to deliver or procure delivery to the relevant Warrantholders of the relevant Entitlement, but to make payment of the relevant Cash Settlement Amount.

Exempt Warrants may, if so specified and provided for in the applicable Pricing Supplement, allow Warrantholders to elect for settlement by way of cash payment or by way of physical delivery or, in the case of Exempt Warrants, by such other method of settlement as is specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement. The rights of a Warrantholder as described in this paragraph may be subject to the Issuer's right to vary settlement if, in the case of Exempt Warrants, so indicated in the applicable Pricing Supplement and will be subject, in certain circumstances, to the Issuer's right to substitute assets or to pay the Alternate Cash Amount (as defined below) in lieu of physical delivery in accordance with the Conditions.

Subject to, and as further detailed in the terms thereof, the Issuer and a Warrantholder may have certain options to vary settlement in relation to APAC Participation Certificates and APAC Convertible Bond Participation Certificates. See also "APAC Participation Certificates" and "APAC Convertible Bond Participation Certificates" below.

Issuer's Option to Substitute Assets or to pay the Alternate Cash Amount

If Warrants (other than Gilt Warrants) are represented by a Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security, a Regulation S Global Registered WEC Security or a Combined Global Registered WEC Security, the Issuer may, if the Calculation Agent determines that the Relevant Asset or Relevant Assets, as the case may be, relating to an Actual Exercise Date or an Early Termination Event, as the case may be, comprises securities which are not freely tradeable, elect either (i) to substitute a Substitute Asset or Substitute Assets, as the case may be, for the Relevant Asset or Relevant Assets relating to such Actual Exercise Date or Early Termination Event, as the case may be, or (ii) not to deliver or procure the delivery of the relevant Entitlement or the relevant Substitute Asset or Substitute Assets, as the case may be, to the relevant Warrantholders, but in lieu thereof to make payment to the relevant Warrantholders on the relevant Settlement Date or Early Termination Settlement Date, as the case may be, of the Alternate Cash Amount. In these circumstances, Warrantholders may receive assets which are different to, or cash instead of, the assets that it expected to receive.

Settlement Disruption Event and Failure to Deliver

In the case of Physical Delivery Warrants, if a Settlement Disruption Event occurs or exists on any date specified for the delivery of the relevant Entitlement, settlement will be postponed until the next Settlement Business Day in respect of which there is no Settlement Disruption Event. The Issuer in these circumstances may select to deliver the relevant Entitlement using such other commercially reasonable manner as it may select or (in respect of Warrants other than Gilt Warrants) it may pay the Disruption Cash Settlement Price in lieu of delivering the Entitlement.

If, in relation to Physical Delivery Index Linked Warrants, Share Linked Warrants, Depositary Receipt Linked Warrants, ETF Linked Warrants or Mutual Fund Linked Warrants "Failure to Deliver" is specified as applying in the applicable Issue Terms and it is impossible or impracticable, in the opinion of the Calculation Agent, to deliver, when due, some or all of the Relevant Assets or Substitute Assets, as the case may be, where such failure to deliver is due to illiquidity in the market for such Relevant Assets or Substitute Assets, the Issuer has the right to pay the Failure to Deliver Settlement Price in lieu of delivering some or all of such Relevant Assets or Substitute Assets, as the case may be, which are affected by such illiquidity.

Subject as provided below, Physical Delivery Warrants which are either (i) exercised at the same time by the same Warrantholder or (ii) held by the same Warrantholder at the time of early termination following the occurrence of an Early Termination Event will be aggregated for the purpose of determining the aggregate Entitlements in respect of such Warrants. Such aggregate Entitlements will be rounded down to the nearest whole unit of the Relevant Asset(s) (or, if applicable, of the Substitute Asset(s)), in such manner as the Calculation Agent shall determine.

If the applicable Final Terms specifies that aggregation of Entitlements does not apply, the Entitlement in respect of each Warrant will be rounded up or down (as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) to the nearest whole unit of the Relevant Asset(s), (or, if applicable, of the Substitute Asset(s)), in such manner as the Calculation Agent shall determine.

Fractions of the Relevant Asset(s) (or, if applicable, of the Substitute Asset(s)), will not be delivered and no cash or other adjustment will be made in respect thereof except that if "Cash Adjustment" is specified as applicable in the applicable Pricing Supplement, the Calculation Agent on behalf of the Issuer shall pay to the relevant Warrantholder a cash amount in the Settlement Currency equal to the value of such fraction.

Consequently, Warrantholders may not receive the Entitlement, the Relevant Assets or the Substitute Assets that they expect to receive, may receive less than they would otherwise expect or may receive a cash amount instead.

Early Termination

If the applicable Pricing Supplement specifies that Early Termination applies, Warrants may be terminated early by the Issuer following the occurrence of an Early Termination Event. Details of the Early Termination Event will be set out in the applicable Pricing Supplement. In these circumstances, Warrantholders may receive less than they would expect to receive on the Settlement Date.

As further detailed in the terms thereof and under "APAC Participation Certificates" and "APAC Convertible Bond Participation Certificates" below, the Issuer has the option to terminate APAC Participation Certificates and the APAC Convertible Bond Participation Certificates early.

Exercise Expenses and Taxes

A Warrantholder shall pay all Exercise Expenses relating to Warrants held by such Warrantholder. This may have an adverse effect on the overall return on any Warrants.

Exercise Expenses in respect of Physical Delivery Warrants shall either be paid to the Issuer by the relevant Warrantholder or deducted by the Issuer from any cash amount owing to such Warrantholder and paid by the Issuer on behalf of the Warrantholder or paid by the Issuer on behalf of such Warrantholder by converting such amount of the Entitlement as necessary to pay the Exercise Expenses, as specified by the Warrantholder in the relevant Exercise Notice. If any Exercise Expenses are not so paid, the relevant Warrantholder shall be deemed to authorise the Issuer to convert and the Issuer may convert such amount of the Entitlement into cash sufficient to cover the Exercise Expenses in respect of the relevant Warrant from which the Issuer shall deduct such Exercise Expenses.

Exercise Expenses include all Taxes and/or expenses including any depositary charges, transaction or exercise charges, which the Calculation Agent determines may or would be, or would have been incurred: (i) in connection with the exercise and/or termination of the Warrant and/or any payment or delivery in respect thereof and (ii) if "Hedging Taxes" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, by the Issuer or any Affiliate had such entity unwound or varied any underlying related hedging arrangements in respect of the Warrant. Investors should refer to the definitions of Taxes and the terms and conditions of the Warrants and Exercisable Certificates to understand the nature and extent of amounts deductible as Exercise Expenses.

The Issuer shall not be liable for or otherwise obliged to pay any tax, duty, withholding or other payment which may arise as a result of the ownership, transfer, exercise or enforcement of any Warrant by any person and all payments and/or deliveries made by the Issuer shall be made subject to any such tax, duty, withholding or other payment which may be required to be made, paid, withheld or deducted. Certain amounts in respect of taxes may be accounted for retrospectively such that a payment to the then-current Warrantholder may be subject to an amount in respect of taxes relating to a prior payment that was made in respect of the Warrants.

Listing of Warrants

In respect of Warrants which are to be listed on a stock exchange, the Issuer shall use all reasonable endeavours to have such Warrants approved for listing on the relevant stock exchange and to maintain such listing so long as any of such Warrants are outstanding, PROVIDED THAT (a) if it is impracticable or unduly burdensome to maintain such listing due to changes in listing requirements occurring after the issue date of the relevant Warrants or (b) if the maintenance of the listing of such Warrants has become unduly onerous for any reason whatsoever, as further described in General Condition 22 (Listing of Warrants) of the General Conditions of the Warrants and Exercisable Certificates, then the Issuer may apply to the relevant stock exchange to de-list such Warrants from such stock exchange in accordance with the rules of the relevant Stock Exchange, PROVIDED THAT it shall use all reasonable endeavours to obtain and maintain as soon as reasonably practicable after such de-listing an alternative admission to listing, trading and/or quotation of the relevant Warrants by an "appropriate stock exchange" (as defined in the Conditions) within or outside the European Union, as it may decide.

If, in the opinion of the Issuer, such admission to listing, trading and/or quotation on an appropriate stock exchange is not available or if obtaining or maintaining such admission would be, in the opinion of the issuer, unduly burdensome, the Issuer shall not be required to obtain such admission and shall have no further obligation to obtain or maintain any listing, trading and/or quotation for the relevant Warrants. In these circumstances, any de-listing may adversely affect the liquidity of the Warrants.

Risks Relating to Renminbi Warrants

Warrants settled in Renminbi ("Renminbi Warrants") may be issued under this Base Prospectus. Renminbi Warrants contain particular risks for potential investors, including:

Renminbi is not completely freely convertible and there are still significant restrictions on remittance of Renminbi into and out of the PRC which may adversely affect the liquidity of investments in Renminbi Warrants.

Renminbi is not completely freely convertible as of the date of this Base Prospectus. The government of the PRC (the "PRC Government") continues to regulate conversion between Renminbi and foreign currencies.

Although starting from 1 October 2016, the Renminbi has been added to the Special Drawing Rights basket created by the International Monetary Fund and policies further improving accessibility to Renminbi to settle cross-border transactions in foreign currencies were implemented by the People's Bank of China (the "PBOC") in 2018, there is no assurance that the PRC Government will continue to gradually liberalise control over cross border remittance of Renminbi in the future, that any pilot schemes for Renminbi cross-border utilisation will not be discontinued or that new regulations in the PRC will not be promulgated in the future which have the effect of restricting or eliminating the remittance of Renminbi into or outside the PRC. Further, if any new PRC regulations are promulgated in the future which have the effect of permitting or restricting (as the case may be) the remittance of Renminbi for payment of transactions categorised as capital account items, then such remittances will need to be made subject to the specific requirements or restrictions set out in such rules. In the event that funds cannot be repatriated outside the PRC in Renminbi, this may affect the overall availability of Renminbi outside the PRC and the ability of the Issuer to source Renminbi to finance its obligations under Renminbi Warrants.

There is only limited availability of Renminbi outside the PRC, which may affect the liquidity of Renminbi Warrants and the Issuer's ability to source Renminbi outside the PRC to service such Renminbi Warrants.

As a result of the restrictions imposed by the PRC Government on cross border Renminbi fund flows, the availability of Renminbi outside the PRC is limited.

The limited availability of Renminbi outside the PRC may affect the liquidity of the Renminbi Warrants. To the extent the Issuer is required to source Renminbi outside the PRC to service the Renminbi Warrants, there is no assurance that the Issuer will be able to source such Renminbi on satisfactory terms, if at all. If Renminbi is not available in certain circumstances as described in the Conditions applicable to Renminbi Warrants, the Issuer can make payments in U.S. dollars or other specified currencies as set out in the applicable Issue Terms.

Investment in Renminbi Warrants is subject to exchange rate risks.

The value of Renminbi against the U.S. dollar and other foreign currencies fluctuates from time to time and is affected by changes in the PRC and international political and economic conditions and by many other factors. All payments with respect to Renminbi Warrants will be made in Renminbi unless otherwise specified in the terms and conditions of the Warrants. As a result, the value of these Renminbi payments in other foreign currency terms may vary with the prevailing exchange rates in the marketplace.

RISK FACTORS

If the value of Renminbi depreciates against other foreign currencies, the value of investment in other applicable foreign currency terms will decline.

In the event that access to Renminbi becomes restricted by reason of RMB Inconvertibility, RMB Non-Transferability or RMB Illiquidity (as defined in the Conditions), the Conditions allow the Issuer to delay such payment or to make payment in U.S. dollars or other specified foreign currency, all as provided in more detail in the Conditions. See "Occurrence of a RMB Disruption Event" above. As a result, the value of these Renminbi payments or deliveries may vary with the prevailing exchange rates in the marketplace. If the value of Renminbi depreciates against the U.S. dollar or other foreign currencies, the value of a holder's investment in U.S. dollar or other foreign currency terms will decline.

Payments in respect of Renminbi Warrants will only be made to investors in the manner specified in the terms and conditions of the relevant Warrants.

Investors may be required to provide certification and other information (including Renminbi account information) in order to be allowed to receive payments in Renminbi in accordance with the Renminbi clearing and settlement system for participating banks in the RMB Settlement Centre(s). All Renminbi payments to investors in respect of the Renminbi Warrants will be made solely for so long as the Renminbi Warrants are represented by a Regulation S Global Security or a Combined Global Security held by a Common Depositary for Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg or any alternative clearing system, by transfer to a Renminbi bank account maintained in the RMB Settlement Centre(s) in accordance with prevailing Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg rules and procedures. Other than described in the Conditions, neither the Issuer nor the CGMFL Guarantor can be required to make payment by any other means (including in any other currency or in bank notes, by cheque or draft or by transfer to a bank account in the PRC). Warrantholders that are unable to comply with these conditions may not be able to receive amounts payable under the Warrants and, in these circumstances, may lose their entire investment.

An investment in Renminbi Warrants is subject to risk of change in the regulatory regime governing the issuance of Renminbi Warrants.

Renminbi Warrants issuance is subject to laws and regulations of the relevant RMB Settlement Centre(s) and any change in the Chinese government's policy or the regulatory regime governing the issuance of RMB-settled instruments may adversely affect the Renminbi Warrants.

Fixed Rate Warrants

Investment in Fixed Rate Warrants involves the risk that if market interest rates subsequently increase above the rate paid on the Fixed Rate Warrants, this will adversely affect the value of the Fixed Rate Warrants.

Call Warrants

If (i) the relevant Underlying is not a Rate or in the case of a Basket of Underlyings none of the Underlyings are Rates, (ii) the Settlement Price of the relevant Underlying(s), subject to deduction of any Commission if an amount is specified as such in the applicable Issue Terms, is greater than the Exercise Price, and (iii) in the case of Exempt Warrants, the applicable Pricing Supplement does not specify otherwise, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the difference between such Settlement Price, less any relevant Commission, and the Exercise Price, multiplied by the Nominal Amount, and all multiplied by any applicable multiplier. The value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) increase (and vice versa).

Where Payment of Dividends is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, a Warrantholder will receive an amount (if any) in the Settlement Currency determined by the Calculation Agent to be equal to the Dividend Percentage of the sum of all relevant gross cash dividends declared by the relevant Share Company in relation to one Share where the ex-date and the date on which Citigroup Global Markets Limited (or any successor to it or Affiliate of it) receives or is deemed to receive such dividends falls during the period from (but excluding) the Trade Date to (and including) the relevant Exercise Date, multiplied by any applicable multiplier. No amounts in respect of dividends will be paid during the term of the Warrants and, if no relevant dividends have been received or deemed to be received as provided above, then no amount in respect of dividends shall be paid on the Settlement Date. The value of the Warrants is expected to increase if dividends are declared and paid (and vice versa).

If "Averaging" applies, then if the arithmetic mean Settlement Price of the relevant Underlying(s) for all the Averaging Dates, subject to deduction of any Commission if an amount is specified as such in the applicable Issue Terms, is greater than the Exercise Price, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the difference between such arithmetic mean Settlement Price, less any relevant Commission, and the Exercise Price, multiplied by the Nominal Amount, and all multiplied by any applicable multiplier. The value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) increase (and vice versa).

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Underlyings which are not Rates, the Settlement Price is determined by reference to the sum of the values of each such Underlying. The Underlyings in the basket are weighted and positive performance of some Underlyings may be negated by negative performance of other Underlyings (and vice versa).

If the relevant Underlying is a Rate or Basket of Rates and the sum of (i) Settlement Price and (ii) the relevant Margin is greater than the Strike specified in the applicable Issue Terms, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the difference between (i) the sum of the Settlement Price and the Margin and (ii) the Strike, multiplied by the Nominal Amount, multiplied by any applicable multiplier, and all multiplied by the any applicable Rates Day Count Fraction.

In respect of Warrants linked to a single Rate, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the Underlying increases (and vice versa).

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Rates, the Settlement Price is determined by subtracting the Official Closing Level of one rate ("Rate 2") from the other rate ("Rate 1") in the basket. As such, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the difference between Rate 1 and Rate 2 increases (and vice versa).

The Cash Settlement Amount may be subject to a cap or a floor and may, in any event, be less than the amount of an investor's initial investment and the Warrants may expire worthless.

Put Warrants

If (i) the relevant Underlying is not a Rate or in the case of a Basket of Underlyings none of the Underlyings are Rates, (ii) the Exercise Price is greater than the Settlement Price of the relevant Underlying(s), subject to addition of any Commission if an amount is specified as such in the applicable Issue Terms and (iii) in the case of Exempt Warrants, the applicable Pricing Supplement does not specify otherwise, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the difference between such Exercise Price and Settlement Price, plus any relevant Commission, multiplied by the Nominal Amount, and all multiplied by any applicable multiplier. The value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) decrease (and vice versa).

Where Payment of Dividends is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, an amount (if any) in the Settlement Currency determined by the Calculation Agent to be equal to the Dividend Percentage of the sum of all relevant gross cash dividends declared by the relevant Share Company in relation to one Share where the ex-date and the date on which Citigroup Global Markets Limited (or any successor to it or Affiliate of it) receives or is deemed to receive such dividends falls during the period from (but excluding) the Trade Date to (and including) the relevant Exercise Date (multiplied by any applicable multiplier) will be deducted from the Cash Settlement Amount. No amounts in respect of dividends will be paid during the term of the Warrants and, if no relevant dividends have been received or deemed to be received as provided above, then no amount in respect of dividends shall be so deducted on the Settlement Date. The value of the Warrants is expected to decrease if dividends are declared and paid (and vice versa).

If "Averaging" applies, then if the Exercise Price is greater than the arithmetic mean Settlement Price of the relevant Underlying(s) for all the Averaging Dates, subject to addition of any Commission if an amount is specified as such in the applicable Issue Terms, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the difference between the Exercise Price and arithmetic mean Settlement Price, plus any relevant Commission, multiplied by the Nominal Amount, and all multiplied by any applicable multiplier. The value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) decrease (and vice versa).

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Underlyings which are not Rates, the Settlement Price is determined by reference to the sum of the values of each such Underlying. The Underlyings in the basket are weighted and negative performance of some underlyings may be negated by positive performance of other Underlyings (and vice versa).

If the relevant Underlying is a Rate or Basket of Rates and the Strike specified in the applicable Issue Terms is greater than the sum of (i) the Settlement Price and (ii) the relevant Margin, then the Warrants will be "in-the-money" and a Warrantholder will receive the difference between (i) the Strike and (ii) the sum of the Settlement Price and the Margin, multiplied by the Nominal Amount, multiplied by any applicable multiplier, and all multiplied by the any applicable Rates Day Count Fraction.

In respect of Warrants linked to a single Rate, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the Underlying decreases (and vice versa).

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Rates, the Settlement Price is determined by subtracting the Official Closing Level of Rate 2 from Rate 1. As such, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the difference between Rate 1 and Rate 2 decreases (and vice versa).

The Cash Settlement Amount may be subject to a cap or a floor and may, in any event, be less than the amount of an investor's initial investment and the Warrants may expire worthless.

Call Spread Warrants

If the relevant Underlying is not a Rate or in the case of a Basket of Underlyings none of the Underlyings are Rates, and, in the case of Exempt Warrants, the applicable Pricing Supplement does not specify otherwise, the Cash Settlement Amount is determined as the Issue Price of the Warrants multiplied by the Spread and further multiplied by any applicable Multiplier.

If the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) increases above the specified Upper Strike, the Spread will be floored at the specified Fixed Percentage and the Cash Settlement Amount will therefore also be floored or, if the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) decreases below the Lower Strike, the Spread will be capped at the difference between the Upper Strike and the Lower Strike and the Cash Settlement Amount will therefore also be capped.

If the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) is between the Upper Strike and the Lower Strike, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) decreases.

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Underlyings which are not Rates, the Underlyings in the basket are weighted and positive performance of some Underlyings may be negated by negative performance of other Underlyings (and vice versa).

If the relevant Underlying is a Rate or Basket of Rates, and the sum of (i) Settlement Price and (ii) the relevant Margin is greater than the Strike specified in the applicable Issue Terms, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and, a Warrantholder will receive the difference between (i) the sum of the Settlement Price and the Margin and (ii) the Strike (such calculation being subject to the Cap and Floor specified in the applicable Issue Terms), multiplied by the Nominal Amount, multiplied by any applicable multiplier, and all multiplied by the any applicable Rates Day Count Fraction.

Subject to the relevant Cap and Floor specified in the applicable Issue Terms, in respect of Warrants linked to a single Rate, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the Underlying increases (and vice versa).

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Rates, the Settlement Price is determined by subtracting the Official Closing Level of Rate 2 from Rate 1. As such, and subject to the relevant Cap and Floor specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the difference between Rate 1 and Rate 2 increases (and vice versa).

The Cash Settlement Amount may be less than the amount of an investor's initial investment and the Warrants may expire worthless.

Put Spread Warrants

If the relevant Underlying is not a Rate or in the case of a basket of Underlyings none of the Underlyings are Rates, and, in the case of Exempt Warrants, the applicable Pricing Supplement does not specify otherwise, the Cash Settlement Amount is determined as the Issue Price of the Warrants multiplied by the Spread and further multiplied by any applicable Multiplier.

If the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) decreases below the specified lower Strike, the Spread will be floored at the specified Fixed Percentage and the Cash Settlement Amount will therefore also be floored or, if the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) increases above the Upper Strike, the Spread will be capped at the difference between the Upper Strike and the Lower Strike and the Cash Settlement Amount will therefore also be capped.

If the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) is between the Upper Strike and the Lower Strike, the value of the Warrants is expected to decrease if the Performance of the relevant Underlying(s) increases.

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Underlyings which are not Rates, the Underlyings in the basket are weighted and positive performance of some Underlyings may be negated by negative performance of other Underlyings (and vice versa).

If the relevant Underlying is a Rate or Basket of Rates and the Strike specified in the applicable Issue Terms is greater than the sum of (i) the Settlement Price and (ii) the relevant Margin, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the difference between (i) the Strike and (ii) the sum of the Settlement Price and the Margin (such calculation being subject to the Cap and Floor specified in the applicable Issue Terms), multiplied by the Nominal Amount, multiplied by any applicable multiplier, and all multiplied by the any applicable Rates Day Count Fraction.

Subject to the relevant Cap and Floor specified in the applicable Issue Terms, in respect of Warrants linked to a single Rate, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the Underlying decreases (and vice versa).

If the Warrants are linked to a Basket of Rates, the Settlement Price is determined by subtracting the Underlying Closing Level of Rate 2 from Rate 1. As such, and subject to the relevant Cap and Floor specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the difference between Rate 1 and Rate 2 decreases (and vice versa).

The Cash Settlement Amount may be less than the amount of an investor's initial investment and the Warrants may expire worthless.

Delta One Warrants

If the Exercise Price is less than the Settlement Price of the relevant Underlying(s) and if, in the case of Exempt Warrants, the applicable Pricing Supplement does not specify otherwise, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the quotient of the Settlement Price and the Exercise Price, multiplied by the Nominal Amount. The value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) increases and, conversely, the value of the Warrants is expected to decrease if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) decreases.

If "Averaging" applies, then if the Exercise Price is less than the arithmetic mean of the Settlement Price of the relevant Underlying(s) for all Averaging Dates, then the Warrants will be "in the money" and a Warrantholder will receive the quotient of the Settlement Price and the Exercise Price, multiplied by the Nominal Amount. The value of the Warrants is expected to increase if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) increases, and, conversely, the value of the Warrants is expected to decrease if the value of the relevant Underlying(s) decreases.

If the Warrants are linked to a basket of Underlyings, the Settlement Price is determined by reference to the sum of the values of each such Underlying. The Underlyings in the basket are weighted and negative performance of some Underlyings may be negated by positive performance of other Underlyings (and vice versa).

The Cash Settlement Amount may be subject to a cap or a floor and may, in any event, be less than the amount of an investor's initial investment and the Warrants may expire worthless.

RISK FACTORS

Long/Short Warrants

Amounts payable in respect of the Warrants are linked to a comparison of the performance of one basket of Underlyings (the "Long Underlyings") against the performance of a different basket of Underlyings (the "Short Underlyings").

If the weighted average price of the relevant Long Underlyings falls or rises less in comparison to the weighted average value of the Short Underlyings and/or the amount of any net dividends/distributions paid in respect of the Long Underlyings is not as great as the gross dividends/distributions paid in respect of the Short Underlyings, the Cash Settlement Amount payable in respect of each such Warrant may be less than the issue price of such Warrant.

The Warrants are linked to baskets of Underlyings and the cash settlement amount is determined by reference to the weighted average of the prices of the Underlyings in the relevant basket. However, the Underlyings may not be equally weighted in the relevant basket. Therefore, the negative performance of some Long Underlyings and/or the positive performance of some Short Underlyings may disproportionately adversely affect the amount of the Cash Settlement Amount (and vice versa).

If the price of any Underlying or any dividend/distribution received in respect of any Underlying is an amount in a currency other than the Settlement Currency, such price or amount received shall be converted from the currency in which it is quoted/paid into the currency of the Warrants. Therefore, fluctuations in such currency exchange rate will affect the value of the Warrants and amounts due in respect thereof.

The Warrants may be terminated early at the option of the Issuer if at any time the bid level of the Warrants as determined by the Calculation Agent is equal to or less than a specified barrier by payment of an amount determined by the calculation agent as the difference between the sum of the actual or notional weighted average net sale prices of the Long Underlyings (less a commission) and the sum of the actual or notional weighted average gross purchase price of the Short Underlyings (plus a commission) PLUS the difference between the net dividends/distributions received in respect of the Long Underlyings and the gross dividends/distributions received in respect of the Short Underlyings.

Credit Linked Warrants

Terms used in this section and not otherwise defined herein or in the General Conditions shall have the meaning given in the Notional Transaction. Credit Linked Warrants will only be issued by Citigroup Global Markets Funding Luxembourg S.C.A..

Investment Returns (if any)

Investors should note that Credit Linked Warrants are linked to a Notional Transaction, which is a hypothetical credit default swap or index linked swaption (or such other transaction as is specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement) in relation to the specified Reference Entity or Reference Entities (and any Successor thereto) which the Issuer is deemed to have entered into on the issue date with the swap counterparty specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement (which may be a hypothetical market counterparty), under which the Issuer is in the position of the credit protection Seller or Swaption Seller and the hypothetical market counterparty is in the position of credit protection Buyer or Swaption Buyer, as applicable.

In respect of a Notional Transaction where the Notional Transaction is specified to be a Single Name CDS or an Index CDS in the applicable Pricing Supplement, the terms of the Warrants are designed to reflect the credit exposure of the protection Buyer under the Notional Transaction (as set forth in the Notional Transaction). Accordingly if an Event Determination Date does not occur and/or no Auction Settlement Amount or Cash Settlement Amount, as applicable, is notionally payable under the Notional Transaction, no amounts will be payable on exercise of the Warrants and investors will lose their entire investment.

In respect of a Notional Transaction where the Notional Transaction is specified to be an Index Swaption in the applicable Pricing Supplement, the terms of the Warrants are designed to reflect the credit exposure of the Swaption Buyer under the Notional Transaction (as set forth in the Notional Transaction). Accordingly, if the unwind value of the Notional Transaction on the Exercise Date of the Warrants is out-of-the-money for the Swaption Buyer, no amounts will be payable on exercise of the Warrants and investors will lose their entire investment.

Investors in Credit Linked Warrants shall be deemed to have fully understood the provisions of the Notional Transaction and, in particular, the fact that whether anything will be payable on exercise of the Warrants is dependent on, in respect of a Notional Transaction where the Notional Transaction is specified to be a Single Name CDS or an Index CDS in the applicable Pricing Supplement, whether an Auction Settlement Amount or a Cash Settlement Amount, as applicable, is notionally payable under the Notional Transaction or, in respect of a Notional Transaction where the Notional Transaction is specified to be an Index Swaption in the applicable Pricing Supplement, the unwind value of the Notional Transaction on the relevant date.

Credit Exposure

As a result of the performance of the Warrants being dependent (amongst other things) on whether or not a Credit Event occurs and whether an Event Determination Date occurs or the unwind value of the Index Swaption (taking into account the occurrence of any Credit Event), Warrantholders will be exposed to changes in the credit risk of the relevant Reference Entity or Reference Entities. Credit risk refers to the risk that an entity may fail to perform its payment obligations under a transaction when they are due to be performed as a result of a deterioration in its financial condition. This is a risk for the other companies or parties which enter into transactions with the entity or in some other way have exposure to the credit of the entity. The likelihood of a Credit Event occurring in respect of a Reference Entity will generally fluctuate with, among other things, the financial condition of the Reference Entity, together with general economic conditions, the conditions of certain financial markets, political events, developments or trends in particular industries and changes in prevailing market rates.

If during the life of the Warrants a Reference Entity is able perform its payment obligations and an Event Determination Date does not occur with respect to such Reference Entity, investors may lose their entire investment.

Determinations under the Notional Transaction to be made by the Calculation Agent

Investors should note that (other than to the extent described under "Trigger Notice" below) they will have no discretion to make determinations, deliver notices, or dispute determinations, in each case in relation to the Notional Transaction, where a party acting as buyer under an actual market standard credit default swap transaction or swaption transaction referencing the Reference Entity might have such rights.

The terms of the Notional Transaction provide for Seller, Buyer or the calculation agent in respect of the Notional Transaction (the "Swap Calculation Agent") to make a number of determinations, calculations or elections (including, without limitation, in respect of the valuation of Reference Obligations and the selection of Dealers for such purposes, the identification of any successor Reference Entity or substitute Reference Obligation and the occurrence of any Event Determination Date following the occurrence of a Credit Event pursuant to the terms of the Notional Transaction). Where the Notional Transaction provides for a determination, calculation or exercise of a discretion to be made by Buyer, Seller or the Swap Calculation Agent, such determination, calculation or exercise of a discretion, as the case may be, will be made by (i) in the case of Buyer, the Calculation Agent acting in good faith and a commercially reasonable manner, (ii) in the case of Seller, the Calculation Agent acting in its sole and absolute discretion, or (iii) in the case of the Swap Calculation Agent, the Calculation Agent acting in its sole and absolute discretion. In making any determination pursuant to (ii) above in its capacity as Seller under the Notional Transaction, the Calculation Agent shall act in its sole and absolute discretion, is under no obligation to consider the interests of the Warrantholders and shall have no duties or responsibilities and shall not be liable to Warrantholders or any other party in exercising such discretions and making such determinations and calculations.

If the right to exercise the Movement Option applies under the Notional Transaction, both Buyer and Seller will be deemed to have delivered an effective Notice to Exercise Movement Option under the Notional Transaction on or prior to the Movement Option Cut-off Date. The effect of this will be that Buyer's Notice to Exercise Movement Option will prevail.

If a Restructuring Credit Event occurs, the Notional Transaction may be settled in a partial amount of less than the Floating Rate Payer Calculation Amount but such partial amount may be higher than the amount specified by the relevant Warrantholder in the Trigger Notice delivered by it as the Calculation Agent will be deemed to be instructed to deliver a Credit Event Notice in respect of the highest Exercise Amount specified in any Trigger Notice received at or prior to the time the Threshold Percentage (as defined below) is achieved.

In the event that a Credit Event occurs, but the Calculation Agent does not deliver a Credit Event Notice and a Notice of Publicly Available Information under the Notional Transaction and an Event Determination Date does not otherwise occur following the delivery of a Trigger Notice, no amounts will be payable on exercise of the Warrants in respect of such Credit Event and investors may lose their entire investment.

Potential conflicts of interest may exist between the Issuer or the Calculation Agent, as applicable, and the Warrantholders in relation to such determinations, calculations or exercises of discretions pursuant to the Notional Transaction which may influence the amount payable (if any) on exercise of the Warrants.

Trigger Notice

Investors should note that if Buyer would have the right to deliver a Credit Event Notice under the Notional Transaction, an Event Determination Date will only occur under the Notional Transaction if one or more Warrantholders who together hold the percentage of Warrants specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement (the "Threshold Percentage") deliver valid Trigger Notice(s) describing the relevant Credit Event and containing such information with respect thereto as the Calculation Agent determines constitutes Publicly Available Information. In such circumstances, all the relevant Warrants will be exercised and receive a pro rata share of the Cash Settlement Amount (if any) under the Notional Transaction, notwithstanding that not all Warrantholders may have wanted an Event Determination Date to occur.

If Buyer would have the right to deliver a Repudiation/Moratorium Extension Notice under the Notional Transaction and the Trigger Notice is delivered on or prior to the day falling 12 calendar days after the Scheduled Termination Date of the Notional Transaction, the Calculation Agent will only deliver a Repudiation/Moratorium Extension Notice under the Notional Transaction if one or more Warrantholders who together hold the Threshold Percentage of outstanding Warrants deliver valid Trigger Notice(s) in respect of such Potential Repudiation/Moratorium, together with such information with respect thereto as the Calculation Agent determines constitutes Publicly Available Information.

Potential conflicts of interests may exist between the Calculation Agent and the Warrantholders in relation to the Calculation Agent's determination as to Publicly Available Information which may influence the amount (if any) payable on exercise of the Warrants.

Nature of Synthetic Credit Exposure

An investment in Credit Linked Warrants does not constitute a purchase or other acquisition or assignment of any interest in any obligation of the Reference Entity. None of any Warrantholder, the Issuer and the CGMFL Guarantor will have recourse against the Reference Entity with respect to the Warrants. None of the holders of the Warrants or any other entity will have any rights to acquire from the Issuer or the CGMFL Guarantor any interest in any obligation of the Reference Entity.

Holders of the Warrants will not have rights equivalent to those of a holder of the obligations of the Reference Entity. For example, if a Restructuring Credit Event occurs in respect of the Reference Entity, a Warrantholder, unlike a direct holder of the Reference Entity's obligations, will have no right to challenge or participate in any element of the restructuring.

Reference Entity Information

Warrantholders will not have the right to obtain from the Issuer or the CGMFL Guarantor any information in relation to any Reference Entity or any information regarding any obligation of any Reference Entity. The Issuer and the CGMFL Guarantor will not have any obligation to keep the Warrantholders informed as to matters arising in relation to the relevant Reference Entity, including whether or not circumstances exist under which there is a possibility of the occurrence of a Credit Event.

Neither the Base Prospectus nor the applicable Pricing Supplement will provide any information on the creditworthiness or the likelihood of the occurrence of a Credit Event with respect to any relevant Reference Entity. Each prospective investor is advised to make its own assessment of the likelihood of the occurrence of a Credit Event in respect of a Reference Entity, particularly in relation to Credit Linked Warrants where the Notional Transaction is specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement to be a Single Name CDS or an Index CDS as no amounts will be payable on exercise of the Warrants if no Event Determination Date occurs.

Exposure to Reference Entity and Obligations

A Warrant does not represent a claim against any Reference Entity or in respect of any obligation of such Reference Entity and, as set out above, a Warrantholder will not have recourse under a Warrant to such Reference Entity. Neither the Issuer, the CGMFL Guarantor, any Agent or any other person on their behalf makes any representation or warranty, express or implied, as to the credit quality of any Reference Entity or any obligations of any such Reference Entity. Each of such persons may have acquired, or during the term of the Warrants may acquire, confidential information with respect to a Reference Entity or the Obligations of such Reference Entity. No such person is under any obligation to make such information available to Warrantholders.

None of the Issuer, the CGMFL Guarantor, any Agent or any of their respective affiliates have undertaken any investigation of any Reference Entity for or on behalf of any investor in the Warrants.

Business Relationships

Each of the Issuer, the CGMFL Guarantor, the Calculation Agent and their respective affiliates may have existing or future business relationships with each other or any Reference Entity (including, but not limited to, lending, depository, derivative counterparty, risk management, advisory and banking relationships), and will pursue actions and take steps that it deems necessary or appropriate to protect its interests arising therefrom without regard to the consequences for a Warrantholder. Furthermore, the Issuer, the CGMFL Guarantor, the Calculation Agent and their respective affiliates may buy, sell or hold positions in obligations of, or credit protection in relation to, any Reference Entity or may act as investment or commercial bankers, advisers or fiduciaries to, or hold directorship and officer positions in any such entity.

Adjustment Events

If an Adjustment Event occurs, the Issuer may, unless otherwise specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement, (i) require the Calculation Agent to make such adjustments to the terms of the Warrants as the Calculation Agent determines necessary or appropriate to account for the event and determine the effective date of the adjustment, or (ii) terminate or cancel the Warrants.

If an Increased Cost of Hedging is specified as applying in the applicable Issue Terms and it occurs, the Issuer may, in addition to (i) and (ii) above, require the Calculation Agent to make such adjustments to the terms of the Warrants as the Calculation Agent determines necessary or appropriate to pass onto Warrantholders the increased cost of hedging which adjustment may include, but is not limited to, reducing any of the amounts which would otherwise be payable under the Warrants or reducing the number of Relevant Assets which would otherwise be deliverable under the Warrants.

The Issuer and/or its Affiliates may, but has no obligation to, enter into and/or maintain hedging arrangements to hedge its obligations in respect of the Warrants.

Such adjustments to the terms of the Warrants may have an adverse effect on the value of such Warrants.

In relation to Credit Linked Warrants, the following are Adjustment Events: a Credit Linked Adjustment Event and (if specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement) Change in Law, Hedging Disruption and Increased Cost of Hedging.

EMEA Participation Certificates and LATAM Participation Certificates

Where the applicable Issue Terms specifies that the Certificates are EMEA Participation Certificates or LATAM Participation Certificates, the Issue Price of such Certificates will reflect the value of the Shares on the relevant trade date and the Final Settlement Amount payable in respect of such Certificates will be linked to the performance of the relevant Share Company. An investment in the Certificates provides Certificateholders with a return calculated by reference to the relevant Shares of the Share Company (each as specified in the applicable Issue Terms).

Therefore, if the average price, official closing price or volume weighted average price, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, of the relevant Shares falls below the value of the Shares on the relevant trade date, the Final Settlement Amount payable in respect of each such Certificate may be less than the Issue Price of such Certificate.

The Certificates represent an indirect exposure to the value of the Shares and Certificateholders are, subject to due exercise of the relevant Certificates, entitled to receive payments which are calculated by reference to net dividends and amounts in respect of certain corporate actions that would be received by a holder of the Shares and to a Final Settlement Amount on the Final Settlement Date that is calculated by reference to the average price, official closing price or volume weighted average price, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, of the Shares, in each case, multiplied by any relevant multiplier. Certificateholders are not by virtue thereof the holders of the Shares and do not have any right to receive any information, to exercise voting rights or to receive dividends directly from the Share Company.

If a cash dividend is paid or a stock dividend or rights issue occurs and the Certificates are duly exercised by the relevant Certificateholder, the Dividend Amount or Corporate Action Amount, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, will be paid to Certificateholders.

Where the relevant Shares are quoted in a currency other than the Settlement Currency, then the value of the relevant Shares and amounts paid in respect thereof shall be converted from the currency in which they are denominated into the Settlement Currency of the Certificates. In such circumstances, fluctuations in such currency exchange rate will affect the value of the Certificates and amount(s) due in respect thereof.

Saudi Participation Certificates

Where the applicable Issue Terms specifies that the Certificates are Saudi Participation Certificates, the Issue Price of such Certificates will reflect the value of the Shares on the relevant trade date (converted into U.S.$) and the Final Settlement Amount payable in respect of such Certificates will be linked to the performance of the relevant Share Company. An investment in the Certificates provides Certificateholders with a return calculated by reference to the relevant Shares of the Share Company (each as specified in the applicable Issue Terms).

Therefore, if the traded price of the relevant Shares falls below the value of the Shares on the relevant trade date, the Final Settlement Amount (as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) payable in respect of each such Certificate may be less than the Issue Price of such Certificate.

The value of the relevant Shares and amounts paid in respect thereof shall be converted from the Local Currency into USD and, therefore, fluctuations in such currency exchange rate will affect the value of the Certificates and amount(s) due in respect thereof.

The Certificates represent an indirect exposure to the value of the Shares and Certificateholders are, subject to due exercise of the relevant Certificates entitled to receive payments which are calculated by reference to net dividends that would be received by a holder of the Shares and to a Final Settlement Amount that is calculated by reference to the price of the Shares. Certificateholders are not by virtue thereof the holders of the Shares and do not have any right to receive any information, to exercise voting rights or to receive dividends directly from the Share Company.

The Issuer may, but has no obligation to, enter into and/or maintain hedging arrangements to hedge its obligations in respect of the Certificates. In the event that the Issuer does enter into such hedging transactions, the Issuer will not hedge the Certificates by investing in the Shares directly but may enter into indirect hedging arrangements which conform to the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia CMA Board of Commissioners resolution number 2-28-2008 as amended by resolution number 3 10 2010, such as cash settled swap transactions.

Investors should note that, notwithstanding that ownership of the relevant Certificates may have changed, any Cash Settlement Amount or the Final Settlement Amount may be subject to adjustment as determined by the Calculation Agent for amounts either (i) withheld for tax reasons from the dividends relating to any Cash Settlement Amounts previously paid in respect of the Certificates that are later found not to be owed to, or are refundable from, the applicable local authority or (ii) which are required to be paid in relation to the dividends relating to any previously paid Cash Settlement Amounts (due to local taxes) in addition to any other amounts in respect of Local Taxes that were taken into account in determining any previously paid Cash Settlement Amounts PROVIDED THAT no Cash Settlement Amount or Final Settlement Amount shall be less than zero. Therefore, whether the "adjustment" is positive or negative, it is the holder at the relevant time of payment who is subject to such adjustment.

Therefore, investors purchasing Certificates in the secondary market should note that any amounts payable by the Issuer in respect of the Certificates after such secondary market purchase may be subject to increases or decreases in respect of Local Taxes deducted or not deducted fully from amounts paid to a previous Certificateholder.

APAC Participation Certificates

Where the applicable Issue Terms specifies that the Certificates are APAC Participation Certificates, the Issue Price of the Certificates will reflect the value of the Shares on the relevant trade date and, if the Certificates are cash settled Certificates, the Cash Settlement Amount payable in respect of such Certificates will be linked to the performance of the relevant Share Company and, if the Certificates are physical settlement Certificates, the assets deliverable will be the relevant Shares. A Certificateholder will only have the option to elect for physical settlement if the applicable Issue Terms specify that a holder has the right to vary settlement in respect of the Certificates.

Therefore, if the traded price of the relevant Shares falls below the value of the Shares on the relevant trade date, the Cash Settlement Amount (as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) payable or, as the case may be, the value of the Shares deliverable in respect of each such Certificate may be less than the Issue Price of such Certificate.

The Certificates represent an indirect exposure to the value of the Shares and Certificateholders are entitled to receive payments which are calculated by reference to dividends that would be received by a holder of the Shares and, subject to due exercise of the relevant Certificates, to a Final Settlement Amount that is calculated by reference to the sale price of the Shares, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, or, on physical settlement, to receive the Shares. Certificateholders are not by virtue thereof the holders of the Shares and do not have any right to receive any information, to exercise voting rights or to receive dividends directly from the Share Company.

In addition to the other early termination provisions and as described below, the Certificates have (i) an optional early termination right for the Issuer and (ii) an additional optional early termination right for the Issuer if the Certificates are Indian Participation Certificates or China Participation Certificates or Taiwan Participation Certificates and any holder breaches certain regulatory acknowledgements, representations, warranties and/or undertakings and, in such circumstances, the Issuer may terminate or cancel all or some only of the Certificates but where, in the determination of the Issuer, it is practicable, the Issuer shall only terminate or cancel the Certificates of the Certificateholder that has breached or is in breach of such regulatory acknowledgements, representations, warranties and/or undertakings. Therefore, a Certificateholder may have their Certificates terminated or cancelled early if another Certificateholder breaches the applicable regulatory acknowledgements, representations, warranties and/or undertakings. In such circumstances, the Issuer will determine if the Certificates are cash settled certificates or physical delivery certificates. If the Certificates are terminated early, the Issuer's obligations shall be discharged by payment of the final settlement amount or delivery of the relevant entitlement, as the case may be.

Where the relevant Shares are quoted in a currency other than the Settlement Currency, then the value of the relevant Shares and amounts paid in respect thereof shall be converted from the currency in which they are denominated into the Settlement Currency of the Certificates. In such circumstances, fluctuations in such currency exchange rate will affect the value of the Certificates and amount(s) due in respect thereof.

Where the applicable Issue Terms specifies that Underlying RMB Disruption Event is applicable, then the currency of the Shares shall be Renminbi. In the event that access to Renminbi becomes restricted to the extent that, by reason of Underlying RMB Inconvertibility, Underlying RMB Non-Transferability or Underlying RMB Illiquidity (as defined in the Conditions), it is impossible, impractical, illegal or impracticable for the Issuer (or, if applicable, any party to a Hedging Position), to pay or deliver any amounts or assets due (regardless of whether the Settlement Currency is also Renminbi), the Conditions allow the Issuer to delay such payment and/or delivery or to terminate the Certificates early by payment of the early termination amount, all as provided in more detail in the Conditions. As a result, the value of the Certificate may be more volatile and a holder may receive payment or delivery later than the scheduled date therefor. Investors in such Certificates should also read "Risks Relating to Renminbi Warrants" above as, whilst the Certificates may not be settled in RMB, similar considerations apply.

APAC Convertible Bond Participation Certificates

Where the applicable Issue Terms specifies that the Certificates are APAC Convertible Bond Participation Certificates, the issue price of the Certificates will reflect the value of the relevant debt securities on the relevant trade date and, if the Certificates are cash settled certificates, the final settlement amount payable in respect of such Certificates will be based on the value of the relevant Debt Securities and, if the Certificates are physical settlement certificates, the assets deliverable will be the relevant Debt Securities. A Certificateholder will only have the option to elect for physical settlement if the applicable Issue Terms specify that a holder has the right to vary settlement in respect of the Certificates.

Therefore, if the traded price of the relevant Debt Securities falls below the value of the Debt Securities on the relevant trade date, the final settlement amount payable or, as the case may be, value of the Debt Securities deliverable in respect of each such Certificate may be less than the issue price of such Certificate.

The Certificates represent an indirect exposure to the value of the relevant Debt Securities and Certificateholders are entitled to receive payments which are calculated by reference to net coupon payments that would be received by a holder of the relevant Debt Securities and, subject to due exercise of the relevant Certificates, to a final settlement amount that is calculated by reference to the sale price of the relevant Debt Securities or, on physical settlement, to receive relevant Debt Securities, each as set out in the applicable Issue Terms. Certificateholders are not by virtue thereof the holders of the Debt Securities or the Shares and do not have any right to receive any information, to exercise voting rights or to receive coupons directly from the Securities Issuer.

The value of the relevant Debt Securities and amounts paid in respect thereof shall be converted from the local currency in which they are denominated into the settlement currency for payments in respect of the Certificates. Therefore, fluctuations in such currency exchange rate will affect the value of the Certificates and amounts due in respect thereof

In addition to the other early termination provisions and as described below, the Certificates have (i) an optional early termination right for the Issuer and (ii) an additional optional early termination right for the Issuer where the Certificates are Indian Participation Certificates or China Participation Certificates or Taiwan Participation Certificates and any holder breaches certain regulatory acknowledgements, representations, warranties and/or undertakings and, in such circumstances, the Issuer may terminate or cancel all or some only of the Certificates but where, in the determination of the Issuer, it is practicable, the Issuer shall only terminate or cancel the Certificates of the Certificateholder that has breached or is in breach of such regulatory acknowledgements, representations, warranties and/or undertakings. Therefore, a Certificateholder may have their Certificates terminated or cancelled early if another Certificateholder breaches the applicable regulatory acknowledgements, representations, warranties and/or undertakings. In such circumstances, the Issuer will determine if the Certificates are cash settled certificates or physical delivery certificates. If the Certificates are terminated early, the Issuer's obligations shall be discharged by payment of the final settlement amount or delivery of the relevant entitlement, as the case may be.

If the Debt Securities are redeemed and/or converted in whole or in part prior to their stated maturity date, following a redemption or conversion in full or a partial redemption or conversion where the Calculation Agent determines that such redemption or conversion has affected the hedging arrangements of the Issuer and/or its affiliates, the Issuer may either (i) in respect of a redemption or conversion in full, terminate or cancel the Certificates and either (a) pay an amount equal to the redemption proceeds or the value of the shares received following the relevant redemption or conversion or (b) where specified in the applicable Issue Terms, deliver Conversion APAC Participation Certificates relating to the shares received following the relevant conversion or (ii) in respect of a partial redemption or conversion either (a) pay an amount equal to the redemption proceeds or the value of the shares received following the relevant redemption or conversion or (b) where specified in the applicable Issue Terms, deliver Conversion APAC Participation Certificates relating to the shares received following the relevant conversion and, in any such case, determine the appropriate adjustment (if any) to be made to the Conditions to reflect such payment or delivery.

If an event relating to the credit of the relevant Securities Issuer occurs (being any one or more of a bankruptcy, a failure to pay, an acceleration or default in respect of obligations of the Securities Issuer or a repudiation/moratorium, restructuring or governmental intervention in relation to obligations of the Securities Issuer), the Certificates may be terminated early at the option of the Issuer by payment of an amount determined as specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

If the issuer of the Debt Securities makes a material change to the terms of the Debt Securities, the Issuer may require the Calculation Agent to determine the appropriate adjustment to the terms of the Certificates to account for such change and determine the effective date of such change.

The Certificateholders may elect to exercise a conversion option. If such election is made by a Certificateholder and if the Calculation Agent is or would be permitted in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations to convert the Debt Securities into shares on accordance with the terms of the Debt Securities and the Issuer is or would be able to issue and/or deliver Conversion APAC Participation Certificates in accordance with all applicable laws and regulations and its internal policies and procedures, each Certificate will entitle its holder to receive a number of Conversion APAC Participation Certificates linked to the relevant shares. If the Calculation Agent is not or would not be able to so convert the debt securities or the Issuer is not or would not be able to so issue and/or deliver the Conversion APAC Participation Certificates, such exercise shall be deemed to be null and void.

RISKS SPECIFIC TO CREDIT LINKED NOTES

Credit risk of the Reference Entity

Investors should note that a holder of a Credit Linked Note will be exposed to the credit of one or more Reference Entities, which exposure shall be, unless otherwise stated in the applicable Issue Terms, to the full extent of their investment in such Credit Linked Note or, in the case of Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes, to the extent that the aggregate losses exceed the "attachment point". Upon the occurrence of any specified Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, with respect to any Reference Entity, investors may suffer significant losses at a time when losses may be suffered by a direct investor in obligations of such Reference Entity. However, the holding of a Credit Linked Note may not reflect the impact of investing in an obligation of a Reference Entity, and losses in relation to the Credit Linked Notes could be considerably greater than would be suffered by a direct investor in the obligations of a Reference Entity and/or could arise for reasons unrelated to such Reference Entity. In addition, the terms of the deliverable obligations of Reference Entities may not be standard, and holders of that debt may therefore incur additional losses that are not reflected in the relevant Credit Linked Notes. This is of greater force in the case where the Reference Entity is a sovereign. There are no common set of rules or practices that governs the manner in which a sovereign government, faced with deterioration in its fiscal position or the performance of its economy, may attempt to reach resolution with holders of its debt obligations. Due to, amongst other factors, the role of governments and international organisations as creditors, the ability of a sovereign to enact legislation that may affect holders of its debt obligations, and the role played by other governments, including those of the jurisdictions in which private creditors are located, the development of events is inherently unpredictable. As a result, specified Credit Events or Risk Events, as applicable, may not encompass all the circumstances in which holders of a sovereign Reference Entity's obligations may suffer credit-related losses.

Legal risks

Investors should note that a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, may occur even where (i) the Reference Entity/underlying obligor lacks capacity to enter into any obligation, (ii) there is any actual or alleged unenforceability, illegality, impossibility or invalidity with respect to any obligation or (iii) the Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, results from (a) any applicable law, order, regulation, decree or notice or change in, the interpretation by any court, tribunal, regulatory authority or similar administrative or judicial body or (b) the imposition of, or any change in, any exchange controls, capital restrictions or any other similar restrictions imposed by any monetary or other authority.

RISK FACTORS

In such circumstances, investors should note that they will bear the legal risks since the occurrence of a Credit Event or a Risk Event, as applicable, will result in an early redemption of their Credit Linked Notes, in full or in part (or, in respect of Credit Linked Interest Notes, a reduction in the interest payable in respect of the Credit Linked Notes).

Jurisdictional differences and assessment of Reference Entity

There can be less publicly available information about certain Reference Entities particularly where the laws in the jurisdiction of the Reference Entity do not subject the Reference Entity to reporting requirements. Furthermore, certain Reference Entities are subject to accounting, auditing and financial reporting standards that may differ from those applicable in other jurisdictions, and the relevant ways in which the legal regime of a Reference Entity operates can result in differences in outcomes across various jurisdictions. The differences highlighted herein may make it more difficult to make an accurate assessment of the creditworthiness of certain Reference Entities, and these differences may have a significant effect on the recovery on an underlying debt obligation in the event of bankruptcy or reorganisation of a Reference Entity. For example, once a bankruptcy or insolvency proceeding has commenced under the laws of certain jurisdictions, it may not be permissible to trade or accelerate the debt of the relevant issuer.

In making any assessment with respect to the creditworthiness of any Reference Entity or the Reference Entity generally, investors should also take into account, amongst other factors, (i) the name of the Reference Entity given that there can be confusion among market participants with respect to similarly named entities within a corporate group or failure to monitor any recent name changes or Successors identified with respect to a particular Reference Entity, (ii) the obligor on any referenced obligation and its capacity, to the extent relevant for any Credit Linked Note, (iii) the characteristics of any obligation referenced such as whether it is senior or subordinated, senior non preferred, freely transferrable, secured or unsecured, a bond, loan or a payment obligation not related to borrowed money which may either meet or fail to meet certain requirements specified in the Credit Linked Note relevant to either the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, or redemption following a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable and (iv) where there are multiple Reference Entities, whether each Reference Entity is weighted equally or whether some Reference Entities have greater weightings than others given a Reference Entity's weighting with respect to the relevant Credit Linked Note determines the portion of the principal amount of the Credit Linked Note that is attributable to that Reference Entity. The above factors are related to, and may affect, the creditworthiness of the relevant Reference Entity(ies) which, in turn, may impact the value of, and return on, the Credit Linked Notes and therefore, such factors are important and should be taken into consideration when making a decision whether to invest in the Credit Linked Notes.

Actions of Reference Entities

A Reference Entity (which could be the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or one of their affiliates) could take certain actions (e.g. merger, demerger or the repayment or transfer of indebtedness) without having regard to any investor's interest. A Reference Entity may have an incentive to structure a transaction to produce a particular result for example, in order to induce holders of its debt obligations to take certain actions. In some cases, a Reference Entity may repay its outstanding liabilities or assign them to a different entity in a manner that does not give rise to the determination of a Successor to the Reference Entity. In such cases, with respect to that Reference Entity, there may no longer be any deliverable obligations (a circumstance commonly referred to as an "orphaning"), which may result in there being no appropriate Deliverable Obligations for an Auction to be determined with respect to the relevant Reference Entity or Physical Redemption to be effected. Such actions could affect the value of and return on such Credit Linked Notes in a manner that was not originally contemplated by investors.

Historical performance may not predict future performance

Investors should note that the historical performance of a Reference Entity or similar entities is not indicative of its future performance and, accordingly, if contrary to historical performance, a Credit Event or a Risk Event occurs, the Credit Linked Note may early redeem.

Concentrated credit risk where Reference Entities are concentrated in the same sectors or regions

The credit risk to investors in the Credit Linked Notes, which are credit-linked to multiple Reference Entities may be increased, amongst other things, as a result of the concentration of Reference Entities in a particular industry sector or geographic area, or the exposure of the Reference Entities to similar financial or other risks as other Reference Entities.

Although at the Issue Date or Trade Date, as applicable, investors in Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes will have exposure to a single Reference Entity, investors should note that the risk factors set out above will equally apply to such Credit Linked Notes when multiple successors are identified in accordance with the Credit Linked Conditions.

Impact of a Credit Event or Risk Event on principal and interest

If "2014 Reference Entity" applies, following a Credit Event which is a Governmental Intervention or certain Restructuring Credit Events, an Asset Package Credit Event may occur and the amount of principal payable may be determined based on the value of a package of assets which a relevant obligation of a Reference Entity has been converted into or exchanged for (which may be worth significantly less than the principal amount of such original obligation of such Reference Entity or, where such original obligation has been expropriated for no compensation, may be zero). Prospective investors in such Credit Linked Notes should be aware that depending on the terms thereof (i) they may receive no or a limited amount of interest, (ii) payment of principal or interest or delivery of any specified assets may occur at a different time than expected and (iii) they may lose all or a substantial portion of their investment.

In respect of Credit Linked Notes other than Credit Linked Interest Notes, the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, in relation to any Reference Entity from time to time may result in either full or partial redemption of the Credit Linked Notes on the relevant Credit Event Redemption Date which shall depend on whether "Credit Payment on Maturity" or "Credit Payment Following Credit Event" applies (and additionally, in the case of Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, whether "Redemption in Part" or "Redemption in Full" applies) and any recovery (which could be zero) or any incurred recovery amounts (to the extent that such recovery falls within the tranche to which the Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes are exposed to (as applicable)) will be payable to the investor but the investor shall be exposed to all incurred losses (to the extent that such losses fall within the tranche to which the Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes are exposed to (as applicable)), which will reduce its principal redemptions. Where "Physical Redemption" applies, the occurrence of a Credit Event may result in the redemption of the Credit Linked Notes based on the delivery of certain direct or indirect obligations of the affected Reference Entity, which may have a market value which is substantially less than their nominal amount.

In respect of Credit Linked Notes other than Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes which are Credit Linked Interest Notes, following the occurrence of a Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, investors should note that interest will cease to accrue on a specified portion of the relevant Credit Linked Notes as set out in the terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes depending on whether "Interest Accrual on Default" or "No Interest Accrual on Default" applies in the applicable Issue Terms.

If "No Interest Accrual on Default" is applicable, interest will cease from the Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable or where there is no Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, the Issue Date. If "Interest Accrual on Default" is applicable, interest will cease to accrue on the first Business Day immediately following the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable. In such case, interest shall accrue on the affected applicable proportion from (and including) the Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable (or where there is no Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, the Issue Date) to (and including) the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable. With respect to the Index Tranch Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranch Credit Linked Notes, interest will cease to accrue on the Principal Writedown Amount with effect from the Credit Event Writedown Date, being the business day immediately following the Relevant Event Determination Date.

On respect of Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Tranch Credit Linked Notes, if a Relevant Event Determination Date occurs, interest shall continue to accrue on the Outstanding Aggregate Nominal Amount of the Credit Linked Notes. However, an adjustment factor shall be applied to reduce the Interest Rate, where "No Interest Accrual on Default" is applicable, from the Interest Payment Date immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or, where there is no Interest Payment Date immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date, the Issue Date or, where "Interest Accrual on Default" is applicable, from the first Business Day immediately following the Relevant Event Determination Date. Interest is therefore exposed to the credit risk of each Relevant Reference Entity in the Index in proportion to its weighting.

The Issuer may also suspend interest in certain circumstances where (a) an Applicable DC Credit Event Question or a CE Resolution Notice, as applicable, has been submitted in respect of which a DC Resolution has not been published or the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee has not resolved whether it will convene a meeting to Resolve the Applicable DC Credit Event Question or the matters described in the CE Resolution Notice, as applicable, or (b) where the Calculation Agent has determined that a Credit Event or a Risk Event, as applicable, could occur but no Credit Event Notice or Risk Event Notice, as applicable, has been provided to the Issuer and/or the Securityholders. In such circumstances, investors should note that the Issuer would suspend the maximum amount of interest payable assuming (i) the Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, had occurred, (ii) in the case of an M(M)R Restructuring or Restructuring, as applicable, as though no partial exercise occurred and (iii) where the amount to be withheld requires calculation of any recovery amount, a fixed recovery of zero per cent. applies. Such suspension of interest shall be effected although no Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date has actually occurred.

Investors should be aware that payment of any interest wrongly suspended will be repayable in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes and where insufficient interest has been suspended (the absolute value of such interest shortfall constituting the Interest Suspension Shortfall Amount), such Interest Suspension Shortfall Amount shall be claimed by the Issuer from any future amount(s) payable or assets Delivered upon the redemption or, where applicable, write down in full of the relevant Credit Linked Notes (whether at maturity or upon early redemption). The Issuer however shall have no further claims against any investors for any Interest Suspension Shortfall Amount which cannot be deducted in full or in part (on account of the relevant redemption amount being insufficient).

Interest (if applicable) shall continue to be suspended until the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee makes the relevant announcements or the Calculation Agent determines that no Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, can occur. In such circumstances, investors should note that they may not receive any interest for multiple Interest Periods.

Interest will otherwise continue to accrue as usual on (i) in respect of Credit Linked Notes (other than Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Tranch Credit Linked Notes) any remaining portion of the Credit Linked Note unaffected by the Relevant Credit Event or Relevant Risk Event, as applicable, and (ii) any non-contingent interest to and excluding the earlier to occur of any full redemption at Scheduled Maturity Date or any relevant early redemption. Where "Credit Payment on Maturity applies", additional interest shall accrue on the Credit Linked Notes in respect of the Credit Payment on Maturity Amount at the funding interest rate.

Exposure to Credit Events and successions prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date

The Credit Event Backstop Date represents the first day of the credit protection period for a Series of Credit Linked Notes. The default position under the Credit Linked Conditions is for the Credit Event Backstop Date to be determined on a rolling basis by reference to a look-back period of 60 calendar days from the Credit Event Resolution Request Date or the effective date of the Credit Event Notice, as applicable. Investors should accordingly note a Credit Event occurring prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date may result in a Credit Event being triggered under such Credit Linked Notes. Investors should also note that this will not be the case where the terms of the Credit Linked Notes expressly specify the Credit Event Backstop Date as the Trade Date or the Issue Date. Credit Linked Notes may also be exposed to Successor determinations in respect of events occurring prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date as, where "2014 Reference Entity" applies, the Credit Linked Notes have a similar backstop date (referred to as "Successor Backstop Date" where "2014 Reference Entity" applies and "Succession Event Backstop Date" where "2003 Reference Entity" applies), which is a look-back period of 90 calendar days prior to the date of a request to convene the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee (or, if applicable, the effective date of a notice to the investor describing the relevant succession) is applicable for the purposes of any Successor determination. In both cases, investors should note that a Credit Event or succession that occurred prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date could affect the relevant Credit Linked Notes. In respect of a Series of Credit Linked Notes to which "2014 Reference Entity" applies, where on or after 1 January 2014, an entity assumes all of the obligations (including at least one relevant obligation) of a Reference Entity which is not a sovereign, in circumstances where a Reference Entity has ceased to exist, or is in the process of being dissolved and has not issued or incurred any borrowed money obligation at any time since the legally effective date of the assumption (such entity, a "Universal Successor"), the look-back period of 90 calendar days will not apply.

Investors should conduct their own review of any recent developments with respect to any Reference Entity(ies) by consulting publicly available information. If, prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date, a request to convene a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to determine whether a Credit Event or Successor determination has occurred with respect to a Reference Entity has been made, details of such request may be found on the DC Secretary's webpage at <https://www.cdsdeterminationscommittees.org/> (or any successor website). If a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee has not been convened to determine such matter as of the Trade Date or Issue Date, investors should note that one may still be convened after the Trade Date or Issue Date in respect of an event which occurs up to 60 days (in the case of a Credit Event), 90 days (in the case of the determination of a Successor) or any time (in the case of the determination of a Universal Successor, where applicable) before the date of a request to convene such Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to make the relevant determinations. Equally, Credit Events and successions may occur but where issues are not raised within the requisite time period to the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to qualify for a Credit Event or a qualifying succession, the events will not impact the relevant Credit Linked Notes, subject to any further actions undertaken by the Calculation Agent (where applicable).

Successors

Investors should note that, from time to time, the Reference Entity may be subject to change following the determination of any successors to the Reference Entity, and the creditworthiness of such successors may have an impact on the value of, and return on, the Credit Linked Notes.

The Calculation Agent will be responsible for determining, as soon as reasonably practicable after it becomes aware of the relevant succession (but, where "2003 Reference Entity" applies, no earlier than 14 calendar days after the legally effective date of the relevant succession event), the sovereign or entity, if any, that qualifies as the successor. The Credit Linked Conditions provide that if a Reference Entity has more than one successor, the Calculation Agent shall amend the terms of the Credit Linked Notes, without consent of the investors, to reflect that the relevant Reference Entity has been succeeded by more than one successor and for the purposes of calculation, the affected notional representing such Reference Entity will be divided equally among the successors. Following such determination, the Credit Linked Notes shall remain outstanding in an amount equal to the Outstanding Aggregate Nominal Amount and interest will accrue on such amount in accordance with the adjustments determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion, acting in a commercially reasonable manner to reflect the economic effects of the identification of more than one successor, considered in the aggregate. Investors should note that the Credit Linked Note may reference substantially different credit risks following the determination of one or more successors. These credit risks could potentially be greater or lesser than the credit risk of the original Reference Entity. Investors should also be aware that the determination of a successor will not necessarily result in the assumption of that obligation by the successor either at all or in the same proportion as the allocation of the notional amount of the original Credit Linked Note. Such changes to the Credit Linked Notes could adversely impact the value of the Credit Linked Notes.

Volatile prices

The market price of Credit Linked Notes may be volatile and will be affected by, amongst other things, (i) the actual or perceived creditworthiness and credit ratings of each Reference Entity and any guarantors or other supporters of its relevant obligations, (ii) expected rates of recovery on obligations of the Reference Entity, (iii) actions of a Reference Entity and its principal creditors, (iv) the nature of each Reference Entity's outstanding indebtedness, including its maturity and subordination structure and any guarantees or other support that the Reference Entity has provided to other entities, (v) the contractually specified credit-related events with respect to a Reference Entity that may trigger settlement of the Credit Linked Notes, (vi) optionality that a party may have, such as the ability to select the obligations of a Reference Entity that will be delivered or valued or to decide whether or not to trigger settlement, (vii) correlation among the credit spreads and/or default probabilities of the components of a basket or index, if applicable, (viii) market liquidity, (ix) the time remaining to the maturity or (x) economic, financial, political and regulatory or judicial events or conditions that affect a Reference Entity or its outstanding obligations, or the market for Credit Linked Notes or related financial markets, including credit spreads in the market. Such volatility could impact on the market value of the Credit Linked Notes.

Market liquidity

Various factors may affect the market liquidity for the Credit Linked Notes. Future regulation of Credit Linked Notes could limit market liquidity. In respect of an Index Untranching Credit Linked Note or an Index Tranching Credit Linked Note, certain tenors of the relevant Index referenced by the relevant Credit Linked Note may be more liquid than others. The market liquidity of an Index Untranching Credit Linked Note or Index Tranching Credit Linked Note may also vary significantly between the current series of the relevant Index referenced by the relevant Credit Linked Note and prior series. The market liquidity of instruments based on a bespoke portfolio of Reference Entities will generally be less than that of instruments linked to standardised indices and terms. The market liquidity of a single-name Reference Entity may be affected by the Reference Entity's inclusion or exclusion from a standardised index, with exclusion from an index generally expected to result in diminished market liquidity.

In addition, Credit Linked Notes with terms that differ from trading conventions may have substantially less market liquidity and price transparency. Consequently, market liquidity could vary during the term of a Credit Linked Note and will affect the value of such Credit Linked Note. There is no assurance that the Issuer, Dealer, Calculation Agent or one or more of their affiliates will be able to provide prices with respect to the Credit Linked Notes or that a secondary market can develop with respect to the Credit Linked Notes.

The Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees may make announcements, determinations and resolutions which may have an adverse impact on the value of, and return on, Credit Linked Notes. The Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees make determinations that are relevant to the majority of the credit derivatives market and to promote transparency and consistency.

In making any determination with respect to a Credit Event, Risk Event or a succession date, the Calculation Agent may have regard to announcements, determinations and resolutions made by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees. In certain circumstances (including, without limitation, the determination of the occurrence of an "Event Determination Date"), the Credit Linked Notes will be subject to the announcements, determinations and resolutions of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees. Such announcements, determinations and resolutions could adversely impact the quantum and timing of payments of interest and principal on the Credit Linked Notes.

Investors have no role in respect of the composition of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees

Securityholders will have no role in the composition of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees. A separate criterion will apply to the selection of dealer and non-dealer institutions to serve on the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees ("DC Member"), and Securityholders will have no role in establishing such criteria. In addition, the composition of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees will change from time to time as the term of a member institution may expire or a member institution may be required to be replaced. Securityholders will have no control over the process for selecting institutions to participate on the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees given the process is governed by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees Rules (the "DC Rules"). To the extent provided for in the Credit Linked Notes, the determinations of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees (for example, whether or not a Credit Event has occurred) which will impact the return on the Credit Linked Notes will be final and binding with respect to specific matters set out in the terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes, where relevant.

Investors will not be notified of deliberations and resolutions of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees

Notices of issues submitted to the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees, meetings convened to deliberate such questions and the results of binding votes of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees will be published by the relevant CDS Information Publisher. Neither the Issuer, Dealer, Calculation Agent or one or more of their affiliates shall be obliged to inform investors of such updates as published from time to time. Investors should carefully monitor the matters under consideration by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees and their determinations as such determinations may affect an investor's rights under the Credit Linked Notes.

Notwithstanding that an investor may be unaware of information relating to determinations of a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee as published by the relevant CDS Information Publisher, this will not impact any redemptions, reductions in interest write-downs or determinations made by the Calculation Agent and/or Issuer.

Investors will have no recourse against any of the institutions serving (which could include the Issuer, the Dealer or the Calculation Agent) on the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees or the external reviewers

DC Members (which could include the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their affiliates) do not owe any duty to Securityholders to refer specific questions to the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees. Securityholders will be prevented from pursuing legal claims with respect to actions taken by such DC Member in its capacity as such under the DC Rules. DC Members have no duty to investigate, supplement or verify the accuracy of information on which a determination is based. In addition, the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees are not obligated to follow previous determinations or to apply principles of interpretation such as those that might guide a court in interpreting contractual provisions. Therefore, investors should be aware that a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee could reach a conflicting determination for a similar set of facts, which may impact the Credit Linked Notes in a manner that was not originally contemplated by investors.

Requirement for publicly available information

The Credit Linked Notes may specify that only publicly available information regarding a relevant event may be used to trigger or modify the transaction. The Credit Linked Conditions contain standards as to what constitutes publicly available information. If a Credit Event, Risk Event or a succession occurs, amongst other events, but the requisite public information about the event is not available within the applicable time periods, then the event will not take effect under the Credit Linked Notes.

Investors should note that in certain circumstances it may be difficult to verify the occurrences of certain Credit Events or Risk Events, as applicable, as a party in possession of such information which may evidence such Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, may be contractually prohibited from disclosing information to another party by virtue of any credit agreement or other agreement with the Reference Entity, any underlying obligor, any affiliate of the Reference Entity or of the underlying Obligor or such party may be bound by or subject to a confidentiality obligation or agreement whereby the required information for verification may not be capable of disclosure without breaching such confidentiality undertakings. Accordingly, there may be circumstances when a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, may not be capable of trigger under the Credit Linked Notes due to lack of publicly available information.

In addition, there can be no assurance that all events occurring prior to the Trade Date and Issue Date, including events that would affect the accuracy or completeness of the public filings of the Reference Entity or the value of the underliers, will have been publicly disclosed. Subsequent disclosure of any such events or the disclosure of or failure to disclose material future events concerning an issuer could adversely affect the value of the Credit Linked Notes, its usefulness for any investor's intended purpose, and the timing or amount of payments or deliveries.

Risks associated with Auction Redemption following a Credit Event

If "Auction Redemption" is applicable with respect to the Credit Linked Notes (other than Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes), then the amounts payable under the Credit Linked Notes will be determined on the basis of the final price determined pursuant to the auction procedure set out in the relevant Credit Derivatives Auction Settlement Terms (then available at <https://www.cdsdeterminationscommittees.org/> (or any successor website)). In respect of specified obligations of the relevant Reference Entity, provided that the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee determines that an applicable auction will be held, an auction final price determination date will occur. Credit losses determined pursuant to a market auction process may be greater or less than the losses which would have been determined in the absence of the auction. In particular, the auction process may be affected by technical factors or operational errors, which would not otherwise apply or may be the subject of actual or attempted manipulation. The administrator(s) specified in the auction settlement terms conduct auctions. Investors are subject to the risk that where a final price is determined in accordance with an auction, this may result in a lower recovery value than an obligation of the Reference Entity would have had if such final price had been determined pursuant to alternative methods. In addition, the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee may amend the form of auction settlement terms for a particular auction. The DC Rules provide for certain amendments by resolution of a convened Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee. Other amendments may be made subject to a public comment period; however, the DC Rules permit the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to forego a public comment period by supermajority action. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the Credit Derivatives Auction Settlement Terms for a particular auction will be on similar terms to the form of auction settlement terms or the terms of previous auctions.

Where the only relevant Credit Event is a restructuring, several concurrent but separate auctions may occur with respect to the Reference Entity and such Credit Event. The auction settlement amount may be based on the price of one or more obligations of the Reference Entity having a final maturity date different from the restructured obligation.

Although auctions can generally be expected to be held for Reference Entities that are widely traded in the credit markets, there can be no assurance that an auction will be held for future Credit Events or that, if held, the auction will result in the determination of an auction final price. If an auction is not held or fails to result in the determination of an auction final price (as might occur if an auction is cancelled by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee due, for example, to an inability to obtain the requisite number of initial bids) and if "Auction Redemption" is applicable with respect to the Credit Linked Notes, then the "Fallback Redemption Method" shall apply which, depending on the nature of the Credit Linked Notes being redeemed, may be cash redemption, or physical redemption. In such circumstances of cash redemption, the final price will be determined pursuant to the valuation method specified in the Credit Linked Notes.

Investors should carefully assess and understand the elections specified in relation to the relevant Credit Linked Notes and the circumstances and/or events as described above, which may affect the value of, and return on, such Credit Linked Notes.

Risks relating to physical redemption following a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable

Where "Physical Redemption" or "LA Physical Redemption" applies to Credit Linked Notes (other than Credit Linked Interest Notes), the Issuer must select obligations of the Reference Entity that satisfy specified criteria and deliver those obligations to the investor in an amount determined in accordance with the terms of the Credit Linked Notes. Investors should be aware that physical redemption may not be possible to accomplish under some circumstances, including where the Issuer is unable to procure the specified or selected deliverable obligation(s) due to market dislocations or prior redemptions or refinancings by the Reference Entity, failure to receive necessary transfer consents (such as from a borrower or agent) or delays in receiving such consents, or court orders prohibiting transfers of an obligation. In such event, the terms of the Credit Linked Notes may provide the Issuer with alternative methods of settlement or permit partial cash settlement subject to certain conditions or specify other fallback consequences which may include redemption by way of payment of a cash amount. Further, where "Physical Redemption" applies and if all or any part of the Physical Redemption Assets that would be required to be Delivered to a Securityholder is not a whole integral multiple of the smallest unit of transfer for any such Physical Redemption Assets at the relevant time of Delivery, as determined by the Calculation Agent, the Issuer will only Deliver the portion of the Physical Redemption Assets specified by the Issuer which is as large a size as possible but less than the full Physical Redemption Assets, after consideration of such smallest unit or units of transfer and application of rounding. The value of the undelivered obligations will be deemed to be zero and the Issuer's obligations to an investor in respect of such portion shall be fully and effectively discharged in such circumstances.

Investors should understand the terms of the obligation and applicable securities laws as these may restrict their ability to take delivery of Deliverable Obligations. Investors should also note that delivery expenses will be taken into account in determining the Outstanding Principal Balance or Due and Payable Amount of the relevant Deliverable Obligations to be Delivered.

Outstanding Principal Balance

If "2014 Reference Entity" applies, the outstanding principal balance of a deliverable obligation is determined by calculating (i) the amount of all principal payment obligations of a Reference Entity in respect of such obligation, minus (ii) any unwind costs, any delivery expenses, any interest suspension shortfall amounts and any portion of such principal payment obligations that are subject to a contingency (other than certain permitted contingencies) or prohibited action (the amount determined in sub-paragraph (i) above less any amounts subtracted in accordance with sub-paragraph (ii) above, being the "Non-Contingent Amount") and thereafter determining the lowest amount of the claim that could be validly asserted against a Reference Entity in respect of such Non-Contingent Amount if the obligation was redeemed or accelerated. If "2003 Reference Entity" applies, the outstanding principal balance of a deliverable obligation will be determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion, acting in a commercially reasonable manner, and will similarly deduct any unwind costs, any delivery expenses and any interest suspension shortfall amounts. Accordingly, if payments of principal are subject to a contingency, the outstanding principal balance could be less than the principal balance (and depending upon the type of contingency, could even be zero).

The quantum of the claim will be normally determined in accordance with any applicable law that reduce or discount the size of the claim to reflect the original issue price or accrued value of the obligation. Where the "2019 NTCE Supplement to the 2014 ISDA Credit Derivatives Definitions (July 15, 2019)" and "Fallback Discounting" both apply and if certain other conditions are met (being (a) the Outstanding Principal Balance of an obligation is not reduced or discounted in accordance with applicable law and (b) the issue price of a Bond or the amount advanced under a Loan is less than 95 per cent. of the principal redemption amount or principal repayment amount (as applicable), and in each case, there are no provisions relating to the accretion over time of the amount which would be payable on an early redemption or repayment of such Bond or Loan that are customary for such Bond or Loan, as applicable), the Outstanding Principal Balance would instead be the lesser of (i) the Non-Contingent Amount and (ii) an amount determined by straight line interpolation between (A) the issue price of the Bond or the amount advanced under the Loan and (B) the principal redemption amount or principal repayment amount, as applicable. In such circumstances, prospective investors should note that upon Delivery by the Issuer of impacted Deliverable Obligations or LA Settlement Assets, as applicable, the amount received by the investor would potentially be further reduced which could result in an anticipated par claim being treated as less than par.

Delivery of Loans

Where physical redemption applies and to the extent investors would be required to receive loans as deliverable obligations under a Credit Linked Note, investors should be familiar with the documentation and settlement practices of the relevant secondary loan trading markets and applicable laws and regulations (including the legal consequences of furnishing or receiving non-public information regarding a Reference Entity).

Provisions of the Reference Entity's credit agreements may affect a party's ability to deliver or receive loans, the economic consequences of doing so and whether loans meet deliverability criteria. Accordingly, investors should review such agreements carefully, including the provisions governing assignments, any collateral allocation mechanisms i.e., a mandatory exchange of obligations for other obligations under a credit agreement, not all of which may be deliverable and provisions that may require or entitle a lender to advance funds.

Payment/Delivery Failure Event – failure to deliver

Investors should note that a Payment/Delivery Failure Event will occur where certain relevant definitive Credit Linked Notes (other than Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes) and/or the Deliverable Obligation Notice are not delivered or there is a failure to duly execute, deliver and/or accept a transfer certificate or other transfer document on or before any Delivery Date and/or specify a date for transfer of the relevant Deliverable Obligation that is on or before any Delivery Date. In such case, investors should note that the obligations of the Issuer to procure Delivery of the Physical Redemption Assets and make any payment shall cease until such time, such event is cured whereupon deferred delivery shall apply or if "Fallback Cash Redemption" is specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms, fallback cash settlement shall apply. Investors will not be entitled to any payment, whether of interest or otherwise, in the event of such deferred delivery or payment.

Risks associated with Cash Redemption or LA Cash Redemption following a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable

If "Cash Redemption" or "LA Cash Redemption", as applicable, applies to the Credit Linked Notes (other than Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Trunched Credit Linked Notes), then following the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, the Calculation Agent will be required to seek quotations in respect of selected obligations of the Reference Entity in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes. Investors should be aware that such obligations may no longer exist and no qualifying substitute obligations may have been identified, such quotations may not be available, or the level of such quotations may be substantially reduced as a result of illiquidity in the relevant markets or as a result of factors other than the credit risk of the Reference Entity (for example, liquidity constraints affecting market dealers). Moreover, the market value of a Reference Entity's obligations may be highly volatile in the period following a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable. Accordingly, any quotations so obtained may be significantly lower than the value of the relevant obligation which would be determined by reference to (for example) the present value of related cash flows or the value that a party could obtain if it controlled the disposition of the obligations. Furthermore, the price of the selected obligations of the Reference Entity may be deemed to be zero in the event that no such quotations are available. Further, valuation of the selected obligations will be determined at a particular determination date and as such the recovery price which would be adopted in any loss amount or incurred loss amount that would be suffered by an investor following the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, will reflect the value of relevant obligations at a given date. As such, the exposure to loss suffered by an investor or any principal write-down may be more than that ultimately realised by a holder of debt obligations of the Reference Entity, whether by means of enforcement of rights following a default or receipt of distributions following an insolvency or otherwise.

Further, where quotations are sought on an asset package, such asset package may contain assets which are hard to value and for which a valuation methodology may not be readily available or suitable, which may reduce the value of quotations or the availability of quotations that may otherwise have been obtained. Accordingly, investors should note that any quotations so obtained may be significantly lower than the value of the relevant obligation (or asset package) which would be determined by reference to (for example) the present value of related cash flows or the value that a party could obtain if it controlled the disposition of the obligations.

Fixed Recovery Redemption or LA Fixed Recovery Redemption may be subject to a fixed recovery price

If "Fixed Recovery Redemption" or "LA Fixed Recovery Redemption" applies to Credit Linked Notes (other than Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Trunched Credit Linked Notes) and the Credit Event Redemption Amount of the Credit Linked Notes is calculated by reference to a fixed recovery price of the obligations of a Reference Entity(ies), the occurrence of a Credit Event or a Risk Event, as applicable, may result in the recovery being materially lower than the prevailing price of the relevant obligations of the relevant Reference Entity. Investors should note that redemption could occur with a Fixed Recovery Percentage set at zero per cent. where the Issue Terms specify accordingly.

In respect of Credit Linked Notes (other than Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Trunched Credit Linked Notes), if the Fixed Recovery Percentage is zero, following the occurrence of a Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, the occurrence of the Cash Redemption Date or the Final Cash Redemption Date, the LA Cash Redemption Date or Final LA Cash Redemption Date, as applicable, shall fully and effectively discharge the Issuer's obligation to redeem the relevant Credit Linked Notes in full. Investors should be aware that where the Fixed Recovery Percentage is zero, the loss amount in respect of the Affected Reference Entity will be 100 per cent. and, accordingly, no redemption amounts will be payable or assets deliverable to the Securityholders. Investors accordingly will bear the loss of their principal.

"Cheapest-to-Deliver" risk

Since the Issuer and/or Calculation Agent has discretion to choose the portfolio of obligations to be delivered or valued following a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, in respect of a Reference Entity, it is likely that the portfolio of obligations selected will be obligations of the Reference Entity with the lowest anticipated market value that are permitted to be selected pursuant to the terms of the Credit Linked Notes. This could result in a lower recovery value and hence greater losses for an investor. Obligations of differing maturities, currencies or payment priority (either contractual or under applicable insolvency law), among other characteristics, may diverge considerably in market value. Similar considerations apply where "Auction Redemption" applies given that the representative transaction that is priced in an auction generally allows a choice of deliverable obligations from a final list established by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee whereby participating bidders provide two way prices.

Payments of the Credit Linked Notes may be deferred or suspended

Investors should note that in certain circumstances, for example where (i) a Credit Event has occurred and the related credit loss, incurred loss amount or incurred recovery amount (in the case of Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes) has not been determined as at the relevant Scheduled Maturity Date or the Credit Event Redemption Date may occur after the Scheduled Maturity Date, (ii) where a potential Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, is determined to occur as at the scheduled maturity of the Credit Linked Notes (including Potential Failure to Pay if "Grace Period Extension" is specified as being applicable in the applicable Issue Terms or Potential Repudiation/Moratorium if "Repudiation/Moratorium" is specified as being applicable in the applicable Issue Terms), (iii) where a DC Credit Event Question has been submitted but the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee has not declared a DC Credit Event Announcement, announced a DC Credit Event Question Dismissal (or Resolved not to determine the matters set out in the CE Resolution Notice, as applicable), declared a DC No Credit Event Announcement or resolved whether or not to convene to resolve any issue or (iv) a Credit Event Notice or Risk Event Notice, as applicable, may be delivered after the Scheduled Maturity Date within an effective delivery period which may result in a Relevant Event Determination Date or a Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, occurring. In such circumstances, payment of the redemption amount of the Credit Linked Notes and/or interest on the Credit Linked Notes may be deferred for a material period in whole or part without compensation to an investor. In such circumstances, the Issuer is not obliged to take any action with respect to redemption in relation to the relevant Credit Linked Notes and no additional interest shall be payable to an investor in connection with such tolling or suspension of payments, including any final redemption amount. Once the relevant DC Credit Event Announcement or DC Credit Event Question Dismissal (or, where applicable, a Resolution not to determine the matters set out in the CE Resolution Notice) has occurred, the relevant timing requirements that pertain to settlement that have previously tolled or been suspended shall resume on the Business Day following such public announcement by the relevant CDS Information Publisher, with the Issuer having the benefit of the full day notwithstanding when the tolling or suspension began.

Payment/Delivery Failure Event – failure to pay

Investors should note that where it is impossible, impracticable or illegal for the Issuer to pay (due to an event beyond the control of the Issuer including, without limitation, a failure by the investor to provide account details of its designee) or for a Securityholder to accept payment of (due to an event beyond the control of such Securityholder), the obligation of the Issuer to pay any amount scheduled to be paid will be postponed until such time that the event no longer exists or is cured but where the event continues to exist on the Payment Failure Cut-Off Date, no such payment will be made by the Issuer and the Issuer's obligations to the investor will be deemed to be fully discharged as of that date. Any postponement or deemed discharge of payment will not constitute an Event of Default hereunder (as defined in General Condition 11(a) (Events of Default)) and will not entitle the relevant investors to any additional interest or other payment as a result thereof.

Determination of Event Determination Dates and Credit Event Redemption Dates post Scheduled Maturity Date

Investors should note that, depending on whether "2003 Reference Entity" or "2014 Reference Entity" applies, an Event Determination Date or Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, which would give rise to a redemption could occur as a result of notices being provided during the prescribed notice delivery period or post dismissal additional period which may occur after the Scheduled Maturity Date or, in some cases 14 calendar days after the date of the DC Credit Event Announcement as a result of requests submitted after the Scheduled Maturity Date by market participants to the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee for the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to be convened to deliberate an issue. The Scheduled Maturity Date of the Credit Linked Note may also be extended where the last relevant Credit Event Redemption Date, Final Physical Redemption Cut-Off Date with respect to physical redemption, the last Payment Failure Cut-Off Date or the RMB Currency Settlement Cut-Off Date occurs after the Scheduled Maturity Date (including any final Partial Cash Redemption Date or final Fallback Cash Redemption Date, as applicable). In each of these circumstances, the scheduled maturity date of the Credit Linked Notes will be extended and investors should note that the final redemption amounts, if any would be payable on a date later than the Scheduled Maturity Date and no additional interest shall be payable to an investor in connection with such tolling or suspension of payments, including any final redemption amount.

Adjustments and amendments

Investors should note that the Credit Linked Notes may be subject to amendments without consent of the investors, where an Event Determination Date is deemed either to have occurred on a date that is different from the date that was originally determined to be the Event Determination Date or not to have occurred. Certain DC resolutions may reverse prior DC resolutions or the occurrence of a Relevant Event Determination Date that has resulted in the identification of Successors, Substitute Reference Obligations or the occurrence of an Auction Final Price Determination Date, Physical Redemption Date, Valuation Date or Delivery Date, as applicable and depending on the circumstances, may have the effect of reversing the economic impact for the Credit Linked Notes. Investors should be aware that in these circumstances, the Calculation Agent in its sole and absolute discretion will determine the adjustment payment, if any, that is payable to investors, the date the adjustment payment is payable and no accruals of interest, if any, shall be taken into account when calculating any such adjustment payment and when making such adjustments, no further consent of the Securityholder shall be required.

Further, investors should note that the Calculation Agent may from time to time, without obtaining the consent of the Securityholders, amend provisions of the Credit Linked Conditions in any manner which the Calculation Agent determines (acting in a commercially reasonable manner) is necessary or desirable (i) to incorporate and/or reflect (a) further or alternative documents or protocols from time to time published by or on behalf of ISDA with respect to the documentation or redemption of Credit Linked Notes and/or (b) the operation or application of determinations by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees and/or (ii) to account for market practice to be reflected in the terms of the Credit Linked Notes. Any such amendment may affect the value of, and return on, the Credit Linked Notes.

Potential conflicts of interest

The Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent and one or more of their affiliates is a leading dealer in the credit derivatives market. If "Auction Redemption" is applicable under the Credit Linked Notes and an auction is held in respect of a Reference Entity for which a Credit Event has occurred, there is a high probability that the Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent or one of their affiliates would act as a participating bidder in any such auction. In such capacity, it may take certain actions which may influence the final price determined pursuant to the auction, including, without limitation, (i) submitting bids, offers and physical settlement requests (either on its or their own behalf or on behalf of customers) with respect to the relevant deliverable obligations and (ii) providing rates of conversion to determine the applicable currency conversion rates to be used to convert any obligations that are not denominated in the auction currency into such currency for the purposes of the auction. In deciding whether to take any such action, or whether to act as a participating bidder in any auction, the Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent or one or more of their affiliates (as applicable) shall be under no obligation to consider the interests of any investors and the effects of their participation may have a material adverse effect on the value of a Credit Linked Note.

The Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates may also be a voting member on one or more of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees responsible for determining the occurrence of Credit Events or Risk Events, as applicable, for the purposes of certain credit derivatives transactions and may take certain actions that may influence the process and outcome of decisions of the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees. Such entities may also have an inherent conflict of interest in the outcome of any such determinations. The actions taken by such entities may also be adverse to the interests of an investor and may result in an economic benefit accruing to the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates. In performing any duty under the DC Rules that govern the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees, the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates shall have no obligation however to consider the interests of an investor and may ignore any conflict of interests arising in respect of the Credit Linked Notes.

The Issuer, the Dealer and/or the Calculation Agent and/or the Determination Agent and/or their respective affiliates may also have an interest in data sources that publish credit indices and may participate, together with other dealers, in the process or advisory committees by which the index sponsor determines the composition of the Index CDS (as defined below) and makes certain other determinations with respect to the index, including the removal of Reference Entities or reference obligations from the Index CDS or to determine changes in the composition of indices. The Issuer, the Dealer and/or the Calculation Agent and/or the Determination Agent and/or their respective affiliates may also participate and vote in committees affecting the credit default swap industry generally. By virtue of such participation in each of the circumstances described above, the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates has no obligation to consider the interests of any investor in their actions and decisions and investors should note that the activities of the Issuer, the Dealer and/or the Calculation Agent and/or the Determination Agent and/or their respective affiliates as described herein may present a conflict between the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent, the Determination Agent and/or their respective affiliates' obligations and the interests of an investor under the Credit Linked Notes.

The Issuer, the Dealer, the Determination Agent or the Calculation Agent may have dealings and information in relation to Reference Entities

The Issuer, the Dealer, the Determination Agent and/or the Calculation Agent and/or their respective affiliates may, now or in the future, deal in obligations of the Reference Entities, make equity investments in a Reference Entity, engage in business with a Reference Entity, its affiliates and its competitors or any other person or entity having obligations relating to a Reference Entity, including making loans to, or otherwise extend credit to, and generally engage in any kind of commercial or investment banking or other business, including asset management or other advisory services, including merger and acquisition or bankruptcy-related advisory services. The Issuer, the Dealer, the Determination Agent, the Calculation Agent and/or their respective affiliates may also participate in loan restructurings or recapitalisations that may affect the Credit Linked Note and any reference obligations. In such circumstances, the Issuer, the Dealer, the Determination Agent and/or the Calculation Agent and/or their respective affiliates may act with respect to such dealings, business and advisory freely and without accountability to any investor in the same manner as if the Credit Linked Notes did not exist, and any such action might have an adverse effect on any investor (including, without limitation, any action that might give rise to a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable).

The Issuer, the Determination Agent and/or the Calculation Agent and/or their respective affiliates may be, whether by virtue of the types of relationships described above or otherwise, at any time, in possession of information in relation to any Reference Entity (or any obligations thereof) which is or may be material in the context of the Credit Linked Notes and which is or may not be known to the general public or Securityholders. The Credit Linked Notes do not create any obligation to disclose to Securityholders any such relationship or information (whether or not confidential), notwithstanding that any such relationship or information may have an adverse impact on the value of, and return on, the Credit Linked Notes.

The Credit Linked Notes do not represent an interest in obligations of Reference Entities

The Credit Linked Notes do not represent or convey any interest in any obligations of Reference Entities or any direct or indirect obligation of any Reference Entity to an investor. The Issuer is not an agent of any investor for any purpose and an investor will not have rights equivalent to those of a holder of debt obligations of a Reference Entity, such as voting rights or rights to receive consent fees or other distributions from a Reference Entity. For example, if a restructuring occurs with respect to a Reference Entity, the investor, unlike a holder of a Reference Entity's obligations, will have no right to challenge or participate in any element of the restructuring. If the Issuer is the owner of one or more obligations of a Reference Entity, it may exercise its voting or control rights or otherwise act in its capacity as holder of such obligations without regard to the interests of an investor, and such actions could adversely affect the Credit Linked Notes held by an investor. Consequently, the investor's purchase of the Credit Linked Notes may be riskier than a direct investment in the obligations of a Reference Entity. The purchase of a Credit Linked Note differs from an offering of new obligations by a Reference Entity in that none of the subscription moneys paid with respect to the Credit Linked Note will go to a Reference Entity. The Issuer in addition does not grant any security interest over any such obligations of the Reference Entity.

Operational risks and notices

The Credit Linked Notes may require that certain notices be given in order to exercise rights, realize value or protect and preserve interests under the Credit Linked Notes, including but not limited to notices to investors by the Issuer of the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, or that describes a succession together with supporting information, the choice of obligations to be delivered or valued, certain potential Credit Events or Risk Events, as applicable and the exercise of the right to utilize parallel auctions in the case of certain restructuring Credit Events and in the case of Physical Redemption, the provision of a Deliverable Obligation Notice by an investor.

Investors should have arrangements for delivering and receiving such notices and monitoring the actions of the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees, and be prepared to take the necessary or appropriate steps when it receives such notices or learn of such actions where an investor needs to take action pursuant to such notice. Failure to take the relevant steps or actions within the requisite time periods could adversely affect an investor's interests under a Credit Linked Note.

Investors should note that in some cases, determinations of a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee may substitute for a required notice, modify the effect of a previously delivered notice or alter the period during which a notice may be delivered which may impact on timings of notices provided by the Issuer.

Investors should further note that where any notice is required to be delivered by the Issuer to investors, such notices shall be deemed to have been delivered to investors upon delivery of such notice to the Fiscal Agent by the Issuer. The failure of the Fiscal Agent to deliver any such notice to Securityholders shall not affect however (i) the effectiveness of any notice delivered by the Calculation Agent to the Issuer and/or the Issuer to the Fiscal Agent (ii) the effectiveness of any determinations made by any of them or (iii) the right of the Issuer to redeem (whether in whole or in part) the Credit Linked Notes or to write down any aggregate principal notional of the Credit Linked Notes pursuant to and in accordance with the relevant Credit Linked Conditions.

Where the relevant notice is to be provided by the Issuer, the Calculation Agent or the Fiscal Agent, investors should note that a failure by any of such parties to deliver the relevant notices or any decision by any of them not to deliver a Credit Event Notice or Risk Event Notice to the investor shall not constitute an Event of Default under the relevant Credit Linked Notes.

Interpretation of terms

The terms of the Credit Linked Notes are subject to interpretation and further evolution. In some instances, the views of market participants may differ as to how the terms of specific credit provisions should be interpreted in the context of specific events, entities and obligations in comparison to that of a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee or Calculation Agent where applicable. Accordingly, the consequences resulting from the interpretation of various terms could vary in the context of the Credit Linked Notes and result in unexpected losses, redemption, write-down, reduction in interest and other economic impact for an investor.

Foreign exchange risks

Investors should note that in certain circumstances, a currency conversion may be required to effect certain determinations, calculations in relation to any payment or delivery obligation with respect to the Credit Linked Notes. Delivery of an underlying obligation denominated in a currency that is different from the settlement currency of the Credit Linked Notes will have effects similar to a currency conversion. Investors should note that with respect to any auction in connection with Auction Redemption, the relevant exchange rates to be applied with respect to the auction, where relevant will be set by the auction administrators prior to any auction final price determination date. In such circumstances, the Credit Linked Notes will have foreign exchange rate risk, which may have an adverse impact on the value of, and return on, the Credit Linked Notes.

Discretionary powers of the Calculation Agent

The determination by the Calculation Agent of any amount or of any state of affairs, circumstance, event or other matter, or the formation of any opinion or the exercise of any discretion required or permitted to be determined, formed or exercised by the Calculation Agent shall (in the absence of manifest error) be final and binding on the Issuer and any Securityholder. In performing its duties pursuant to the Credit Linked Notes and making any determinations expressed to be made by it, the Calculation Agent shall either act in its sole and absolute discretion or act in a commercially reasonable manner, depending on the election specified in the applicable Issue Terms. Where the Calculation Agent acts in its sole and absolute discretion, it is under no obligation to act in the interests of any investor, nor will it be liable to account for any profit or other benefit which may accrue to it as a result of such determinations. Any determinations made or actions taken by the Calculation Agent may have an adverse impact on the value of, and return on, the Notes.

Risks relating to Nth-to-Default Basket Credit Linked Notes

The likelihood of a Credit Event occurring with respect to the nth Reference Entity is affected significantly by the default correlation among the Reference Entities. Accordingly, the value of an Nth-to-Default Basket Credit Linked Note at any time will depend significantly on expectations about default correlation at that time, in addition to the valuation factors described above in the risk factor entitled "Volatile prices" related to Credit Linked Notes generally. Moreover, because of the difficulty of predicting the likelihood that a given number of Reference Entities will default, the value of an Nth-to-Default Basket Credit Linked Note is subject to "model risk" – i.e., the risk that the model used by a party will fail to accurately predict the likelihood that the applicable number of Reference Entities default, causing unpredictable outcomes to potentially result in significant losses for an investor. See "Risks relating to Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes, Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes and Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes" below.

Securityholders should carefully review the terms of an Nth-to-Default Basket Credit Linked Note relating to: (i) whether and how substitution of a Reference Entity occurs upon certain events such as the determination of a Successor resulting in repetition of a Reference Entity in the basket of Reference Entities; (ii) how events that result in two or more Successors are addressed; and (iii) the manner and order in which defaulting Reference Entities are counted. These terms, as well as the provisions relating to the designation of a Successor, may affect the correlation among the Reference Entities and the number and timing of defaults that are deemed to have occurred.

Risks relating to Linear Basket Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes

With respect to Linear Basket Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, investors should note that they could be exposed to significant losses which may result from changes in the market's perception of the credit quality of the underlying Reference Entities. The market's perception of the credit quality of the underlying Reference Entities may be highly volatile and may change very rapidly following the availability of new information. Investors should refer to the risk factors entitled "Credit risk of the Reference Entity", "Jurisdictional differences and assessment of Reference Entity", "Actions of Reference Entities", "Historical performance may not predict future performance", and "Concentrated credit risk where Reference Entities are concentrated in the same sectors or regions". Investors should carefully review the list of Reference Entities that constitute the Linear Basket Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, and evaluate whether such exposure meets its stated objectives and is representative of the market to which exposure is required.

Investors should note that an investment in relation to a bespoke portfolio of Reference Entities may have significantly less liquidity than there is for an investment in an Index Untranching Credit Linked Note which is based on a standardised Index CDS and accordingly there may be no, or a limited, secondary market in such Credit Linked Notes.

Risks relating to Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes, Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes and Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes

Investors could be exposed to significant losses which may result from changes in the market's perception of the credit quality of the underlying Reference Entities within the relevant index. The Reference Entities included in an Index CDS will typically have certain specified characteristics in common, such as type of obligor (e.g., corporate, municipal or sovereign); geographic region (e.g., North America, Europe, Asia or emerging markets); and/or credit rating category (e.g., investment grade or high yield). These characteristics may be relevant to the probability of a Credit Event occurring under the Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes or Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, as Credit Events may be more likely for Reference Entities with certain of these characteristics than for others. The market's perception of the credit quality of the underlying Reference Entities may be highly volatile and may change very rapidly following the availability of new information. The market for Index CDSs has been subject to significant distortions from time to time in the past as a result of the actions of one or a small number of market participants that may take large positions in an Index CDS. These distortions have in the past led, and may in the future lead, to a high degree of volatility, as well as a wide and potentially unsustainable divergence between the market price of Index CDSs and the price that would be expected based on the market price of credit default swaps on the underlying Reference Entities. The Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates' trading activities may represent a significant portion of the market for particular Index CDS and, the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates may be a contributor to such volatility and distortions. Accordingly, investors should note that they could be exposed to the volatility with respect to the Index CDS which could have an impact on the market value of the Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes or Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, over time.

Given that the risks of an Index CDS will vary depending on the characteristics of the underlying Reference Entities, investors should carefully review the list of Reference Entities that constitute the Index CDS referenced in the applicable Issue Terms and evaluate whether such exposure meets its stated objectives and is representative of the market to which exposure is required. In addition, investors should understand that the Reference Entities in an index of investment grade Reference Entities may be investment grade rated only at inception of the index or relevant series of the index, and that such Reference Entities may be downgraded thereafter.

Investors should also note that there is no guarantee that there will be a liquid market for any particular Index CDS. An index sponsor may publish a new series of an underlying index from time to time (for example, every six months). Market liquidity is often concentrated in the most recent series and may decline for a given Index CDS when a new series of the index is published.

Investors should note that the index sponsor may calculate the published spread or price for an Index CDS based on a poll of dealers. The Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their affiliates may be one of the dealers polled by the index sponsor and, if so, the actions of the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates in such circumstances could affect the published spread or price. In addition, the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates may participate, together with other dealers, in the process or advisory committees by which the index sponsor determines the composition of the Index CDS and makes certain other determinations with respect to the index, including the removal of Reference Entities or reference obligations from the Index CDS. In taking any such actions, the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates has no obligation to consider the interests of any investor under the Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes or Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, as applicable. Investors should therefore be aware that any such action by the Issuer, the Dealer, the Calculation Agent or one or more of their respective affiliates could affect the Index CDS and therefore also adversely affect the market value of the Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes or Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, as applicable. See also "Potential conflicts of interest" above.

Unless stated otherwise in the applicable Issue Terms, a Merger Event will not apply to any Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes or Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes and therefore such Credit Linked Notes will not early redeem where a Reference Entity becomes an affiliate of the protection seller or one such entity merges with or makes a substantial asset transfer to the other.

In addition, investors are exposed to losses arising from Credit Events in relation to Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes only to the extent that aggregate losses exceed the "attachment point" but remain less than the "detachment point" of the tranche. The likelihood that an investor will be exposed to losses is therefore greater for more subordinated tranches (i.e. those with a lower attachment point in relation to portfolio size).

In addition, Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes, as applicable (other than the most senior tranches) are leveraged instruments because investors may incur losses on an accelerated basis relative to aggregate losses on the portfolio. Investors will not owe any payment for losses unless and until aggregate losses on the portfolio exceed the attachment point, but investors will be exposed to losses equal to the entire notional amount of the Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes (as applicable) if aggregate losses on the portfolio reach the detachment point. Therefore, the smaller the tranche size relative to the implied notional amount of the entire portfolio, the greater the degree of leverage. For any given portfolio of Reference Entities, the lower the attachment point and the greater the leverage, the greater the risk for the investor where acting as though it were a protection seller. However, this does not mean that the most senior tranches present low risks for protection sellers.

The value of such Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, will be influenced by the valuation factors described above in the risk factor entitled "Volatile prices" described above but in addition, the value of such Credit Linked Note will be influenced by expectations about "default correlation," among other model-dependent factors. Default correlation refers to the likelihood of any given number of Reference Entities experiencing a Credit Event over any given time period. Changes in default correlation affect tranches of different seniority differently. In general, from the perspective of an investor acting as though it were a protection seller, holding all other factors constant: (i) a decrease in default correlation will decrease the value of the most junior tranche (i.e., the tranche with the lowest attachment point), because it will represent an increase in the expected probability of losses on that tranche; (ii) an increase in default correlation will decrease the value of the most senior tranche (i.e., the tranche with the highest attachment point), because it will represent an increase in the expected probability of losses on that tranche; and (iii) any increase or decrease in default correlation may either increase or decrease the value of mezzanine tranches (i.e., tranches between the most junior and most senior tranches), depending on a complex interplay of various factors.

The degree of default correlation among the Reference Entities in a given portfolio may be influenced by numerous factors, including whether the Reference Entities operate in similar industries or geographic regions and whether the Reference Entities have similar levels of leverage (i.e., debt relative to equity). Default correlation tends to increase during economic downturns and decrease during periods of economic growth. Accordingly, although the most senior tranches are generally less risky to a protection seller than the most junior tranches, in certain circumstances (including during an economic downturn), the most senior tranches will tend to lose value from the perspective of the protection seller at a faster rate than the most junior tranches. In circumstances where Reference Entities in a portfolio are widely affected, a protection seller under a senior tranche may incur losses equal to the entire notional amount, in which case the senior tranche will prove to have been no less risky than junior tranches. Default correlation may change significantly, and in some cases abruptly, with changes in market conditions.

Default correlation is difficult to estimate, and different market participants may calculate it in different ways and may change the ways in which they calculate it over time which may be adverse to an investor in an Index Tranching Credit Linked Note or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Note, as applicable. Accordingly, the valuation of such Credit Linked Notes is subject to "model risk" (i.e., the risk that a valuation model does not accurately depict the value of a tranche or the relationship between tranche values) which may result in significant losses where certain strategies based on modelled relations between the values of tranches break down.

The terms and conditions of the Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, may provide for changes in the constituents of the index or portfolio of Reference Entities, as applicable, upon the occurrence of certain events, such as the determination of a Successor. These changes may affect the level of default correlation among the Reference Entities in the portfolio and, therefore, the value of such Credit Linked Notes.

Investors should note that an investment in relation to Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Note which is based on a bespoke portfolio of Reference Entity may have significantly less liquidity than there is for an investment in an Index Tranching Credit Linked Note which references a standardised Index CDS.

RISK FACTORS

Accordingly, the valuation of the Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Note which is more bespoke may be more complex and introduces greater model risk than the Index Tranching Credit Linked Note.

Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes – adjustments

Investors should further note that in the case of an Index Untranching Credit Linked Note, if a DC Credit Event Announcement occurs in respect of an M(M)R Restructuring with respect to a component Reference Entity of the relevant Index, such Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes will be amended without the consent of the Securityholders to reflect the creation of a "New Single Name Credit Linked Note" having economic terms as closely as possible preserving the economic equivalent of the relevant Credit Linked Notes immediately before the DC Credit Event Announcement which may be redeemed following exercise in accordance with the terms of the Index Untranching Credit Linked Notes. Any such amendment may adversely affect investors.

Risks relating to Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes

Local access risks

Credit Linked Notes may reference the Reference Investor Assets of either a single Reference Entity, in the case of Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes, or two or more Reference Entities, in the case of Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, incorporated in or from a local access jurisdiction. An investment in such Credit Linked Notes involves risks associated with such jurisdictions, including potential risks of volatility, governmental intervention and the lack of a developed system of law.

Investors should note that it is a general feature of local access jurisdictions that they may be subject to rapid change and the risks involved may also change relatively quickly. With respect to any local access nation, there is the possibility of nationalisation, expropriation or confiscation, political changes, government regulation, social instability or other developments (including war) which could affect adversely the economies of such nations and/or the foreign exchange rates. Political or economic instability may affect investor confidence, which could in turn have a negative impact on the value of the Reference Investor Assets of the local access Reference Entity or its creditworthiness and on foreign exchange markets.

Conditions in local access countries are associated with higher risks of the occurrence of a Risk Event, which may occur together with circumstances that would restrict the deliverability of any Reference Asset, or which may result in especially adverse pricing and liquidity conditions in which a market value for such Reference Asset is to be determined.

Local access debt typically comprises debt issued by non-highly rated issuers in respect of whom the possibility of default is greater than investment grade issuers. Local access considerations, in addition to and in combination with other conditions affecting the creditworthiness of a Reference Entity (including those resulting in a local access Reference Entity experiencing financial or economic difficulties), may significantly affect (i) the value of, and (ii) any amounts paid on, its Obligation(s) and/or any Reference Obligation(s) and/or any Deliverable Obligation(s) and/or Reference Asset(s) (if any), each or all of which may be reduced to zero.

Local access debt may be difficult to buy and/or sell, particularly during adverse market conditions, and prices may be more volatile. In addition, settlement of trades in emerging or developing countries may be slower and more likely to be subject to failure than in more developed markets. This will affect the ability of the Issuer or the Calculation Agent (as the case may be) to obtain prices for the Obligation(s) of the Reference Entity or any Reference Obligation(s) or any Deliverable Obligation(s) or any Reference Asset(s) (if any).

Risk Events

Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes may be redeemed pursuant to the occurrence of any Credit Event or an Additional Risk Event (together, the "Risk Events") in respect of one or more Reference Entities and, in either case, unless the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes are fixed recovery, on the value of certain specified assets of any such Reference Entities or where, if any of such events has occurred, on settlement the Issuer's obligation is to deliver certain specified assets. Any such settlement will be reduced to take into account any Unwind Costs and so will depend upon the level of such Unwind Costs.

Additional Risk Events are indicative of defaults or risks specific to certain local access jurisdictions and will apply to Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes to the extent that such events apply in the applicable Issue Terms. Prospective investors should note that not all possible Additional Risk Events are related directly to default or credit risk in respect of a Reference Entity or default in respect of the Reference Investor Assets and such Additional Risk Events may include, without limitation, the occurrence of one or more of the following:

- (a) an Inconvertibility Event – the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of any event or condition that has the effect of it being impossible, illegal or impracticable for, or of prohibiting, restricting or materially delaying the ability of, any Reference Investor (i) to convert currency; or (ii) to effect currency transactions on terms as favourable as those available to residents of the Reference Jurisdiction; or (iii) to freely and unconditionally transfer or repatriate any funds from accounts inside the Reference Jurisdiction to accounts outside the Reference Jurisdiction or between accounts inside the Reference Jurisdiction; or (iv) to receive the full value of any cash payment made under the Reference Investor Assets due to the introduction after the Additional Risk Event Start Date by any Governmental Authority of a new currency regime (including the introduction of a dual currency regime) or the imposition of currency exchange limitations;
- (b) an Ownership Restriction Event – the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of any event or existence of any condition that has the effect of it being illegal, impossible or impracticable for, or has the effect of prohibiting, restricting or materially delaying the ability of, any Reference Investor to purchase, hold, receive, sell, freely transfer or remain the owner of any Reference Investor Asset or any amount received in respect thereof;
- (c) a Settlement/Custodial Event – (i) the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of the bankruptcy of any Custodian or (ii) in respect of the Reference Investor Assets owned by a Reference Investor or any amount received in respect thereof, a Custodian (A) fails to perform in a timely manner any or all of its obligations owed under any Reference Custodial/Settlement Arrangement, or (B) fails to take any action when instructed to do so by a Reference Investor, or (C) takes any action which is contrary to the terms of any Reference Custodial/Settlement Arrangement; in each case that affects or may affect, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the hedging arrangements of the Issuer and/or any of its Affiliates in respect of the Issuer's obligations with respect to the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Note(s) or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Note(s);
- (d) a Reference Assets Liquidation Value Trigger Event – in respect of Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes only, the delivery after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of a notification from the Calculation Agent (acting in its sole and absolute discretion) to the Issuer that it has determined that the weighted average of the Reference Assets Liquidation Value of the Reference Assets of each Reference Entity then comprising the Reference Registry is equal to or less than the Reference Assets Trigger Level of the aggregate Settlement Currency Principal Amount of all Reference Assets;
- (e) a Non-Viability Trigger Event – the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of such event as defined under and occurring pursuant to the terms of the Reference Assets Conditions relating to the relevant Reference Asset (including (i) any relevant authority having decided that without a conversion or write-off with respect to the Reference Entity, the Reference Entity would become non-viable; (ii) any relevant authority having decided that a public sector injection of capital or equivalent support is necessary with respect to the Reference Entity, without which the Reference Entity would become non-viable; (iii) any relevant capital adequacy ratio with respect to the Reference Entity falling below the relevant percentage and/or threshold prescribed in the Reference Assets Conditions and/or (iv) any other events (however described) which are similar in nature to the events described in (i) to (iii)), provided that the Calculation Agent may determine any such event under and occurring pursuant to the terms of the Reference Assets Conditions relating to such Reference Assets and/or the Reference Entity constitutes a Non-Viability Trigger Event;

- (f) a Market Value Trigger Event – the delivery after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of a notification from the Calculation Agent (acting in its sole and absolute discretion) to the Issuer that it has determined that on any Business Day the Fair Market Value of the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, is equal to, or less than, the Market Value Trigger Level of the Outstanding Aggregate Nominal Amount of such Credit Linked Notes on such date;
- (g) a Reference Assets Restructuring Event – the cancellation, reduction, suspension or deferral (in whole or in part) after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of any interest, dividend or any other form of distribution in respect of the Reference Assets underlying the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, on the due date for payment thereof (whether under the Reference Assets Conditions or otherwise) or, in respect of such Reference Assets, a reduction in its rate of interest, dividend or distribution from the rate of interest, dividend or distribution applicable to such Reference Assets on the Issue Date, in each case for any reason whatsoever; and
- (h) any other Additional Risk Event specified as such in the applicable Issue Terms.

The loss incurred by an investor may be unrelated to or disproportionate in comparison with the Additional Risk Event itself. Moreover, the Calculation Agent may designate an Additional Risk Event, which could cause such losses to be incurred by an investor, if the Additional Risk Event occurs at any time during the term of the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, whether or not the Additional Risk Event is ongoing or effective or has been remedied or cured at the time such designation has been made.

Risks relating to Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Linear Basket Credit Linked Notes which are also Zero Coupon Notes

If an Event Determination Date occurs, in determining the Credit Event Redemption Amount, the Auction Final Price or Final Price, as applicable, will be multiplied by (i) (a) the Applicable Proportion or (b) if "Premium Accreted Amount" is specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms, the sum of the Applicable Proportion and the Premium Accreted Amount and (iii) the Zero Coupon Percentage, prior to the deduction of any Unwind Costs. The Zero Coupon Percentage is the percentage specified in the applicable Issue Terms and, unless a different amount is so specified, will be a percentage equal to the Issue Price of the Notes. Where the Notes are issued at a discount to their Original Aggregate Nominal Amount or the Zero Coupon Percentage is specified to be a percentage less than 100 per cent., the Auction Redemption Amount or Cash Redemption Amount, as applicable, will be determined by reference to an amount less than the Outstanding Aggregate Nominal Amount of the Notes and will therefore be less than the amount which would be determined in relation to a Credit Linked Note which is not a Zero Coupon Note.

In addition, if an Event Determination Date occurs, whether any amount in respect of premium is payable shall depend on whether "Premium Accreted Amount" is specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms. Where "Premium Accreted Amount" applies, an amount equal to the sum of the Applicable Percentage for the relevant Notes and the Premium Accreted Amount (the "Total Accreted Amount") will be used to determine the Auction Redemption Amount or Cash Redemption Amount, as applicable. Where the Auction Final Price or Final Price, as applicable is multiplied by the Total Accreted Amount, then an amount will be paid to Securityholders with respect to the Premium Accreted Amount which, unless the Auction Final Price or Final Price, as applicable, is equal to 100 per cent., will be less than the amount of interest which would be determined in relation to a Credit Linked Note which is not a Zero Coupon Note but which has an interest rate equal to the Amortisation Yield.

Where the Notes are issued at par and the Zero Coupon Percentage is specified to be a percentage greater than 100 per cent., the Auction Redemption Amount or Cash Redemption Amount, as applicable, will be determined by reference to an amount greater than the Outstanding Aggregate Nominal Amount of the Notes and will therefore be greater than the amount which would be determined in relation to a Credit Linked Note which is not a Zero Coupon Note. The Auction Redemption Amount or Cash Redemption Amount will therefore include an amount in respect of premium which might be more or less than the amount of interest which would have been payable in relation to a Credit Linked Note which is not a Zero Coupon Note but which has an interest rate equal to the Amortisation Yield.

Exposure to Reference Asset

In respect of Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes for which Reference Assets Only Settlement is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, following a Risk Event, the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes will be redeemed by valuation or delivery (as applicable) of the Reference Asset in respect of a Reference Entity (rather than obligations of the relevant Reference Entity generally). It follows therefore that returns on such Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes may be adversely affected by circumstances affecting the Reference Asset even where other obligations of the Reference Entity are not affected. The creditworthiness or market value of the relevant Reference Asset may be less favourable than other obligations of the relevant Reference Entity due to liquidity, marketability, circumstances of origination, legal or validity risks, local access risks described below, or one or more other characteristics. Investors in the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes should understand that their recovery in relation to the relevant Reference Asset may be substantially less than for more generally representative obligations of the relevant Reference Entity.

Currency Risks

Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes may be payable in a currency different from the currency in which a Reference Asset is payable and may have economic features equivalent to a currency derivative in which the cash flows on such Reference Asset are exchanged for the specified cash flows payable on the Notes.

Investors may therefore be exposed to fluctuations in the relevant exchange rate where ongoing calculations under the Notes include a currency exchange rate or due to Unwind Costs which may be deducted on certain redemptions of the Notes (for example following a Risk Event) and which may include one or more components linked to the currency of the Notes and/or a Reference Asset and/or the costs of termination or replacement of any such embedded currency derivative and may be substantially affected by changes in the relative value of such currencies.

Exchange rates can be volatile and unpredictable. Investors should be aware of the possibility of significant changes in rates of exchange between the currency of the Notes and the currency of a Reference Asset. The value of the Notes on any date may be substantially less than would otherwise be the case if a currency exchange rate is included in ongoing calculations under the Notes and the currency in which a Reference Asset is payable depreciates in value relative to the currency in which the Notes are payable or, if the Notes reflect an embedded currency derivative and the currency in which a Reference Asset is payable appreciates in value relative to the currency in which the Notes are payable (due to the potential deduction of Unwind Costs, which may be substantial, if the Notes are redeemed).

Prospective investors should in particular be aware that, due to exchange rate fluctuations as well as the other risks set out herein and depending upon the terms of the Notes:

- (a) the market price of the Notes may be very volatile;
- (b) payment of principal or interest may occur at a different time or in a different currency than expected;
- (c) they may lose all or a substantial portion of their principal and/or interest payments;
- (d) the relevant currencies may be subject to significant fluctuations that may not correlate with changes in interest rates, currencies or other indices; and
- (e) the timing of changes in a relevant currency may affect the actual yield to investors, even if the average level is consistent with their expectations.

In general, the earlier the change in the relevant currency, the greater the effect on yield will be.

Adjustment following a Regulatory Change Event

Where "2014 Reference Entity" applies and the Calculation Agent determines that a Regulatory Change Event has occurred or exists then any payment or delivery to an investor shall be reduced by an amount equal in value to the allocable proportion of the Regulatory Change Cost, as determined by the Calculation Agent in its sole discretion. Investors may therefore receive back less than their initial investment or, in the case of redemption following the occurrence of a Relevant Risk Event, losses may be greater than if the investor were to hold obligations of the Reference Entity directly.

Adjustment in respect of an Interest Tax Deduction Amount or Principal Tax Deduction Amount

If (i) "2014 Reference Entity" and (ii) "Tax Deduction Event – Principal" and "Tax Deduction Event – Interest" are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and the Calculation Agent determines that there would be an Interest Tax Deduction Amount and/or a Principal Tax Deduction Amount in respect of amounts that would be received by a Reference Investor in respect of the Reference Investor Assets, then any relevant payment of interest or principal (as applicable) or amount of LA Settlement Assets to be delivered to Securityholders shall be reduced by an amount (in aggregate as applicable) equal in value to the allocable proportion of the Interest Tax Deduction Amount or Principal Tax Deduction Amount, as applicable, as determined by the Calculation Agent. Investors may therefore receive less than their initial investment or, in the case of redemption following a Risk Event, losses may be greater than if the investor were to hold obligations of the Reference Entity directly.

RISKS SPECIFIC TO INDEX SKEW NOTES

The Index Skew Notes are linked, through a Hypothetical Skew Transaction constituting a combination of (i) an index linked credit derivative transaction ("Index CDS") and (ii) individual credit default swaps on the Reference Entities included in the index underlying the Index CDS (the "component CDSs"). Where the Issuer is the protection seller under the Index CDS it is the protection buyer under the component CDSs, and vice versa. The value of the combined positions reflects the difference (the "skew") between the value of the Index CDS and the aggregate value of its component CDSs. Although each constituent of the Hypothetical Skew Transaction is intended to give rise to an equal and opposite payment obligation on each Fixed Rate Payer Payment Date, Auction Settlement Date or Cash Settlement Date (as applicable), no actual payments will be due from the Issuer to the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty or vice versa due to the application of payment netting.

The value of an Index CDS may differ from the aggregate value of its component CDSs for several reasons, including (a) differences in liquidity and other characteristics in the markets for the Index CDS and the component CDSs; (b) differences in relevant terms of the Index CDS and its component CDSs; (c) factors that affect the activities of arbitrageurs; and (d) changes in the default correlation among the Reference Entities included in the Index CDS.

As the notional of the Hypothetical Skew Transactions may be far greater than the principal amount issued under the Index Skew Notes, the value of the Index Skew Notes may be very volatile and any Index Skew Early Redemption Amount will be linked to, among other things, the difference between the pricing of credit protection on the relevant index and the market levels of the constituent single name Reference Entities that comprise the relevant index.

Liquidity differences may make a greater contribution to skew during periods of heightened volatility, as the value of the more liquid instrument(s) may change more quickly than the value of the less liquid instrument(s). Furthermore, during periods when transaction costs (such as funding costs and bid-ask spreads) to market participants increase, skew may become greater, as the increased transaction costs may reduce the activities of arbitrageurs (i.e. market participants that seek to profit from the skew and, in the process, tend to reduce it).

Although the payments under a Hypothetical Skew Transaction is intended to be equal to zero due to the application of payment netting as described above, if the Index Skew Notes were to be redeemed early (including pursuant to an Early Termination Event such as a Section 871(m) Event or a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event or (if applicable) following an Issuer Call which may be exercised at the Issuer's discretion), a termination payment would be determined in respect of each constituent transaction within the relevant Hypothetical Skew Transactions and the aggregate of such termination payments may result in an amount being payable by the Issuer to the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty or by the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty to the Issuer which could result in the Early Redemption Amount or Optional Redemption Amount (as the case may be) due to Securityholders being reduced further if the Issuer is required to make a payment to the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty for such termination payment or if the Issuer is subject to further Unwind Costs.

In addition, prospective investors in the Index Skew Notes should be aware that no notifications shall be given by the Issuer or any other party to Securityholders following the occurrence of a Credit Event. To the extent that the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee determines that a Credit Event has occurred in respect of a particular entity, information will be published on the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees website at <https://www.cdsdeterminationscommittees.org/> (or any successor website).

SECTION C – INVESTMENT CONSIDERATIONS

General

An investment in Securities involves risks (as further described in Section B above and the paragraphs below) and should only be made after assessing the direction, timing and magnitude of potential future market changes (e.g. in the value of the security indices, inflation indices, commodity indices, commodities, shares, depositary receipts, exchange traded funds, mutual funds, currencies, bespoke or proprietary indices, dividend futures contracts, interest rates, preference shares, bonds, debt securities or other items which comprise or relate to the Underlying(s)), as well as the terms and conditions of the Securities.

Before investing in any Securities you should determine whether an investment in such Securities is appropriate in your particular circumstances and should consult with your legal, business and tax advisers to determine the consequences of an investment in such Securities and to arrive at your own evaluation of the investment. In particular, the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor recommend that you take independent tax advice before committing to purchase any Securities. None of the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor provides tax advice and therefore responsibility for any tax implications of investing in any Securities rests entirely with you. You should note that the tax treatment will differ from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. You will assume and be solely responsible for any and all taxes of any jurisdiction or governmental or regulatory authority, including (without limitation) any state or local taxes or other similar assessment or charge that may be applicable to any payment in respect of the Securities.

An investment in Securities is only suitable for you if you:

- (a) have the requisite knowledge and experience in financial and business matters to evaluate the merits and risks of an investment in Securities;
- (b) have access to, and knowledge of, appropriate analytical tools to evaluate such merits and risks in the context of your financial situation;
- (c) are capable of bearing the economic risk of an investment in Securities for an indefinite period of time; and
- (d) recognise that it may not be possible to dispose of Securities for a substantial period of time, if at all.

You should make your own independent decision to invest in Securities and as to whether the investment in the Securities is appropriate or proper for you based upon your own judgement and upon advice from such advisers as you may deem necessary. You should not rely on any communication (written or oral) of the Issuer, and (if applicable) the Guarantor, any Dealer or any of their affiliates or their respective officers or agents as investment advice or as a recommendation to invest in Securities, it being understood that information and explanations related to Securities shall not be considered to be investment advice or a recommendation to invest in Securities. No communication (written or oral) received from the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor, any Dealer or any of their affiliates or their respective officers or agents shall be deemed to be an assurance or guarantee as to the expected results of an investment in Securities.

Hedging arrangements in respect of the Securities

Any Issuer, and/or the CGMHI Guarantor and/or the CGMFL Guarantor and/or any of their affiliates may enter into arrangements to hedge the Issuer's and/or, the CGMHI Guarantor's and/or the CGMFL Guarantor's obligations under an issue of Securities and/or the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee and/or the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee and/or the CGMFL WEC Deed of Guarantee but are not required to do so. If they do so, any Issuer and/or the CGMHI Guarantor and/or the CGMFL Guarantor and/or any such affiliate will have certain rights under such hedging arrangements and may pursue actions and take steps that they deem appropriate to protect their own interests under such hedging arrangements without regard to the consequences for Securityholders. You will not have recourse to the applicable counterparty under any such hedging arrangements and any such hedging arrangements will not confer any rights or entitlements on any Securityholders and will constitute separate obligations of the Issuer and/or the CGMHI Guarantor and/or the CGMFL Guarantor and/or any such affiliate. In addition in relation to Credit Linked Notes or Index Skew Notes, such hedging arrangements may give rise to Unwind Costs and amounts payable to Securityholders may accordingly be reduced by each Securityholder's pro rata share of such Unwind Costs.

If you intend to purchase Securities to hedge against the market risk associated with investing in the particular Underlying(s), you should recognise the complexities of utilising Securities in this manner. For example, the value of the relevant Securities may not exactly correlate with the value of the relevant Underlying(s). Due to fluctuating supply and demand for Securities, there is no assurance that their value will correlate with movements of the Underlying(s). For these reasons, among others, it may not be possible to purchase or liquidate securities in a portfolio at the prices used to calculate the value of any relevant Underlying, and you may suffer a loss accordingly.

Leveraging

Borrowing to fund the purchase of the Securities (leveraging) can have a significant negative impact on the value of and return on the investment. If you consider leveraging an issue of Securities, you should obtain further detailed information as to the applicable risks from the leverage provider.

Credit ratings may not reflect all risks of an investment in Securities

One or more independent credit rating agencies may assign credit ratings to securities issued under the Programme, including any Securities. The credit rating agencies may have different rating methodologies, criteria, models and requirements from one another. The ratings may not reflect the potential impact of all risks related to structure, market and other factors that may affect the value of the relevant Securities. A credit rating is not a recommendation to buy, sell or hold securities and may be reduced, withdrawn or qualified by the rating agency at any time. If the ratings on any Securities are reduced, withdrawn or qualified, it could adversely affect the liquidity or the market value of such Securities.

Additionally, the global landscape of financial sector regulation itself is undergoing significant change. In the U.S., the Dodd-Frank Act, among other things, expands regulatory oversight of Citigroup Inc. (and its subsidiaries) and credit rating agencies. It is not clear how this expanded regulatory oversight will impact the ratings on the Securities or the rating of the Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and/or the CGMFL Guarantor.

In general, European regulated investors are restricted under the EU CRA Regulation from using credit ratings for regulatory purposes, unless such ratings are issued by a credit rating agency established in the EU and registered under the EU CRA Regulation (and such registration has not been withdrawn or suspended, subject to transitional provisions that apply in certain circumstances). Such general restriction will also apply in the case of credit ratings issued by non-EU credit rating agencies, unless the relevant credit ratings are endorsed by an EU-registered credit rating agency or the relevant non-EU rating agency is certified in accordance with the EU CRA Regulation (and such endorsement action or certification, as the case may be, has not been withdrawn or suspended, subject to transitional provisions that apply in certain circumstances). If the status of the rating agency rating an issue of Securities changes, European regulated investors may no longer be able to use the rating for regulatory purposes and the Securities may have a different regulatory treatment. This may result in European regulated investors selling the Securities which may impact the value of the Securities and any secondary market. The list of registered and certified rating agencies published by ESMA on its website in accordance with the EU CRA Regulation is not conclusive evidence of the status of the relevant rating agency included in such list, as there may be delays between certain supervisory measures being taken against a relevant rating agency and the publication of the updated ESMA list.

In general, United Kingdom regulated investors are restricted under the UK CRA Regulation from using credit ratings for regulatory purposes, unless such ratings are issued by a credit rating agency established in the UK and registered under the UK CRA Regulation (and such registration has not been withdrawn or suspended, subject to transitional provisions that apply in certain circumstances). Such general restriction will also apply in the case of credit ratings issued by non-UK credit rating agencies, unless the relevant credit ratings are endorsed by a UK-registered credit rating agency or the relevant non-UK rating agency is certified in accordance with the UK CRA Regulation (and such endorsement action or certification, as the case may be, has not been withdrawn or suspended, subject to transitional provisions that apply in certain circumstances). If the status of the rating agency rating the Securities changes, United Kingdom regulated investors may no longer be able to use the rating for regulatory purposes and the Securities may have a different regulatory treatment. This may result in United Kingdom regulated investors selling the Securities which may impact the value of the Securities and any secondary market. The list of registered and certified rating agencies published by the FCA on its website in accordance with the UK CRA Regulation is not conclusive evidence of the status of the relevant rating agency included in such list, as there may be delays between certain supervisory measures being taken against a relevant rating agency and the publication of the updated FCA list.

Information relating to the current ratings of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI and CGML is available at www.citigroup.com.

Historical performance may not predict future performance and values may be published by parties not subject to regulation in the US, EEA or UK

In recent years, prices for various Underlyings have been highly volatile and such volatility may be expected in the future. However, fluctuations in rates, levels or prices of Underlyings that have occurred in the past are not necessarily indicative of fluctuations that may occur during the term of any Securities linked to such Underlyings.

In addition, the value of any relevant Underlying(s) may be determined or published by third parties or entities which are not subject to regulation under the laws of the United States, the EEA or the United Kingdom.

In addition, individual Reference Entities may not perform as indicated by the historical performance of similar entities and no assurance can be given with respect to the future performance of any Reference Entities. Historical default statistics may not capture events that would constitute Credit Events or Risk Events, as applicable, for the purposes of Credit Linked Notes or Credit Linked Warrants.

Certain factors affecting the value and trading price of Securities

The amounts due and/or value of any assets to be delivered in respect of the Securities at any time prior to the relevant maturity date or settlement date is typically expected to be less than the trading price of such Securities at that time. The difference between the trading price and such amounts due and/or value of any assets to be delivered, as the case may be, will reflect, among other things, the "time value" of the Securities. The "time value" of the Securities will depend partly upon the length of the period remaining to maturity or exercise and expectations concerning the value of any Underlying(s).

Securities pose some additional risks with regard to interim value. The interim value of Securities varies as the price or level of any Underlying(s) varies, as well as due to a number of other interrelated factors, including (i) the trading price of the relevant Securities, (ii) the value and volatility of any Underlying(s), (iii) the remaining tenor, (iv) in the case of Cash Settled Securities, the probable range of the Redemption Amounts or Cash Settlement Amounts, (v) any change(s) in interim interest rates and dividend yields if applicable, (vi) any change(s) in currency exchange rates, (vii) the depth of the market or liquidity of any Underlying(s) and (viii) any related transaction costs.

Any sale of Securities prior to their scheduled redemption or exercise may be at a substantial discount from the original purchase price and you may lose some or all of your investment.

Application of Fallback Provisions in respect of Reference Rates and Benchmarks

The fallback provisions described in the relevant Hierarchy Provisions in respect of Reference Rates and Benchmarks apply as follows:

Reference Rates:

- If a Reference Rate Event occurs and if the applicable Issue Terms specify any Reference Rate to be applicable in respect of the Securities, Valuation and Settlement Condition 10 (Reference Rate Event Provisions) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates or General Condition 20 (Reference Rate Event Provisions) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates (the "Reference Rate Event Provisions") shall apply.
- A Reference Rate Event occurs with respect to a Reference Rate (which means any interest rate howsoever described in the relevant Conditions and as amended from time to time pursuant to the provisions of the Reference Rate Event Provisions) where the Calculation Agent determines that (i) the Reference Rate has been or will be materially changed, has ceased or will cease to be provided permanently or indefinitely and there is no successor administrator or provider that will continue to provide the Reference Rate, or a regulator or other official sector entity has prohibited or will prohibit the use of or it is otherwise not permitted to use such Reference Rate in respect of the Securities; (ii) any authorisation or similar in respect of the Reference Rate or the administrator or sponsor of the Reference Rate has not been, or will not be, obtained or has been, or will be, refused or similar and as a result the Issuer or any other entity is not or will not be permitted under applicable law or regulation to use the relevant Reference Rate to perform its or their obligations under the Securities; (iii) unless the applicable Issue Terms specify that "Reference Rate Event (Limb (iii))" does not apply, it is not commercially reasonable to continue use of the Reference Rate due to licensing restrictions or changes in licensing costs; (iv) the administrator or sponsor of the relevant Reference Rate, any national, regional or other supervisory or regulatory authority which is responsible for either (a) supervising the administrator or sponsor of the Reference Rate or (b) regulating the Reference Rate, the central bank for the currency of the Reference Rate or other official body with applicable responsibility announcing that the Reference Rate is no longer, or as of a specified future date will no longer be, representative of any underlying market and economic reality that such Reference Rate is intended to measure and that representativeness will not be restored; or (v) the relevant Reference Rate is the subject of any market-wide development in the over-the-counter derivatives market (which may be in the form of a protocol, publication of standard terms or otherwise by ISDA) pursuant to which such Reference Rate is or will be replaced with a replacement rate with respect to over-the-counter derivatives transactions which reference such Reference Rate.

- The relevant agent will seek to determine a replacement Reference Rate which must be one of the following:
 - (a) where applicable, if a replacement Reference Rate can be determined by interpolating from other tenors of the relevant Reference Rate, such interpolated Reference Rate, together with an adjustment; or
 - (b) a pre-nominated replacement Reference Rate, together with an adjustment; or
 - (c) an index, benchmark, other price source or rate or fall-back rate or methodology for calculating an index, benchmark, other price source, rate or fall-back rate which is recognised or acknowledged as being an industry standard replacement for over-the-counter derivative transactions which reference such Reference Rate, together with an adjustment; or
 - (d) an index, benchmark or other price source that the relevant agent determines to be a commercially reasonable alternative for the Reference Rate, together with an adjustment.
- In the alternative, the relevant agent may determine that no replacement Reference Rate is required or may adjust the term of the Securities as it determines necessary or appropriate to account for the effect of such Reference Rate Event. Where applicable, if no such determination and/or adjustments are made, and if the relevant agent determines that it is not possible or commercially reasonable to identify a replacement Reference Rate or calculate the relevant adjustment, the Issuer may early redeem, terminate or cancel the Securities.
- The relevant agent has powers to make amendments to the terms of the Securities as it considers are necessary and/or appropriate to account for the effect of the replacement Reference Rate, and to determine the level of the Reference Rate to apply in respect of the Securities on an interim basis. For related risks see "Interest on Securities linked to a Reference Rate will be calculated using a Replacement Reference Rate selected by the Calculation Agent if a Reference Rate Event occurs" above.

INVESTMENT CONSIDERATIONS

Benchmarks:

- If an Administrator/Benchmark Event occurs with respect to the relevant rate, PROVIDED THAT the Reference Rate Event Provisions do not apply to the relevant event or circumstance, Valuation and Settlement Condition 3 (Redemption or adjustment for an Administrator/Benchmark Event) in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates or General Condition 19 (Administrator/Benchmark Event) in respect of Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates (the "Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions") shall apply.
- An Administrator/Benchmark Event occurs with respect to a Benchmark (which means any figure or rate and where any amount payable or deliverable under the Securities, or the value of the Securities, is determined by reference in whole or in part to such figure or rate) where the relevant agent determines that (i) a Benchmark is materially changed, cancelled or its use is prohibited by a regulator or other official sector entity in respect of the Securities or, unless the applicable Issue Terms specify that "ABE Hedging Arrangements" do not apply, any related hedging arrangements; (ii) any authorisation or similar in respect of a relevant Benchmark or the administrator or sponsor of a relevant Benchmark has not been, or will not be, obtained or has been, or will be, rejected or similar with the effect that the Issuer or any other entity is not, or will not be, permitted under any applicable law or regulation to use the relevant Benchmark to perform its or their respective obligations under the Securities or, unless the applicable Issue Terms specify that "ABE Hedging Arrangements" do not apply, any related hedging arrangements; (iii) unless the applicable Issue Terms specify that "Administrator/Benchmark Event (Limb (3))" does not apply, it is not commercially reasonable to continue use of the Benchmark due to licensing restrictions or changes in licence costs; (iv) a relevant supervisor and/or sponsor officially announces the benchmark is no longer representative, or as of a specified future date will no longer be capable of being representative, of any relevant underlying market(s) or economic reality that such Benchmark is intended to measure or (5) any relevant competent authority or other relevant official body issues a public notice with respect to the relevant Benchmark pursuant to the EU Benchmarks Regulation.
- The relevant agent may make adjustment(s) to the terms of the Securities as it determines necessary or appropriate to account for the effect of the relevant event or circumstance, including, without limitation, the selection of a successor benchmark. Alternatively and if applicable, the Issuer may early redeem, terminate or cancel the Securities. For related risks see "Risks relating to the occurrence of an Administrator/Benchmark Event" above.

Rate as an Underlying:

- If an event or circumstance occurs with respect to a Rate which is an Underlying and if the applicable Issue Terms specify a Rate as an Underlying, PROVIDED THAT neither the Reference Rate Event Provisions nor the Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions apply to the relevant rate as a result of such relevant event or circumstance, the provisions of Underlying Schedule 12 relating to the determination of the Underlying Closing Level of a Rate on any Scheduled Trading Day in the event of the occurrence of any Disrupted Day and the provisions relating to the consequences of any such Disrupted Day set out in the Conditions shall apply. For related risks, see "Risks relating to the discontinuance or unavailability of a Rate" above.

Screen Rate Determination in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates:

- If a floating rate cannot be determined and if the applicable Issue Terms specify Screen Rate Determination to be applicable, PROVIDED THAT none of the Reference Rate Event Provisions, the Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions and the Rate Conditions apply to the relevant floating rate as a result of such relevant event or circumstance, the relevant provisions of Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(a) (Screen Rate Determination) shall apply as described below.
- Where Screen Rate Determination is applicable, if the Page is not available or if no offered quotation or fewer than three offered quotations appear or no rate is provided or published by the relevant administrator or a relevant authorised distributor or a component of the relevant rate is not provided or published (as applicable), in each case as at the Specified Time, or by 10.30 a.m. Sydney time in the case of BBSW, the Calculation Agent will determine the Screen Rate in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to such sources as it deems appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market). Such rate may be (without limitation) a rate published by another authorised distributor, a rate formally recommended by the administrator of the relevant rate or the administrator or supervisor or competent authority responsible for supervising such administrator, the last published rate or the arithmetic mean of quotations provided by reference banks selected by the Calculation Agent.

ISDA Determination in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates:

Where ISDA determination is selected as the method of calculation of a rate of interest, the relevant rate will be determined on the same basis as the rate that would be calculated under an 'over-the-counter' derivative transaction documented using the market standard interest rate definitions published by ISDA. These definitions provide a standard method of calculating interest and include certain 'fallback' provisions which may be used to determine an interest rate in the event of temporary or permanent discontinuation of the relevant rate. However, for the purposes of the Securities, the fallback provisions set out in the relevant ISDA interest rate definitions will only apply in certain circumstances as described below.

The ISDA interest rate definitions have been amended, supplemented and replaced from time to time and, as at the date of this document, there are two versions which are relevant for the purposes of the Securities: the 2006 ISDA Definitions published by ISDA as amended or supplemented from time to time (the "2006 Definitions") and the 2021 ISDA Interest Rate Derivatives Definitions published by ISDA as restated from time to time (the "2021 Definitions"). The applicable Issue Terms will indicate the version of the ISDA definitions which apply in respect of the Securities.

- Where ISDA Determination is applicable and the 2006 Definitions are specified in the applicable Issue Terms, if the Calculation Agent determines that the ISDA Rate cannot be determined, then notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Conditions and prior to the application of any provisions relating to an index cessation event (howsoever described) or other permanent cessation fallback provisions in the 2006 Definitions (including where applicable such fallbacks set out in any supplement to the 2006 Definitions and, for the avoidance of doubt, any Discontinued Rates Maturities provisions), the ISDA Rate for the relevant period and/or date shall be such rate as is determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to alternative benchmarks then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market). It should be noted, however, that even though relevant fallback provisions may be included in accordance with the terms of the ISDA Determination itself or the above provision, if prior ranking fallback provisions described in Valuation and Settlement Condition 9 (Dual Currency Security Provisions) apply then these prior ranking fallback provisions will be applied first, meaning that any fallback provisions included as part of the ISDA Determination itself may not apply.
- Where ISDA Determination is applicable and the 2021 Definitions are specified in the applicable Issue Terms, any fallback provisions relating to temporary cessation will apply in respect of the Securities. However, prior to the application of any provisions relating to permanent cessation or an Administrator/Benchmark Event in the 2021 Definitions (including, for the avoidance of doubt any Discontinued Rates Maturities provisions), then, PROVIDED THAT none of the Reference Rate Event Provisions, the Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions and the Rate Conditions apply to the relevant ISDA Rate as a result of such event or circumstance and notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Conditions, the ISDA Rate for the relevant period and/or date shall be such rate as is determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to alternative benchmarks then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market). See further "The unavailability, disruption or discontinuance of any interest rate to which the Securities are linked will result in the application of certain fallback provisions" above.

- For related risks, see "In respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates, if a floating rate becomes unavailable it may be determined in the Calculation Agent's discretion or by alternative methods" above.

SONIA Floating Rate Determination, SOFR Floating Rate Determination, €STR Floating Rate Determination, SARON Floating Rate Determination and TONIA Floating Rate Determination in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates:

- If a floating rate cannot be determined and SONIA Floating Rate Determination and/or SOFR Floating Rate Determination and/or €STR Floating Rate Determination and/or SARON Floating Rate Determination and/or TONIA Floating Rate Determination are specified in the applicable Issue Terms, provided that none of the Reference Rate Event Provisions, the Administrator/Benchmark Event provisions and the Rate Conditions apply to the relevant floating rate as a result of the relevant event or circumstance, the relevant provisions of Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(c)(iii), Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(d)(iii) or Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(e)(ii) or Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(f)(ii) or Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(g)(iii) (as the case may be) shall apply as described below.
- Where SONIA Floating Rate Determination is applicable (other than where Index Determination applies), if the Calculation Agent determines that the SONIA rate is not available on the relevant Page or has not otherwise been published by the relevant authorised distributors on a relevant day, the Calculation Agent will determine such SONIA rate as being:
 - (a) (i) the Bank of England's Bank Rate (the "Bank Rate") prevailing at close of business on such day in the relevant Observation Period; plus (ii) the mean of the spread of the SONIA rate to the Bank Rate over the previous five days on which a SONIA rate has been published, excluding the highest spread (or, if there is more than one highest spread, one only of those spreads) and the lowest spread (or, if there is more than one lowest spread, one only of those spreads) to the Bank Rate; or
 - (b) if the Bank Rate is not published by the Bank of England at close of business on such day in the relevant Observation Period, the SONIA rate published on the relevant Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors) for the first preceding London Banking Day on which the SONIA rate was published on such Page (or otherwise published by the relevant authorised distributors).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, in the event the Bank of England publishes guidance as to (A) how the SONIA rate is to be determined or (B) any rate that is to replace the SONIA rate, the Calculation Agent shall, to the extent that it is reasonably practicable, follow such guidance in order to determine the SONIA rate for the purpose of the Securities for so long as the SONIA rate is not available or has not been published by the authorised distributors. For related risks, see "In respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates, if a floating rate becomes unavailable it may be determined in the Calculation Agent's discretion or by alternative methods" above.

- If the relevant rate is unavailable, where SONIA Floating Rate Determination is applicable (and Index Determination applies) and/or SOFR Floating Rate Determination is applicable, the relevant SONIA Compounded Index value, or SOFR or SOFR Index value, as applicable, will be determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner having regard to such sources as it deems appropriate and any alternative benchmark then available and taking into account prevailing industry standards in any related market (including, without limitation, the derivatives market).
- If the relevant rate is not published on the relevant page or by another authorised distributor, and is not otherwise provided by the relevant administrator, where €STR Floating Rate Determination is applicable and/or SARON Floating Rate Determination is applicable, the relevant €STR value or SARON value, as applicable, shall be deemed to be the rate equal to the last provided or published level for such rate.

- Where TONIA Floating Rate Determination is applicable (other than where Index Determination applies), if the Calculation Agent determines that the TONIA rate is not available on the relevant website or if TONIA ceases to exist, the Calculation Agent will determine such TONIA rate in its sole and absolute discretion.
- If the relevant rate is unavailable, where TONIA Floating Rate Determination is applicable (and Index Determination applies), the relevant Floating Interest Rate will be determined by the Calculation Agent in accordance with the Compounded Daily TONIA – Non-Index Determination provisions (in relation to which TONIA OIS Compounding shall apply) and the related fallback provisions, where applicable.

Summary of certain Floating Rate Options for the purposes of "ISDA Determination" and applicable methodologies – Frequently Asked Questions in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates

The questions and answers set out below highlight selected information to help prospective investors understand certain Floating Rate Options (as defined below) and applicable methodologies that may be relevant when considering the application of "ISDA Determination" to the determination of certain rates of interest. However, any decision to invest in Securities should only be made after careful consideration of the Base Prospectus and the relevant General Conditions in their entirety, particularly Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.2(b) (ISDA Determination), as completed by the applicable Final Terms or as completed, modified and/or supplemented by the applicable Pricing Supplement, as applicable. This section is not intended to be a substitute for, nor a summary of, such Conditions.

Unless otherwise defined in the Base Prospectus, capitalised terms in relation to the following questions and answers shall have the meaning given to them in the General Conditions.

Introduction

What is "ISDA Determination"?

"ISDA Determination" is a method of calculating the ISDA Rate (i.e. the interest rate prior to adjustments for any margin or participation rate) applicable to certain rates of interest. Where "ISDA Determination" applies, the ISDA Rate for an Interest Period or a relevant day will be determined on the same basis as the rate that would be calculated for an equivalent period under an over-the-counter derivative ("OTC") transaction documented using the market standard interest rate definitions published by ISDA, i.e. the 2006 Definitions or the 2021 Definitions, as applicable. These definitions provide a standard method of calculating interest and include certain fallback provisions which may be used to determine an interest rate in the event of temporary or permanent discontinuation of the relevant rate.

When will "ISDA Determination" apply?

"ISDA Determination" is applicable if "ISDA Determination" is elected as the method for calculating the rate of interest payable on the Securities.

What are the 2006 Definitions?

The 2006 Definitions is a definitional booklet published by ISDA, as amended and/or supplemented from time to time.

What are the 2021 Definitions?

The 2021 Definitions, including any Matrices referred to therein, is a definitional booklet published by ISDA, as amended and/or updated from time to time.

Floating Rate Options

What is a Floating Rate Option?

The interest rate under an OTC transaction incorporating the ISDA Definitions would be determined by reference to the underlying benchmark, which is referred to as the "Floating Rate Option" in the ISDA Definitions. Such Floating Rate Option would be as specified by the parties to such OTC transaction.

INVESTMENT CONSIDERATIONS

Alternatively, in the context of the 2021 Definitions only, the parties may refer to the "Floating Rate Options" as set out within the Floating Rate Matrix, as updated from time to time.

For the purposes of a rate of interest to which "ISDA Determination" applies, the Floating Rate Option will be specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

What is the Floating Rate Matrix?

The Floating Rate Matrix is only relevant for only such swap transactions which incorporate the 2021 Definitions. It specifies certain standard characteristics of each Floating Rate Option (including the "Category" that such Floating Rate Option belongs to and its "Style"). These characteristics would previously have been described using "long-hand" legal drafting in the 2006 Definitions.

What are the different types of Floating Rate Options?

There are different types of Floating Rate Options, including the following:

- (a) an Overnight Floating Rate Option (see further "What is an Overnight Floating Rate Option?" below); and
- (b) an Index Floating Rate Option (see further "What is an Index Floating Rate Option?" below).

What is an Overnight Floating Rate Option?

An Overnight Floating Rate Option is a Floating Rate Option that directly references an overnight rate. Where the 2021 Definitions apply, the relevant benchmark will be identified as an "Overnight Rate" in the Floating Rate Matrix.

What is an Index Floating Rate Option?

An Index Floating Rate Option is a Floating Rate Option that either:

- (a) describes the level of a calculated index and, where the 2021 Definitions apply, the relevant benchmark will be identified as an "Index" in the Floating Rate Matrix; or
- (b) describes the level of an index that represents the rate of return of a daily compound interest rate investment and, where the 2021 Definitions apply, the relevant benchmark will be identified as a "Compounded Index" in the Floating Rate Matrix.

What methodologies may be applied to Floating Rate Options?

Certain compounding or averaging methodologies may be applied to Floating Rate Options where market participants require the flexibility to more accurately hedge cash products which use different methodologies. Further, certain compounding methodologies may be applied to Floating Rate Options which are indices with a view to providing a standardised way of calculating compounded rates, especially for less sophisticated market participants who may not have access to detailed financial data. In any case, this is a commercial (rather than a legal) consideration and therefore it is not mandatory that such methodologies must always apply. In fact, for certain Floating Rate Options (such as term rates), the application of a methodology is not consistent with the nature of the Floating Rate Option itself and, therefore, such considerations would not be relevant for such Floating Rate Options.

Under the Conditions, it is possible to apply a compounding or an averaging methodology to an Overnight Floating Rate Option (see further, "Overnight Rate Compounding Methods" and "Overnight Rate Averaging Methods" below) or certain index methodologies to an Index Floating Rate Option (see further, "Index Methods" below). Where such methodologies apply, these will be specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

Overnight Rate Compounding Methods

Which compounding methods may be applied to Overnight Floating Rate Options?

Any of the following compounding methods may be applied to Overnight Floating Rate Options provided that such method is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms:

- (a) "OIS Compounding" (see further, "What is OIS Compounding?" below);
- (b) "Compounding with Lookback" (see further, "What is 'Compounding with Lookback?'" below);
- (c) "Compounding with Observation Period Shift" (see further, "What is Compounding with Observation Period Shift?" below); and
- (d) "Compounding with Lockout" (see further, "What is Compounding with Lockout?" below).

Where the 2021 Definitions apply, any other overnight rate compounding method may also be specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement.

What is OIS Compounding?

If "OIS Compounding" applies to an Overnight Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period:

- (a) the rate for each Business Day in such Interest Period will be determined on the basis of the rate observed for such day and the levels of the daily observed rates will be compounded to determine the ISDA Rate for the relevant Interest Period; and
- (b) the weighting to be given to the rate is determined by reference to each day in such Interest Period.

As a result of the above, the compounded rate can be fixed only on the last Business Day of such Interest Period. Where the last Interest Period End Date and the Interest Payment Date fall on the same date, there is flexibility to push out such Interest Payment Date by switching on "Delayed Payment" in the applicable Issue Terms and also specify the period of delay (referred to as the "Delayed Interest Payment Dates").

It is further possible to cap and/or floor the daily observed rate by switching on the elections for "Daily Capped Rate" and/or "Daily Floored Rate", as applicable, in the applicable Issue Terms.

What is 'Compounding with Lookback'?

If "Compounding with Lookback" applies to an Overnight Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period:

- (a) the rate for each Business Day in such Interest Period will be determined on the basis of the rate observed for a day falling a certain number of Business Days prior to such date (referred to as the "Lookback") and the levels of the daily observed rates will be compounded to determine the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period;
- (b) the length of the "Lookback" will either be specified in the applicable Issue Terms or set out in the relevant ISDA Definitions; and
- (c) the weighting to be given to the rate will depend on the relevant day in the Interest Period.

What is Compounding with Observation Period Shift?

If "Compounding with Observation Period Shift" applies to an Overnight Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period:

- (a) the rate for each Business Day in such Interest Period will be determined on the basis of the rate observed for the corresponding day during an "observation period" which shadows such Interest Period (i.e. both the start and end dates of such Interest Period will be shifted by a specified number of days referred to as the "Observation Period Shift") and the levels of the daily observed rates will be compounded to determine the ISDA Rate for the relevant Interest Period;

- (b) the length of the "Observation Period Shift" will either be specified in the applicable Issue Terms or set out in the relevant ISDA Definitions; and
- (c) the weighting to be given to the rate will be determined on the basis of the relevant day in such observation period.

There is flexibility to fix the rate in advance of the relevant Interest Period by switching on "Set-in-Advance" in the applicable Issue Terms, in which case, the rate will be determined by reference to a period (a "set-in-advance observation period") ending prior to the beginning of the relevant Interest Period.

What is Compounding with Lockout?

If "Compounding with Lockout" applies to an Overnight Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period:

- (a) the rate for each Business Day in such Interest Period will be determined as follows:
 - (i) for each day in the Interest Period up and to (and including) a specified date falling a number of Business Days before the end of the Interest Period (the "Lockout Date"), on the basis of the rate observed for such day; and
 - (ii) for each day in the Interest Period from (but excluding) the Lockout Date up to the end of the Interest Period (referred to as the "Lockout Period"), on the basis of the rate observed on the Lockout Date (i.e. a single rate will apply during the Lockout Period),and the levels of the daily observed rates will be compounded to determine the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period;
- (b) the length of the Lockout Period will either be specified in the applicable Issue Terms or set out in the relevant ISDA Definitions; and
- (c) the weighting to be given to the rate will be determined on the basis of the relevant day in such Interest Period, including during the Lockout Period. This essentially means that the designation of a Lockout Period will not impact the weighting given to the rate.

Overnight Rate Averaging Methods

Which averaging methods may be applied to Overnight Floating Rate Options?

Any of the following averaging methods may be applied to Overnight Floating Rate Options provided that such method is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms:

- (a) "OIS Averaging" (see further, "What is 'Overnight Averaging'?" below);
- (b) "Averaging with Lookback" (see further, "What is 'Averaging with Lookback'?" below);
- (c) "Averaging with Observation Period Shift" (see further, "What is 'Averaging with Observation Period Shift'?" below); and
- (d) "Averaging with Lockout" (see further, "What is 'Averaging with Lockout'?" below).

Where the 2021 Definitions apply, any other overnight rate averaging method may be specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement.

What is "Overnight Averaging"?

If "Overnight Averaging" applies to an Overnight Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period:

- (a) the rate for each Business Day in such Interest Period will be determined on the basis of the rate observed for such day and the levels of the daily observed rates will be averaged to determine the ISDA Rate for the relevant Interest Period; and
- (b) the weighting to be given to the rate is determined by reference to each day in such Interest Period.

As a result of the above, the averaged rate can be fixed only on the last Business Day of such Interest Period. Where the last Interest Period End Date and the Interest Payment Date fall on the same date, there is flexibility to push out such Interest Payment Date by switching on "Delayed Payment" in the applicable Issue Terms and also specify the period of delay (i.e. referred to as the "Delayed Interest Payment Dates").

It is further possible to cap and/or floor the daily observed rate by switching on the elections for "Daily Capped Rate" and/or "Daily Floored Rate", as applicable, in the applicable Issue Terms.

What is "Averaging with Lookback"?

"Averaging with Lookback" is similar to "Compounding with Lookback" (see "What is "Compounding with Lookback"?"" above), except that the ISDA Rate is determined by averaging (rather than compounding) the levels of the daily observed rates for the relevant Interest Period.

What is "Averaging with Observation Period Shift"?

"Averaging with Observation Period Shift" is similar to "Compounding with Observation Period Shift" (see "What is Compounding with Observation Period Shift?"" above), except that the ISDA Rate is determined by averaging (rather than compounding) the levels of the daily observed rates for the relevant Interest Period.

What is "Averaging with Lockout"?

"Averaging with Lockout" is similar to "Compounding with Lockout" (see "What is Compounding with Lockout?"" above), except that the ISDA Rate is determined by averaging (rather than compounding) the levels of the daily observed rates for the relevant Interest Period.

Index Methods*Which methodologies may be applied to Index Floating Rate Options?*

In respect of Floating Rate Securities to which the 2021 Definitions apply, it is possible to apply the "Standard Index Method" (see further, "What is the "Standard Index Method"?"" below) provided that such method is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms.

Further, any of the following methodologies may be applied to Index Floating Rate Options provided that such method is specified as the Index Method in the applicable Issue Terms:

- (a) "Compounded Index Method" (see further, "What is the "Compounded Index Method"?"" below); and
- (b) "Compounded Index Method with Observation Period Shift" (see further, "What is the "Compounded Index Method with Observation Period Shift"?"" below); and
- (c) "All-In Compounded Index Method" (see further, "What is the "All-In Compounded Index Method"?"").

Where the 2021 Definitions apply, any other methodology may also be specified in the applicable Pricing Supplement.

What is the "Standard Index Method"?

If the "Standard Index Method" applies to an Index Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period, the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period will be calculated as the rate of return of the relevant index over such Interest Period (essentially, by comparing the change in the index level between the start of such Interest Period and the end of such Interest Period).

What is the "Compounded Index Method"?

If the "Compounded Index Method" applies to an Index Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period, the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period will be the rate of return of the relevant compounded index over such relevant Interest Period (as above, by comparing the change in the compounded index level between the start of such Interest Period and the end of such Interest Period).

What is the "Compounded Index Method with Observation Period Shift"?

If the "Compounded Index Method with Observation Period Shift" applies to an Index Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period:

- (a) the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period will be the rate of return of the relevant compounded index over the "observation period" which shadows such Interest Period (i.e. both the start and end dates of such Interest Period will be shifted by a specified number of days referred to as the "Observation Shift Period"); and
- (b) the length of the "Observation Period Shift" will either be specified in the applicable Issue Terms or set out in the relevant ISDA Definitions.

There is flexibility to fix the rate in advance of the relevant Interest Period by switching on "Set-in-Advance" in the applicable Issue Terms, in which case, the rate will be determined by reference to a period (a "set-in-advance observation period") ending prior to the beginning of the relevant Interest Period.

What is the "All-In Compounded Index Method"?

If the "All-In Compounded Index Method" applies to a Compounded Index Floating Rate Option in respect of an Interest Period, the ISDA Rate for such Interest Period will be the rate of return of the relevant compounded index over such relevant Interest Period (as above, by comparing the change in the compounded index level between the start of such Interest Period and the end of such Interest Period).

Considerations relating to linear interpolation provisions

If "ISDA Definitions Linear Interpolation" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, then the provisions relating to "Linear Interpolation" set out in the ISDA Definitions will apply to the relevant Floating Rate Option. The Floating Rate Option shall be determined at the level of the related swap or hedging arrangement by straight line linear interpolation by reference to two rates based on the relevant Floating Rate Option, one of which shall be determined as if the Designated Maturity were the period of time for which rates are available next shorter than the length of the relevant Interest Period and the other of which shall be determined as if the Designated Maturity were the period of time for which rates are available next longer than the length of the relevant Interest Period, PROVIDED THAT if there is no rate available for a period of time next shorter or, as the case may be, next longer, then the calculation agent for the relevant swap shall determine such rate at such time and by reference to such sources as it determines appropriate. In such circumstances, the linear interpolation provisions set out in Valuation and Settlement Condition 4.5(f) (Linear Interpolation) of the Conditions shall not apply to the Securities.

Citigroup Inc., Its Management and Its Businesses Must Continually Review, Analyse and Successfully Adapt to Ongoing Regulatory and Legislative Uncertainties and Changes in the U.S. and Globally

Despite the adoption of final regulations and laws in numerous areas impacting Citigroup Inc. and its businesses over the past several years, Citigroup Inc., its management and its businesses continually face ongoing regulatory and legislative uncertainties and changes, both in the United States of America ("U.S.") and globally. While the areas of ongoing regulatory and legislative uncertainties and changes facing Citigroup Inc. are too numerous to list completely, various examples include, but are not limited to (i) potential fiscal, monetary, regulatory, tax and other changes arising from the U.S. federal government and other governments, including as a result of the differing priorities of the current U.S. presidential administration, changes in regulatory leadership or focus and actions of Congress or in response to the pandemic; (ii) potential changes to various aspects of the regulatory capital framework and requirements applicable to Citigroup Inc.; and (iii) future legislative and regulatory requirements in the U.S. and globally related to climate change, including any new disclosure requirements. When referring to "regulatory", Citigroup Inc. is including both formal regulation and the views and expectations of its regulators in their supervisory roles.

U.S. and international regulatory and legislative initiatives have not always been undertaken or implemented on a coordinated basis, and areas of divergence have developed and continue to develop with respect to the scope, interpretation, timing, structure or approach, leading to inconsistent or even conflicting requirements, including within a single jurisdiction. For example, in May 2019, the European Commission adopted, as part of Capital Requirements Directive V ("CRD V"), a new requirement for major banking groups headquartered outside the EU (which would include Citigroup Inc.) to establish an intermediate EU holding company where the foreign bank has two or more institutions (broadly meaning banks, broker-dealers and similar financial firms) established in the EU. While in some respects the requirement mirrors an existing U.S. requirement for non-U.S. banking organisations to form U.S. intermediate holding companies, the implementation of the EU holding company requirement could lead to additional complexity with respect to Citigroup Inc.'s resolution planning, capital and liquidity allocation and efficiency in various jurisdictions.

Moreover, ongoing regulatory and legislative uncertainties and changes make Citigroup Inc.'s and its management's long-term business, balance sheet and strategic budget planning difficult, subject to change and potentially more costly. U.S. and other regulators globally have implemented and continue to discuss various changes to certain regulatory requirements, which would require ongoing assessment by management as to the impact to Citigroup Inc., its businesses and business planning. For example, while the Basel III post-crisis regulatory reforms and revised market risk framework have been finalised at the international level, there remain significant uncertainties with respect to the integration of these revisions into the U.S. regulatory capital framework. Business planning is required to be based on possible or proposed rules or outcomes, which can change dramatically upon finalisation, or upon implementation or interpretive guidance from numerous regulatory bodies worldwide, and such guidance can change.

Regulatory and legislative changes have also significantly increased Citigroup Inc.'s compliance risks and costs and can adversely affect Citigroup Inc.'s businesses, results of operations and financial condition.

Green Bonds

The Issue Terms relating to any issuance of Securities which are Notes or Certificates may provide that it will be the relevant Issuer's intention to apply an amount equal to the net proceeds of such Securities to fund, in whole or in part, the financing or refinancing of "Eligible Green Assets", which refers to loans and/or investments made by entities within the Group for assets or projects that meet the Green Bond Eligibility Criteria (as specified in the Green Bond Framework, defined below) and do not meet any of the Green Bond Exclusionary Criteria (as specified in the Green Bond Framework) ("Green Bonds"). You should make your own independent decision to invest in Green Bonds and as to whether an investment in such Securities is appropriate or proper for you based upon your own judgement, circumstances and investment criteria or guidelines and upon advice from such advisers as you may deem necessary.

Green Bond Framework

The Group has developed a Green Bond Framework (the "Green Bond Framework") for securities issuances in order to finance or refinance projects related to climate change mitigation as well as projects that promote sustainable infrastructure. The below summary is based on the Green Bond Framework as at the date of this Base Prospectus. However, the Green Bond Framework may be amended, updated or consolidated from time to time and you should therefore refer to the most recent version of the Green Bond Framework (or any successor framework) which will be available on the Group's website (currently <https://www.citigroup.com/global/investors/fixed-income-investor-relations/sustainable-debt-> securities) and the applicable Issue Terms for information on the use of proceeds of the relevant Securities. Any description or summary of the Green Bond Framework in this Base Prospectus is provided for information purposes only and does not constitute any representation, warranty, or covenant for the purposes of this Base Prospectus as to the Group's actual conduct with respect to any activities or investments undertaken thereunder.

INVESTMENT CONSIDERATIONS

The Green Bond Framework has been developed in alignment with the Green Bond Principles 2018 as administered by the International Capital Market Association ("ICMA") and, as at the date of this Base Prospectus, has received a "second party opinion" provided by Sustainalytics as an independent consultant. Any such opinion is only current as of the date that opinion was issued and is not, nor should be deemed to be, a recommendation by the relevant Issuer, the Dealers or any other person to buy, sell or hold Green Bonds. You must determine for yourself the relevance of any such opinion and/or the information contained therein for the purpose of any investment in Green Bonds and must refer to the most recent version of the Green Bond Framework (or any successor framework) at the issue date of relevant Securities for information on any second party opinion and the provider thereof. To the Group's knowledge, as at the date of this Base Prospectus, the providers of such opinions are not subject to any specific oversight or regulatory or other regime. For the avoidance of doubt, the Green Bond Framework and any such opinion are not, nor shall be deemed to be, incorporated in and/or form part of this Base Prospectus.

Eligible Green Assets

The Green Bond Eligibility Criteria specified in the Green Bond Framework seek to support the identification of projects ("Eligible Green Projects") in one or more of the following areas (or any other eligible area described in the applicable Issue Terms) comprising Eligible Green Assets:

- Renewable energy: proceeds may be allocated towards the acquisition, development, operation and maintenance of new and ongoing renewable energy activities, including certain related costs;
- Energy efficiency: proceeds may be allocated towards the financing or refinancing of warehouse facilities for residential energy efficiency loans or consumer finance companies that provide residential energy efficiency loans for projects or assets that reduce energy consumption or mitigate greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions;
- Sustainable transportation: proceeds may be allocated towards building or operating mass transit and creating or constructing infrastructure to support mass transit;
- Water quality and conservation: proceeds may be allocated towards projects that improve water quality, efficiency and conservation; and
- Green building: proceeds may be allocated towards financing of existing or new construction / renovation of residential and commercial buildings that earn certain efficiency and environmental certifications.

The Group has developed a list of exclusionary criteria ("Green Bonds Exclusionary Criteria") for the use of proceeds from the sale of Green Bonds (for example, certain large-scale hydropower plants, nuclear power plants and fossil fuel projects) and commits itself to not knowingly being involved in financing any such projects or activities through the proceeds of any such sale of Green Bonds.

Project Evaluation and Selection Process

The Group's specialist teams, including the Sustainability & ESG team and the Environmental and Social Risk Management ("ESRM") teams, are responsible for screening potential eligible assets against the Green Bond Eligibility Criteria. Once screened, Eligible Green Assets will be added to a single pool that the Group maintains (the "Green Bond Asset Portfolio").

The Group's selection process for Eligible Green Assets takes into account whether the potential eligible asset meets the Green Bond Eligibility Criteria for inclusion in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio. Additionally, each Eligible Green Asset is reviewed to ensure compliance with the Group's ESRM policies.

If the investment by any entity within the Group in any asset in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio is terminated or if an asset no longer meets the Green Bond Eligibility Criteria, the asset will be removed from the Green Bond Asset Portfolio.

Management of Proceeds

The Group's Sustainable Issuance Council (the "Sustainable Issuance Council") is responsible for supervising the Green Bond Asset Portfolio and the aggregate amount of Green Bonds issued by entities within the Group with the aim of ensuring that the aggregate amount in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio is equal to or greater than the aggregate amount raised by such Green Bonds. For this purpose, the aggregate size and maturity of the Green Bond Asset Portfolio is monitored quarterly. If for any reason the aggregate amount in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio is less than the aggregate amount of Green Bonds issued, the unallocated amount will be held in cash, cash equivalents and/or other liquid marketable instruments (including U.S. Treasury securities) in the liquidity portfolio of the Group until the amount can be allocated towards the Green Bond Asset Portfolio.

Reporting

The Group publishes a report (the "Green and Social Bond Report") on its website (<https://www.citigroup.com/global/investors/fixed-income-investor-relations/sustainable-debt-securities>) annually. The Green and Social Bond Report covers all Green Bonds issued during the reporting period specified therein and any material changes to the Green Bond Asset Portfolio. You should note that no other or separate notification will be provided to investors in particular Green Bonds as to the Green Bond Asset Portfolio.

The Green and Social Bond Report will give details of (i) the total amount of assets in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio and the total outstanding amount raised by Green Bond issuances; (ii) the eligible assets within the Green Bond Asset Portfolio along with the Group's financial commitments to the assets; (iii) the total amount of unallocated proceeds, if any; and (iv) environmental impacts of the Green Bond Asset Portfolio to the extent data is available and relevant for reporting and sound methodologies exist. Any such report is only current as of the date that such report was issued and is not, nor should be deemed to be, a recommendation by the Issuer, the Dealers or any other person to buy, sell or hold Green Bonds.

Under the Green Bond Framework, the Group has also engaged external independent accountants to review management's assertion that (i) the assets included in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio meet the Green Bond Eligibility Criteria and are not invested in assets as defined by the Green Bond Exclusionary Criteria and (ii) the aggregate amount in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio is equal to or greater than the aggregate amount raised by Green Bonds (or, to the extent the total amount of the outstanding bonds is less than the aggregate amount in the Green Bond Asset Portfolio, that the difference is held in the manner described in the Green Bond Framework). Any review report is only current as of the date that such report was issued and you must determine for yourself the relevance of any such report and/or the information contained therein for the purposes of your own investment considerations or expectations.

For the avoidance of doubt, neither the Green and Social Bond Report nor the report of any third party is, or shall be deemed to be, incorporated in and/or form part of this Base Prospectus.

Social Bonds issued by Citigroup Inc. or CGMHI

The Issue Terms relating to any issuance of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by Citigroup Inc. or CGMHI may provide that it will be the relevant Issuer's intention to apply an amount equal to the net proceeds of such Securities to fund the financing or refinancing, in whole or in part, of a portion of Citigroup's portfolio of affordable housing assets ("Social Bonds"). You should make your own independent decision to invest in Social Bonds and as to whether an investment in such Securities is appropriate or proper for you based upon your own judgement, circumstances and investment criteria or guidelines and upon advice from such advisers as you may deem necessary.

Social Bonds shall not be issued by CGMFL.

Social Bond Framework

The Group has developed a Social Bond Framework for Affordable Housing (the "Social Bond Framework") for securities issuances in order to finance or refinance, in whole or in part, a portion of

INVESTMENT CONSIDERATIONS

Citigroup's portfolio of affordable housing assets. The below summary is based on the Social Bond Framework as at the date of this Base Prospectus. However, the Social Bond Framework may be amended, updated or consolidated from time to time and you should therefore refer to the most recent version of the Social Bond Framework (or any successor framework) which will be available on the Group's website (currently <https://www.citigroup.com/global/investors/fixed-income-investor-relations/sustainable-debt-securities>) and the applicable Issue Terms for information on the use of proceeds of the relevant Securities. Any description or summary of the Social Bond Framework in this Base Prospectus is provided for information purposes only and does not constitute any representation, warranty, or covenant for the purposes of this Base Prospectus as to the Group's actual conduct with respect to any activities or investments undertaken thereunder.

The Social Bond Framework has been developed in alignment with the Social Bond Principles 2020, as administered by ICMA and, as at the date of this Base Prospectus, received a "second party opinion" provided by Sustainalytics as an independent consultant. Any such opinion is only current as of the date that opinion was issued and is not, nor should be deemed to be, a recommendation by the relevant Issuer, the Dealers or any other person to buy, sell or hold Social Bonds. You must determine for yourself the relevance of any such opinion and/or the information contained therein for the purpose of any investment in Social Bonds and must refer to the most recent version of the Social Bond Framework (or any successor framework) at the issue date of relevant Securities for information on any second party opinion and the provider thereof. To the Group's knowledge, as at the date of this Base Prospectus, the providers of such opinions are not subject to any specific oversight or regulatory or other regime. For the avoidance of doubt, the Social Bond Framework and any such opinion are not, nor shall be deemed to be, incorporated in and/or form part of this Base Prospectus.

Asset Selection and Evaluation Process

Under the Social Bond Framework, an amount equivalent to the net proceeds of Social Bonds is allocated to finance or refinance a portion of the Group's portfolio of affordable housing assets (the "Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio"), which consist of selected eligible financing instruments which are primarily intended to finance the construction, rehabilitation and/or the preservation of quality affordable housing for low and moderate income populations in the United States (the "Social Bond Eligibility Criteria").

If the investment in any asset in the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio is terminated or if an asset no longer meets the Social Bond Eligibility Criteria, the asset will be removed from the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio in the same calendar year in which the asset became ineligible.

Management of Proceeds

The Group's Sustainable Issuance Council is responsible for oversight of the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio and monitoring the aggregate amount of Social Bonds issued by entities within the Group with the aim of ensuring that the aggregate amount in the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio is equal to or greater than the aggregate amount raised by such Social Bonds during the associated reporting period. For this purpose, the continued eligibility and aggregate size of the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio is monitored quarterly. If for any reason the aggregate amount in the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio is less than the outstanding amount of Social Bonds issued, the unallocated amount will be held in cash, cash equivalents and/or other liquid marketable instruments (including U.S. Treasury securities) until the amount can be allocated towards the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio.

The Group has developed a list of exclusionary criteria ("Affordable Housing Exclusionary Criteria") for the proceeds of the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio (for example, certain loans or investments for projects outside the United States, mortgage-backed securities and other derivatives, etc., all as further described in the Social Bond Framework) and commits itself to not knowingly be involved in financing any such projects or activities through the proceeds of any such sale of Social Bonds.

Reporting

The Green and Social Bond Report (discussed above with respect to the Green Bond Framework) also covers all Social Bonds issued during the reporting period specified therein and any material changes in the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio. You should note that no other or separate notification will be provided to investors in particular Social Bonds as to the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio.

The Green and Social Bond Report will provide information on (i) the total outstanding par amount of Social Bonds issued during the reporting period; (ii) the total outstanding amount of funded financial assets that comprise the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio; (iii) the total amount of unallocated proceeds, if any, assigned to cash, cash equivalent and/or other liquid marketable instruments; and (iv) social impacts of the Social Bonds to the extent data is available and relevant for reporting. Any such report is only current as of the date that report was issued and is not, nor should be deemed to be, a recommendation by the Issuer, the Dealers or any other person to buy, sell or hold Social Bonds.

External Review

Under the Social Bond Framework, the Group will also engage external independent accountants to review management's assertion that (i) the assets included in the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio meet the Social Bond Eligibility Criteria and are not invested in assets as defined by the Exclusionary Criteria and (ii) the aggregate amount in the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio is equal to or greater than the aggregate amount raised by the issuance of Social Bonds (or, to the extent the total amount of the outstanding Social Bonds is less than the aggregate amount in the Affordable Housing Bond Asset Portfolio, that the difference is held in the manner described in the Social Bond Framework). Any review report is only current as of the date that report was issued and you must determine for yourself the relevance of any such report and/or the information contained therein for the purposes of your own investment considerations or expectations.

For the avoidance of doubt, neither the Green and Social Bond Report nor the report of any third party is, or shall be deemed to be, incorporated in and/or form part of this Base Prospectus.

Social Finance Bonds issued by Citigroup Inc. or CGMHI

The Issue Terms relating to any issuance of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by Citigroup Inc. or CGMHI may provide that it will be the relevant Issuer's intention to allocate an amount equal to the net proceeds of such Securities ("Social Finance Bonds") to finance or refinance a portion of certain of the Group's portfolio of assets that meet Citigroup's Social Finance Asset Portfolio Eligibility Criteria (as specified in the Social Finance Framework, defined below) and do not meet any of the Social Finance Exclusionary Criteria (as specified in the Social Finance Framework) (such assets, the "Social Finance Assets" and any such portfolio, the "Social Finance Assets Portfolio"). You should make your own independent decision to invest in the Social Finance Bonds and as to whether an investment in such Securities is appropriate or proper for you based upon your own judgement, circumstances and investment criteria or guidelines and upon advice from such advisers as you may deem necessary.

Social Finance Bonds shall not be issued by CGMFL.

Social Finance Framework

The Group has developed the Citigroup Social Finance Framework (the "Social Finance Framework") for securities issuances in order to support lending to social inclusive businesses across Citigroup's emerging market footprint. The below summary is based on the Social Finance Framework as at the date of this Base Prospectus. However, the Social Finance Framework may be amended, updated or consolidated from time to time and you should therefore refer to the most recent version of the Social Finance Framework (or any successor framework) which will be available on the Group's website (currently <https://www.citigroup.com/global/investors/fixed-income-investor-relations/sustainable-debt-securities>) and the applicable Issue Terms for information on the use of proceeds of the relevant Securities. Any description or summary of the Social Finance Framework in this Base Prospectus is provided for information purposes only and does not constitute any representation, warranty, or covenant for the purposes of this Base Prospectus as to the Group's actual conduct with respect to any activities or investments undertaken thereunder.

The Social Finance Framework has been developed in alignment with the ICMA Social Bond Principles 2021 and, as at the date of this Base Prospectus, has received a "second party opinion" provided by Sustainalytics as an independent consultant. Any such opinion is only current as of the date that opinion was issued and is not, nor should be deemed to be, a recommendation by the relevant Issuer, the Dealers or any other person to buy, sell or hold Social Finance Bonds. You must determine for yourself the relevance of any such opinion and/or the information contained therein for the purpose of any investment in Social Finance Bonds and must refer to the most recent version of the Social Finance Framework (or any successor framework) at the issue date of relevant Securities for information on any second party opinion and the provider thereof. To the Group's knowledge, as at the date of this Base Prospectus, the providers of such opinions are not subject to any specific oversight or regulatory or other regime. For the avoidance of doubt, the Social Finance Framework and any such opinion are not, nor shall be deemed to be, incorporated in and/or form part of this Base Prospectus.

Social Finance Assets

To constitute Social Finance Assets, assets must meet the Social Finance Asset Portfolio Eligibility Criteria by falling into one of the categories outlined below:

- (1) Access to essential services: financing towards expanding access to financial services to unbanked and underserved individuals and small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) and related costs;
- (2) Affordable housing: financing for companies and financial service providers enabling access to housing for underserved purchasers;
- (3) Affordable basic infrastructure: financing for companies that expand availability of water, sanitation, or clean energy;
- (4) Access to essential services (healthcare): financing for companies that expand access to inclusive healthcare, seek to ensure healthy lives and promote well-being;
- (5) Access to essential services (education): financing for companies and organisations that deliver and promote inclusive lifelong learning opportunities for all; and
- (6) Access to essential services (smallholder farmer finance): financing for social enterprises that deliver products and services to smallholder farmers.

The Group has developed a list of exclusionary criteria for the use of the proceeds from Social Finance Bonds (the "Social Finance Exclusionary Criteria") (including, certain loans or investments (i) for projects in high income economies as designated by the World Bank, (ii) in institutions not meeting locally designated employment regulations, (iii) supporting fossil fuel energy generation for last mile clients, (iv) where the financial strength and potential for economic loss to the Group on the investment has been assessed and classified as "Substandard", "Doubtful", or "Loss"; (v) in activities which are incompatible with the Social Finance Framework or the Group's social finance criteria or which generate significant adverse social impacts, (vi) which have matured or (vii) in "prohibited activities" as defined in the Social Finance Framework). The Group commits itself to not intentionally including any of such projects or activities in the Social Finance Asset Portfolio.

Eligible Social Finance Asset Selection and Evaluation Process

The Group's specialist Social Finance team will review assets to check they meet the Social Finance Asset Portfolio Eligibility Criteria and will identify a unique Social Finance Asset Portfolio for the aggregate principal amount of Social Finance Bonds issued during a given reporting period that are intended to be used for Social Finance Assets. Once screened, Social Finance Assets will be added to the relevant Social Finance Asset Portfolio. Additionally, the selection of Social Finance Assets is also governed by risk approval guidelines and credit monitoring standards in each relevant jurisdiction. Citi's Social Finance team will also periodically remove assets from the Social Finance Asset Portfolio that Citi determines no longer qualify, and may include additional eligible assets in the Social Finance Asset Portfolio.

Management of Proceeds

The Group's Sustainable Issuance Council is responsible for oversight of the Social Finance Asset Portfolio, and its responsibilities include monitoring the total aggregate amount of Social Finance Bonds issued and tracking the Social Finance Asset Portfolio. The Group aims to ensure that the aggregate amount in each Social Finance Asset Portfolio is equal to or greater than the aggregate amount raised by Social Finance Bonds issued during the associated reporting period by reviewing the aggregate size and maturity of the Social Finance Asset Portfolio each quarter. If for any reason the aggregate amount in any Social Finance Asset Portfolio is less than the total outstanding amount of such Social Finance Bonds issued, the Group will assign the unallocated balance to cash, cash equivalents and/or other liquid marketable instruments (including U.S. Treasury securities) until the amount can be allocated towards the Social Finance Asset Portfolio.

Reporting

The Green and Social Bond Report (discussed above with respect to the Green Bond Framework) covers allocation and impact reporting to the extent practical, for all Social Finance Bonds issued during the reporting period specified therein and will provide updated information should a material change in the Social Finance Asset Portfolio occur. You should note that no other or separate notification will be provided to investors in particular Social Finance Bonds as to the Social Finance Asset Portfolio.

External Review

The Group will engage external independent accountants to review management's assertion that (i) the assets included in the Social Finance Asset Portfolio meet the Social Finance Asset Portfolio Eligibility Criteria and are not invested in assets defined in the Social Finance Exclusionary Criteria and (ii) the aggregate amount in the Social Finance Asset Portfolio is equal to or greater than the aggregate amount raised by the relevant Social Finance Bonds (or, to the extent the total amount of the relevant outstanding Social Finance Bonds is greater than the aggregate amount in the Social Finance Asset Portfolio, that the difference is held in the manner described in the Social Finance Framework). Any review report is only current as of the date that report was issued and you must determine for yourself the relevance of any such report and/or the information contained therein for the purposes of your own investment considerations or expectations.

For the avoidance of doubt, neither the Green and Social Bond Report nor the report of any third party is, or shall be deemed to be, incorporated in and/or form part of this Base Prospectus and is not, nor should be deemed to be a recommendation by the Issuer or any Dealer to buy, sell or hold the Securities.

Securities or Underlying(s) (or, in the case of Preference Share Linked Securities, the Preference Share Underlying(s)) labelled or marketed as having "green", "sustainable", "social", "ESG", "inclusive" or similar objectives

Securities which are Notes or Certificates or the Underlying(s) of Securities (or, in the case of Preference Share Linked Securities, the Preference Share Underlying(s)) (e.g. a Security Index) may be described or marketed as having "green", "sustainable", "social", "ESG", "inclusive" or similar objectives.

Notwithstanding the use of such term(s) in the title and/or marketing materials of the Securities or in the description of the Underlying(s) (or, in the case of Preference Share Linked Securities, the Preference Share Underlying(s)), such Securities or Underlying(s) (or, in the case of Preference Share Linked Securities, the Preference Share Underlying(s)) (or the administrator(s) thereof):

- may not meet investors' objectives or expectations as regarding investments which are "green", "sustainable", "social", "ESG", "inclusive" or other similar label; and/or
- may not fulfil legislative or regulatory requirements or criteria as regarding investments which are "green", "sustainable", "social", "ESG", "inclusive" or other similar label (including as set out under the EU Benchmarks Regulation, Regulation (EU) 2020/852 on the establishment of a framework to facilitate sustainable investment (the so called EU Taxonomy Regulation), Regulation (EU) 2019/2088 (on sustainability-related disclosures in the financial services sector) and Regulation (EU) 2023/2631 (on European Green Bonds and optional disclosures for bonds marketed as environmentally sustainable and sustainability-linked bonds) or any of those regulations as they form part of the domestic law of the UK).

There is currently no universally agreed framework (legal, regulatory, or any other) or market consensus on what constitutes a "green", "sustainable", "social", "ESG", "inclusive" or similar product or the precise attributes required for a particular product to be defined as such, and no assurance can be given that such a universally accepted framework or consensus will develop over time. While there have been regulatory efforts in some jurisdictions and regions (particularly within the European Economic Area and the UK) to define similar concepts, the legal and regulatory framework governing sustainable finance and/or "green", "sustainable", "social", "ESG", "inclusive" or similar products is still developing and there can be no assurance that these local regimes will be more widely adopted in global financial markets.

Accordingly, no assurance can be given to investors that any product will meet any or all of the investor's objectives or expectations regarding investments which are "green", "sustainable", "social", "ESG", "inclusive" or other similar label or that no adverse environmental, social and/or other impacts will occur in the implementation of the product.

Certain considerations relating to Bespoke Indices and Citi Proprietary Indices

The index conditions and/or methodology of a Bespoke Index describe the manner in which the relevant index calculation agent performs all calculations, determinations, rebalancings and adjustments in respect of such Bespoke Index, and the limited circumstances in which the relevant index sponsor may amend the index conditions and/or methodology of such Bespoke Index. In addition you should be aware that the calculation of amounts payable on Securities relating to a Bespoke Index involves reference to an index that is administered and maintained and, in some cases, calculated and published by an affiliate of the Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and/or the CGMFL Guarantor, the level of which may not be widely published. The index conditions and/or methodology of a Citi Proprietary Index describe the conflicts of interest which may arise for the relevant index calculation agent and its affiliates. Only Exempt Securities may be Bespoke Index Linked Securities which reference a Citi Proprietary Index.

Disruption of an index component of a Bespoke Index and determination of the level of such Bespoke Index

The conditions and/or methodology of a Bespoke Index will set out the frequency of the publication of its level. In the event that the level, price, rate or value (as relevant) of any of its index components is not available for any reason, the relevant index calculation agent may calculate the level of such Bespoke Index for the relevant day by observing a valuation for the affected index component from a different day or may delay the calculation of the level of such Bespoke Index. Any such postponement or alternative provisions for valuation provided in the terms and conditions of such Securities may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on such Securities.

If "Component Valuation" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and the level of the relevant Bespoke Index has been published for a particular day, then if such day (a) is not a day on which valuations of an index component of such Bespoke Index are scheduled to be observed, or (b) is a disrupted day for an index component of such Bespoke Index (each, howsoever defined in the relevant index conditions and/or methodology of such Bespoke Index), then any level of such Bespoke Index calculated and published by the relevant index calculation agent for such day may be disregarded by the Calculation Agent and the Calculation Agent may itself calculate the level of such Bespoke Index for such day in accordance with the then-current methodology of such Bespoke Index but may do so by reference to the level, price, rate or value (as relevant) of the index components of such Bespoke Index observed on subsequent days. This process may result in a level of such Bespoke Index for such day being calculated by the Calculation Agent which is different to the published level of such Bespoke Index and may have a material adverse effect on the value of and return on the relevant Securities.

Payment of Issue Price

Save as provided in the Conditions (including any costs, taxes, duties and/or expenses relating to the purchase, exercise and/or redemption of the Securities), the terms of the Securities are such that, in absence of error or overpayment by the Issuer, no payment is expected from Securityholders other than the Issue Price.

SECTION D – HOW TO USE THIS DOCUMENT

This section provides a guide as to which parts of this Base Prospectus are relevant for particular Securities.

Introduction

This section provides potential investors with a tool to help them navigate the various sections relating to Securities issued by the Issuers under the Base Prospectus.

Documentation

For each issue of Securities under the Base Prospectus, the Base Prospectus will be available to potential investors on an ongoing basis and provide relevant information on the Issuers and the Securities.

The Base Prospectus

The Base Prospectus is comprised of sections which set out (i) information relating to each Issuer, the CGMH I Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor (including documents incorporated by reference, risk factors and disclosure relating to the Issuers and Guarantors) and (ii) information relating to the Securities which may be issued under the Base Prospectus (including risk factors and disclosure relating to the Securities, the general terms and conditions of the Securities, the terms specific to each type of Security and the possible characteristics of the Securities, including provisions relating to the determination of interest and redemption or termination amounts). However, it is the Issue Terms that will set out the commercial terms and characteristics of a particular issue. See "The Issue Terms" below.

The Supplement(s)

If a significant new factor, material mistake or material inaccuracy arises relating to the information included in the Base Prospectus which is capable of affecting a potential investor's assessment of the Securities, the Issuers will publish a supplement to the Base Prospectus. The supplement will be approved by the CSSF in accordance with Article 23 of the Prospectus Regulation and published on the website of the Luxembourg Stock Exchange (www.luxse.com) and will also be published in the same manner as the Base Prospectus.

If the Issuers publish a supplement to the Base Prospectus pursuant to Article 23 of the Prospectus Regulation, investors who have already agreed to purchase or subscribe for Securities before the supplement is published shall, subject to the provisions of Article 23 of the Prospectus Regulation, have the right to withdraw their acceptances. Unless a longer mandatory period applies in the relevant country in which the offer of Securities has been accepted, any such withdrawal right must be exercised within two working days of publication of the supplement in accordance with Article 23(2) of the Prospectus Regulation. The terms and conditions of the Securities and the terms on which they are offered and issued will be subject to the provisions of any such supplement.

The Issue Terms

The applicable Issue Terms will be prepared to document each specific issue of Securities and will be either: (i) for Securities other than Exempt Securities, the Final Terms together with, if required, a duly completed issue specific summary specific to such issue of Securities; or (ii) for Exempt Securities, the Pricing Supplement.

In each case, the Final Terms or Pricing Supplement will contain:

- (i) the specific terms of the issue, including but not limited to the aggregate principal amount or number of Securities being issued, the relevant identification codes and the type and currency of the Securities;
- (ii) the commercial terms of the issue, such as the details of the payout for redemption or termination, interest amounts, any automatic or optional early redemption or termination provisions and the related definitions for a specific issue of Securities, as described in the Base Prospectus and completed by the Issue Terms (in each case, depending on the type of Securities in question);

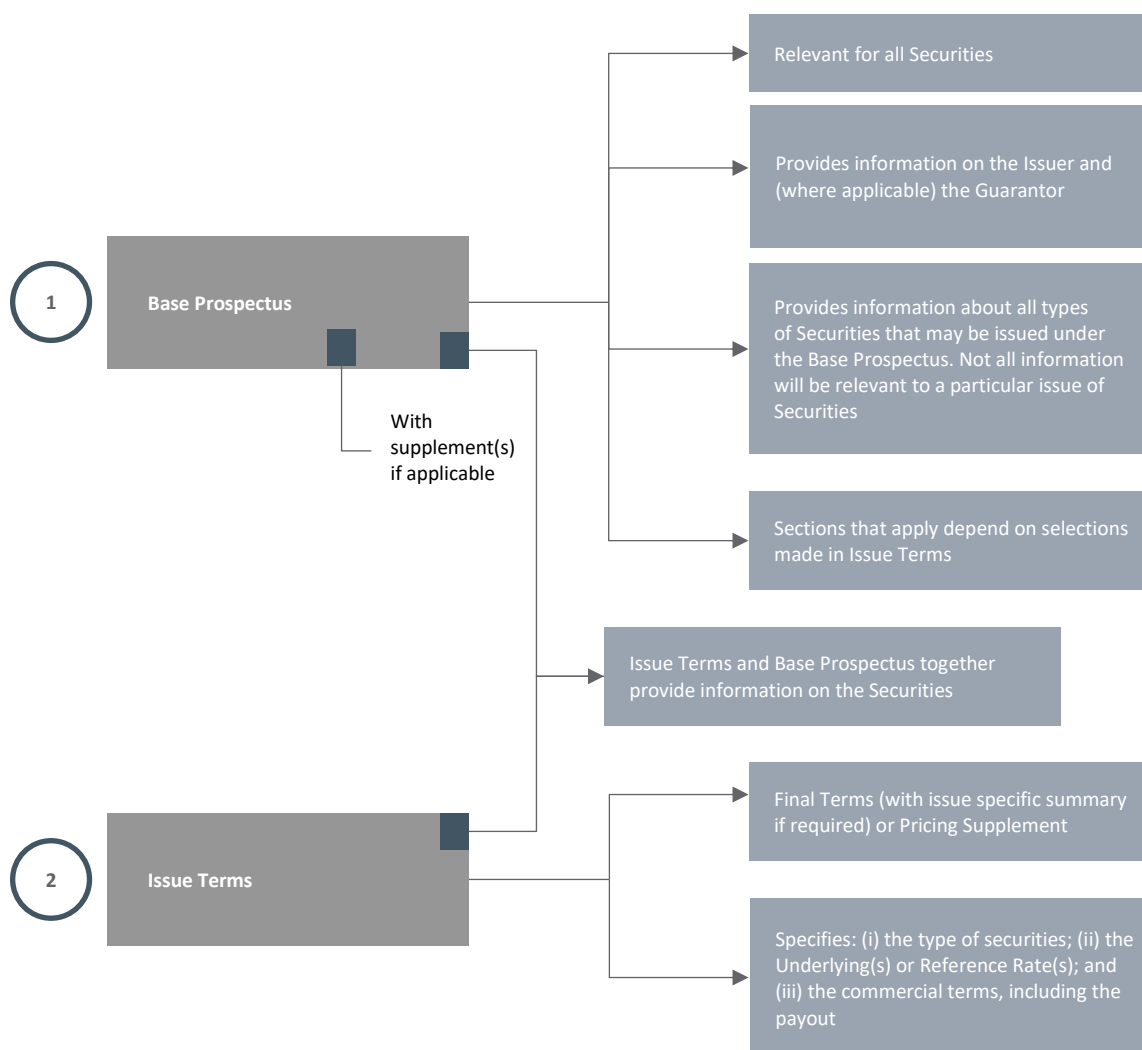

HOW TO USE THIS DOCUMENT

- (iii) details of the Underlying(s) or any interest rate to which the Securities are linked; and
- (iv) the relevant dates, such as the issue date, interest payment date(s) and/or maturity date.

How to navigate the Base Prospectus

A wide range of Securities may be issued under the Base Prospectus. The Base Prospectus, along with any supplement(s), will be relevant for all Securities and provides (i) information on the Issuers and the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor, and (ii) information about all types of Securities that may be issued under the Base Prospectus. As described above, it is the Issue Terms which provide the commercial terms and characteristics of a particular issue and specify which sections of the Base Prospectus apply to that issue. Accordingly, not all of the information in the Base Prospectus will be relevant to a particular issue of Securities.

The interaction of these sections is summarised in the following diagram.

How to read the Issue Terms

The applicable Issue Terms are divided into three parts:

- Part A, called "CONTRACTUAL TERMS", which, together with any applicable Schedules and Appendices, provides the specific contractual terms of the Securities;
- Part B, called "OTHER INFORMATION", which provides other disclosure information specific to the Securities; and

- in the case of Final Terms only and for Securities where an issue specific summary is required pursuant to the Prospectus Regulation, an issue specific summary of the Securities will be attached to the Final Terms.

The full forms of Final Terms and Pricing Supplement are set out in this Base Prospectus. The Issuers will complete the Final Terms or Pricing Supplement (i.e. the Issue Terms) for each issue of Securities based on these forms.

DESCRIPTION OF CITIGROUP INC.

Citigroup Inc. is a holding company and services its obligations primarily by earnings from its operating subsidiaries. Citigroup Inc. may augment its capital through issuances of common stock, noncumulative perpetual preferred stock and equity issued through awards under employee benefit plans, among other issuances. Citigroup Inc. and Citigroup Inc.'s subsidiaries that operate in the banking and securities businesses can only pay dividends if they are in compliance with the applicable regulatory requirements imposed on them by federal and state bank regulatory authorities and securities regulators in the United States. Citigroup Inc.'s subsidiaries may be party to credit agreements that also may restrict their ability to pay dividends. Citigroup Inc. currently believes that none of these regulatory or contractual restrictions on the ability of its subsidiaries to pay dividends will affect Citigroup Inc.'s ability to service its own debt. Citigroup Inc. must also maintain the required capital levels of a bank holding company, and must submit a capital plan, subjected to stress testing, to the Federal Reserve, and have its stress capital buffer determined annually, before it may pay dividends on its stock.

Under longstanding policy of the Federal Reserve, a bank holding company is expected to act as a source of financial and managerial strength for its U.S. insured depository institutions. As a result of this regulatory policy, the Federal Reserve might require Citigroup Inc. to commit resources to its U.S. insured depository institutions when doing so is not otherwise in the interests of Citigroup Inc. or its shareholders or creditors.

There are no recent events particular to Citigroup Inc. which are to a material extent relevant to an evaluation of Citigroup Inc.'s solvency and no material changes in Citigroup Inc.'s borrowing and funding structure since its last financial year other than as set out in the specified sections of the documents referenced below which are incorporated into this Base Prospectus by reference:

- (i) the "Executive Summary" section on pages 7 to 10 of the Citigroup Inc. 2024 Form 10-K; Citigroup Inc.'s authorised capital stock consists of 6 billion shares of common stock and 30 million shares of preferred stock. As at 30 September 2025, there were 1,789,266,159 fully paid common stock shares issued and outstanding and 734,000 preferred stock shares issued and outstanding. A common stock share carries one vote, and no pre-emptive or other subscription rights or conversion rights. A preferred stock share carries no general voting rights.

Citi Resolution Plan (CSA, etc.) in relation to Securities issued by Citigroup Inc.

U.S. GSIBs are required to maintain minimum levels of total loss-absorbing capacity ("TLAC") and eligible long-term debt ("LTD"), each set by reference to the GSIB's consolidated risk-weighted assets ("RWA") and total leverage exposure. The intended purpose of the requirements is to facilitate the orderly resolution of U.S. GSIBs under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code and Title II of the Dodd-Frank Act. For additional information, including Citigroup's TLAC and LTD amounts and ratios, see "Capital Resources—Current Regulatory Capital Standards" and "Managing Global Risk—Liquidity Risk—Total Loss-Absorbing Capacity (TLAC)" in Citigroup Inc.'s most recent Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Citigroup Inc. is required under Title I of the Dodd Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act of 2010 ("Dodd Frank Act") and the rules promulgated by the FDIC and Federal Reserve to periodically submit a plan for Citigroup Inc.'s rapid and orderly resolution under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in the event of material financial distress or failure. On 22 November 2022, the Federal Reserve and FDIC issued feedback on the resolution plans filed on 1 July 2021 by the eight U.S. Global Systemically Important Banks ("GSIBs"), including Citigroup Inc. The Federal Reserve and FDIC identified one shortcoming, but no deficiencies, in Citigroup Inc.'s 2021 resolution plan regarding data integrity and data quality management issues. Additionally, on 20 June 2024, the Federal Reserve and FDIC issued feedback on the resolution plans filed on 1 July 2023 by the eight U.S. GSIBs, including Citigroup Inc. The Federal Reserve and FDIC identified one shortcoming, but no deficiencies, in Citigroup Inc.'s 2023 resolution plan regarding Citi's derivatives unwind capabilities. Based on regulatory changes effective 31 December 2019, Citigroup Inc. alternates between submitting a full resolution plan and a targeted resolution plan on a biennial cycle. Citigroup Inc.'s 2025 resolution plan submission, which was filed on 1 July 2025, was a targeted resolution plan. For additional information on Citigroup Inc.'s resolution plan submissions, see "Managing Global Risk—Liquidity Risk—Resolution Plan" in Citigroup Inc.'s most recent Annual Report on Form 10-K.

Under Citigroup Inc.'s preferred "single point of entry" resolution plan strategy, only Citigroup Inc., the parent holding company, would enter into bankruptcy, while Citigroup Inc.'s material legal entities (as defined in the public section of its 2025 resolution plan, which can be found on the Federal Reserve's and FDIC's websites) would remain operational and outside of any resolution or insolvency proceedings. Citigroup Inc. believes its resolution plan has been designed to minimise the risk of systemic impact to the U.S. and global financial systems, while maximising the value of the bankruptcy estate for the benefit of Citigroup Inc.'s creditors, including the holders of the Securities being offered by this Base Prospectus. In addition, in line with the Federal Reserve's final TLAC rule, Citigroup Inc. believes it has developed the resolution plan so that Citigroup Inc.'s shareholders and unsecured creditors - including the holders of the Securities being offered by this Base Prospectus - bear any losses resulting from Citigroup Inc. bankruptcy. Accordingly, any value realised by holders of the Securities being offered by this Base Prospectus may not be sufficient to repay the amounts owed to such debt holders in the event of a bankruptcy or other resolution proceeding of Citigroup Inc.. Claims of holders of the Securities offered by this Base Prospectus and other debt securities of Citigroup Inc. would have a junior position to the claims of creditors of Citigroup Inc.'s subsidiaries and to the claims of priority (as determined by statute) and secured creditors of Citigroup Inc.. Accordingly, in a resolution of Citigroup Inc. under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, holders of the Securities offered by this Base Prospectus and other debt securities of Citigroup Inc. would realise value only to the extent available to Citigroup Inc. as a shareholder of its subsidiaries, and only after any claims of priority and secured creditors of Citigroup Inc. have been fully repaid. If Citigroup Inc. were to enter into a resolution, none of Citigroup Inc., the Federal Reserve or the FDIC is obligated to follow Citigroup Inc.'s preferred resolution strategy under its resolution plan.

In response to feedback received from the Federal Reserve and FDIC, Citigroup Inc. took the following actions:

- (a) Citicorp LLC ("Citicorp"), an existing wholly owned subsidiary of Citigroup Inc., was established as an intermediate holding company for certain of Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities;
- (b) Citigroup Inc. executed an inter-affiliate agreement with Citicorp, Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities and certain other affiliated entities pursuant to which Citicorp is required to provide liquidity and capital support to Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities in the event Citigroup Inc. were to enter bankruptcy proceedings (the "Citi Support Agreement");

DESCRIPTION OF CITIGROUP INC.

- (c) pursuant to the Citi Support Agreement:
 - (i) Citigroup Inc. made an initial contribution of assets, including certain high quality liquid assets and inter affiliate loans (the "Contributable Assets"), to Citicorp, and Citicorp became the business as usual funding vehicle for Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities;
 - (ii) Citigroup Inc. will be obligated to continue to transfer Contributable Assets to Citicorp over time, subject to certain amounts retained by Citigroup Inc. to, among other things, meet Citigroup Inc.'s near-term cash needs;
 - (iii) in the event of a Citigroup Inc. bankruptcy, Citigroup Inc. will be required to contribute most of its remaining assets to Citicorp; and
- (d) the obligations of both Citigroup Inc. and Citicorp under the Citi Support Agreement, as well as the Contributable Assets, are secured pursuant to a security agreement.

The Citi Support Agreement provides two mechanisms, besides Citicorp's issuing of dividends to Citigroup Inc., pursuant to which Citicorp will be required to transfer cash to Citigroup Inc. during business as usual so that Citigroup Inc. can fund its debt service as well as other operating needs: (i) one or more funding notes issued by Citicorp to Citigroup Inc.; and (ii) a committed line of credit under which Citicorp may make loans to Citigroup Inc..

In addition to Citigroup Inc.'s required resolution plan under Title I of the Dodd Frank Act, Title II of the Dodd Frank Act grants the FDIC the authority, under certain circumstances, to resolve systemically important financial institutions, including Citigroup Inc. This resolution authority is commonly referred to as the FDIC's "orderly liquidation authority". Under the FDIC's stated preferred "single point of entry" strategy for such resolution, the bank holding company (Citigroup Inc.) would be placed in receivership; the unsecured long term debt and shareholders of the parent holding company would bear any losses; the FDIC would use its power to create a "bridge entity" for Citigroup Inc; transfer the systemically important and viable parts of its business, principally the stock of Citigroup Inc.'s main operating subsidiaries and any intercompany claims against such subsidiaries, to the bridge entity; and recapitalize the operating subsidiaries using assets of Citigroup Inc. that have been transferred to the bridge entity and exchange external debt claims against Citigroup Inc. for equity in the bridge entity. Under this Title II resolution strategy, the value of the stock of the bridge entity that would be redistributed to holders of the Securities offered by use of this Base Prospectus and other debt securities of Citigroup Inc. may not be sufficient to repay all or part of the principal amount and interest on the Securities and those other securities. Any of the Securities being offered by this Base Prospectus may be fully subordinated to interests held by the U.S. government in the event of a receivership, insolvency, liquidation or similar proceeding with respect to Citigroup Inc., including a proceeding under the "orderly liquidity authority" provisions of the Dodd Frank Act. To date, the FDIC has not formally adopted a single point of entry resolution strategy and it is not obligated to follow such a strategy in a Title II resolution of Citigroup Inc.

Under the regulations of the Federal Reserve, a bank holding company is expected to act as a source of financial strength for its U.S. insured depository institutions. As a result of this regulatory policy, the Federal Reserve might require Citigroup Inc. to commit resources to its U.S. insured depository institutions when doing so is not otherwise in the interests of Citigroup Inc. or its shareholders or creditors.

Citi Resolution Plan (CSA, etc.) in relation to Securities issued by Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc.

Citigroup Inc. is required under Title I of the Dodd-Frank Act and the rules promulgated by the FDIC and Federal Reserve to periodically submit a plan for the Citigroup Inc.'s rapid and orderly resolution under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in the event of material financial distress or failure. On 22 November 2022, the Federal Reserve and FDIC issued feedback on the resolution plans filed on 1 July 2021 by the eight U.S. Global Systemically Important Banks ("GSIBs"), including Citigroup Inc. The Federal Reserve and FDIC identified one shortcoming, but no deficiencies, in Citigroup Inc.'s 2021 resolution plan regarding data integrity and data quality management issues. Additionally, on 20 June 2024, the Federal Reserve and FDIC issued feedback on the resolution plans filed on 1 July 2023 by the eight U.S. GSIBs, including Citigroup Inc. The Federal Reserve and FDIC identified one shortcoming, but no deficiencies, in Citigroup Inc.'s 2023 resolution plan regarding Citi's derivatives unwind capabilities. Based on regulatory changes effective 31 December 2019, Citigroup Inc. alternates between submitting a full resolution plan and a targeted resolution plan on a biennial cycle. Citigroup Inc.'s 2025 resolution plan submission, which was filed on 1 July 2025, was a targeted resolution plan. For additional information on Citigroup Inc.'s resolution plan submissions, see "Managing Global Risk—Liquidity Risk—Resolution Plan" in Citigroup Inc.'s most recent Annual Report on Form 10-K. Citigroup Inc.'s preferred resolution strategy is "single point of entry" under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code.

Under Citigroup Inc.'s preferred "single point of entry" resolution plan strategy, only Citigroup Inc., the parent holding company, would enter into bankruptcy, while Citigroup Inc.'s material legal entities, including CGMHI (as further defined in the public section of its 2025 resolution plan, which can be found on the Federal Reserve's and FDIC's websites) would remain operational and outside of any resolution or insolvency proceedings. Citigroup Inc. believes its resolution plan has been designed to minimise the risk of systemic impact to the U.S. and global financial systems, while maximising the value of the bankruptcy estate for the benefit of Citigroup Inc.'s creditors. In addition, in line with the Federal Reserve's final TLAC rule, Citigroup Inc. believes it has developed the resolution plan so that Citigroup Inc.'s shareholders and unsecured creditors bear any losses resulting from Citigroup Inc.'s bankruptcy.

In response to feedback received from the Federal Reserve and FDIC, Citigroup Inc. took the following actions:

- (a) Citicorp LLC ("Citicorp"), an existing wholly-owned subsidiary of Citigroup Inc., was established as an intermediate holding company for certain of Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities, including CGMHI;
- (b) Citigroup Inc. executed an inter-affiliate agreement with Citicorp, Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities and certain other affiliated entities pursuant to which Citicorp is required to provide liquidity and capital support to Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities in the event Citigroup Inc. were to enter bankruptcy proceedings (the "Citi Support Agreement");
- (c) pursuant to the Citi Support Agreement:
 - (i) Citigroup Inc. made an initial contribution of assets, including certain high-quality liquid assets and inter-affiliate loans (the "Contributable Assets"), to Citicorp, and Citicorp became the business as usual funding vehicle for Citigroup Inc.'s operating material legal entities;
 - (ii) Citigroup Inc. will be obligated to continue to transfer Contributable Assets to Citicorp over time, subject to certain amounts retained by Citigroup Inc. to, among other things, meet Citigroup Inc.'s near-term cash needs;
 - (iii) in the event of a Citigroup Inc. bankruptcy, Citigroup Inc. will be required to contribute most of its remaining assets to Citicorp; and
- (d) the obligations of both Citigroup Inc. and Citicorp under the Citi Support Agreement, as well as the Contributable Assets, are secured pursuant to a security agreement.

The Citi Support Agreement provides two mechanisms, besides Citicorp's issuing of dividends to Citigroup Inc., pursuant to which Citicorp will be required to transfer cash to Citigroup Inc. during business as usual so that Citigroup Inc. can fund its debt service as well as other operating needs: (i) one or more funding notes issued by Citicorp to Citigroup Inc.; and (ii) a committed line of credit under which Citicorp may make loans to Citigroup Inc..

Under the terms and conditions of the Securities which are Notes or Certificates, a Citigroup Inc. bankruptcy, insolvency or resolution proceeding will not constitute an event of default with respect to any series of such Securities issued by Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc. Moreover, it will not constitute an event of default with respect to any series of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc. if the guarantee of such Securities by Citigroup Inc. (as CGMHI Guarantor) ceases to be (or is claimed not to be) in full force and effect for any reason, including by Citigroup Inc.'s insolvency or resolution. Should the Citigroup Inc. guarantee no longer be in effect, Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc. will become the sole obligor under such Securities, and there can be no assurance that it would be able to continue to meet its obligations under such Securities.

In the event that Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc. also enters bankruptcy, at the time of Citigroup Inc.'s bankruptcy filing or at a later time, you, as a holder of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc. would be an unsecured creditor of Citigroup Inc. in respect of the Citigroup Inc. guarantee and, accordingly, you cannot be assured that the Citigroup Inc. guarantee would protect you against losses resulting from a default by Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc..

Markets

Markets provides corporate, institutional and public sector clients around the world with a full range of sales and trading services across equities, foreign exchange, rates, spread products and commodities. The range of services includes market-making across asset classes, risk management solutions, financing and prime brokerage.

As a market maker, Markets facilitates transactions, including holding product inventory to meet client demand, and earns the differential between the price at which it buys and sells the products. These price differentials and the unrealised gains and losses on the inventory are recorded in Principal transactions. Fee revenue is earned through providing clients with a range of services including but not limited to trading, financing, brokerage, securitization and underwriting. Other primarily includes realized gains and losses on available-for-sale (AFS) debt securities, gains and losses on equity securities not held in trading accounts and other nonrecurring gains and losses. Interest income earned on assets held, less interest paid on long- and short-term debt, secured funding transactions, and customer deposits, is recorded as Net interest income.

The amount and types of Markets revenues are impacted by a variety of interrelated factors, including market liquidity; changes in market variables such as interest rates, foreign exchange rates, equity prices, commodity prices and credit spreads, as well as their implied volatilities; investor confidence; and other macroeconomic conditions. Markets revenues include revenues earned by Citi that are subject to a revenue sharing arrangement with Banking—Corporate Lending for Investment Banking, Markets and Services products sold to Corporate Lending clients.

Assuming all other market conditions do not change, increases in client activity levels or bid/offer spreads generally result in increases in revenues. However, changes in market conditions can significantly impact client activity levels, bid/offer spreads and the fair value of product inventory. Management of the Markets businesses involves daily monitoring and evaluation of the above factors.

For additional information on Market's business activities, see "Markets" in the Citigroup Inc. 2024 Form 10-K.

There are no potential conflicts of interest existing between any duties owed to CGMFL by the board of managers listed above and their private interests and/or other duties. There are no principal activities performed by the board of managers outside of CGMFL which are significant with respect to CGMFL.

Principal activities

As set out in Clause 4 in the Articles of CGMFL, the corporate object of CGMFL is the granting of loans or other forms of funding directly or indirectly in whatever form or means to any entities belonging to the same group (e.g., including, but not limited to, by subscription of bonds, debentures, other debt instruments, advances, the granting of pledges or the issuing of other guarantees of any kind to secure the obligations of any entities, through derivatives or otherwise).

CGMFL may finance itself in whatever form including, without limitation, through borrowing or through issuance of listed or unlisted notes and other debt or equity instruments, convertible or not (e.g., including but not limited to bonds, notes, loan participation notes, subordinated notes, promissory notes, certificates and warrants) including under stand-alone issues, medium term note and commercial paper programmes.

CGMFL may also:

- (a) grant security for funds raised, including notes and other debt or equity instruments issued, and for the obligations of CGMFL; and
- (b) enter into all necessary agreements, including, but not limited to underwriting agreements, marketing agreements, management agreements, advisory agreements, administration agreements and other contracts for services, selling agreements, deposit agreements, fiduciary agreements, hedging agreements, interest and/or currency exchange agreements and other financial derivative agreements, bank and cash administration agreements, liquidity facility agreements, credit insurance agreements and any agreements creating any kind of security interest.

In addition to the foregoing, CGMFL can perform all legal, commercial, technical and financial investments or operations and, in general, all transactions which are necessary or useful to fulfil its objects as well as all operations connected directly or indirectly to facilitating the accomplishment of its purpose in all areas described above.

CGMFL's Articles and Luxembourg law however prohibit it from entering into any transaction which would constitute a regulated activity of the financial sector or require a business licence under Luxembourg law without due authorisation under Luxembourg law.

CGMFL grants loans and other forms of funding to entities belonging to the same group and therefore competes in any market in which the Group has a presence.

SECTION F.5 – FORM OF CGMFL ALL MONIES GUARANTEE

THIS DEED OF GUARANTEE is made on 11 May 2017 by Citigroup Global Markets Limited (the "Guarantor") in favour of each Beneficiary (as defined below).

NOW THIS DEED WITNESSES as follows:

1. DEFINITIONS

As defined herein:

"Beneficiary" means any person who is owed any sum or amount which is due and payable by CGMFL under or in respect of any Liability;

"CGMFL" means Citigroup Global Markets Funding Luxembourg S.C.A.;

"Liabilities" means all the liabilities of CGMFL of any kind and in any currency (whether present or future, actual or contingent and whether incurred alone or jointly with another) together with all the charges, commission, interest and expenses payable by CGMFL in connection with the relevant liability; and

"Taxes" includes all present and future income and other taxes, levies, duties, imposts, deductions charges, fees and withholdings, in each case as imposed or levied by or on behalf of the United Kingdom, together with interest thereon and penalties with respect thereto (if any).

Where the context so admits, the singular includes the plural and vice versa. Headings are for convenience of reference only.

2. DEED OF GUARANTEE

Subject as provided herein, the Guarantor irrevocably and unconditionally guarantees by way of deed poll to each Beneficiary that if, for any reason, CGMFL does not pay any sum payable by it to such Beneficiary under or in respect of any Liability including any premium or any other amounts of whatever nature or additional amounts which may become payable under the foregoing as and when the same shall become due and payable under any of the foregoing, the Guarantor will duly and promptly pay to such Beneficiary on the request of such Beneficiary the sum or the amount payable by CGMFL to or for such Beneficiary.

3. GUARANTOR AS PRINCIPAL OBLIGOR

Without affecting CGMFL's obligations, the Guarantor will be liable under this Deed of Guarantee as if it were the sole principal obligor and not merely a surety. Accordingly, it will not be discharged, nor will its liability be affected, by anything which would not discharge it or affect its liability if it were the sole principal obligor (including (a) any time, indulgence, waiver or consent at any time given to CGMFL or any other person, (b) any amendment to any Liability or to any security or other guarantee or indemnity, (c) the making or absence of any demand on CGMFL or any other person for payment, (d) the enforcement or absence of enforcement of any Liability or of any security or other guarantee or indemnity, (e) the release of any such security, guarantee or indemnity, (f) the dissolution, amalgamation, reconstruction or reorganisation of CGMFL or any other person, (g) the illegality, invalidity or unenforceability of or any defect in any provision of any Liability or any of CGMFL's obligations under or in respect of a Liability or (h) any other act, event or omission which but for this sub-Clause might operate to discharge, impair or otherwise affect the obligations expressed to be assumed by the Guarantor herein or any of the rights, powers or remedies conferred upon the Beneficiaries or any of them by this Deed of Guarantee or by law).

4. GUARANTOR'S OBLIGATIONS CONTINUING

The Guarantor's obligations under this Deed of Guarantee are irrevocable and are and will remain in full force and effect by way of continuing security in respect of any outstanding Liabilities. Furthermore, these obligations of the Guarantor are additional to, and not instead of, any security or other guarantee or indemnity at any time existing in favour of a Beneficiary, whether from the Guarantor or otherwise. The Guarantor irrevocably waives all notices and demands whatsoever.

5. REPAYMENT TO CGMFL

If any payment or amount received by a Beneficiary is, on the subsequent liquidation or insolvency of CGMFL, avoided under any laws relating to liquidation or insolvency, such payment will not be considered as having discharged or diminished the liability of the Guarantor and this Deed of Guarantee will continue to apply as if such payment or amount had at all times remained owing by CGMFL.

6. INDEMNITY

As a separate and alternative stipulation, the Guarantor unconditionally and irrevocably agrees that any sum amount expressed to be payable by CGMFL under or in respect of any Liability but which is for any reason (whether or not now known or becoming known to CGMFL, the Guarantor or any Beneficiary) not recoverable from the Guarantor on the basis of a guarantee will nevertheless be recoverable from it as if it were the sole principal debtor and will be paid by it to the Beneficiary on the request of such Beneficiary subject as provided herein. This indemnity constitutes a separate and independent obligation from the other obligations in this Deed of Guarantee, gives rise to a separate and independent cause of action and will apply irrespective of any indulgence granted by any Beneficiary.

7. STATUS OF DEED OF GUARANTEE

This Deed of Guarantee shall take effect as a deed poll for the benefit of each Beneficiary from time to time and for the time being, each of which shall be entitled severally to enforce this Deed of Guarantee against the Guarantor. The payment obligations of the Guarantor under this Deed of Guarantee constitute direct, unconditional, unsubordinated and unsecured obligations of the Guarantor and rank and will at all times at least rank pari passu with all other unsecured and unsubordinated outstanding obligations of the Guarantor, save for such obligations as may be preferred by provisions of law that are both mandatory and of general application.

8. SETTLEMENT CONDITIONAL

Any settlement or discharge between the Guarantor and the Beneficiaries or any of them shall be conditional upon no payment to the Beneficiaries or any of them by the Guarantor or any other person on the Guarantor's behalf being avoided or reduced by virtue of any laws relating to bankruptcy, insolvency, liquidation or similar laws of general application for the time being in force and, in the event of any such payment being so avoided or reduced, the Beneficiaries shall be entitled to recover the amount by which such payment is so avoided or reduced from the Guarantor subsequently as if such settlement or discharge had not occurred PROVIDED THAT such recovery is not contrary to any law applicable thereto.

9. NO PRIOR ACTION REQUIRED

No Beneficiary shall be obliged before exercising any of the rights, powers or remedies conferred upon it by this Deed of Guarantee or by law:

- (a) to make any demand of CGMFL;
- (b) to take any action or obtain judgment in any court against CGMFL; or
- (c) to make or file any claim or proof in a winding-up or dissolution of CGMFL, and the Guarantor hereby expressly waives presentment, demand, protest and notice of dishonour in respect of each Liability.

10. POSTPONEMENT OF GUARANTOR'S RIGHTS

The Guarantor agrees that, so long as any sums and or amounts are or may be owed by CGMFL under or in respect of the Liabilities or CGMFL is under any other actual or contingent obligation thereunder or in respect thereof, the Guarantor will not exercise any right which the Guarantor may at any time have by reason of the performance by the Guarantor of its obligations hereunder:

- (a) to claim any contribution from any other guarantor of CGMFL's obligations under or in respect of the Liabilities;
- (b) to take the benefit (in whole or in part) of any security enjoyed in connection with the Liabilities by any Beneficiary; or
- (c) to be subrogated to the rights of any Beneficiary against CGMFL in respect of amounts paid by the Guarantor under this Deed of Guarantee.

11. TAXATION

All payments by the Guarantor under or in connection with this Deed of Guarantee shall be made free and clear of and without deduction for or on account of all Taxes. All Taxes in respect of this Deed of Guarantee and payments thereunder shall be for the account of and shall be paid by the Guarantor for its own account prior to the date on which penalties attach thereto. If the Guarantor is compelled by law to make payment subject to any Tax and a Beneficiary does not actually receive for its own benefit on the due date the full amount provided for hereunder, the Guarantor will pay all necessary additional amounts to ensure receipt by the Beneficiary of the full amount so provided for. The Guarantor will indemnify each Beneficiary in respect of all such Taxes.

12. POWER TO EXECUTE

The Guarantor hereby warrants, represents and covenants with each Beneficiary that it has all corporate power, and that it has taken all necessary corporate or other steps, to enable it to execute, deliver and perform this Deed of Guarantee, and that this Deed of Guarantee constitutes a legal, valid and binding obligation of the Guarantor in accordance with its terms.

13. NO SET-OFF OR COUNTERCLAIM

All payments to be made by the Guarantor under this Deed of Guarantee will be calculated and be made without (and free and clear of any deduction for) set-off or counterclaim.

14. PRODUCTION OF DEED OF GUARANTEE

The Guarantor hereby acknowledges the right of every Beneficiary to the production of, and the right of every Beneficiary to obtain (upon payment of a reasonable charge) a copy of, this Deed of Guarantee, and further acknowledges and covenants that the obligations binding upon it contained herein are owed to, and shall be for the account of, each and every Beneficiary, and that each Beneficiary shall be entitled severally to enforce the said obligations against the Guarantor.

15. STAMP DUTIES

The Guarantor shall pay all stamp, registration and other taxes and duties (including any interest and penalties thereon or in connection therewith) which are payable upon or in connection with the execution and delivery of this Deed of Guarantee, and shall indemnify each Beneficiary against any claim, demand, action, liability, damages, cost, loss or expense (including, without limitation, legal fees and any applicable value added tax) which it incurs as a result or arising out of or in relation to any failure to pay or delay in paying any of the same.

16. PARTIAL INVALIDITY

If at any time any provision thereof is or becomes illegal, invalid or unenforceable in any respect under the laws of any jurisdiction, neither the legality, validity or enforceability of the remaining provisions hereof nor the legality, validity or enforceability of such provision under the laws of any other jurisdiction shall in any way be affected or impaired thereby.

17. NOTICES

All notices, demands and other communications to the Guarantor hereunder shall be made in writing (by letter) and shall be sent to the Guarantor at:

Citigroup Global Markets Limited
Citigroup Centre
Canada Square, Canary Wharf

SECTION G.3 – IMPORTANT INFORMATION RELATING TO OFFERS OF SECURITIES WHICH ARE NOTES OR CERTIFICATES

Important information relating to Non-exempt Offers of Securities which are Notes or Certificates

Restrictions on Non-exempt Offers of Securities in Member States

Certain Tranches of Securities which are Notes or Certificates with a denomination of less than EUR100,000 (or its equivalent in any other currency) may be offered in circumstances where there is no exemption from the obligation under the EU Prospectus Regulation to publish a prospectus. Any such offer is referred to as a "Non-exempt Offer". This Base Prospectus has been prepared on a basis that permits Non-exempt Offers of such Securities. However, any person making or intending to make a Non-exempt Offer of Securities in any Member State of the EEA may only do so if this Base Prospectus has been approved by the competent authority in that Member State (or, where appropriate, approved in another Member State and notified to the competent authority in that Member State) and published in accordance with the EU Prospectus Regulation, PROVIDED THAT the Issuer has consented to the use of this Base Prospectus in connection with such offer as provided under "Consent given in accordance with Article 5(1) of the EU Prospectus Regulation (Retail Cascades)" and the conditions attached to that consent are complied with by the person making the Non-exempt Offer of such Securities.

Save as provided above, none of the Issuer, the Guarantor (where applicable) and the Dealers have authorised, nor do they authorise, the making of any Non-exempt Offer of Securities in circumstances in which an obligation arises for the Issuer, the Guarantor (where applicable) or any Dealer to publish or supplement a prospectus for such offer.

Consent given in accordance with Article 5(1) of the EU Prospectus Regulation (Retail Cascades)

In the context of a Non-exempt Offer of such Securities, the Issuer and where applicable the Guarantor accept responsibility, in the jurisdictions to which the consent to use the Base Prospectus extends, for the content of this Base Prospectus under Article 11 of the EU Prospectus Regulation in relation to any person (an "Investor") who acquires any Securities in a Non-exempt Offer made by any person to whom the Issuer has given consent to the use of this Base Prospectus (an "Authorised Offeror") in that connection, PROVIDED THAT the conditions attached to that consent are complied with by the Authorised Offeror. The consent and conditions attached to it are set out under "EEA Consent" and "Common Conditions to EEA Consent" below.

None of the Issuer, the Guarantor (where applicable) and any Dealer makes any representation as to the compliance by an Authorised Offeror with any applicable conduct of business rules or other applicable regulatory or securities law requirements in relation to any Non-exempt Offer and none of the Issuer, the Guarantor (where applicable) and any Dealer has any responsibility or liability for the actions of that Authorised Offeror.

Save as provided below, none of the Issuer, the Guarantor (where applicable) and any Dealer has authorised the making of any Non-exempt Offer by any offeror and the Issuer has not consented to the use of this Base Prospectus by any other person in connection with any Non-exempt Offer of Securities. Any Non-exempt Offer made without the consent of the Issuer is unauthorised and none of the Issuer, the Guarantor (where applicable) and any Dealer accepts any responsibility or liability for the actions of the persons making any such unauthorised offer.

If, in the context of a Non-exempt Offer, an Investor is offered Securities by a person which is not an Authorised Offeror, the Investor should check with that person whether anyone is responsible for this Base Prospectus for the purposes of Article 11 of the EU Prospectus Regulation in the context of the Non-exempt Offer and, if so, who that person is. If the Investor is in any doubt about whether it can rely on this Base Prospectus and/or who is responsible for its contents it should take legal advice.

EEA Consent

The Issuer consents and (in connection with paragraph (b) below) offers to grant its consent to the use of this Base Prospectus in relation to any offer of Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by it for the period of 12 months from the date of this Base Prospectus in relation to any offer as provided below. In the event this Base Prospectus is replaced by a base prospectus of the Issuer which is approved and published by the Issuer during the Offer Period relating to a Non-exempt Offer of Securities then the

SECTION G.4 – DESCRIPTION OF THE RETURN ON THE SECURITIESSECURITIES WHICH ARE NOTES OR CERTIFICATES

This Section relates only to Securities which are Notes or Certificates.

The Securities which are Notes or Certificates may be Securities which do not bear interest, interest bearing securities, securities which pay a fixed amount on redemption, and/or securities whose return (in respect to any interest payable on such securities and/or the redemption amount payable in respect of such Securities) is linked to one or more Underlyings. This section provides information in respect of certain product features and/or characteristics which may have an effect on the return on the Securities. Investors should note that the product features and/or characteristics and their effect on the return on the Securities as described in this Section are not intended to be exhaustive. Investors should also read the risk factors set out in Section B above and the Conditions.

GeneralInterest

The Securities may or may not be expressed to bear interest in the applicable Issue Terms. Where the Securities are expressed to bear interest, then amounts in respect of interest due under the Securities will be determined by reference to the applicable fixed rate, floating rate, CMS rate, forward rate, inflation rate, variable rate or performance amount rate (determined by reference to the relevant Underlying(s)) but, unless the applicable Issue Terms specify that the provisions relating to Interest Barrier Events are applicable, whether interest is due or not shall not otherwise be determined by reference to the performance of the relevant rate(s), inflation index or Underlying(s).

Where the applicable Issue Terms specifies that the provisions relating to Interest Barrier Events are applicable, then whether interest is due or not may be determined by reference to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s). The applicable Issue Terms may specify that, if an Interest Barrier Event does not occur in respect of the relevant Interest Payment Date, then no amount in respect of interest shall be paid on that Interest Payment Date.

The amount of interest due (if any) may be determined by reference to a formula and the performance of any applicable inflation rate, floating rate, CMS rate, forward rate, inflation rate, variable rate or the relevant Underlying(s). Depending on such factors, it is possible that no amount in respect of interest shall be paid on the relevant Interest Payment Date. You should review the Conditions to determine which provisions and features apply to the relevant Securities.

If the Interest Barrier Event provisions are applicable and, in accordance with their terms, interest is to be calculated in respect of the relevant Interest Payment Date, the amount of interest due on such Interest Payment Date will also be determined by reference to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s) if Interim Performance Interest Provisions are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms or, otherwise, the amount of interest due on such Interest Payment Date will be an amount determined by reference to the applicable fixed rate or amount, floating rate, CMS rate or inflation rate provisions set out in the applicable Issue Terms.

In addition to the features described under "Barrier Events" below, an Interest Barrier Event will occur (a) if "Interest Barrier Event Lock-In" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, if the relevant interest lock-in condition has been satisfied in respect of a prior Interest Payment Date (such that, once the relevant Interest Lock-in Level has been satisfied in respect of an Interest Payment Date, then an Interest Barrier Event will occur in respect of each subsequent Interest Payment Date); and (b) if "Multi-Chance Provisions" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, only if an Interest Barrier Event has occurred in respect of a specified minimum number of relevant Underlying(s) and in such circumstances the amount of interest due may then depend on the exact number of relevant Underlying(s) above such minimum number in respect of which an Interest Barrier Event has occurred for such Interest Payment Date; and (c) if "Range Accrual" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, on each range accrual observation date during the relevant interest period and the amount of interest due will accrue in respect of each such date on which an Interest Barrier Event occurs; if an Interest Barrier Event occurs on no date during the relevant interest period, then no amount in respect of interest shall be due.

DESCRIPTION OF THE RETURN ON THE SECURITIES

If the Securities are specified as "Buy the Dip Securities" in the applicable Issue Terms, the amount of interest due on such Interest Payment Date will be determined by reference to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s) as well as a fixed rate specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

Securities may, in addition to any amounts in respect of interest due as described above pay a Non-Contingent Interest Amount on each Non-Contingent Interest Payment Date, but only if the Non-Contingent Interest Provisions are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms.

If you invest in Securities to which an Interest Barrier Event applies, you should be aware that you may not receive any amount in respect of interest during the term of the Securities.

Specific features of Variable Rate Securities

- Caps, floors, collars and participation rates or multipliers

Certain formulae for determining interest under the Securities may be subject to one or a combination of the following features:

- a maximum amount (a cap)
- a minimum amount (a floor)
- a maximum amount and a minimum amount (a collar)
- one or more participation rates or multipliers

In such circumstances, the relevant calculation will not be made only by reference to the performance of the relevant rate(s), inflation index(ices) and/or Underlying(s) and the application of such features may result in the calculation being subject to a minimum and/or maximum amount or otherwise increasing or decreasing the amount that would otherwise have been calculated had no such feature(s) been applicable.

The value of or movements in the value of the relevant rate, inflation index or Underlying will be magnified where a participation rate or multiplier applies and may therefore result in greater increases or decreases in the amount of interest payable than if no participation rate applied.

- Absolute value:

Certain formulae for determining amounts due under the Securities may make reference to an "absolute value", meaning that the relevant calculation, if resulting in a negative number, will be determined as if it were a positive number.

- FX performance:

An "FX performance" feature may be applied to the formulae for determining amounts due under the Securities, meaning that the formulae shall be adjusted to take into account the performance or change in value of a specified FX rate from a specified initial valuation date to a specified final valuation date. In such case, amounts due in respect of the Securities will also be linked to the performance of the relevant exchange rate and negative performance of such exchange rate could negate any positive performance of relevant rate(s) or applicable Underlying(s).

- Reserve Coupon

A "reserve coupon" feature may be applied to the formulae for determining amounts due under the Notes, meaning that, subject as provided in the Conditions,

- if Reserve Option is specified to be Option 1 in the applicable Issue Terms, interest amounts which are greater than the reserve coupon rate being capped and the excess amounts being applied to "top up" later interest amounts up to a maximum of the reserve coupon rate. The reserve coupon rate for the final interest period shall then be applied to either increase (where the total reserve coupon is a positive number) or decrease (where the total reserve coupon is a negative number) the Redemption Amount of the Securities.; or

- if Reserve Option is specified to be Option 2 in the applicable Issue Terms, the average amount by which an actual coupon rate is less than zero for each interest period within the specified initial reserve period shall be applied to reduce interest amounts payable during the remaining term of the Securities. In addition and if specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the redemption amount may be increased or decreased by the sum of the redemption reserve amounts during the remaining reserve period; or
- if Reserve Option is specified to be Option 3 in the applicable Issue Terms, interest rates for each interest period will be floored at the specified Floor and the amount by which such actual coupon rate is less than the Floor will be used to reduce the amount of any interest rate for future interest periods where the actual coupon rate is greater than the Floor. In addition, where the total reserve coupon for the final interest period is greater than zero, the total reserve coupon will be applied to reduce the Redemption Amount of the Securities (subject to the application of any floor applied to such Redemption Amount).

- Auto Floor

An "auto floor" feature may be applied to the formulae for determining amounts due under the Securities, meaning that, subject as provided in the Conditions, the specified floor will be applied to the actual coupon amount determined in respect of the Securities where such actual coupon amount is less than the specified floor, but such floor will only be applied to a number of such interest periods up to the specified Initial Floorlets Number. Where the actual coupon amount is less than the specified floor for more than such number of interest periods during the term of the Securities, the specified floor will not be applied to all such actual coupon amounts.

- Auto Cap

An "auto cap" feature may be applied to the formulae for determining amounts due under the Securities, meaning that, the specified cap will be applied to the actual coupon amount determined in respect of the Securities where such actual coupon amount is more than the specified cap, but such cap will only be applied to a number of such interest periods up to the specified Initial Caplets Number. Where the actual coupon amount is more than the specified cap for more than such number of interest periods during the term of the Securities, the specified cap will not be applied to all such actual coupon amounts.

- Global interest floor:

A "global interest floor" may be applied to the formulae for determining amounts due under the Securities for specified periods, meaning that the total amount of interest payable in respect of the Securities in respect of such period shall not be less than the floor amount. In such case, if the total amount of interest paid in respect of the Securities for the relevant period prior to the application of the global interest floor provisions is less than the floor amount, the difference between such total amount of interest and the floor amount shall be paid on the final interest payment date in respect of the Securities in such period.

- Global interest cap:

A "global interest cap" may be applied to the formulae for determining amounts due under the Securities, meaning that the total amount of interest payable in respect of the Securities shall not be greater than the cap amount. In such case, if the total amount of interest paid in respect of the Securities prior to the application of the global interest cap provisions is greater than the cap amount, the interest amount payable in respect of the relevant interest payment date shall be capped such that the total amount of interest payable in respect of the Securities in respect of each interest payment date up to (and including) the relevant interest payment date does not exceed the cap amount and no further interest will be payable in respect of the Securities after such date. This will decrease the amount that would have been payable had such cap not been applied and will result in no interest being paid in respect of the Securities after the cap has been reached.

- Restructuring feature

A "restructure" feature may apply to the Securities meaning that a Securityholder holding all of the outstanding Securities may make a valid request that the Issuer restructure the interest basis relating to such Securities. If the Securityholder accepts the restructure rate (which may be a fixed, floating or variable rate) proposed by the Issuer, the interest basis of such Securities will be changed for the relevant interest payment dates. A fee may be payable by the Securityholder in respect of the relevant restructuring and there may be a maximum number of restructures.

- Switcher feature

A "Switcher Option" may apply to the Securities, meaning that the Securities may bear interest at a rate that converts, at the option of the Issuer, from one specified rate to another specified rate. The Issuer may be expected to convert the rate when it is likely to produce a lower overall cost of borrowing for the Issuer.

- Lock-in change of interest basis

A "Lock-in Change of Interest Basis" may apply to the Securities, meaning that the interest basis in respect of the Securities will change on the occurrence of one or more lock-in event(s) as provided therein.

- Dual Currency Securities

If the Securities are Dual Currency Securities, then amounts payable in respect of the Securities will be determined by converting all amounts due under the Securities from the currency in which the Securities are denominated into the payment currency by multiplying such amounts due by the Dual Currency Exchange Rate for the relevant specified valuation date.

Mandatory early redemption or "autocall"

If "Mandatory Early Redemption Provisions" are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, then such Issue Terms will specify what constitutes a "Mandatory Early Redemption Event" or "Mandatory Early Redemption Barrier Event" and, following satisfaction of the Mandatory Early Redemption Condition or the occurrence of a Mandatory Early Redemption Barrier Event, the Securities will be redeemed on the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Date and the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Amount or Early Exit MER Amount, as the case may be, specified in the applicable Issue Terms will become payable on the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Date, provided that, where a "Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon" is specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the Issuer shall also pay the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon on the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon Payment Date in respect of the relevant Mandatory Early Redemption Date. No further amount shall be payable in respect of such Securities after the Mandatory Early Redemption Date. In this case, you are subject to a reinvestment risk, as you may not be able to replace your investment in such Securities with an investment that has a similar profile of chances and risks as the relevant Securities.

If any Securities are redeemed early in accordance with the above, the amount you receive will be limited to the Mandatory Early Redemption Amount or Early Exit MER Amount, as the case may be, and (if applicable) the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon irrespective of the value of the relevant Underlying(s) or any other reference factor(s) applicable to such Underlying(s). Furthermore, you will not benefit from any movement in the value of relevant Underlying(s) or other reference factors relating to the Securities that may occur during the period between the relevant date of early redemption and the maturity date.

Where the "Rollerball MER Condition" is specified as the Mandatory Early Redemption Condition, the Securities will redeem on the mandatory early redemption date in respect of which the relevant rollerball reference observation is, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms:

- (a) equal to or above the specified rollerball barrier; or

- (b) above the specified rollerball barrier; or
- (c) equal to or below the specified rollerball barrier; or
- (d) below the specified rollerball barrier.

A rollerball reference observation may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms as (i) a Floating Interest Rate, (ii) a CMS Interest Rate, (iii) a Spread Interest Rate or (iv) an FX Rate.

A rollerball barrier may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms as (i) a fixed rate, (ii) a Floating Interest Rate, (iii) a CMS Interest Rate, (iv) a Spread Interest Rate, (v) an FX Rate, (vi) the sum of more than one rate or (vii) one rate minus another rate.

Where the "TARN MER Condition" is specified as the Mandatory Early Redemption Condition, the Securities will redeem on the mandatory early redemption date on which the total interest payable in respect of the Securities (including the interest payable in respect of the interest period ending on or about such mandatory early redemption date but without taking into account any excluded interest) is equal to or greater than, the TARN Rate specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

Unless the Mandatory Early Redemption Amount or, as the case may be, Early Exit MER Amount (together with (if applicable) the Mandatory Early Redemption Coupon) is a specified fixed amount and such amount is greater than your initial investment in the Securities, then you should note that, unless a scheduled minimum redemption amount is specified in all circumstances, then you will lose all or part of your investment.

Where "Mandatory Early Redemption Event override" is specified in the applicable Issue Terms and a Mandatory Early Redemption Event occurs prior to the Maturity Date of the Securities, the Securities will be early redeemed in accordance with the Mandatory Early Redemption provisions and not the final redemption provisions which may result in payment of a lower amount than would have been payable had the final redemption provisions prevailed.

Optional early redemption

If "Optional Early Redemption Provisions" are specified as applicable, following the satisfaction of the relevant Optional Early Redemption Condition and the occurrence of an Optional Early Redemption Event, the Securities may (at the option of the Issuer) be redeemed on the relevant Optional Early Redemption Date and the Optional Early Redemption Amount will become payable on the Optional Early Redemption Date. No further amount shall be payable in respect of such Securities after the Optional Early Redemption Date. In this case, you are subject to a reinvestment risk, as you may not be able to replace your investment in such Securities with an investment that has a similar profile of chances and risks as the relevant Securities.

Where "OER Underlying Trigger Condition" is specified as the Optional Early Redemption Condition, the Securities may (at the option of the Issuer) be redeemed if either (i) the fair market value of the Securities (determined as provided in the Conditions and, where applicable, converted into the settlement currency and (where "OER Underlying Currency Conversion" applies) the currency of the Underlying) at the prevailing exchange rate, is at any time less (or equal to or less than, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) than the specified trigger level in respect of the Securities or (ii) the value of the Underlying is at any time less than (or equal to or less than, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms) the specified trigger level in respect of the Underlying.

If the Securities are redeemed early in accordance with the above, the amount you receive will be limited to the Optional Early Redemption Amount irrespective of the value of the relevant Underlying or any other reference factor(s) applicable to the Underlying. Furthermore, you will not benefit from any movement in the price of relevant Underlying or other reference factor(s) that may occur during the period between the relevant date of early redemption and the maturity date.

You should note that, where the Optional Early Redemption Amount is the fair market value of the Securities less any costs to unwind any related hedging arrangements, you may lose all or a substantial amount of your investment.

Securities subject to optional redemption by the Issuer (Issuer Call)

An optional redemption feature of Securities, as set out in General Condition 6 (Redemption and Purchase) and any related provisions in the applicable Issue Terms, is likely to limit their market value. During any period when the Issuer may elect to redeem Securities, the market value of those Securities generally will not rise substantially above the price at which they can be redeemed. This also may be true prior to any redemption period.

The Issuer may be expected to redeem Securities when its cost of borrowing is lower than the interest rate on the Securities. At those times, an investor generally would not be able to reinvest the redemption proceeds at an effective interest rate as high as the interest rate on the Securities being redeemed and may only be able to do so at a significantly lower rate. You should consider reinvestment risk in light of other investments available at that time.

Redemption amount or Entitlement due on the maturity date

Where the Underlying Linked Securities Redemption Provisions are specified as not applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, then either (i) a fixed redemption amount shall be due in respect of each Security on the Maturity Date which shall not be linked to the performance of any Underlying or (ii) a redemption amount linked to the performance of specified inflation indices or to certain interest rates or amounts shall be due in respect of each Security on the Maturity Date, as further described below.

DIR Inflation Linked Redemption

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify that the redemption amount payable in respect of the Securities is the DIR Inflation Linked Redemption Amount, the redemption amount due in respect of each Security on the Maturity Date shall be determined by reference to movements in the applicable inflation index.

Inflation Linked Redemption Securities

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify that the Securities are the Inflation Linked Redemption Securities, the redemption amount due in respect of each Security on the Maturity Date shall be determined by reference to movements in the applicable inflation index.

Lock-in Redemption Securities

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify that the Securities are Lock-in Redemption Securities, the redemption amount due in respect of each Securities on the Maturity Date shall be determined by reference to the applicable FX rate.

Rate Linked Redemption Securities

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify that the Securities are Rate Linked Redemption Securities, the redemption amount due in respect of each Securities on the Maturity Date shall be determined by reference to the applicable rate(s).

Interest Linked Redemption Notes

Where the applicable Issue Terms specify that the Securities are the Interest Linked Redemption Securities, the redemption amount due in respect of the Securities on the Maturity Date shall be the sum of (i) the principal amount of the Securities plus (ii) the sum of all the Interest Amounts determined in respect of the Securities (which may be a positive or negative value or zero).

Underlying Linked Securities Redemption Provisions

Where the Underlying Linked Securities Redemption Provisions are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and the provisions relating to Redemption Barrier Event are specified as not applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, then the redemption amount due or assets deliverable shall in all circumstances be linked to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s).

Where the Underlying Linked Securities Redemption Provisions are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and the provisions relating to Redemption Barrier Event are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, then the redemption amount due or assets deliverable shall depend on whether a Redemption Barrier Event has occurred and, if the provisions relating to Redemption Upper Barrier Event or the provisions relating to Redemption Lower Barrier Event are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, if a Redemption Upper Barrier Event or a Redemption Lower Barrier Event respectively has occurred. The applicable Issue Terms will specify what constitutes a "Redemption Barrier Event" and any "Redemption Upper Barrier Event" or "Redemption Lower Barrier Event". Such alternate amounts may either be expressed as being a fixed redemption amount shall be due in respect of each Security or as being a redemption amount due or assets deliverable that is linked to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s).

Where the redemption amount or assets deliverable at maturity is determined by reference to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s), unless a scheduled minimum redemption amount is specified in all circumstances, then you may lose all or part of your investment.

In addition, a Redemption Barrier Event will occur if "Redemption Lock-In Event" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, and will operate to override any other redemption provisions if the relevant redemption lock-in condition has been satisfied (such that, once the relevant Redemption Lock-in Level has been satisfied in respect of a Redemption Lock-in Event Valuation Date, other redemption provisions will have no effect on the amount payable at maturity, regardless of the performance of the relevant Underlying(s) or whether any other barrier is satisfied).

Features which determine amounts due or assets deliverable in respect of Securities linked to the performance of the Underlying(s)

Where the Securities are linked to the performance of Underlying(s), then certain features of such Securities (as described below) may determine amounts due or assets deliverable thereunder.

Performance

Interim Performance, Mandatory Early Redemption Performance and Final Performance may be determined in respect of one or more Underlyings as follows:

- "single underlying observation" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the Underlying performance of a single Underlying for the relevant payment date (assessed as the appreciation or depreciation in level of the relevant Underlying on the relevant Valuation Date(s) compared with the relevant strike date(s) or as otherwise determined as provided in the applicable terms and conditions of the Securities). As such, amounts due or assets deliverable where such provisions apply are linked only to the performance of that Underlying.
- "best of basket observation" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the Underlying having the specified highest performance for the relevant payment date (assessed as the appreciation in level of such Underlying on the relevant Valuation Date(s) compared with the relevant strike date(s) or as otherwise determined as provided in the applicable terms and conditions of the Securities). As such, amounts due or assets deliverable where such provisions apply are linked to such specified highest performing Underlying(s) only. Where the "Himalaya Interim Performance – European Observation" provisions apply, then once an Underlying has had the highest performance for any Interest Payment Date, such Underlying's performance shall be disregarded for each subsequent Interest Payment Date.
- "worst of basket observation" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the Underlying having the specified lowest performance for the relevant payment date (assessed as the depreciation in level of such Underlying on the relevant Valuation Date(s) compared with the relevant strike date(s) or as otherwise determined in the applicable terms and conditions of the Securities). As such, amounts due or assets deliverable where such provisions apply are linked to such specified lowest performing Underlying(s) only and, for example where the "first lowest performance" applies, if one Underlying performs negatively, then any positive performance of all other Underlying(s) will be irrelevant in the determination of the applicable amount(s) due or assets deliverable.
- "Himalaya interim performance – Asian observation" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the arithmetic average of the performance of the Underlying having the highest performance for each relevant Valuation Date relating to the relevant payment date (assessed as the appreciation in level of such Underlying on each such relevant Valuation Date compared with the relevant strike date(s) or as otherwise determined as provided in the applicable terms and conditions of the Securities) but PROVIDED THAT, once an Underlying has had the highest performance for any valuation date relating to that payment date, such Underlying's performance shall be disregarded for each subsequent Valuation Date relating to that payment date (but shall not be disregarded in respect of subsequent Interest Payment Dates). As such, amounts due or assets deliverable are not directly linked to any one Underlying(s) and positive performance of some Underlying(s) may be negated by negative performance of other Underlying(s), particularly as a consistently high performing Underlying will only have its first-occurring highest performance included in the calculation of the arithmetic average performance for the relevant payment date.

- "weighted basket observation" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the performance of a weighted basket of Underlying(s) (assessed as the appreciation or depreciation in level of such Underlying on the relevant Valuation Date(s) compared with the relevant strike date(s)) and multiplied by the weighting. As such, amounts due or assets deliverable are not directly linked to the performance of any one Underlying and positive performance of some Underlying(s) may be negated by negative performance of other Underlying(s), particularly when the weighting attributed to such Underlying(s) having a negative performance is greater than that attributed to those Underlying(s) having a positive performance. Where "rainbow weighting" is applicable, the higher the weighting attributed to the relevant Underlying having the lowest performance for the relevant Valuation Date, the lower the Interim Performance, Mandatory Early Redemption Performance or Final Performance, as the case may be.
- "outperformance" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the difference in the performance of the Underlying or Underlyings comprising the Outperformance A Underlyings and the Underlying or Underlyings comprising the Outperformance B Underlying. Therefore, the performance will be positive where the performance of the Outperformance A Underlyings is greater than the performance of the Underlying or Underlyings comprising the Outperformance B Underlying. In determining which Underlyings comprise each of the Outperformance A Underlyings and the Outperformance B Underlyings, any of the above observation provisions may apply, as further detailed in the applicable Issue Terms.
- "arithmetic mean underlying return" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the arithmetic average of the underlying returns of a basket of Underlying(s). Each underlying return being assessed as the appreciation or depreciation in level of each such Underlying on the relevant Valuation Date(s) compared with the relevant strike date(s) or a capped, floored, collared or fixed percentage (which may be zero) instead of such appreciation or depreciation for that Underlying, all as further detailed in the terms and conditions of the Securities. As such, amounts due or assets deliverable are not directly linked to the performance of any one specified Underlying.
- "cliquet" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to, as specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the sum or product of the re-setting performance of a single Underlying for each relevant Valuation Date relating to that payment date (assessed as the appreciation or depreciation in level of the Underlying on the relevant Valuation Date compared with its value on the last relevant Valuation Date(s) or, if none, the relevant strike date(s) or as otherwise determined as provided in the applicable terms and conditions of the Securities). If period performance provisions apply, then that sum or product of the re-setting performance of the Underlying shall be subtracted from the performance of the single Underlying for the period relating to the relevant payment date (such performance for the period being assessed as the appreciation or depreciation in level of the Underlying on the relevant last occurring Valuation Date relating to the payment date compared with its value on first occurring Valuation Date relating to that payment date or, if none, the strike date(s)) or vice versa. As such, amounts due or assets deliverable where such provisions apply are linked only to the performance of that Underlying.

- "best of profile" means that the relevant performance is calculated by reference to the highest basket performance of two baskets comprised of the same Underlying(s) but having different weighting profiles, the basket performance being assessed as the appreciation or depreciation in the level of each of the Underlying(s) comprising the basket on the relevant Valuation Date(s) compared with the relevant strike date(s), all as further detailed in the terms and conditions of the Securities. As such, amounts due or assets deliverable where such provisions apply are not directly linked to the performance of any one Underlying and the positive performance of some Underlying(s) may be negated by the negative performance of other Underlying(s) in either or both baskets, particularly where the weighting attributed to those Underlying(s) having a negative performance is greater than that attributed to those Underlying(s) having a positive performance. There can be no guarantee that the weighting profile of either basket will emphasise the positive performance of any Underlying

You must ensure that you read and understand the relevant performance provisions in respect of the Securities as these will influence if certain amounts are paid or delivered and may impact the relevant amount or assets due in respect of the Securities.

Barrier Events

Whether a Barrier Event has occurred or not may be determined by reference (a) to one or more Underlying(s) and, in the case of each such Underlying, whether it is less than, less than or equal to, greater than, greater than or equal to or within specified barrier levels; (b) to specified dates only ("European" observation) or during a period ("American" observation); (c) the aggregate interest amounts calculated by reference to the performance of such Underlying(s) and paid in respect of the Securities; and/or (d) to the performance of such Underlying(s) as detailed under Performance above, or by reference to the closing level or the level of the relevant Underlying(s) continuously observed or the arithmetic average, highest or lowest of the closing level or the level of the relevant Underlying(s) observed on specified dates.

You must ensure that you read and understand what constitutes each relevant Barrier Event in respect of the Securities as the relevant contingencies will influence if certain amounts are paid or delivered and may impact the relevant amount or assets due in respect of the Securities.

Participation rates, caps, floors and collars applied to formulae

Certain formulae for determining amounts due or assets deliverable under the Securities may be subject to one or a combination of the following features:

- A maximum amount (a cap)
- A minimum amount (a floor)
- A maximum amount and a minimum amount (a collar)
- An "absolute value" (meaning that the relevant calculation, if resulting in a negative number, will be determined as if it were a positive number)
- One or more participation rates
- Addition or subtraction of a specified adjustment amount
- An "fx performance" feature (meaning that the formulae shall be adjusted to take into account the performance or change in value of a specified fx rate from a specified initial valuation date to a specified final valuation date)

In such circumstances, the relevant calculation will not be made only by reference to the performance of the relevant Underlying(s) and the application of such features may result in the calculation being subject to a minimum and/or maximum amount or otherwise increasing or decreasing the amount that would otherwise have been calculated had no such feature(s) been applicable. Movements in the value of the relevant Underlying will be magnified where a participation rate applies and may therefore result in greater gains or losses than if no participation rate applied. Therefore, amounts due or assets deliverable in respect of the Securities will also be linked to the performance of the relevant exchange rate and negative performance of such exchange rate could negate positive performance of the relevant Underlying(s).

Swaption provisions

Where the Performance Linked Redemption Amount is determined by reference to the "Swaption" provisions, the value of the Annuity will go down as the value of the relevant underlying Rate goes up. In addition, you should note that, if the Annuity Factor is negative, the Performance Linked Redemption Amount will increase as the underlying Rate decreases or, if the Annuity Factor is positive, the Performance Linked Redemption Amount will decrease as the underlying Rate increases. Changes in market interest rates may therefore adversely affect the value of the relevant Securities.

FX

Where FX Provisions are specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and a relevant Underlying is denominated in a currency other than the relevant Specified Currency of the Securities then values of such Underlying will be converted into the relevant Specified Currency. Such conversion may, as provided in the terms and conditions of the Securities, be determined by referring to a "cross rate" (meaning that such conversion will be determined via the exchange rate of a third currency). Therefore, amounts due or assets deliverable in respect of the Securities will also be linked to the performance of the relevant exchange rate and negative performance of such exchange rate could negate positive performance of the relevant Underlying(s).

Credit Linked Notes and/or Index Skew Notes

Credit Events

The amount of principal and/or interest payable is dependent upon whether bankruptcy has occurred with respect to the Reference Entity and whether certain credit events ("Credit Events") have occurred in respect of obligations of the Reference Entity that fall within a specified category (e.g., bonds, loans, borrowed money) and where applicable have specified characteristics (e.g., subordination, currency, governing law). Whereas bankruptcy is a Credit Event that relates to the Reference Entity itself, other Credit Events, such as failure to pay or restructuring, relate to obligations of the Reference Entity and only in the case of a restructuring credit event and in certain cases relating to failure to pay where the "2019 NTCE Supplement to the 2014 ISDA Credit Derivatives Definitions (July 15, 2019)" and "Credit Deterioration Requirement" apply in the applicable Issue Terms, deterioration of creditworthiness of the Reference Entity is a pre-condition for a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, to occur. Depending on the terms of the Credit Linked Note, obligations for which the Reference Entity acts in a capacity other than direct obligor (for example, as a guarantor or insurer) may or may not be within the class of obligations that is relevant for the purposes of determining whether a Credit Event has occurred. Investors should additionally be aware that a Reference Entity may decide to restructure only certain classes of its obligations and such a selective restructuring may not result in a Credit Event for the classes of obligations that are relevant for a particular Credit Linked Note. Investors should therefore carefully review the applicable Credit Events and their definitions under the Credit Linked Notes and independently evaluate its appropriateness to the objective for purchasing the Credit Linked Notes.

Impact of a Credit Event or Risk Event on principal and interest

If "2014 Reference Entity" applies, following a Credit Event which is a Governmental Intervention or certain Restructuring Credit Events, an Asset Package Credit Event may occur and the amount of principal payable may be determined based on the value of a package of assets which a relevant obligation of a Reference Entity has been converted into or exchanged for (which may be worth significantly less than the principal amount of such original obligation of such Reference Entity or, where such original obligation has been expropriated for no compensation, may be zero). Prospective investors in such Credit Linked Notes should be aware that depending on the terms thereof (i) they may receive no or a limited amount of interest, (ii) payment of principal or interest or delivery of any specified assets may occur at a different time than expected and (iii) they may lose all or a substantial portion of their investment.

Except in relation to Credit Linked Interest Notes, the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, in relation to any Reference Entity from time to time may result in either full or partial redemption of the Credit Linked Notes on the relevant Credit Event Redemption Date which shall depend on whether "Credit Payment on Maturity" or "Credit Payment Following Credit Event" applies (and additionally, in the case of Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, whether "Redemption in Part" or "Redemption in Full" applies) and any recovery (which could be zero) or any incurred recovery amounts (to the extent that such recovery falls within the tranche to which the Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes are exposed to (as applicable)) will be payable to the investor, but the investor shall be exposed to all incurred losses (to the extent that such losses fall within the tranche to which the Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes are exposed to (as applicable)), which will reduce its principal redemptions. Where "Physical Redemption" applies, the occurrence of a Credit Event may result in the redemption of the Credit Linked Notes based on the delivery of certain direct or indirect obligations of the affected Reference Entity, which may have a market value which is substantially less than their nominal amount.

Except in relation to Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, following the occurrence of a Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, investors should note that interest (in full or in part) will cease to accrue on a specified portion of the relevant Credit Linked Notes as set out in the terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes. In respect of Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, no adjustment will be made to the outstanding principal amount of the Notes on which interest accrues, but the amount of Contingent Interest on such principal amount will be reduced.

Except in relation to Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, if "No Interest Accrual on Default" is applicable, interest will cease from the Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable or where there is no Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, the Issue Date. Except in relation to Credit Linked Interest Notes which are Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes, if "Interest Accrual on Default" is applicable, interest will cease to accrue on the first Business Day immediately following the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable. In such case, interest shall accrue on the affected applicable proportion from (and including) the Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable (or where there is no Interest Payment Date or LA Interest Payment Date, as applicable, immediately preceding the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, the Issue Date) to (and including) the Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable. With respect to the Index Tranching Credit Linked Notes which are Credit Linked Principal Notes or Portfolio Tranching Credit Linked Notes, interest will cease to accrue on the Principal Writedown Amount with effect from the Credit Event Writedown Date, being the business day immediately following the Relevant Event Determination Date.

The Issuer may also suspend interest in certain circumstances where (a) an Applicable DC Credit Event Question or a CE Resolution Notice, as applicable, has been submitted in respect of which a DC Resolution has not been published or the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee has not resolved whether it will convene a meeting to Resolve the Applicable DC Credit Event Question or the matters described in the CE Resolution Notice, as applicable, or (b) where the Calculation Agent has determined that a Credit Event or a Risk Event, as applicable, could occur but no Credit Event Notice or Risk Event Notice, as applicable, has been provided to the Issuer and/or the Securityholders. In such circumstances, investors should note that the Issuer would suspend the maximum amount of interest payable assuming (i) the Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, had occurred, (ii) in the case of an M(M)R Restructuring or Restructuring, as applicable, as though no partial exercise occurred and (iii) where the amount to be withheld requires calculation of any recovery amount, a fixed recovery of zero per cent. applies. Such suspension of interest shall be effected although no Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date has actually occurred.

Investors should be aware that payment of any interest wrongly suspended will be repayable in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes and where insufficient interest has been suspended (the absolute value of such interest shortfall constituting the Interest Suspension Shortfall Amount), such Interest Suspension Shortfall Amount shall be claimed by the Issuer from any future amount(s) payable or assets Delivered upon the redemption or, where applicable, write down in full of the relevant Credit Linked Notes (whether at maturity or upon early redemption). The Issuer however shall have no further claims against any investors for any Interest Suspension Shortfall Amount which cannot be deducted in full or in part (on account of the relevant redemption amount being insufficient).

Interest (if applicable) shall continue to be suspended until the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee makes the relevant announcements or the Calculation Agent determines that no Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, can occur. In such circumstances, investors should note that they may not receive any interest for multiple Interest Periods and no liability will attach to the Issuer for any such non-payment of interest.

Interest will otherwise continue to accrue as usual on any remaining portion of the Credit Linked Note unaffected by the Relevant Credit Event or Relevant Risk Event, as applicable, to and excluding the earlier to occur of any full redemption at Scheduled Maturity Date or any relevant early redemption. Where "Credit Payment on Maturity applies", additional interest shall accrue on the Credit Linked Notes in respect of the Credit Payment on Maturity Amount at the funding interest rate.

Investors should note that the Issuer is not obliged to suffer any loss as a result of a Credit Event or Risk Event. Credit losses on Credit Linked Notes will be calculated irrespective of whether the Issuer has suffered an actual loss in relation to a Reference Entity or any obligations thereof. The Issuer is not obliged to account for any recovery which it may subsequently make in relation to such Reference Entity or its obligations.

Successors

Investors should note that, from time to time, the Reference Entity may be subject to change following the determination of any successors to the Reference Entity, and the creditworthiness of such successors may have an impact on the value of, and return on, the Credit Linked Notes.

Broadly, "successor" means, the entity or entities, if any, determined to have succeeded to a requisite amount of relevant obligations of the Reference Entity. For a Sovereign Reference Entity, an entity may only be a successor to a Reference Entity that is a sovereign following the occurrence of a unification, annexation, unification, secession, partition, dissolution, consolidation, reconstitution or other similar event.

The Calculation Agent will be responsible for determining, as soon as reasonably practicable after it becomes aware of the relevant succession (but, where "2003 Reference Entity" applies, no earlier than 14 calendar days after the legally effective date of the relevant succession event), the sovereign or entity, if any, that qualifies as the successor. The Credit Linked Conditions provide that if a Reference Entity has more than one successor, the Calculation Agent shall amend the terms of the Credit Linked Notes, without consent of the investors, to reflect that the relevant Reference Entity has been succeeded by more than one successor and for the purposes of calculation, the affected notional representing such Reference Entity will be divided equally among the successors. Following such determination, the Credit Linked Notes shall remain outstanding in an amount equal to the Outstanding Aggregate Nominal Amount and interest will accrue on such amount in accordance with the adjustments determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion, acting in a commercially reasonable manner to reflect the economic effects of the identification of more than one successor, considered in the aggregate. Investors should note that the Credit Linked Note may reference substantially different credit risks following the determination of one or more successors. These credit risks could potentially be greater or lesser than the credit risk of the original Reference Entity. Investors should also be aware that the determination of a successor will not necessarily result in the assumption of that obligation by the successor either at all or in the same proportion as the allocation of the notional amount of the original Credit Linked Note. Such changes to the Credit Linked Notes could adversely impact the value of the Credit Linked Notes.

Exposure to Credit Events and successions prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date

The Credit Event Backstop Date represents the first day of the credit protection period for a Series of Credit Linked Notes. The default position under the Credit Linked Conditions is for the Credit Event Backstop Date to be determined on a rolling basis by reference to a look-back period of 60 calendar days from the Credit Event Resolution Request Date or the effective date of the Credit Event Notice, as applicable. Investors should accordingly note a Credit Event occurring prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date may result in a Credit Event being triggered under such Credit Linked Notes. Investors should also note that this will not be the case where the terms of the Credit Linked Notes expressly specify the Credit

Event Backstop Date as the Trade Date or the Issue Date. Credit Linked Notes may also be exposed to Successor determinations in respect of events occurring prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date as, where "2014 Reference Entity" applies, the Credit Linked Notes have a similar backstop date (referred to as "Successor Backstop Date" where "2014 Reference Entity" applies and "Succession Event Backstop Date" where "2003 Reference Entity" applies), which is a look-back period of 90 calendar days prior to the date of a request to convene the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee (or, if applicable, the effective date of a notice to the investor describing the relevant succession) is applicable for the purposes of any Successor determination. In both cases, investors should note that a Credit Event or succession that occurred prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date could affect the relevant Credit Linked Notes. In respect of a Series of Credit Linked Notes to which "2014 Reference Entity" applies, where on or after 1 January 2014, an entity assumes all of the obligations (including at least one relevant obligation) of a Reference Entity which is not a sovereign, in circumstances where a Reference Entity has ceased to exist, or is in the process of being dissolved and has not issued or incurred any borrowed money obligation at any time since the legally effective date of the assumption (such entity, a "Universal Successor"), the look-back period of 90 calendar days will not apply.

Investors should conduct their own review of any recent developments with respect to any Reference Entity(ies) by consulting publicly available information. If, prior to the Trade Date or Issue Date, a request to convene a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to determine whether a Credit Event or Successor determination has occurred with respect to a Reference Entity has been made, details of such request may be found on the DC Secretary's webpage at <https://www.cdsdeterminationscommittees.org/> (or any successor website). If a Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee has not been convened to determine such matter as of the Trade Date or Issue Date, investors should note that one may still be convened after the Trade Date or Issue Date in respect of an event which occurs up to 60 days (in the case of a Credit Event), 90 days in the case of the determination of a Successor) or any time (in the case of the determination of a Universal Successor, where applicable) before the date of a request to convene such Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to make the relevant determinations. Equally, Credit Events and successions may occur but where issues are not raised within the requisite time period to the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to qualify for a Credit Event or a qualifying succession, the events will not impact the relevant Credit Linked Notes, subject to any further actions undertaken by the Calculation Agent (where applicable).

Reference Obligations under the Credit Linked Notes

Where "2014 Reference Entity" applies and "Standard Reference Obligation" is applicable, the reference obligation will be the obligation specified as the market standard reference obligation for the relevant Reference Entity for the relevant seniority level (the "Standard Reference Obligation" or SRO") when such SRO is published on the relevant SRO list and from the date of such publication any non-standard reference obligation set out in the applicable Issue Terms (if any) will no longer be the reference obligation. The rules outlining the selection and replacement of the Standard Reference Obligation are contained within the rules relating to Standard Reference Obligation, as published by the relevant CDS Information Publisher and as amended and/or supplemented from time to time in accordance with the terms thereof (the "SRO Rules"). The SRO for a relevant seniority level will only be replaced by the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee by majority vote in certain circumstances set out in the SRO Rules (for example, if the Standard Reference Obligation matures, is redeemed or is no longer an obligation of the Reference Entity, or in the case of where Financial Reference Entities is stated to be applicable in the applicable Issue Terms and where Mod R or Mod Mod R applies, if the Standard Reference Obligation has less than one year remaining maturity and a replacement Standard Reference Obligation is available in the first maturity bucket, amongst others) after performing the necessary legal review and the Calculation Agent, the Issuer, the Dealer and/or one or more of their respective affiliates are not under an obligation to replace the SRO if a substitution event occurs. The applicable Issue Terms may specify that Standard Reference Obligation does not apply, in which case the Reference Obligation will be the non-standard reference obligation specified in the applicable Issue Terms, if any. Where certain substitution events occur with respect to such non-standard reference obligations, the Calculation Agent will attempt to substitute the same in accordance with the criteria and conditions set out in the Credit Linked Notes.

In relation to a Reference Obligation Only Series, the Credit Linked Notes shall early redeem without any substitution of the reference obligation where the reference obligation is redeemed in whole but otherwise, no substitution will be required if the aggregate amounts under the said obligation have reduced or it no longer is an obligation of the Reference Entity.

Asset Package Delivery

Under the Credit Linked Conditions, where "2014 Reference Entity" applies, asset package delivery provisions may apply in respect of a Financial Reference Entity in certain circumstances if either (i) a "Governmental Intervention" Credit Event has occurred or (ii) if "Restructuring" is an applicable Credit Event, a restructuring has occurred in respect of the reference obligation of a Financial Reference Entity, and such restructuring does not constitute a "Governmental Intervention" Credit Event. Asset package delivery options may also apply in respect of certain Sovereigns subject to restructuring of a package observable bond if Package Observable Bonds, being a certain number of deliverable bonds of the sovereign, exist. Following a "Governmental Intervention" Credit Event or a restructuring of a reference obligation, in each case in respect of a Financial Reference Entity, or in the case of certain sovereigns subject to restructuring of a package observable bond, provided that there was an existing obligation of the Reference Entity which, immediately prior to the relevant event constituted a deliverable obligation (a "Prior Deliverable Obligation" in the case of a Financial Reference Entity and "Package Observable Bond" in the case of certain sovereigns), the assets which result from such Prior Deliverable Obligation or Package Observable Bond can be used for the purposes of redeeming the Credit Linked Notes (such redemption "Asset Package Delivery").

Asset Package Delivery may apply if an Asset Package Credit Event occurs unless (i) such Asset Package Credit Event occurs prior to the Credit Event Backstop Date determined in respect of the Credit Event that triggered redemption, (ii) the Reference Entity is a Sovereign and no Package Observable Bond exists immediately prior to such Asset Package Credit Event, or (iii) the Reference Entity is a Sovereign and "2014 Sovereign No Asset Package Delivery Supplement to the 2014 ISDA Credit Derivatives Definitions (September 15, 2014)" is specified as "Applicable" in the applicable Issue Terms (even if such a Package Observable Bond has been published by the relevant CDS Information Publisher or any other successor entity).

Asset Package Delivery may apply in circumstances where the deliverable obligation has either been converted into something that does not constitute a deliverable obligation (e.g. equity), written-down in part (such that it becomes uneconomic to deliver) or written-down in full (such that it is uneconomic to deliver, but in any event, there is no obligation that can actually be delivered). In such circumstances, investors should note that the Outstanding Principal Balance will be treated to be the Outstanding Principal Balance immediately prior to the relevant Asset Package Credit Event and where the Outstanding Principal Balance is deemed to be written down to zero, the Asset Package shall be deemed to be zero and delivery of the Package Observable Bond or Prior Deliverable Obligation will be deemed to have been satisfied in full. For the purposes of Asset Package Delivery, the asset package for any holder of the relevant Prior Deliverable Obligation or Package Observable Bond will consist of all of the assets in the proportion received or retained by such holder in connection with the Asset Package Credit Event. The relevant asset package must be delivered in the proportion received or retained by such a holder. If the asset package is not capable of being transferred (excluding due to market conditions) or is not of the type typically traded in, or suitable for being traded in, financial markets, the asset shall be deemed to be an amount of cash equal to the market value thereof by the Calculation Agent by reference to an appropriate specialist valuation or in accordance with the methodology determined by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee. In such case, Asset Package Delivery will occur by payment of such cash amount.

Sovereign Restructured Deliverable Obligations

Investors should note that where Asset Package Delivery is not applicable, an Obligation of a Reference Entity which is a Sovereign (either directly or as provider of a Relevant Guarantee) (a) in respect of which a Restructuring that is the subject of the Credit Event Notice or DC Credit Event Announcement has occurred and (b) which meets the deliverable obligation criteria falling within the specific category (Bond and/or Loan) and meeting certain characteristics immediately preceding the date on which such Restructuring is legally effective in accordance with the terms of the documentation governing such Restructuring remains a good deliverable for the purposes of inclusion on any Final List or Physical Redemption save that unlike in the case of Asset Package Delivery, the outstanding principal balance will not be deemed to be such outstanding principal balance prior to the restructuring credit event but will be assessed as per the terms of the Credit Linked Note at the time of determination. Accordingly, the Issuer may be required to deliver additional deliverable obligations in order to meet the outstanding principal balance requirements for delivery.

M(M)R Restructuring and Movement Option

If "Restructuring Maturity Limitation and Fully Transferable Obligation Applicable" or "Modified Restructuring Maturity Limitation and Conditionally Transferable Obligation Applicable" applies, depending on whether "2003 Reference Entity" or "2014 Reference Entity" applies and M(M)R Restructuring occurs, investors should note that the deliverable obligations which qualify for inclusion on the Final List or for "Physical Redemption" must not only meet the specific deliverability obligation category or characteristics but is further restricted by virtue of its tenor to maturity. Accordingly, the loss suffered by an investor will depend on the recovery (expressed as a percentage) for the relevant deliverables. Longer dated obligations are subjected to lower recovery in comparison with the shorter dated obligations. Where the Calculation Agent determines in respect of an M(M)R Restructuring that a No Auction Announcement Date has occurred in certain circumstances, it may elect (in its sole and absolute discretion) to deliver a Notice to Exercise Movement Option to the Issuer in order for redemption to be effected by virtue of the relevant Auction Redemption Amount being determined by reference to a "Parallel Auction" identified by the Calculation Agent in the Notice to Exercise Movement Option, where the permissible deliverables are more limited in order to accommodate "Auction Redemption". Accordingly, in these circumstances, the loss suffered by an investor will depend on the recovery for the deliverable obligations associated with the particular "Parallel Auction".

Auction Redemption following a Credit Event

If "Auction Redemption" is applicable with respect to the Credit Linked Notes, then the amounts payable under the Credit Linked Notes will be determined on the basis of the final price determined pursuant to the auction procedure set out in the relevant Credit Derivatives Auction Settlement Terms. In respect of specified obligations of the relevant Reference Entity, provided that the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee determines that an applicable auction will be held, an auction final price determination date will occur. Credit losses determined pursuant to a market auction process may be greater or less than the losses which would have been determined in the absence of the auction. In particular, the auction process may be affected by technical factors or operational errors, which would not otherwise apply or may be the subject of actual or attempted manipulation. The administrator(s) specified in the auction settlement terms conduct auctions. Investors are subject to the risk that where a final price is determined in accordance with an auction, this may result in a lower recovery value than an obligation of the Reference Entity would have had if such final price had been determined pursuant to alternative methods.

In addition, the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee may amend the form of auction settlement terms for a particular auction. The DC Rules provide for certain amendments by resolution of a convened Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee. Other amendments may be made subject to a public comment period; however, the DC Rules permit the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee to forego a public comment period by supermajority action. Accordingly, there can be no assurance that the Credit Derivatives Auction Settlement Terms for a particular auction will be on similar terms to the form of auction settlement terms or the terms of previous auctions.

Where the only relevant Credit Event is a restructuring, several concurrent but separate auctions may occur with respect to the Reference Entity and such Credit Event. The auction settlement amount may be based on the price of one or more obligations of the Reference Entity having a final maturity date different from the restructured obligation.

Although auctions can generally be expected to be held for Reference Entities that are widely traded in the credit markets, there can be no assurance that an auction will be held for future Credit Events or that, if held, the auction will result in the determination of an auction final price. If an auction is not held or fails to result in the determination of an auction final price (as might occur if an auction is cancelled by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee due, for example, to an inability to obtain the requisite number of initial bids) and if "Auction Redemption" is applicable with respect to the Credit Linked Notes, then the "Fallback Redemption Method" shall apply which, depending on the nature of the Credit Linked Notes being redeemed, may be cash redemption, or physical redemption. In such circumstances of cash redemption, the final price will be determined pursuant to the valuation method specified in the Credit Linked Notes.

DESCRIPTION OF THE RETURN ON THE SECURITIES

Investors should carefully assess and understand the elections specified in relation to the relevant Credit Linked Notes and the circumstances and/or events as described above, which may affect the value of and return on such Credit Linked Notes.

Physical redemption following a Credit Event or Risk Event

Where "Physical Redemption" or "LA Physical Redemption" applies to Credit Linked Notes, the Issuer must select obligations of the Reference Entity that satisfy specified criteria and deliver those obligations to the investor in an amount determined in accordance with the terms of the Credit Linked Notes. Investors should be aware that physical redemption may not be possible to accomplish under some circumstances, including where the Issuer is unable to procure the specified or selected deliverable obligation(s) due to market dislocations or prior redemptions or refinancings by the Reference Entity, failure to receive necessary transfer consents (such as from a borrower or agent) or delays in receiving such consents, or court orders prohibiting transfers of an obligation. In such event, the terms of the Credit Linked Notes may provide the Issuer with alternative methods of settlement or permit partial cash settlement subject to certain conditions or specify other fallback consequences which may include redemption by way of payment of a cash amount.

Further, where "Physical Redemption" applies, if all or any part of the Physical Redemption Assets that would be required to be Delivered to a Securityholder is not a whole integral multiple of the smallest unit of transfer for any such Physical Redemption Assets at the relevant time of Delivery, as determined by the Calculation Agent, the Issuer will only Deliver the portion of the Physical Redemption Assets specified by the Issuer which is as large a size as possible but less than the full Physical Redemption Assets, after consideration of such smallest unit or units of transfer and application of rounding. The value of the undelivered obligations will be deemed to be zero and the Issuer's obligations to an investor in respect of such portion shall be fully and effectively discharged in such circumstances. Investors should understand the terms of the obligation and applicable securities laws as these may restrict their ability to take delivery of Deliverable Obligations. If investors are to receive Deliverable Obligations, investors should also note that delivery expenses will be taken into account in determining the Outstanding Principal Balance or Due and Payable Amount of the relevant Deliverable Obligations to be Delivered.

Outstanding Principal Balance

If "2014 Reference Entity" applies, the outstanding principal balance of a deliverable obligation is determined by calculating (i) the amount of all principal payment obligations of a Reference Entity in respect of such obligation, minus (ii) any unwind costs, any delivery expenses, any interest suspension shortfall amounts and any portion of such principal payment obligations that are subject to a contingency (other than certain permitted contingencies) or prohibited action (the amount determined in sub-paragraph (i) above less any amounts subtracted in accordance with sub-paragraph (ii) above, being the "Non-Contingent Amount") and thereafter determining the lowest amount of the claim that could be validly asserted against a Reference Entity in respect of such Non-Contingent Amount if the obligation was redeemed or accelerated. If "2003 Reference Entity" applies, the outstanding principal balance of a deliverable obligation will be determined by the Calculation Agent in its discretion, acting in a commercially reasonable manner, and will similarly deduct any unwind costs, any delivery expenses and any interest suspension shortfall amounts. Accordingly, if payments of principal are subject to a contingency, the outstanding principal balance could be less than the principal balance (and depending upon the type of contingency, could even be zero). The quantum of the claim will be normally determined in accordance with any applicable law that reduce or discount the size of the claim to reflect the original issue price or accrued value of the obligation. Where the "2019 NTCE Supplement to the 2014 ISDA Credit Derivatives Definitions (July 15, 2019)" and "Fallback Discounting" both apply and if certain other conditions are met (being (a) the Outstanding Principal Balance of an obligation is not reduced or discounted in accordance with applicable law and (b) the issue price of a Bond or the amount advanced under a Loan is less than 95 per cent. of the principal redemption amount or principal repayment amount (as applicable), and in each case, there are no provisions relating to the accretion over time of the amount which would be payable on an early redemption or repayment of such Bond or Loan that are customary for such Bond or Loan, as applicable), the Outstanding Principal Balance would instead be the lesser of (i) the Non-Contingent Amount and (ii) an amount determined by straight line interpolation between (A) the issue price of the Bond or the amount advanced under the Loan and (B) the principal redemption amount or principal repayment amount, as applicable. In such circumstances, prospective investors should note that upon Delivery by the Issuer of impacted Deliverable Obligations or LA Settlement

Assets, as applicable, the amount received by the investor would potentially be further reduced which could result in an anticipated par claim being treated as less than par.

Partial cash redemption and Fallback Cash Redemption

The Issuer may be required to make a payment in cash to the Securityholders where, for example, physical delivery is illegal or impossible or the necessary consents for transfer of the relevant Deliverable Obligation have not been obtained. In addition, the Issuer may elect in lieu of delivering all or any part of the Asset Package to pay cash instead to investors the asset market value of any non-delivered asset package converted if necessary, into the currency of denomination of the Credit Linked Notes at the prevailing market rate of exchange determined by the Calculation Agent in good faith. Such asset market value may be determined by the Calculation Agent based on any specialised valuation or methodology determined by the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee or the Calculation Agent or based on a value obtained as though Cash Redemption were to apply on a Valuation Date selected by the Calculation Agent.

Final Physical Redemption Cut-Off Date

The terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes allow for the Issuer in certain circumstances to attempt to continue performing its delivery obligations after the Physical Redemption Date. If Delivery is not completed in full by the Latest Permissible Physical Settlement Date, in certain circumstances when the event affecting Delivery is cured, the Issuer may be required to complete Delivery on or prior to the Final Physical Redemption Cut-Off Date.

Delivery of Loans

Where physical redemption applies and to the extent investors would be required to receive loans as deliverable obligations under a Credit Linked Note, investors should be familiar with the documentation and settlement practices of the relevant secondary loan trading markets and applicable laws and regulations (including the legal consequences of furnishing or receiving non-public information regarding a Reference Entity).

Provisions of the Reference Entity's credit agreements may affect a party's ability to deliver or receive loans, the economic consequences of doing so and whether loans meet deliverability criteria. Accordingly, investors should review such agreements carefully, including the provisions governing assignments, any collateral allocation mechanisms i.e., a mandatory exchange of obligations for other obligations under a credit agreement, not all of which may be deliverable and provisions that may require or entitle a lender to advance funds.

Payment/Delivery Failure Event – failure to deliver

Investors should note that a Payment/Delivery Failure Event will occur where certain relevant definitive Credit Linked Notes (other than Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes) and/or the Deliverable Obligation Notice are not delivered or there is a failure to duly execute, deliver and/or accept a transfer certificate or other transfer document on or before any Delivery Date and/or specify a date for transfer of the relevant Deliverable Obligation that is on or before any Delivery Date. In such case, investors should note that the obligations of the Issuer to procure Delivery of the Physical Redemption Assets and make any payment shall cease until such time such event is cured whereupon deferred delivery shall apply or if "Fallback Cash Redemption" is specified to apply in the applicable Issue Terms, fallback cash settlement shall apply. Investors will not be entitled to any payment, whether of interest or otherwise, in the event of such deferred delivery or payment.

Cash Redemption or LA Cash Redemption following a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable

If "Cash Redemption" or "LA Cash Redemption", as applicable, applies to the Credit Linked Notes, then following the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, the Calculation Agent will be required to seek quotations in respect of selected obligations of the Reference Entity in accordance with the terms and conditions of the Credit Linked Notes. Investors should be aware that such obligations may no longer exist and no qualifying substitute obligations may have been identified, such quotations may not be available, or the level of such quotations may be substantially reduced as a result of illiquidity in the relevant markets or as a result of factors other than the credit risk of the Reference Entity (for example, liquidity constraints affecting market dealers). Moreover, the market value of a Reference Entity's obligations may be highly volatile in the period following a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable. Accordingly, any quotations so obtained may be significantly lower than the value of the relevant obligation which would be determined by reference to (for example) the present value of related cash flows or the value that a party could obtain if it controlled the disposition of the obligations. Furthermore, the price of the selected obligations of the Reference Entity may be deemed to be zero in the event that no such quotations are available. Further, valuation of the selected obligations will be determined at a particular determination date and as such the recovery price which would be adopted in any loss amount or incurred loss amount that would be suffered by an investor following the occurrence of a Credit Event or Risk Event, as applicable, will reflect the value of relevant obligations at a given date. As such, the exposure to loss suffered by an investor or any principal write-down may be more than that ultimately realised by a holder of debt obligations of the Reference Entity, whether by means of enforcement of rights following a default or receipt of distributions following an insolvency or otherwise.

Investors should note that if an Asset Package Credit Event has occurred, (A) valuation of a Prior Deliverable Obligation or Package Observable Bond may be satisfied by valuation of the related Asset Package and such Asset Package shall be treated as having the same currency and Outstanding Principal Balance as that of the Prior Deliverable Obligation or Package Observable Bond, as applicable, to which it corresponds immediately prior to the Asset Package Credit Event, (B) if the Asset Package is zero, a Quotation shall be deemed to have been obtained for the Outstanding Principal Balance of the Prior Deliverable Obligation or Package Observable Bond, as applicable, equal to zero.

Further, where quotations are sought on an asset package, such asset package may contain assets which are hard to value and for which a valuation methodology may not be readily available or suitable, which may reduce the value of quotations or the availability of quotations that may otherwise have been obtained. Accordingly, investors should note that any quotations so obtained may be significantly lower than the value of the relevant obligation (or asset package) which would be determined by reference to (for example) the present value of related cash flows or the value that a party could obtain if it controlled the disposition of the obligations.

Fixed Recovery Redemption or LA Fixed Recovery Redemption may be subject to a fixed recovery price

If "Fixed Recovery Redemption" or "LA Fixed Recovery Redemption" applies to Credit Linked Notes and the Credit Event Redemption Amount of the Credit Linked Notes is calculated by reference to a fixed recovery price of the obligations of a Reference Entity(ies), the occurrence of a Credit Event or a Risk Event, as applicable, may result in the recovery being materially lower than the prevailing price of the relevant obligations of the relevant Reference Entity. Investors should note that redemption could occur with a Fixed Recovery Percentage set at zero per cent. where the applicable Issue Terms specify accordingly.

If the Fixed Recovery Percentage is zero, following the occurrence of a Relevant Event Determination Date or Relevant Risk Event Determination Date, as applicable, the occurrence of the Cash Redemption Date or the Final Cash Redemption Date, the LA Cash Redemption Date or Final LA Cash Redemption Date, as applicable, shall fully and effectively discharge the Issuer's obligation to redeem the relevant Credit Linked Notes in full. Investors should be aware that where the Fixed Recovery Percentage is zero, the loss amount in respect of the Affected Reference Entity will be 100 per cent. and, accordingly, no redemption amounts will be payable or assets deliverable to the Securityholders. Investors accordingly will bear the loss of their principal.

No early redemption or Frustration

Investors should note that the Credit Linked Notes will not early redeem and no frustration shall occur solely because the Reference Entity does not exist on, or ceases to exist on or following, the Trade Date or Issue Date or Obligations, Deliverable Obligations or the Reference Obligation do not exist on, or cease to exist on or following, the Trade Date or Issue Date. Accordingly, investors should conduct their own investigation as to the existence of a Reference Entity and/or relevant obligations prior to the purchase of the Credit Linked Notes to ensure that the exposure to the particular Reference Entity is within the contemplated objectives of the investor.

Merger Events and Early Redemption in certain circumstances

If "Redemption following Merger" is specified as being applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, investors should note that the Credit Linked Notes (other than Nth-to-Default Basket Credit Linked Notes, Index Untranchured Credit Linked Notes, Index Tranchured Credit Linked Notes or Portfolio Tranchured Credit Linked Notes) may be redeemed earlier by the Issuer where it or the Calculation Agent determines that the Issuer or a Reference Entity consolidates or amalgamates with, or merges into, or transfers all or substantially all of its respective assets to, a Reference Entity or the Issuer, as applicable, or the Issuer and a Reference Entity become Affiliates. Accordingly, a Merger Event will result in the relevant Credit Linked Notes being redeemed in full or in part at the Merger Redemption Amount.

If a Reference Obligation is fully redeemed with respect to a Reference Obligation for a Series of Credit Linked Notes in respect of a Reference Entity to which "Reference Obligation Only" applies, investors should note that the relevant Credit Linked Notes shall be redeemed in part or in full at the Substitution Event Redemption Amount. In addition, where "2003 Reference Entity" applies only, if certain other substitution events occur with respect to the relevant Reference Obligations (such as the Reference Obligation ceasing to be an obligation of the Reference Entity) and the Calculation Agent fails to identify a Substitute Reference Obligation by the Extension Date, then where such Reference Obligations is the only Deliverable Obligation, the relevant Credit Linked Notes shall be redeemed in part or in full at the Substitution Event Redemption Amount.

If the Credit Linked Notes are so redeemed early in the circumstances described above, the Issuer will pay to investors, as holder of such Securities, an amount specified in the General Conditions or the Credit Linked Conditions or such other amount (or method for calculating the amount) specified in the applicable Issue Terms. There is no guarantee that the amount repaid to any investor will be equal to or higher than the initial investment in the relevant Credit Linked Notes and such amount may be substantially less than such initial investment.

Relevant Credit Events and Relevant Risk Events disregarded

Where a Relevant Credit Event or a Relevant Risk Event, as applicable, occurs immediately after an event triggering early redemption of the Credit Linked Notes, the occurrence of the Relevant Credit Event or Relevant Risk Event, as applicable, will be disregarded (to the extent that the relevant Credit Linked Notes have not already been redeemed in full and cancelled) and the Early Redemption Amount, Optional Redemption Amount, Merger Redemption Amount or the Substitution Event Redemption Amount, as applicable, payable to Securityholders will be determined on the basis of the event triggering early redemption of the Credit Linked Notes only.

Local Access Credit Linked NotesRisk Events

Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes may be redeemed pursuant to the occurrence of any Credit Event or an Additional Risk Event (together, the "Risk Events") in respect of one or more Reference Entities and, in either case, unless the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes are fixed recovery, on the value of certain specified assets of any such Reference Entities or where, if any of such events has occurred, on settlement the Issuer's obligation is to deliver certain specified assets. Any such settlement will be reduced to take into account any Unwind Costs and so will depend upon the level of such Unwind Costs.

Additional Risk Events are indicative of defaults or risks specific to certain local access jurisdictions and will apply to Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes to the extent that such events apply in the applicable Issue Terms. Prospective investors should note that not all possible Additional Risk Events are related directly to default or credit risk in respect of a Reference Entity or default in respect of the Reference Investor Assets and such Additional Risk Events may include, without limitation, the occurrence of one or more of the following:

- (a) an Inconvertibility Event - the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of any event or condition that has the effect of it being impossible, illegal or impracticable for, or of prohibiting, restricting or materially delaying the ability of, any Reference Investor (i) to convert currency; or (ii) to effect currency transactions on terms as favourable as those available to residents of the Reference Jurisdiction; or (iii) to freely and unconditionally transfer or repatriate any funds from accounts inside the Reference Jurisdiction to accounts outside the Reference Jurisdiction or between accounts inside the Reference Jurisdiction; or (iv) to receive the full value of any cash payment made under the Reference Investor Assets due to the introduction after the Additional Risk Event Start Date by any Governmental Authority of a new currency regime (including the introduction of a dual currency regime) or the imposition of currency exchange limitations;

- (b) an Ownership Restriction Event - the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of any event or existence of any condition that has the effect of it being illegal, impossible or impracticable for, or has the effect of prohibiting, restricting or materially delaying the ability of, any Reference Investor to purchase, hold, receive, sell, freely transfer or remain the owner of any Reference Investor Asset or any amount received in respect thereof;
- (c) a Settlement/Custodial Event - (i) the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of the bankruptcy of any Custodian or (ii) in respect of the Reference Investor Assets owned by a Reference Investor or any amount received in respect thereof, a Custodian (A) fails to perform in a timely manner any or all of its obligations owed under any Reference Custodial/Settlement Arrangement, or (B) fails to take any action when instructed to do so by a Reference Investor, or (C) takes any action which is contrary to the terms of any Reference Custodial/Settlement Arrangement; in each case that affects or may affect, in the determination of the Calculation Agent, the hedging arrangements of the Issuer and/or any of its Affiliates in respect of the Issuer's obligations with respect to the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Note(s) or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Note(s);
- (d) a Reference Assets Liquidation Value Trigger Event – in respect of Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes only, the delivery after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of a notification from the Calculation Agent (acting in its sole and absolute discretion) to the Issuer that it has determined that the weighted average of the Reference Assets Liquidation Value of the Reference Assets of each Reference Entity then comprising the Reference Registry is equal to or less than the Reference Assets Trigger Level of the aggregate Settlement Currency Principal Amount of all Reference Assets;
- (e) a Non-Viability Trigger Event – the occurrence after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of such event as defined under and occurring pursuant to the terms of the Reference Assets Conditions relating to the relevant Reference Asset (including (i) any relevant authority having decided that without a conversion or write-off with respect to the Reference Entity, the Reference Entity would become non-viable; (ii) any relevant authority having decided that a public sector injection of capital or equivalent support is necessary with respect to the Reference Entity, without which the Reference Entity would become non-viable; (iii) any relevant capital adequacy ratio with respect to the Reference Entity falling below the relevant percentage and/or threshold prescribed in the Reference Assets Conditions and/or (iv) any other events (however described) which are similar in nature to the events described in (i) to (iii)), provided that the Calculation Agent may determine any such event under and occurring pursuant to the terms of the Reference Assets Conditions relating to such Reference Assets and/or the Reference Entity constitutes a Non-Viability Trigger Event;
- (f) a Market Value Trigger Event – the delivery after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of a notification from the Calculation Agent (acting in its sole and absolute discretion) to the Issuer that it has determined that on any Business Day the Fair Market Value of the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, is equal to, or less than, the Market Value Trigger Level of the Outstanding Aggregate Nominal Amount of such Credit Linked Notes on such date;
- (g) a Reference Assets Restructuring Event – the cancellation, reduction, suspension or deferral (in whole or in part) after the Additional Risk Event Start Date of any interest, dividend or any other form of distribution in respect of the Reference Assets underlying the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, as applicable, on the due date for payment thereof (whether under the Reference Assets Conditions or otherwise) or, in respect of such Reference Assets, a reduction in its rate of interest, dividend or distribution from the rate of interest, divided or distribution applicable to such Reference Assets on the Issue Date, in each case for any reason whatsoever; and

- (h) any other Additional Risk Event specified as such in the applicable Issue Terms.

The loss incurred by an Investor may be unrelated to or disproportionate in comparison with the Additional Risk Event itself. Moreover, the Calculation Agent may designate an Additional Risk Event, which could cause such losses to be incurred by an Investor, if the Additional Risk Event occurs at any time during the term of the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes, whether or not the Additional Risk Event is ongoing or effective or has been remedied or cured at the time such designation has been made.

Exposure to Reference Asset

In respect of Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes for which "Reference Assets Only Settlement" is specified as applicable in the applicable Issue Terms, following a Risk Event, the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes will be redeemed by valuation or delivery (as applicable) of the Reference Asset in respect of a Reference Entity (rather than obligations of the relevant Reference Entity generally). It follows therefore that returns on such Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes may be adversely affected by circumstances affecting the Reference Asset even where other obligations of the Reference Entity are not affected. The creditworthiness or market value of the relevant Reference Asset may be less favourable than other obligations of the relevant Reference Entity due to liquidity, marketability, circumstances of origination, legal or validity risks, local access risks described below, or one or more other characteristics. Investors in the Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes or Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes should understand that their recovery in relation to the relevant Reference Asset may be substantially less than for more generally representative obligations of the relevant Reference Entity.

Currency Risks

Local Access Single Name Credit Linked Notes and Local Access Basket Credit Linked Notes may be payable in a currency different from the currency in which a Reference Asset is payable, and may have economic features equivalent to a currency derivative in which the cash flows on such Reference Asset are exchanged for the specified cash flows payable on the Notes.

Investors may therefore be exposed to fluctuations in the relevant exchange rate where ongoing calculations under the Notes include a currency exchange rate or due to Unwind Costs which may be deducted on certain redemptions of the Notes (for example following a Risk Event) and which may include one or more components linked to the currency of the Notes and/or a Reference Asset and/or the costs of termination or replacement of any such embedded currency derivative and may be substantially affected by changes in the relative value of such currencies.

Exchange rates can be volatile and unpredictable. Investors should be aware of the possibility of significant changes in rates of exchange between the currency of the Notes and the currency of a Reference Asset. The value of the Notes on any date may be substantially less than would otherwise be the case if a currency exchange rate is included in ongoing calculations under the Notes and the currency in which a Reference Asset is payable depreciates in value relative to the currency in which the Notes are payable or, if the Notes reflect an embedded currency derivative and the currency in which a Reference Asset is payable appreciates in value relative to the currency in which the Notes are payable (due to the potential deduction of Unwind Costs, which may be substantial, if the Notes are redeemed).

Prospective investors should in particular be aware that, due to exchange rate fluctuations as well as the other risks set out herein and depending upon the terms of the Notes:

- (a) the market price of the Notes may be very volatile;
- (b) payment of principal or interest may occur at a different time or in a different currency than expected;
- (c) they may lose all or a substantial portion of their principal and/or interest payments;

DESCRIPTION OF THE RETURN ON THE SECURITIES

- (d) the relevant currencies may be subject to significant fluctuations that may not correlate with changes in interest rates, currencies or other indices; and
- (e) the timing of changes in a relevant currency may affect the actual yield to investors, even if the average level is consistent with their expectations.

In general, the earlier the change in the relevant currency, the greater the effect on yield.

Index Skew Notes

The Index Skew Notes are linked, through a Hypothetical Skew Transaction constituting a combination of (i) an index linked credit derivative transaction ("Index CDS") and (ii) individual credit default swaps on the Reference Entities included in the index underlying the Index CDS (the "component CDSs"). Where the Issuer is the protection seller under the Index CDS it is the protection buyer under the component CDSs, and vice versa. The value of the combined positions reflects the difference (the "skew") between the value of the Index CDS and the aggregate value of its component CDSs. Although each constituent of the Hypothetical Skew Transaction is intended to give rise to an equal and opposite payment obligation on each Fixed Rate Payer Payment Date, Auction Settlement Date or Cash Settlement Date (as applicable), no actual payments will be due from the Issuer to the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty or vice versa due to the application of payment netting.

The value of an Index CDS may differ from the aggregate value of its component CDSs for several reasons, including (a) differences in liquidity and other characteristics in the markets for the Index CDS and the component CDSs; (b) differences in relevant terms of the Index CDS and its component CDSs; (c) factors that affect the activities of arbitrageurs; and (d) changes in the default correlation among the Reference Entities included in the Index CDS.

As the notional of the Hypothetical Skew Transactions may be far greater than the principal amount issued under the Index Skew Notes, the value of the Index Skew Notes may be very volatile and any Index Skew Early Redemption Amount will be linked to, among other things, the difference between the pricing of credit protection on the relevant index and the market levels of the constituent single name Reference Entities that comprise the relevant index.

Liquidity differences may make a greater contribution to skew during periods of heightened volatility, as the value of the more liquid instrument(s) may change more quickly than the value of the less liquid instrument(s). Furthermore, during periods when transaction costs (such as funding costs and bid-ask spreads) to market participants increase, skew may become greater, as the increased transaction costs may reduce the activities of arbitrageurs (i.e. market participants that seek to profit from the skew and, in the process, tend to reduce it).

Although the payments under a Hypothetical Skew Transaction is intended to be equal to zero due to the application of payment netting as described above, if the Index Skew Notes were to be redeemed early (including pursuant to an Early Termination Event such as a Section 871(m) Event or a Hedging Disruption Early Termination Event), a termination payment would be determined in respect of each constituent transaction within the relevant Hypothetical Skew Transactions and the aggregate of such termination payments may result in an amount being payable by the Issuer to the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty or by the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty to the Issuer which could result in the Early Redemption Amount or Optional Early Redemption Amount (as the case may be) due to Securityholders being reduced further if the Issuer is required to make a payment to the Hypothetical Swap Counterparty for such termination payment or if the Issuer is subject to further Unwind Costs.

In addition, prospective investors in the Index Skew Notes should be aware that no notifications shall be given by the Issuer or any other party to Securityholders following the occurrence of a Credit Event. To the extent that the relevant Credit Derivatives Determinations Committee determines that a Credit Event has occurred in respect of a particular entity, information will be published on the Credit Derivatives Determinations Committees website at <https://www.cdsdeterminationscommittees.org/> (or any successor website).

The Registered Securities of each Tranche offered and sold only in reliance on Rule 144A, which may only be issued by Citigroup Inc. or CGMHI and which will only be offered and sold in private transactions to persons that are Permitted QIB Purchasers, will be represented by a "Rule 144A Global Security" being: (i) in respect of Securities which are Notes, a Rule 144A Global Registered Note Security (as defined in the General Conditions of the Notes and Certificates) or (ii) in respect of English Law Warrants and Irish Law Warrants, a Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security (as defined in the General Conditions of the Warrants and Exercisable Certificates). Beneficial interests in a Rule 144A Global Security may not be offered, sold or transferred at any time to, or for the account or benefit of, persons other than Permitted QIB Purchasers and such Rule 144A Global Security will bear a legend regarding such restrictions on transfer.

A "Permitted QIB Purchaser" is a person that (i) is a "qualified institutional buyer" (as defined in Rule 144A) (a "QIB"), purchasing (or holding) the Securities for its own account or for the account of one or more QIBs and is aware that the offer and sale to it is being made in reliance on Rule 144A; and (ii) is not, and whose purchase and holding of the Securities is not made on behalf of or with "plan assets" of, an employee benefit plan subject to Title I of the U.S. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended ("ERISA"), a plan, individual retirement account or other arrangement subject to Section 4975 of the U.S. Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended (the "Code") or an employee benefit plan or other plan or arrangement subject to any laws, rules or regulations substantially similar to Title I of ERISA or Section 4975 of the Code.

The Registered Securities of each Tranche offered and sold in reliance on both Regulation S and Rule 144A, which may only be issued by Citigroup Inc. or CGMHI and which will only be offered and sold either in offshore transactions to persons that are Permitted Non-U.S. Purchasers outside the United States or in private transactions to persons that are Permitted QIB Purchasers, will be represented by a "Combined Global Security" being: (i) in respect of Securities which are Notes, a Combined Global Registered Note Security (as defined in the General Conditions of the Notes and Certificates) or (ii) in respect of English Law Warrants and Irish Law Warrants, a Combined Global Registered WEC Security (as defined in the General Conditions of the Warrants and Exercisable Certificates) (each Regulation S Global Security, Rule 144A Global Security and Combined Global Security, a "Global Registered Security"). Where the Global Registered NC Security issued in respect of any Tranche of Securities which are Notes or Certificates is intended to be held under the NSS, the applicable Issue Terms will indicate whether or not such Global Registered NC Security is intended to be held in a manner which would allow Eurosystem eligibility. Any indication that the Global Registered NC Securities are to be so held does not necessarily mean that the Securities of the relevant Tranche will be recognised as eligible collateral for Eurosystem monetary policy and intra-day credit operations by the Eurosystem either upon issue or at any time during their life as such recognition depends upon satisfaction of the Eurosystem eligibility criteria. The common safekeeper for a Global Registered NC Security held under the NSS will be either Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg or another entity approved by Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg.

Global Bearer WEC Securities will be issued in bearer form and will be deposited with and held by a common depository for Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg. Interest coupons will not be issued in respect of German Law Warrants.

No physical document of title (including certificats représentatifs pursuant to Article R.211-7 of the French Code monétaire et financier) will be issued in respect of the French Law Securities. No global or definitive French Law Securities will be issued. The French Law Securities will be transferable only in accordance with the rules and procedures of Euroclear France.

French Law Securities may be issued, at the option of the Issuer, in either: (i) bearer dematerialised form (au porteur), which will be inscribed in the books of Euroclear France which shall credit the accounts of an accountholder (being any authorised financial intermediary institution entitled to hold accounts directly or indirectly on behalf of its customers with Euroclear France) (the "Euroclear France Accountholder"); or (ii) in registered dematerialised form (au nominatif) and, at the option of the Securityholder in either administered registered form (au nominatif administré) inscribed in the books of a Euroclear France Accountholder (and mirroring the inscriptions in the books maintained by the Issuer or the French Law Securities Registration Agent acting on behalf of the Issuer, if applicable) or in fully registered form (au nominatif pur) inscribed in the books maintained by the Issuer (or the French Law Securities Registration Agent acting on behalf of the Issuer, if applicable).

Unless this possibility is expressly excluded in the applicable Issue Terms and to the extent permitted by applicable French law, the Issuer may at any time request from the central securities depository identification information of Securityholders of French Law Securities the name or the company name, nationality, date of birth or year of incorporation and mail address or, as the case may be, email address of such Securityholders.

Relationship of Accountholders with Clearing Systems

Securities which are Notes or Certificates

For so long as any of the Securities which are Notes or Certificates is represented by a Global Registered NC Security registered in the name of a common nominee for and held by a common depository or Common Safekeeper on behalf of Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France), each person (other than Euroclear, Clearstream, Luxembourg or Euroclear France) who is for the time being shown in the records of Euroclear or of Clearstream, Luxembourg (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France) as the holder of a particular principal amount or number of such Securities (in which regard any certificate or other document issued by Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France) as to the principal amount or number of such Securities standing to the account of any person shall be conclusive and binding for all purposes save in the case of manifest error) shall be treated by the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and the Agents as the holder of such principal amount or number of such Securities for all purposes other than with respect to the payment of principal, interest, termination or any other amounts in respect of the Securities, for which purpose the registered holder of the relevant Global Registered NC Security shall be treated by the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and each Agent as the holder of such principal amount or number of such Securities in accordance with and subject to the terms of the relevant Global Registered NC Security, and the expressions "Securityholder" and "holder of Securities" and related expressions shall be construed accordingly.

So long as DTC or its nominee is the registered owner or holder of a Global Registered NC Security, DTC or such nominee, as the case may be, will be considered the sole owner or holder of the Securities represented by such Global Registered NC Security for all purposes under the Fiscal Agency Agreement and such Securities except to the extent that, in accordance with DTC's published rules and procedures, any ownership rights may be exercised by its participants or beneficial owners through participants.

Securities which are represented by a Global Registered NC Security will be transferable only in accordance with the rules and procedures for the time being of Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg and/or DTC (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France), as the case may be, subject to the restrictions on transfer described in this Base Prospectus. Each of the persons shown in the records of Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg or DTC (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France) as the beneficial holder of a particular principal amount or number of Securities represented by such Global Registered NC Security must look solely to Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg or DTC (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France), as the case may be, for their share of each payment made by the Issuer or (if applicable) the Guarantor to the holder of such Global Registered NC Security and the obligations of the Issuer in respect of the relevant Securities will be discharged by payment to the holder of such Global Registered NC Security in respect of each amount so paid.

Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates

For so long as any of the Securities which are Warrants or Exercisable Certificates is represented by a Global Security held by a common depositary for Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg, subject as provided in the Conditions, each person who is for the time being shown in the records of Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg, as the holder of a particular amount of such Securities (in which regard any certificate or other document issued by Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg as to the amount of such Securities standing to the account of any person shall be conclusive and binding for all purposes save in the case of manifest error) shall (except as otherwise required by law) be treated by the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor, the Warrant Agents, the Registrar and the Authentication Agent and all other persons as the holder of such amount of Securities for all purposes, subject to the terms of the relevant Global Security (and the expressions "Warrantholder" and "holder of Warrants" and related expressions shall be construed accordingly).

In the case of Warrants or Exercisable Certificates represented by a Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security held by a Custodian on behalf of DTC, the Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security will be registered in the name of Cede & Co., as nominee of DTC but this does not confer any rights or benefits on Cede & Co. or any other nominee of DTC in whose name a Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security may be registered. Transfers of such Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security by such nominee of DTC shall be limited to transfers of such Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security, in whole but not in part, to another nominee of DTC or to a successor of DTC or such successor's nominee. Rights conferred by the Rule 144A Global Registered WEC Security are only enforceable by the Warrantholders as provided therein. Subject as provided in the Conditions, each person who is for the time being shown in the records of DTC as the holder of a particular amount of Warrants shall (except as otherwise required by law) be treated by the Issuer, (if applicable) the CGMFL Guarantor and the Warrant Agents as the holder of such amount of Warrants for all purposes (and the expressions "Warrantholder" and "holder of Warrants" and related expressions shall be construed accordingly).

German Law Warrants will be issued in bearer form. Warrantholders will receive co-ownership participations in or rights with respect to the relevant Global Bearer WEC Securities which are transferable in accordance with applicable law and the rules and regulations of Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg, as the case may be.

Securities which are represented by a Global Registered WEC Security or a Regulation S Global Bearer WEC Security will be transferable only in accordance with the rules and procedures for the time being of Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg and/or DTC, as the case may be, subject to the restrictions on transfer described in this Base Prospectus.

Exchanges of Global Registered NC Securities

A Global Registered NC Security may be exchanged in whole but not in part (free of charge) for definitive Registered Securities only upon the occurrence of an Exchange Event.

An "Exchange Event" means:

- (a) an Event of Default (as defined in General Condition 11 (Events of Default)) has occurred and is continuing; or
- (b) if the Global Registered NC Security is registered in the name of a nominee for a common depositary for Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg or in the name of a nominee of the Common Safekeeper, as the case may be, the Issuer has been notified that Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg, as the case may be, has/have been closed for business for a continuous period of 14 days (other than by reason of holiday, statutory or otherwise) or has/have announced an intention permanently to cease business or has/have in fact done so and no successor clearing system is available; or
- (c) if the Global Registered NC Security is registered in the name of a nominee for DTC, either DTC has notified the Issuer that it is unwilling or unable to continue to act as depositary for the Securities and no alternative clearing system is available or DTC has ceased to constitute a "clearing agency" registered under the Exchange Act and no successor clearing system is available; or
- (d) the Issuer has or will become subject to adverse tax consequences which would not be suffered were the Securities represented by the Registered Security in definitive form.

The Issuer will promptly give notice to Securityholders upon the occurrence of an Exchange Event. In the event of the occurrence of an Exchange Event as described in paragraphs (a) to (c) above, Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg, and/or DTC, as the case may be, acting on the instructions of any holder of an interest in such Global Registered NC Security may give notice to the Registrar requesting exchange and, in the event of the occurrence of an Exchange Event as described in paragraphs (a) to (d) above, the Issuer may also give notice to the Registrar requesting exchange. Any exchange shall occur no later than 10 days after the date of receipt of the relevant notice by the Registrar.

Any exchanges of a Global Registered NC Security will be made upon presentation of the Global Registered NC Security at the specified office of the Registrar by the holder of it on any day (other than a Saturday or Sunday) on which banks are open for general business in the city of the specified office of the Registrar.

Deeds of Covenant in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates and are English Law Securities (other than Swedish Securities and Finnish Securities) or Irish Law Securities

In relation to English Law Securities (other than Swedish Securities and Finnish Securities) and Irish Law Securities, where any Security is represented by a Global Registered NC Security and (a) the Global Registered NC Security (or any part of such Global Registered NC Security) has become due and repayable in accordance with the Conditions of such Securities or the Maturity Date has occurred and, in either case, payment in full of the amount due has not been made to the holder of an interest in such Global Registered NC Security through the relevant Clearing System(s) on such date, or (b) following an Exchange Event, the Global Registered NC Security is not duly exchanged for Registered Securities in definitive form by the date provided in the Global Registered NC Security, then from 8.00 p.m. (London time) on such date each holder of an interest in such Global Registered NC Security through the relevant Clearing System(s) will become entitled to proceed directly against the Issuer on, and subject to, the terms of the relevant Deed of Covenant, the relevant registered holder will have no further rights under the Global Registered NC Security (but without prejudice to the rights any person may have under the relevant Deed of Covenant).

Clearing Systems

Any reference in this Base Prospectus to Euroclear and/or Clearstream, Luxembourg, DTC, Euroclear Sweden, Euroclear Finland and/or Euroclear France shall, whenever the context so permits, be deemed to include a reference to any additional or alternative clearance system specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

SECTION G.6 – BOOK ENTRY CLEARANCE SYSTEMS

The information set out below is subject to any change in or reinterpretation of the rules, regulations and procedures of DTC, Euroclear, Clearstream, Luxembourg, Euroclear Sweden, Euroclear Finland or Euroclear France (together, the "Clearing Systems") currently in effect.

The information in this section concerning the Clearing Systems has been obtained from sources that the Issuers believe to be reliable, but none of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor and any Dealer takes any responsibility for the accuracy of such information, except that the Issuers and (if applicable) the Guarantor accept responsibility for accurately reproducing such information and, as far as the Issuers and (if applicable) the Guarantor is/are aware and is/are able to ascertain from information published by the relevant Clearing Systems, no facts have been omitted which would render the reproduced information inaccurate or misleading.

Investors wishing to use the facilities of any of the Clearing Systems are advised to confirm the continued applicability of the rules, regulations and procedures of the relevant Clearing System. None of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL and the CGMFL Guarantor, and any other party to the Fiscal Agency Agreement, the relevant Swedish Agency Agreement or the Finnish Securities Issuing and Paying Agency Agreement, as the case may be, will have any responsibility or liability for any aspect of the records relating to, or payments made on account of, beneficial ownership interests in the Securities held through the facilities of any Clearing System or for maintaining, supervising or reviewing any records relating to such beneficial ownership interests.

Book-entry Systems*DTC*

DTC has advised the Issuers that it is a limited purpose trust company organised under the New York Banking Law, a banking organisation within the meaning of the New York Banking Law, a member of the Federal Reserve System, a clearing corporation within the meaning of the New York Uniform Commercial Code and a clearing agency registered pursuant to Section 17A of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934. DTC holds securities that its participants ("Direct Participants") deposit with DTC. DTC also facilitates the settlement among Direct Participants of sales and other securities transactions, such as transfers and pledges, in deposited securities through electronic computerised book-entry changes in Direct Participants' accounts, thereby eliminating the need for physical movement of securities certificates. Direct Participants include both U.S. and non-U.S. securities brokers and dealers, banks, trust companies, clearing corporations and certain other organisations. DTC is a wholly-owned subsidiary of The Depository Trust & Clearing Corporation ("DTCC"). DTCC is the holding company for DTC, National Securities Clearing Corporation and Fixed Income Clearing Corporation, all of which are registered clearing agencies. DTCC is owned by the users of its regulation subsidiaries. Access to the DTC system is also available to others such as securities brokers and dealers, banks and trust companies that clear through or maintain a custodial relationship with a Direct Participant, either directly or indirectly ("Indirect Participants" and, together with Direct Participants, "Participants"). More information about DTCC can be found at www.dtcc.com.

Under the rules, regulations and procedures creating and affecting DTC and its operations (the "DTC Rules"), DTC makes book-entry transfers of Registered Securities among Direct Participants on whose behalf it acts with respect to Securities accepted into DTC's book-entry settlement system ("DTC Securities") as described below and receives and transmits distributions of principal, interest, termination or any other amounts due on DTC Securities. The DTC Rules are on file with the Securities and Exchange Commission. Direct Participants and Indirect Participants with which beneficial owners of DTC Securities ("Owners") have accounts with respect to the DTC Securities similarly are required to make book-entry transfers and receive and transmit such payments on behalf of their respective Owners. Accordingly, although Owners who hold DTC Securities through Direct Participants or Indirect Participants will not possess Registered Securities, the DTC Rules, by virtue of the requirements described above, provide a mechanism by which Direct Participants will receive payments and will be able to transfer their interest in respect of the DTC Securities.

Purchases of DTC Securities under the DTC system must be made by or through Direct Participants, which will receive a credit for the DTC Securities on DTC's records. The ownership interest of each actual purchaser of each DTC Security ("Beneficial Owner") is in turn to be recorded on the Direct Participant's and Indirect Participant's records. Beneficial Owners will not receive written confirmation from DTC of their purchase, but Beneficial Owners are expected to receive written confirmations providing details of the transaction, as well as periodic statements of their holdings, from the Direct Participant or Indirect Participant through which the Beneficial Owner entered into the transaction. Transfers of ownership interests in the DTC Securities are to be accomplished by entries made on the books of Participants acting on behalf of Beneficial Owners. Beneficial Owners will not receive certificates representing their ownership interests in DTC Securities, except in the event that use of the book-entry system for the DTC Securities is discontinued.

To facilitate subsequent transfers, all DTC Securities deposited by Participants with DTC are registered in the name of DTC's partnership nominee, Cede & Co, or such other name as may be requested by an authorised representative of DTC. The deposit of DTC Securities with DTC and their registration in the name of Cede & Co. or such other DTC nominee effect no change in beneficial ownership. DTC has no knowledge of the actual Beneficial Owners of the DTC Securities; DTC's records reflect only the identity of the Direct Participants to whose accounts such DTC Securities are credited, which may or may not be the Beneficial Owners. The Participants will remain responsible for keeping account of their holdings on behalf of their customers.

Conveyance of notices and other communications by DTC to Direct Participants, by Direct Participants to Indirect Participants, and by Direct Participants and Indirect Participants to Beneficial Owners will be governed by arrangements among them, subject to any statutory or regulatory requirements as may be in effect from time to time.

Redemption notices shall be sent to DTC. If less than all of the DTC Securities within an issue are being redeemed, DTC's practice is to determine by lot the amount of the interest of each Direct Participant in such issue to be redeemed.

Neither DTC nor Cede & Co. (nor any other DTC nominee) will consent or vote with respect to DTC Securities unless authorised by a Direct Participant in accordance with DTC's MMI Procedures. Under its usual procedures, DTC mails an Omnibus Proxy to the Issuer as soon as possible after the record date. The Omnibus Proxy assigns Cede & Co.'s consenting or voting rights to those Direct Participants to whose accounts the DTC Securities are credited on the record date (identified in a listing attached to the Omnibus Proxy).

Principal, interest, termination or any other amounts due on the DTC Securities will be made to Cede & Co., or such other nominee as may be requested by an authorised representative of DTC. DTC's practice is to credit Direct Participants' accounts upon DTC's receipt of funds and corresponding detail information from the Issuer or the relevant agent (or such other nominee as may be requested by an authorised representative of DTC), on the relevant payment date in accordance with their respective holdings shown in DTC's records. Payments by Participants to Beneficial Owners will be governed by standing instructions and customary practices, as is the case with securities held for the accounts of customers, and will be the responsibility of such Participant and not of DTC or the Issuer, subject to any statutory or regulatory requirements as may be in effect from time to time. Payment of principal, interest, termination or any other amounts to DTC is the responsibility of the Issuer, disbursement of such payments to Direct Participants is the responsibility of DTC, and disbursement of such payments to the Beneficial Owners is the responsibility of Direct Participants and Indirect Participants.

Under certain circumstances, DTC will exchange the DTC Securities for definitive Registered Securities, which it will distribute to its Participants in accordance with their proportionate entitlements and which will be legended as set forth under "Subscription and Sale and Transfer and Selling Restrictions".

A Beneficial Owner shall give notice to elect to have its DTC Securities purchased or tendered, through its Participant, to the relevant agent, and shall effect delivery of such DTC Securities by causing the Direct Participant to transfer the Participant's interest in the DTC Securities, on DTC's records, to the relevant agent. The requirement for physical delivery of DTC Securities in connection with an optional tender or a mandatory purchase will be deemed satisfied when the ownership rights in the DTC Securities are transferred by Direct Participants on DTC's records and followed by a book-entry credit of tendered DTC Securities to the relevant agent's DTC account.

DTC may discontinue providing its services as depository with respect to the DTC Securities at any time by giving reasonable notice to the Issuer or the relevant agent. Under such circumstances, in the event that a successor depository is not obtained, DTC Security certificates are required to be printed and delivered.

The Issuer may decide to discontinue use of the system of book-entry-only transfers through DTC (or a successor securities depository). In that event, DTC Security certificates will be printed and delivered to DTC.

Since DTC may only act on behalf of Direct Participants, who in turn act on behalf of Indirect Participants, any Owner desiring to pledge DTC Securities to persons or entities that do not participate in DTC, or otherwise take actions with respect to such DTC Securities, will be required to withdraw its Registered Securities from DTC as described below.

Indirect access to Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg is available to other institutions that clear through or maintain a custodial relationship with an accountholder of either system.

Euroclear Sweden

Euroclear Sweden is a subsidiary within the Euroclear group of companies. It is authorised and regulated by the Swedish Financial Supervisory Authority (Sw. Finansinspektionen) as a central securities depository within the meaning of the Regulation (EU) No 909/2014 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 23 July 2014 on improving securities settlement in the European Union and on central securities depositories and amending Directives 98/26/EC and 2014/65/EU and Regulation (EU) No 236/2012, the SFIA Act and as a clearing organisation within the meaning of the Swedish Securities Market Act (2007:528 (as amended)). Swedish Securities will be issued in registered, uncertificated and dematerialised book-entry form with Euroclear Sweden. No physical notes, certificates or other physical instruments (whether in global, temporary or definitive form) will be issued in respect of the Swedish Securities. All transactions relating to the Swedish Securities (such as issuance, sale and transfer, pledge arrangements and other dispositions and redemptions) are executed as computerised book-entry registrations. Consequently, in order to effect such entries holders must establish a book-entry account through a credit institution or a securities firm acting as an account operator at Euroclear Sweden. More information regarding Euroclear Sweden and its rules and operating procedures can be found at its internet web site at <http://www.euroclear.com/sweden/sv.html>.

Euroclear Finland

Euroclear Finland, a subsidiary within the Euroclear group of companies, is authorised and regulated as a central securities deposit within the meaning of the Finnish Act on the Book-Entry System and Clearing Operations (Fin. laki arvo-osuusjärjestelmästä ja selvitystoiminnasta (348/2017, as amended)). Euroclear Finland holds securities for its customers and facilitates the clearance and settlement of securities transactions by electronic book-entry transfer between its account holders. Euroclear Finland offers clearing and settlement of securities denominated in EUR through one of its systems. The systems support different types of securities, equities and interest-bearing cash instruments as well as the respective derivatives. Euroclear Finland does not act as a qualified intermediary.

Euroclear France

Euroclear France is a subsidiary within the Euroclear group of companies. It is regulated by The Banque de France and the Autorité des Marchés financiers ("AMF") and handles the full range of French government and corporate debt securities, global bonds, equities, warrants and investment funds. French Law Securities are issued in dematerialised form. French Law Securities must at all times be in book-entry form in compliance with Articles L.211–3 et seq. and R.211–1 of the French Code monétaire et financier. No physical notes, certificates or other physical instruments (whether in global, temporary or definitive form) will be issued in respect of the French Law Securities. All transactions relating to the French Law Securities (such as issuance, sale and transfer, pledge arrangements and other dispositions and redemptions) are executed as computerised book-entry registrations. Consequently, in order to effect such entries holders must establish a book-entry account through a credit institution or a securities firm having an account at Euroclear France.

Book-entry Ownership of and Payments in respect of DTC Securities

The Issuer may apply to DTC in order to have any Tranche of Securities represented by a Global Registered Security accepted in its book-entry settlement system. Upon the issue of any such Global Registered Security, DTC or its custodian will credit, on its internal book-entry system, the respective principal amounts or number of the individual beneficial interests represented by such Global Registered Security to the accounts of persons who have accounts with DTC. Such accounts initially will be designated by or on behalf of the relevant Dealer. Ownership of beneficial interests in such a Global Registered Security will be limited to Direct Participants or Indirect Participants, including, in the case of any Regulation S Global Security or Combined Global Security, the respective depositories of Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg. Ownership of beneficial interests in a Global Registered Security accepted by DTC will be shown on, and the transfer of such ownership will be effected only through, records maintained by DTC or its nominee (with respect to the interests of Direct Participants) and the records of Direct Participants (with respect to interests of Indirect Participants).

Payments in U.S. dollars of principal, interest, termination or any other amounts in respect of a Global Registered Security accepted by DTC will be made to the order of DTC or its nominee as the registered holder of such Security. In the case of any payment in a currency other than U.S. dollars, payment will be made to the Exchange Agent or the New York Warrant Agent, as applicable, on behalf of DTC or its nominee and the Exchange Agent or New York Warrant Agent, as applicable, will (in accordance with instructions received by it) remit all or a portion of such payment for credit directly to the beneficial holders of interests in the Global Registered Security in the currency in which such payment was made and/or cause all or a portion of such payment to be converted into U.S. dollars and credited to the applicable Participants' account.

The Issuer expects DTC to credit accounts of Direct Participants on the applicable payment date in accordance with their respective holdings as shown in the records of DTC unless DTC has reason to believe that it will not receive payment on such payment date. The Issuer also expects that payments by Participants to beneficial owners of Securities will be governed by standing instructions and customary practices, as is the case with securities held for the accounts of customers, and will be the responsibility of such Participant and not the responsibility of DTC, the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor or any Agent. Payment of principal, premium, interest, termination, settlement or any other amounts, if any, on Securities to DTC is the responsibility of the Issuer.

Transfers of Securities Represented by Global Securities

Transfers of any interests in Securities represented by a Global Security within Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg and DTC (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France) will be effected in accordance with the customary rules and operating procedures of the relevant clearing system and will be subject to the transfer restrictions described in this Base Prospectus. The laws in some States within the United States require that certain persons take physical delivery of securities in definitive form. Consequently, the ability to transfer Securities represented by a Global Security to such persons may depend upon the ability to exchange such Securities for Securities in definitive form. Similarly, because DTC can only act on behalf of Direct Participants in the DTC system who in turn act on behalf of Indirect Participants, the ability of a person having an interest in Securities represented by a Global Registered Security accepted by DTC to pledge such Securities to persons or entities that do not participate in the DTC system or otherwise to take action in respect of such Securities may depend upon the ability to exchange such Securities for Securities in definitive form. The ability of any holder of Securities represented by a Global Registered Security accepted by DTC to resell, pledge or otherwise transfer such Securities may be impaired if the proposed transferee of such Securities is not eligible to hold such Securities through a Direct Participant or Indirect Participant in the DTC system.

Subject to compliance with the transfer restrictions applicable to Registered Securities described under "Subscription and Sale and Transfer and Selling Restrictions", cross-market transfers between DTC, on the one hand, and directly or indirectly through Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg accountholders, on the other, will be effected by the relevant clearing system in accordance with its rules and through action taken by the Registrar (where applicable), the relevant agents and any custodian with whom the relevant Global Registered Securities have been deposited.

On or after the Issue Date of the first Tranche of any Series, transfers of Securities of such Series between accountholders in Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg will generally have a settlement date two business days after the trade date (T + 2) and transfers of Securities of such Series between participants in DTC will generally have a settlement date one business day after the trade date (T+1). The customary arrangements for delivery versus payment will apply to such transfers.

On or after the Issue Date of the first Tranche of any Series, transfers of French Cleared Securities of such Series between accountholders in Euroclear France will generally have a settlement date one business day after the trade date (T+1) in the case of transactions conducted on trading venues. The customary arrangements for delivery versus payment will apply to such transfers.

Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg and DTC (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France) have each published rules and operating procedures designed to facilitate transfers of beneficial interests in Global Securities among participants and accountholders of Euroclear and Clearstream, Luxembourg and DTC (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France). However, they are under no obligation to perform or continue to perform such procedures, and such procedures may be discontinued or changed at any time. None of Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor, the relevant agents and any Dealer will be responsible for any performance by Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg or DTC (or in the case of French Cleared Securities only, Euroclear France) or their Direct Participants or Indirect Participants or accountholders of their obligations under the rules and procedures governing their operations nor will any of them have any liability for any aspect of the records relating to or payments made on account of beneficial interests in the Securities represented by Global Securities or for maintaining, supervising or reviewing any records relating to such beneficial interests.

Euroclear UK & International Limited (CREST)

If so specified in the applicable Issue Terms, indirect interests in Securities which are Notes or Certificates will be accepted for settlement through Euroclear UK & International Limited (formerly known as CRESTCo Limited and Euroclear UK & Ireland Limited) ("CREST"). Following their delivery into a clearing system, interests in the relevant Securities may be delivered, held and settled in CREST by means of the creation of CREST Depository Interests ("CDIs") representing the interests in the relevant Securities. The CDIs will be issued by the CREST Depository Limited (the "CREST Depository") to investors ("CDI Holders") pursuant to the global deed poll dated 25 June 2001 (as subsequently modified, supplemented and/or restated) (the "CREST Deed Poll") and will be governed by English Law.

The CDIs will represent indirect interests in the interest of CREST International Nominees Limited or any other body appointed to act as nominee on behalf of the CREST Depository (the "CREST Nominee") in the relevant Securities. Pursuant to the documents setting out the legal relationship of CREST with its users and Participants (the "CREST Manual"), Securities held in global form by a common depository may be settled through CREST, and the CREST Depository will issue CDIs. The CDIs will be independent securities, constituted under English law which may be held and transferred through CREST.

Interests in the relevant Securities will be credited to the CREST Nominee's account with Euroclear and the CREST Nominee will hold such interests as nominee for the CREST Depository which will issue CDIs to the relevant CREST participants.

Each CDI will be treated by the CREST Depository as if it were a relevant Security, for the purposes of determining all rights and obligations and all amounts payable in respect of such CDI. The CREST Depository will pass on to CDI Holders any interest or other amounts received by it as holder of the relevant Securities on trust for such CDI Holder. CDI Holders may also receive from the CREST Depository notices of meetings of holders of the relevant Securities and other relevant notices issued by the Issuer or (if applicable) the Guarantor, with provisions relating to the meeting and voting services applicable to holdings of CDIs being set out in the CREST International Manual (as defined below). These include special provisions in respect of CDIs representing interests in US issued securities, such as Securities issued by Citigroup Inc. and CGMHI, which (amongst other things) provide for narrower information and voting rights.

Transfers of interests in Securities by a CREST participant to a participant of Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg will be effected by cancellation of the CDIs and transfer of an interest in such Securities to the account of the relevant participant with Euroclear or Clearstream, Luxembourg.

The CDIs will have the same ISIN as the ISIN of the relevant Securities and if listed do not require a separate listing.

Prospective subscribers for Securities represented by CDIs are referred to the Chapter of the CREST International Manual which contains the form of the CREST Deed Poll. The rights of the CDI Holders will be governed by the arrangements between CREST, Euroclear, Clearstream, Luxembourg and the Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor including the CREST Deed Poll (in the form contained in Chapter 8 of the CREST International Manual (as defined below)) executed by the CREST Depository. These rights may be different from those of holders of Securities which are not represented by CDIs.

CDIs will be delivered, held and settled in CREST, by means of the CREST International Settlement Links Service (the "CREST International Settlement Links Service"). The settlement of the CDIs by means of the CREST International Settlement Links Service has the following consequences for CDI Holders:

- (a) CDI Holders will not be the legal owners of the relevant Securities. The CDIs are separate legal instruments from such Securities and represent an indirect interest in such Securities.
- (b) The relevant Securities themselves (as distinct from the CDIs representing indirect interests in such Securities) will be held in account with a custodian. The custodian will hold the relevant Securities through a clearing system. Rights in the relevant Securities will be held through custodial and depository links through the appropriate clearing systems. The legal title to the relevant Securities or to interests in such Securities will depend on the rules of the clearing system in or through which the relevant Securities are held.
- (c) Rights under the relevant Securities cannot be enforced by CDI Holders except indirectly through the intermediary depositories and custodians described above. The enforcement of rights under the relevant Securities will therefore be subject to the local law of the relevant intermediary. The rights of CDI Holders to the relevant Securities are represented by the entitlements against the CREST Depository which (through the CREST Nominee) holds interests in the relevant Securities. This could result in an elimination or reduction in the payments that otherwise would have been made in respect of the relevant Securities in the event of any insolvency or liquidation of the relevant intermediary, in particular where the relevant Securities held in clearing systems are not held in special purpose accounts and are fungible with other securities held in the same accounts on behalf of other customers of the relevant intermediaries.
- (d) The CDIs issued to CDI Holders will be constituted and issued pursuant to the CREST Deed Poll. CDI Holders will be bound by all provisions of the CREST Deed Poll and by all provisions of, or prescribed pursuant to, the CREST International Manual dated 8 December 2020 as amended, modified, varied or supplemented from time to time (the "CREST International Manual") and the CREST Rules dated 15 January 2021, as amended, modified, varied or supplemented from time to time (the "CREST Rules") (which, in each case, form part of the CREST Manual) applicable to the CREST International Settlement Links Service and CDI Holders must comply in full with all obligations imposed on them by such provisions.
- (e) Potential investors should note that the provisions of the CREST Deed Poll, the CREST International Manual and the CREST Rules contain indemnities, warranties, representations and undertakings to be given by CDI Holders and limitations on the liability of the Issuer, (if applicable) the Guarantor and the CREST Depository.

- (f) CDI Holders may incur liabilities resulting from a breach of any such indemnities, warranties, representations and undertakings in excess of the money invested by them. These will include the fees and expenses charged by the CREST Depository in respect of the provision of services by it under the CREST Deed Poll and any taxes, duties, charges, costs or expenses which may be or become payable in connection with the holding of the CDIs through the CREST International Settlement Links Service.
- (h) Potential investors should note that none of the Issuers, (if applicable) the Guarantor, any Dealer, any distributor, any Paying Agent, the Registrar and any Transfer Agent will have any responsibility for the performance by any intermediaries or their respective direct or indirect participants or accountholders of their respective obligations under the rules and procedures governing their operations.

SECTION G.7 – ERISA MATTERS

The U.S. Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, as amended ("ERISA"), prescribes rules pertaining to the management of "plan assets" of pension and other employee benefit plans subject to ERISA ("ERISA Plans") and the appointment of parties who may manage such assets. Section 406 of ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code prohibit ERISA Plans, as well as those plans and other arrangements that are not subject to ERISA but that are subject to Section 4975 of the Code, such as individual retirement accounts and Keogh plans (together with ERISA Plans, "Plans"), and certain entities in which Plans invest, from engaging in certain transactions involving "plan assets" with persons who are "parties in interest" under ERISA or "disqualified persons" under Section 4975 of the Code with respect to such Plans.

The rules and regulations applicable under ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code contain certain "look-through" provisions. Under these provisions, if a Plan invests in an equity interest of an entity, the assets of the Plan will be deemed to include not only the equity interest but also an undivided interest in each of the underlying assets of the entity, unless an exception to the look-through rule were to apply. An "equity interest" is defined under the applicable rules as any interest in an entity other than an instrument treated as indebtedness under applicable local law that has no substantial equity features. No assurance can be given that the Securities will not be treated as equity interests for these purposes. The look-through rule would not apply if the Securities or the Issuer qualified for an exception available under applicable rules. If a Plan were to acquire an interest in the Securities, and no exception to the look-through rule were to apply, the Issuer could be regarded as a plan asset entity and its assets and transactions could be attributed to the Plan investor. In this event, the Plan investor could be viewed as having improperly delegated to the Issuer responsibility for the management of the Plan's assets, and the transactions and holdings of the Issuer might result in violations of the prohibited transaction rules of ERISA and Section 4975 of the Code, as well as violations of other rules applicable under ERISA.

In addition, certain governmental plans, church plans and non-U.S. plans ("Non-ERISA Arrangements") are not subject to such provisions of ERISA or the Code, but may be subject to similar rules under other applicable laws or regulations.

Based on the foregoing, the Securities may not be acquired or held by a Plan or Non-ERISA Arrangement or any party acting on behalf of or using the assets of a Plan or Non-ERISA Arrangement. Any purchaser or subsequent transferee of the Securities or any interest therein will be deemed to have represented by its purchase or holding of the Securities or any interest therein that it is not a Plan or Non-ERISA Arrangement and is not acting on behalf of or using the assets of a Plan or Non-ERISA Arrangement.

SECTION G.8 – SUBSCRIPTION AND SALE AND TRANSFER AND SELLING RESTRICTIONS

Subject to the terms and conditions contained in an amended and restated Dealership Agreement in respect of issuances of Notes or Certificates dated 18 November 2024 (as further amended, supplemented and/or restated, the "NC Dealership Agreement") between, inter alia, Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor, the Arranger and the Dealers (as defined in the NC Dealership Agreement) or a Dealership Agreement in respect of issuances of Warrants or Exercisable Certificates dated 18 November 2024 (as amended, supplemented and/or restated, the "WEC Dealership Agreement" and, the NC Dealership Agreement and the WEC Dealership Agreement each a "Dealership Agreements") between, inter alia, Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL, the CGMFL Guarantor, the Arranger and the Dealers (as defined in the WEC Dealership Agreement and references herein to "Dealers" shall be to the Dealers as defined under the NC Dealership Agreement and/or the WEC Dealership Agreement, as relevant), the Securities will be offered on a continuous basis by the Issuer to the Dealers. However, each Issuer reserves the right to sell Securities directly on its own behalf to other entities and to offer Securities in specified jurisdictions directly to the public through distributors, in accordance with all applicable rules and regulations. Securities may be resold at prevailing market prices, or at prices related thereto, at the time of such resale, as determined by the Issuer or the relevant Dealer. The Securities may also be sold by the Issuer through the Dealers, acting as agent of the Issuer. The Dealership Agreements also provide for Securities to be issued in syndicated Tranches which are jointly and severally underwritten by two or more Dealers.

The Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor have agreed to indemnify the Dealers against certain liabilities in connection with the offer and sale of Securities issued by such Issuer, including in relation to liabilities arising under the Securities Act. Each Dealership Agreement may be terminated in relation to all the relevant Dealers and the Arranger or any of them by Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL and the CGMFL Guarantor or, in relation to itself and Citigroup Inc., CGMHI, the CGMHI Guarantor, CGMFL and the CGMFL Guarantor, by any relevant Dealer or the Arranger, at any time on giving not less than ten days' notice.

- (a) if the applicable Final Terms in relation to the Securities specify that an offer of those Securities may be made other than pursuant to Article 1(4) of the EU Prospectus Regulation in that Member State (a "Non-exempt Offer"), following the date of publication of a prospectus in relation to such Securities which has been approved by the competent authority in that Member State or, where appropriate, approved in another Member State and notified to the competent authority in that Member State, PROVIDED THAT any such prospectus has subsequently been completed by the Final Terms contemplating such Non-exempt Offer, in accordance with the EU Prospectus Regulation, in the period or periods beginning and ending on the dates specified in such prospectus or Final Terms, as applicable and the Issuer has consented in writing to its use for the purpose of that Non-exempt Offer;
- (b) at any time to any legal entity which is a qualified investor as defined in the EU Prospectus Regulation;

Each Dealer has represented and/or agreed (as applicable) and each further Dealer appointed under the Programme and each other offeror will be required to represent and/or agree (as applicable) that:

- (a) it has only made and will only make an offer of Securities to the public in Switzerland, other than pursuant to an exemption under Article 36(1) of the Swiss Federal Financial Services Act ("FinSA") or where such offer does not qualify as a public offer in Switzerland, if the applicable

Final Terms in respect of any Securities published according to Article 64 FinSA specify "Swiss Non-exempt Offer" as applicable, in the "Swiss Offer Period" specified in the applicable Final Terms, and if consent has been granted to use this Base Prospectus (as completed by the applicable Final Terms) for a public offer in Switzerland in accordance with Article 36(4) FinSA; or

- (b) it has not offered and will not offer, directly or indirectly, Securities to the public in Switzerland, and have not distributed or caused to be distributed and will not distribute or cause to be distributed to the public in Switzerland, this Base Prospectus, the applicable Issue Terms or any other offering material relating to the Securities, which shall not constitute a prospectus pursuant to FinSA, other than pursuant to an exemption under Article 36(1) FinSA or where such offer or distribution does not qualify as a public offer in Switzerland.

For these purposes "public offer" refers to the respective definitions in Article 3(g) and (h) FinSA and as further detailed in the implementing Financial Services Ordinance ("FinSO").

If Securities qualifying as debt instruments with a "derivative character" (as such expression is understood under FinSA) are offered or recommended to private clients within the meaning of FinSA in Switzerland a key information document under Article 58 FinSA (Basisinformationsblatt für Finanzinstrumente) or Article 59(2) FinSA in respect of such Securities must be prepared and published. According to Article 58(2) FinSA, no key information document is required for Securities that may only be acquired for private clients under an asset management agreement. Other than where the applicable Issue Terms specifies the "Prohibition of Offer to Private Clients in Switzerland" to be "Applicable" other than with respect to the period(s) of time specified therein, with respect to such period(s), the Securities may not be offered or recommended to private clients within the meaning of FinSA in Switzerland. For these purposes, a private client means a person who is not one (or more) of the following: (i) a professional client as defined in Article 4(3) FinSA (not having opted-in on the basis of Article 5(5) FinSA) or Article 5(1) FinSA; or (ii) an institutional client as defined in Article 4(4) FinSA; or (iii) a private client with an asset management agreement according to Article 58(2) FinSA. For these purposes "offer" refers to the interpretation of such term in Article 58 FinSA.

The Securities do not constitute a participation in a collective investment scheme in the meaning of the Swiss Federal Act on Collective Investment Schemes ("CISA") and are not subject to the supervision by the Swiss Financial Market Supervisory Authority FINMA, and investors in Securities will not benefit from protection under the CISA or supervision by any Swiss regulatory authority.

 3. waives any objection such Securityholder may have with respect to 1 or 2 immediately above on the grounds of confidentiality or otherwise, and, for the avoidance of doubt, such agreements and undertakings shall survive the maturity date of the relevant Securities.

SECTION G.9 – TAXATION OF SECURITIES

GENERAL

Purchasers of Securities may be required to pay taxes (including stamp taxes) and other charges in accordance with the laws and practices of the country of purchase in addition to the issue price of each Security.

TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING SECURITIES MAY HAVE TAX CONSEQUENCES FOR POTENTIAL PURCHASERS WHICH MAY DEPEND, AMONGST OTHER THINGS, UPON THE STATUS OF THE POTENTIAL PURCHASER AND LAWS RELATING TO TRANSFER AND REGISTRATION TAXES. INVESTORS SHOULD ALSO BE AWARE THAT THE TAX LEGISLATION OF THE COUNTRY IN WHICH THE INVESTOR IS RESIDENT AND OF THE RELEVANT ISSUER'S COUNTRY OF INCORPORATION MAY HAVE AN IMPACT ON THE INCOME RECEIVED FROM THE SECURITIES. POTENTIAL PURCHASERS WHO ARE IN ANY DOUBT ABOUT THE TAX POSITION OF ANY ASPECT OF TRANSACTIONS INVOLVING SECURITIES SHOULD CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISERS.

Unless otherwise expressly provided below, the relevant Issuer and (if applicable), the Guarantor, give no assurances about and do not accept responsibility for the imposition of deductions or withholdings required to be made from payments under the Securities for or on account of tax. This statement should be read in conjunction with General Conditions 8 (Payments) and 9 (Taxation). In particular, the relevant Issuer and (if applicable) the Guarantor, may make such deductions or withholdings from payments under the Securities as required by any applicable fiscal or other laws, regulations and directives. If the relevant Issuer or (if applicable) the Guarantor is required to make a deduction or withholding for or on account of tax, it will only be required to make additional 'gross-up' payments in the circumstances and subject to the exceptions and limitations described in General Condition 9 (Taxation).

References in this Section G.9 to (i) a "Member State" shall be to a Member State of the EEA, (ii) a "Note" shall include references to a Certificate, unless the context requires otherwise and (iii) a "Warrant" shall include references to an Exercisable Certificate, unless the context requires otherwise.

UNITED STATES FEDERAL TAX CONSIDERATIONSGeneral

The following is a summary of certain U.S. federal income and estate tax consequences that may be relevant to the purchase, ownership and disposition of Securities that are in registered form for U.S. federal income tax purposes, including Notes, Warrants, and Exercisable Certificates. This summary does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all of the tax consequences that may be relevant to the decision to purchase Securities by any particular investor, including tax consequences that arise from rules of general application to all taxpayers or to certain classes of taxpayers or that are generally believed to be known by investors. For example, this summary does not address the tax consequences to (i) persons that may be subject to special treatment under U.S. federal income tax law, such as banks, insurance companies, thrift institutions, regulated investment companies, real estate investment trusts, tax-exempt organisations, traders in securities that elect to mark to market for tax purposes and dealers in securities, (ii) persons that will hold the Securities as part of a "straddle", "hedging", "conversion" or other integrated investment transaction or a constructive sale for U.S. federal income tax purposes, (iii) U.S. Holders (as defined below) whose functional currency is not the U.S. dollar, (iv) Non-U.S. Holders (as defined below) who recognise gain in respect of a Security in a taxable year in which the Non-U.S. Holder is present in the United States for 183 days or more, (v) persons that do not hold the Securities as capital assets, or (vi) except where the context indicates otherwise, persons that did not purchase the Securities for cash in the initial offering.

This summary is based on the Code, U.S. Treasury regulations and judicial and administrative interpretations thereof, in each case as in effect on the date hereof. Changes to any of the foregoing could affect the tax consequences described below, possibly with retroactive effect. Further, this summary does not describe any tax consequences arising out of the tax laws of any state, local or non-U.S. jurisdiction, or any U.S. federal taxes other than income taxes and, to a limited extent, estate taxes. Accordingly, this summary does not address alternative minimum tax consequences, special tax accounting rules under Section 451(b) of the Code, or the Medicare tax on investment income. Prospective purchasers of the Securities should consult their tax advisers regarding the U.S. federal, state, local and non-U.S. tax consequences of owning and disposing of Securities in light of their own particular circumstances.

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

This discussion does not address the U.S. federal tax consequences of the ownership or disposition of the Underlying that a beneficial owner may receive in respect of a Physical Delivery Security. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the relevant U.S. federal tax consequences of the ownership and disposition of the relevant Underlying.

The Issuers will not attempt to ascertain whether any issuer of any Shares, shares that underlie an Index or basket, or any other equity interest to which the Securities relate should be treated as a "passive foreign investment company" ("PFIC") within the meaning of Section 1297 of the Code or a "United States real property holding corporation" ("USRPHC") within the meaning of Section 897 of the Code (including a non-corporate entity treated as a USRPHC for relevant purposes of Section 897 of the Code). If any relevant issuer were so treated, certain adverse U.S. federal income tax consequences might apply to a Non-U.S. Holder, in the case of a USRPHC, and to a U.S. Holder, in the case of a PFIC, upon the sale, exchange or other disposition of the Securities. If a U.S. Holder owns or is deemed to own an equity interest in a PFIC for any taxable year, the U.S. Holder would generally be required to file IRS Form 8621 with its annual U.S. federal income tax return for that year, subject to certain exceptions. Failure to timely file the form may extend the time for tax assessment by the IRS. Prospective purchasers of the Securities are urged to refer to information filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission or another governmental authority by the relevant issuers and consult their tax advisers regarding the possible consequences if any relevant issuer is or becomes a USRPHC or PFIC.

For the purposes hereof, the term "U.S. Holder" means a beneficial owner of the Securities that for U.S. federal income tax purposes is (i) an individual citizen or resident of the United States, (ii) a corporation organized in or under the laws of the United States or any state thereof or the District of Columbia or (iii) an estate or trust the income of which is subject to U.S. federal income taxation regardless of its source. The term "Non-U.S. Holder" means a beneficial owner of the Securities that for U.S. federal income tax purposes is a non-resident alien individual, a foreign corporation or a foreign estate or trust.

If a partnership (including any entity treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes) holds the Securities, the tax treatment of a partner generally will depend on the status of the partner and upon the activities of the partnership. Prospective purchasers that are partnerships should consult their tax advisers regarding the tax consequences to their partners of an investment in the Securities.

Because the Issuers do not expect to issue (i) Preference Share Linked Securities, (ii) Securities with Target Redemption Barrier Event, (iii) certain Securities designated as "Non-U.S. Securities" (as discussed below), or (iv) Credit Warrants to U.S. Holders, the discussion below does not address the U.S. federal income tax consequences to a U.S. Holder of purchasing, owning, and disposing of such Securities.

This discussion may be supplemented, modified or superseded by further discussion regarding U.S. federal tax considerations set out in the applicable Issue Terms, which a prospective purchaser is urged to read before making a decision to invest in the relevant Securities.

Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders

The discussions below address certain generally applicable U.S. federal income tax consequences to U.S. Holders in respect of the Securities. Certain exceptions to these general rules and other special considerations are discussed below under "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt" and "FATCA", and therefore these discussions are subject to, and should be read in conjunction with, the discussions contained in those sections. As discussed above, this section does not address the U.S. federal tax treatment of (i) Preference Share Linked Securities, (ii) Securities with Target Redemption Barrier Event, (iii) certain Securities designated as "Non-U.S. Securities," or (iv) Credit Warrants.

Securities Treated as Debt

The following discussion applies only to Securities that the relevant Issuer intends to treat as debt instruments for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as evidenced by the statement under "United States Tax Considerations" in the applicable Issue Terms ("Debt Designated Securities").

It generally assumes that the Issuer's intended treatment of the Securities as debt instruments, as well as any specific treatments indicated in the applicable Issue Terms (e.g., as variable rate debt instruments or contingent payment debt instruments, each as discussed below), are respected. The Issuer's intended treatment of the Securities is not binding on the IRS, and the IRS could disagree with it, in which case the timing and character of a U.S. Holder's taxable income in respect of the Securities could be adversely affected. Prospective purchasers of the Securities should consult their tax advisers about the risk that the IRS challenges the Issuer's treatment of the Securities. Please review the discussion under "Possible Alternative Tax Treatment" regarding the risk of an alternate treatment of the Securities.

If the Issuer designates a Substitute for itself, or there is another change to the Securities that results in the Securities being treated as reissued for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as discussed in "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt—Possible Taxable Event Under Section 1001 of the Code", the treatment of the Securities after such an event could differ from their prior treatment. Except where specifically stated, the discussion herein assumes that no such deemed retirement and reissuance has occurred.

The general discussion below is subject to special rules applicable to Short-Term Securities, Contingent Securities and Foreign Currency Contingent Securities as described below.

Interest Payments on Securities

Payments of qualified stated interest, as defined below under "Original Issue Discount", will be taxable to a U.S. Holder as ordinary interest income at the time that such payments are accrued or are received, in accordance with the U.S. Holder's method of tax accounting. Instalment payments on Securities providing for instalment payments will not be taxable to a U.S. Holder to the extent such payments are attributable to the repayment of principal, but will reduce the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Security, as discussed below.

If payments of qualified stated interest are made in respect of a Security that is denominated in a single currency other than the U.S. dollar (for purposes of this discussion, a "foreign currency"), the amount of interest income realised by a U.S. Holder that uses the cash method of tax accounting (a "cash-method holder") will be the U.S. dollar value of the currency payment based on the spot rate of exchange on the date of receipt regardless of whether the payment in fact is converted into U.S. dollars. No foreign currency gain or loss should be recognised by a cash-method holder with respect to the receipt of such payment (other than foreign currency gain or loss realised on the disposition of the currency received). In the case of a Security that provides for payments in U.S. dollars determined by reference to a single foreign currency, a cash-method holder generally should recognise interest income on the Security in an amount equal to the U.S. dollars received. Both types of Securities are referred to herein as "Foreign Currency Securities". A U.S. Holder that uses the accrual method of tax accounting (an "accrual-method holder") will accrue interest income on a Foreign Currency Security in the relevant foreign currency and translate the amount accrued into U.S. dollars based on:

- the average exchange rate in effect during the interest accrual period, or portion thereof within the holder's taxable year; or
- at the holder's election, at the spot rate of exchange on (1) the last day of the accrual period, or the last day of the taxable year within the accrual period if the accrual period spans more than one taxable year, or (2) the date of receipt, if that date is within five business days of the last day of the accrual period.

Such an election must be applied consistently by the accrual-method holder to all foreign currency debt instruments from year to year and can be changed only with the consent of the IRS. An accrual-method holder will recognise foreign currency gain or loss on the receipt of an interest payment made on a Foreign Currency Security if the spot rate of exchange on the date the payment is received differs from the rate applicable to a previous accrual of that interest income. Such foreign currency gain or loss will be treated as ordinary income or loss, but generally will not be treated as an adjustment to interest income received on the Security.

Taxable Disposition of Securities

A U.S. Holder's tax basis in a Security generally will equal the cost of that Security to the holder, increased by any amounts includible in income by the holder as original issue discount ("OID") and market discount (each as described below) and reduced by any amortised premium and any payments on the Security other than payments of qualified stated interest (each as described below).

In the case of a Foreign Currency Security, the cost of the Security to a U.S. Holder generally should be the U.S. dollar value of the foreign currency purchase price on the date of purchase. In the case of a Foreign Currency Security that is traded on an established securities market, a U.S. Holder generally should determine the U.S. dollar value of the cost of the Security by translating the amount paid in foreign currency into its U.S. dollar value at the spot rate of exchange (1) on the settlement date of the purchase, in the case of a cash-method holder, and (2) on the trade date, in the case of an accrual-method holder, unless the holder elects to use the spot rate applicable to cash-method holders. Such an election by an accrual-method holder must be applied consistently by the accrual-method holder to all debt instruments from year to year and can be changed only with the consent of the IRS. The amount of any subsequent adjustments to a U.S. Holder's tax basis in a Foreign Currency Security in respect of OID, market discount and premium will be determined in the manner described under "Original Issue Discount", "Market Discount" and "Securities Purchased at a Premium" below.

Upon the sale, exchange, retirement or other taxable disposition of a Security (each, a "taxable disposition"), a U.S. Holder generally will recognise gain or loss equal to the difference between (1) the amount realised on the taxable disposition, less any accrued qualified stated interest, which will be treated as a payment of interest and taxed in the manner described above under "Interest Payments on Securities", and (2) the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in the Security.

If a U.S. Holder receives a currency other than the U.S. dollar in respect of the taxable disposition of a Foreign Currency Security, the amount realised generally should be the U.S. dollar value of the currency received calculated at the spot rate of exchange on the date of the taxable disposition of the Security. In the case of a taxable disposition of a Foreign Currency Security that is traded on an established securities market, a U.S. Holder that receives a currency other than the U.S. dollar generally should determine the amount realised by translating that currency into its U.S. dollar value at the spot rate of exchange (1) on the settlement date of the taxable disposition, in the case of a cash-method holder and (2) on the trade date, in the case of an accrual-method holder, unless the accrual-method holder elects to use the spot rate applicable to cash-method holders. Such an election by an accrual-method holder must be applied consistently by the accrual-method holder to all debt instruments from year to year and can be changed only with the consent of the IRS.

Gain or loss recognised by a U.S. Holder on the taxable disposition of a Security (other than a Short-Term Security, Foreign Currency Security, Contingent Security, Foreign Currency Contingent Security or Market Discount Security, each as discussed below) generally will be long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. Holder has held the Security for more than one year at the time of the taxable disposition and short-term capital gain or loss otherwise.

Gain or loss recognised by a U.S. Holder on the taxable disposition of a Foreign Currency Security generally will be treated as ordinary income or loss to the extent that the gain or loss is attributable to changes in exchange rates during the period in which the U.S. Holder held the Security. A U.S. Holder will also recognise ordinary income or loss upon the receipt of instalment payments that are attributable to principal equal to the gain or loss attributable to changes in exchange rates. A U.S. Holder might be required to file a disclosure statement with the IRS if the U.S. Holder recognises foreign currency loss above certain thresholds (as described below under "Reportable Transactions").

Original Issue Discount

Securities with a term greater than one year may be issued with OID for United States federal income tax purposes (such Securities, "OID Securities"). U.S. Holders generally must accrue OID in gross income over the term of an OID Security on a constant yield basis, regardless of their regular method of tax accounting. As a result, U.S. Holders may recognise taxable income in respect of an OID Security in advance of the receipt of cash attributable to such income.

OID generally will arise if the "stated redemption price at maturity" (as defined below) of a Security exceeds its issue price by an amount equal to or greater than 0.25 per cent. of the Security's stated redemption price at maturity multiplied by the number of complete years to maturity or expiry. In the case of a Security providing for instalment payments (i.e., payments prior to maturity or expiry other than qualified stated interest), this test is generally applied based on the Security's "weighted average maturity" (as defined in applicable Treasury regulations). OID may arise if a Security is issued at a discount to its principal or nominal amount, and may also arise if a Security has particular interest payment characteristics, such as interest holidays, interest payable in additional securities or stepped interest. For this purpose, the issue price of a Security is the first price at which a substantial amount of Securities of that issue is sold for cash, other than to bond houses, brokers or similar persons or organisations acting in the capacity of underwriters, placement agents or wholesalers. The stated redemption price at maturity of a Security is the sum of all payments due under the Security other than payments of qualified stated interest. The term qualified stated interest generally means stated interest that is unconditionally payable in cash or property, other than debt instruments of the issuer, at least annually during the entire term of a Security at a single fixed rate of interest or, under particular conditions, based on one or more floating interest rates described below under "Variable Rate Debt Instruments".

Under the OID rules, certain contingencies, including those that are remote, are disregarded for purposes of determining qualified stated interest on a Security. However, if a remote contingency actually occurs (for example, in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates, an early termination event that the Issuer had determined to be remote in which the Early Termination Amount is calculated as of the time of the early termination event but not paid until maturity), the Security could be treated as retired and reissued with OID. Prospective purchasers of the Securities should consult their tax advisers regarding the application of these rules.

For each taxable year of a U.S. Holder, the amount of OID that must be included in gross income in respect of an OID Security will be the sum of the daily portions of OID for each day during that taxable year or any portion of the taxable year in which the U.S. Holder holds the OID Security. Daily portions are determined by allocating to each day in an accrual period a pro rata portion of the OID allocable to that accrual period. Accrual periods may be of any length and may vary in length over the term of an OID Security. However, accrual periods may not be longer than one year, and each scheduled payment of principal or interest must occur on the first day or the final day of an accrual period.

The amount of OID allocable to any accrual period generally will equal (1) the product of the OID Security's adjusted issue price at the beginning of the accrual period multiplied by its yield to maturity (as defined in applicable Treasury regulations, adjusted to take into account the length of the accrual period), less (2) the amount, if any, of qualified stated interest allocable to that accrual period. The adjusted issue price of an OID Security at the beginning of any accrual period will equal the issue price of the OID Security, as defined above, (1) increased by previously accrued OID from prior accrual periods, and (2) reduced by any payment made on the Security, other than payments of qualified stated interest, on or before the first day of the accrual period.

The Securities may have special redemption, settlement, repayment or interest rate reset features, as indicated in the applicable Issue Terms, that may affect whether a Security is an OID Security and, if so, the proper timing of recognition of the OID by a U.S. Holder. Securities containing such features may be subject to special rules that differ from the general rules discussed herein. Accordingly, prospective purchasers of Securities with such features should consult their tax advisers regarding these special rules.

In the case of an OID Security that is also a Foreign Currency Security, a U.S. Holder should determine the U.S. dollar amount includible in income as OID for each accrual period by calculating the amount of OID allocable to that accrual period in the relevant foreign currency, using the constant-yield method described above and translating that amount into U.S. dollars using the average exchange rate in effect during that accrual period (or a portion thereof), or, at the U.S. Holder's election, at the spot rate of exchange on (1) the last day of the accrual period, or the last day of the taxable year within the accrual period if the accrual period spans more than one taxable year, or (2) on the date such OID is treated as paid (as described in the following paragraph), if that date is within five business days of the last day of the accrual period. Such an election must be applied consistently by the U.S. Holder to all Foreign Currency Securities from year to year and can be revoked only with the consent of the IRS.

Each payment on an OID Security that is a Foreign Currency Security, other than payments of qualified stated interest, generally will be viewed first as a payment of previously accrued OID to the extent thereof, with the payment attributed first to the earliest accrued OID, and then as a payment of principal. Upon the receipt of an amount attributable to OID, whether in connection with a payment of an amount that is not qualified stated interest or the taxable disposition of the OID Security, a U.S. Holder will recognise foreign currency gain or loss that is ordinary income or loss measured by the difference between (1) the amount received and (2) the corresponding amount(s) previously accrued. The amount received will be translated into U.S. dollars at the spot rate of exchange on the date of receipt, in the case of a payment on the OID Security, or on the date of the taxable disposition of the OID Security. The corresponding amount(s) accrued will be determined by using the rate(s) of exchange applicable to such previous accrual(s). Upon a taxable disposition of the Security, the amount of foreign currency income or loss recognised will be limited by the overall amount of gain or loss recognised on the taxable disposition.

A U.S. Holder that purchases an OID Security for an amount less than or equal to the remaining redemption or settlement amount (as defined below), but in excess of the OID Security's adjusted issue price, generally is permitted to reduce the daily portions of OID by a fraction. The numerator of this fraction is the acquisition premium (as defined below) and the denominator of the fraction is the excess of the remaining redemption or settlement amount over the OID Security's adjusted issue price. For the purposes of this section, "acquisition premium" means the excess of the U.S. Holder's adjusted tax basis in an OID Security over the OID Security's adjusted issue price and "remaining redemption or settlement amount" means the sum of all amounts payable on an OID Security after the purchase date other than payments of qualified stated interest. In the case of a Foreign Currency Security, the rules described in this paragraph are applied using units of the relevant foreign currency.

Variable Rate Debt Instruments

Certain Securities may be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as variable rate debt instruments ("VRDIs"). Prospective purchasers should note that other Securities providing for variable rates of interest are treated not as VRDIs but as "contingent payment debt instruments", with consequences discussed below under "Contingent Payment Debt Instruments".

Stated interest on a VRDI that provides for a single variable rate (a "Single-Rate VRDI") will be treated as qualified stated interest and will be taxable to a U.S. Holder as ordinary interest income at the time it accrues or is received, in accordance with the U.S. Holder's method of tax accounting. If the stated principal amount of a Single-Rate VRDI exceeds its issue price by an amount equal to or greater than the de minimis amount described above under "Original Issue Discount", this excess will be treated as OID that a U.S. Holder must include in income as it accrues, generally in accordance with the constant-yield method described above under "Original Issue Discount". The constant-yield accrual of OID on a VRDI is determined by substituting the value of the variable rate on the issue date (or, in certain cases, a fixed rate that reflects the yield that is reasonably expected for the VRDI) for each scheduled payment of the variable rate. A fixed rate for an initial period of one year or less followed by a variable rate where the variable rate on the issue date is intended to approximate the fixed rate (which will be conclusively presumed if the value of the variable rate on the issue date does not differ from the value of the fixed rate by more than 0.25 per cent.) will be treated as a single variable rate for the purposes of this and the next paragraph.

Different rules may apply to a VRDI that provides for (i) multiple variable rates or (ii) one or more variable rates and a single fixed rate (other than a fixed rate described in the preceding paragraph) (a "Multiple-Rate VRDI"). Under applicable Treasury regulations, in order to determine the amount of qualified stated interest and OID (if any) in respect of a Multiple-Rate VRDI, an equivalent fixed-rate debt instrument must be constructed. The equivalent fixed-rate debt instrument is constructed in the following manner: (i) if the Multiple-Rate VRDI contains a fixed rate, that fixed rate is converted to a variable rate that preserves the fair market value of the Security and then (ii) each variable rate (including a variable rate determined under (i) above) is converted to a fixed rate substitute (which generally will be the value of that variable rate as of the issue date of the Multiple-Rate VRDI (or, in certain cases, a fixed rate that reflects the yield that is reasonably expected for the VRDI)) (the "equivalent fixed-rate debt instrument"). The rules discussed in "Original Issue Discount" are then applied to the equivalent fixed-rate debt instrument to determine the amount, if any, of OID and the amount of qualified stated interest. A U.S. Holder will be required to include any such OID in income for U.S. federal income tax purposes as it accrues, in accordance with a constant-yield method based on a compounding of interest, as described above under "Original Issue Discount".

The U.S. Holder is required to make adjustments to income to account for differences between actual payments on the Multiple-Rate VRDI and payments on the equivalent fixed-rate debt instrument. Prospective purchasers of Multiple-Rate VRDIs should consult their tax advisers regarding the rules applicable to these Securities.

Upon the taxable disposition of a VRDI, a U.S. Holder generally will recognise capital gain or loss equal to the difference between the amount realised (other than amounts attributable to accrued qualified stated interest, which will be treated as described above under "Interest Payments on Securities") and the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the VRDI. A U.S. Holder's tax basis in a VRDI will equal the amount the U.S. Holder paid to purchase the VRDI, increased by the amounts of OID (if any) the U.S. Holder has previously included in income with respect to the VRDI and reduced by any payments the U.S. Holder has received other than qualified stated interest. Such gain or loss generally will be long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. Holder has held the VRDI for more than one year at the time of the taxable disposition and short-term capital gain or loss otherwise. Special rules apply to VRDIs that are Foreign Currency Securities, Market Discount Securities and Securities purchased at a premium, as discussed above and below.

Contingent Payment Debt Instruments

Certain Securities may be treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as contingent payment debt instruments ("Contingent Securities"). Under applicable U.S. Treasury regulations, interest on a Contingent Security is treated as OID and must be accrued on a constant-yield basis using (i) a yield to maturity that reflects the rate at which the Issuer would issue a comparable fixed-rate instrument with no contingent payments but with terms and conditions otherwise similar to the Contingent Security (the "comparable yield") and (ii) a projected payment schedule determined by the Issuer at the time the Contingent Security is issued (the "projected payment schedule"). This projected payment schedule must include each non-contingent payment on the Contingent Security and an estimated amount for each contingent payment, and must produce the comparable yield.

The Issuer is generally required to provide to holders, solely for U.S. federal income tax purposes, a schedule of the projected amounts of payments on the Contingent Securities. If required in respect of an issue of Securities, the applicable Issue Terms will either contain the comparable yield and projected payment schedule, or will provide contact information through which a U.S. Holder of a Contingent Security can submit a request for this information.

THE COMPARABLE YIELD AND PROJECTED PAYMENT SCHEDULE ARE NOT DETERMINED FOR ANY PURPOSE OTHER THAN FOR THE DETERMINATION OF INTEREST ACCRUALS AND ADJUSTMENTS THEREOF IN RESPECT OF THE CONTINGENT SECURITIES FOR U.S. FEDERAL INCOME TAX PURPOSES. THEY ARE BASED UPON A NUMBER OF ASSUMPTIONS AND ESTIMATES AND DO NOT CONSTITUTE A PROJECTION OR REPRESENTATION REGARDING THE ACTUAL AMOUNTS PAYABLE TO THE HOLDERS OF, OR THE ACTUAL YIELD ON, THE CONTINGENT SECURITIES.

A U.S. Holder generally will be bound by the comparable yield and the projected payment schedule determined by the Issuer unless the U.S. Holder determines its own comparable yield and projected payment schedule and explicitly and timely discloses and justifies such schedule to the IRS. The Issuer's determination, however, is not binding on the IRS, and it is possible that the IRS could conclude that some other comparable yield or projected payment schedule should be used instead.

The amount of OID includible in income, as interest, by a U.S. Holder of a Contingent Security is the sum of the daily portions of OID with respect to the Contingent Security for each day during the taxable year or portion of the taxable year in which the U.S. Holder holds the Contingent Security, generally as described above in "Original Issue Discount" (determined by substituting in that discussion the comparable yield for the "yield to maturity" and the projected payment schedule for the actual payments on the Security and treating no payment as qualified stated interest). Any net differences between actual payments received by the U.S. Holder on the Contingent Security in a taxable year and the projected amounts of those payments will be accounted for as additional interest (in the case of a net positive adjustment) or as an offset to interest income in respect of the Contingent Security (in the case of a net negative adjustment) for that taxable year. If the net negative adjustment for a taxable year exceeds the amount of interest on the Contingent Security for that year, the excess will be treated as ordinary loss in that year, but only to the extent the U.S. Holder's total interest inclusions on the Contingent Security exceed the total amount of any ordinary loss in respect of the Contingent Security claimed by the U.S. Holder under this rule in prior taxable years. Such a loss (as well as any ordinary loss incurred in connection with the taxable disposition of a Contingent Security, as described in the following paragraph) is not treated as a miscellaneous itemised deduction (for which a deduction would be unavailable). Any net negative adjustment that is not allowed as an ordinary loss for the taxable year is carried forward to the next taxable year, and is taken into account in determining whether the U.S. Holder has a net positive or negative adjustment for that year. Any net negative adjustment that is carried forward to a taxable year in which the U.S. Holder sells or taxably disposes of the Contingent Security reduces the U.S. Holder's amount realised on the sale or other taxable disposition.

Upon the taxable disposition of a Contingent Security prior to its stated maturity or expiry, a U.S. Holder generally will recognise taxable income or loss equal to the difference between the amount received from the taxable disposition and the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Contingent Security. A U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Contingent Security will equal the cost thereof, increased by any interest income the U.S. Holder has previously accrued (determined by taking into account any adjustments made because the U.S. Holder purchased the Contingent Security at more or less than its adjusted issue price, as discussed in the next paragraph, but not taking into account adjustments due to differences between projected and actual payments) and decreased by the projected amounts of any payments previously made on the Contingent Security (without regard to actual amounts paid). At maturity or expiry, a U.S. Holder will be treated as receiving the projected amount for that date (reduced by any carryforward of a net negative adjustment), and any difference between the amount received and that projected amount will be treated as a positive or negative adjustment governed by the rules described above. A U.S. Holder generally must treat any income realised on the taxable disposition of a Contingent Security as interest income and any loss as ordinary loss to the extent of previous interest inclusions (reduced by the total amount of net negative adjustments previously taken into account as ordinary losses) and the balance as capital loss, the deductibility of which is subject to limitations. If a U.S. Holder recognises a loss above certain thresholds, the U.S. Holder may be required to file a disclosure statement with the IRS (as described below under "Reportable Transactions"). U.S. Holders should consult their tax advisers regarding this reporting obligation.

The discussions below under "Market Discount" and "Securities Purchased at a Premium" do not apply to Contingent Securities. If a U.S. Holder purchases a Contingent Security for an amount that is less than its adjusted issue price, the U.S. Holder must (i) make a positive adjustment increasing the interest the U.S. Holder would otherwise accrue to the extent such amount is attributable to a change in interest rates and/or (ii) make a positive adjustment increasing the ordinary income (or decreasing the ordinary loss) that the U.S. Holder would otherwise recognise upon the date of a projected payment to the extent such amount is attributable to a change in expectations as to the amount of that projected payment. If a U.S. Holder purchases a Contingent Security for an amount that is greater than its adjusted issue price, the U.S. Holder must (i) make a negative adjustment decreasing the interest that the U.S. Holder would otherwise accrue to the extent such amount is attributable to a change in interest rates and/or (ii) make a negative adjustment decreasing the ordinary income (or increasing the ordinary loss) that the U.S. Holder would otherwise recognise upon the date of a projected payment to the extent such amount is attributable to a change in expectations as to the amount of that projected payment.

Special rules may apply if all the remaining payments on a Contingent Security become fixed substantially contemporaneously. For this purpose, payments will be treated as fixed if the remaining contingencies with respect to them are remote or incidental. Under these rules, a U.S. Holder would be required to account for the difference between the original projected payments and the fixed payments in a reasonable manner over the period to which the difference relates. In addition, a U.S. Holder would be required to make adjustments to, among other things, its accrual periods and its tax basis in the Contingent Security. The character of any gain or loss on a sale or other taxable disposition of the Contingent Security also might be affected. If one or more (but not all) contingent payments on a Contingent Security became fixed more than six months prior to the relevant payment date(s), a U.S. Holder would be required to account for the difference between the original projected payment(s) and the fixed payment(s) on a present value basis. Prospective purchasers of Contingent Securities should consult their tax advisers regarding the application of these rules.

Foreign Currency Contingent Payment Debt Instruments

Special rules apply to determine the accrual of OID and the amount, timing, and character of any gain or loss on a Security that is a contingent payment debt instrument denominated in, or whose payments are determined by reference to, a foreign currency (a "Foreign Currency Contingent Security"). The term "Foreign Currency Contingent Security" also applies to certain debt instruments denominated in, or providing for payments determined by reference to, multiple currencies. The discussions below under "Securities Purchased at a Premium" and "Market Discount" do not apply to Foreign Currency Contingent Securities.

Under these rules, a U.S. Holder of a Foreign Currency Contingent Security generally will be required to accrue OID in the foreign currency in which the Foreign Currency Contingent Security is denominated, if applicable, or in the foreign currency with reference to which payments on the Security are determined (or, in the case of a Foreign Currency Contingent Security that has payments determined by reference to more than one foreign currency, in the "predominant currency" determined under applicable Treasury regulations) (the "relevant foreign currency"). A U.S. Holder of a Foreign Currency Contingent Security will apply rules similar to those applicable to Contingent Securities, as described above under "Contingent Payment Debt Instruments", to determine OID accruals, account for net positive or net negative adjustments, and calculate income or loss on the taxable disposition of the Foreign Currency Contingent Security. All such determinations are made in the relevant foreign currency. A highly complex set of rules governs the translation into U.S. dollars of the amounts determined in the relevant foreign currency and the related determination of foreign currency gain or loss. Prospective purchasers of Foreign Currency Contingent Securities should consult their tax advisers regarding these rules. A U.S. Holder might be required to file a disclosure statement with the IRS if the U.S. Holder recognises foreign currency loss above certain thresholds (as described below under "Reportable Transactions").

Short-Term Securities

Certain modifications to the general rules apply to Securities with a term of one year or less (from but excluding the issue date to and including the last possible date that the Securities could be outstanding pursuant to their terms) ("Short-Term Securities").

First, none of the interest on a Short-Term Security is treated as qualified stated interest. Instead, interest on a Short-Term Security is treated as part of the Short-Term Security's stated redemption price at maturity, thereby giving rise to OID equal to the sum of all payments on the Security less the Security's issue price. OID will be treated as accruing on a Short-Term Security rateably, or, at the election of a U.S. Holder, under a constant yield method.

Second, a cash-method holder of a Short-Term Security generally will not be required to include OID in respect of the Short-Term Security in income on a current basis. However, the cash-method holder may not be allowed to deduct all of the interest paid or accrued on any indebtedness incurred or maintained to purchase or carry the Security until the maturity or expiry of the Security or its earlier taxable disposition. In addition, such a cash-method holder will be required to treat any gain realised on a taxable disposition of the Security as ordinary income to the extent of the holder's accrued OID on the Security, and as short-term capital gain to the extent the gain exceeds the accrued OID. Any resulting loss generally will be treated as a short-term capital loss, the deductibility of which is subject to limitations. If a U.S. Holder recognises a loss above certain thresholds, the U.S. Holder may be required to file a disclosure statement with the IRS (as described below under "Reportable Transactions"). A cash-method holder of a Short-Term Security may, however, elect to accrue OID into income on a current basis. In that case, the limitation on the deductibility of interest described above will not apply. An accrual-method holder generally will be required to include OID on a Short-Term Security in income on a current basis.

Third, Short-Term Securities will not be subject to the rules applicable to Contingent Securities. However, a Short-Term Security may have special redemption or settlement features or provide for other contingent payments. These features may cause uncertainty regarding the timing and character of income to be recognised on the Short-Term Security. Prospective purchasers of Short-Term Securities with such features should consult their tax advisers regarding these uncertainties.

Market Discount

If a U.S. Holder purchases a Security, other than a Short-Term Security, Contingent Security or Foreign Currency Contingent Security, for an amount that is less than the Security's stated redemption price at maturity or, in the case of an OID Security, for an amount that is less than the Security's revised issue price (i.e., the Security's issue price increased by the amount of accrued OID), the Security will be considered to have market discount (a "Market Discount Security"). The market discount rules are subject to a de minimis rule similar to the rule relating to de minimis OID described above (in the second paragraph under "Original Issue Discount"). Any gain recognised by the U.S. Holder on the taxable disposition of a Market Discount Security generally will be treated as ordinary income to the extent of the market discount that accrued on the Security while held by such U.S. Holder. For Securities providing for instalment payments, a U.S. Holder will be required to recognise accrued market discount upon receipt of instalment payments.

Alternatively, the U.S. Holder may elect to include market discount in income currently over the term of the Security. Such an election will apply to debt instruments with market discount acquired by the U.S. Holder on or after the first day of the first taxable year to which such election applies and may be revoked only with the consent of the IRS. Market discount will accrue on a straight-line basis unless the U.S. Holder elects to accrue the market discount on a constant-yield method. Unless the U.S. Holder elects to include market discount in income on a current basis, as described above, the U.S. Holder generally will be required to defer the deduction of a portion of the interest paid on any indebtedness incurred or maintained to purchase or carry the Security.

Market discount on a Foreign Currency Security will be determined by a U.S. Holder in the relevant foreign currency. The amount includible in income by a U.S. Holder in respect of accrued market discount will be the U.S. dollar value of the amount accrued. This is generally calculated at the spot rate of exchange on the date that the Security is disposed of by the U.S. Holder. Any accrued market discount on a Foreign Currency Security that is currently includible in income generally will be translated into U.S. dollars at the average exchange rate for the accrual period or portion of such accrual period within the U.S. Holder's taxable year.

Securities Purchased at a Premium

A U.S. Holder that purchases a Security (other than a Contingent Security or Foreign Currency Contingent Security) for an amount in excess of the remaining redemption or settlement amount (as defined above under "Original Issue Discount") will be considered to have purchased the Security at a premium. In that case, the OID rules will not apply to the Security. The U.S. Holder may elect to amortise the premium, as an offset to qualified stated interest, using a constant-yield method, over the remaining term of the Security. This election, once made, generally applies to all debt instruments held or subsequently acquired by the U.S. Holder on or after the beginning of the first taxable year to which the election applies and may be revoked only with the consent of the IRS. A U.S. Holder that elects to amortise bond premium must reduce its tax basis in a Security by the amount of the premium amortised during its holding period. Special rules may affect the U.S. Holder's ability to amortise bond premium if a Security may be redeemed or terminated at the Issuer's election at a price in excess of the Security's stated redemption price at maturity. Prospective purchasers who anticipate acquiring Securities with such features at a premium should consult their tax advisers regarding these special rules. If a U.S. Holder does not elect to amortise bond premium, the U.S. Holder generally will treat the premium as capital loss when the Security matures.

Amortisable bond premium in respect of a Foreign Currency Security will be computed in the relevant currency and will reduce qualified stated interest in that currency. At the time amortised bond premium offsets interest income, foreign currency gain or loss, which will be taxable as ordinary income or loss, will be realised on the amortised bond premium on such Security based on the difference between (1) the spot rate of exchange on the date or dates such premium offsets interest payments on the Security and (2) the spot rate of exchange on the date on which the U.S. Holder acquired the Security.

Possible Alternative Tax Treatment

There is no authority regarding the proper U.S. federal tax treatment of Debt Designated Securities (including certain Credit Linked Notes that are Debt Designated Securities) that do not provide for the return at maturity or expiry of a holder's investment under all circumstances. It is possible that all or any portion of such a Security could be recharacterised as other than a debt instrument, in which case the character and timing of income on the Security may be different for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In addition, even if the Issuer treats a Credit Linked Note as debt for U.S. federal tax purposes, the consequences of a Risk Event or a Credit Event may not be clear, depending on the circumstances.

Even if the tax treatment of the Securities as debt is respected, it is possible that Securities that the Issuer does not intend to treat as Contingent Securities or Foreign Currency Contingent Securities could be treated as Contingent Securities or Foreign Currency Contingent Securities, with the consequences described above under "Contingent Payment Debt Instruments" or "Foreign Currency Contingent Payment Debt Instruments", respectively.

Securities Not Treated as Debt

The discussions below address various categories of Securities that the Issuer intends to treat for U.S. federal income tax purposes as other than debt, as indicated by the statement under "United States Tax Considerations" in the applicable Issue Terms ("Non-Debt Designated Securities"). As discussed under "General", this section does not address the U.S. federal tax treatment of Preference Share Linked Securities.

Due to the absence of controlling statutory, judicial or administrative authorities that directly address the U.S. federal tax treatment of non-debt Securities or similar instruments, significant aspects of the tax treatment of an investment in these Securities are uncertain. The following discussions of specific types of non-debt Securities generally assume that the Issuer's intended treatment of each type of Security is respected. These discussions are subject to, and should be read in conjunction with, the section below entitled "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt". As discussed in that section, alternative treatments of the Securities are possible, and even if the Issuer's general characterisation of the relevant Securities is respected there may nonetheless be uncertainty about specific aspects of the tax treatment of the relevant Securities. The Issuer does not plan to request a ruling from the IRS, and the IRS or a court might not agree with the treatments described below. Accordingly, prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding all aspects of the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the Securities.

If the Issuer designates a Substitute for itself, or there is another change to the Securities that results in the Securities being treated as reissued for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as discussed in "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt—Possible Taxable Event Under Section 1001 of the Code", the treatment of the Securities after such an event could differ from their prior treatment. Except where specifically stated, the discussion herein assumes that no such deemed retirement and reissuance has occurred.

Securities Treated as Prepaid Forward Contracts or Options

The following discussion applies only to Securities, not providing for any payments prior to maturity, expiry or early termination, that the Issuer treats for U.S. federal income tax purposes as prepaid forward contracts or options.

A U.S. Holder generally should not be required to recognise taxable income over the term of a Security prior to maturity or expiry, other than pursuant to a taxable disposition as described below.

Upon a taxable disposition of a Security for cash and/or property (other, generally, than the delivery of the Underlying in settlement of a Physical Delivery Security), a U.S. Holder should recognise gain or loss equal to the difference between the cash and/or the value of property received and the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Security. A U.S. Holder's tax basis in a Security generally should equal the amount paid to acquire it. Subject to the discussion below under "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt - Possible Application of Section 988 of the Code", "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt - Possible Application of Section 1260 of the Code" and "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt - Possible Application of Section 1256 of the Code", this gain or loss generally should be long-term capital gain or loss if at the time of the sale, exchange or retirement the U.S. Holder held the Security for more than one year, and short-term capital gain or loss otherwise. However, for Securities linked to rates, the IRS may assert that any gain or loss recognized by a U.S. Holder upon settlement of the Securities at maturity, expiry or termination should be treated as ordinary gain or loss. In the event of an ordinary loss to a U.S. Holder that is an individual, the loss may be treated as a non-deductible "miscellaneous itemized deduction". A U.S. Holder should consult their tax adviser regarding the character of gain or loss recognized upon a settlement of the Securities at maturity, expiry or termination.

The tax consequences of receipt of the Underlying in settlement of a Physical Delivery Security are not clear. If receipt of the Underlying is treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as the physical settlement of the Security, subject to the discussion below under "Possible Application of Section 1260 of the Code", the U.S. Holder generally should not recognise any gain or loss with respect to the Underlying received. Under this treatment, a U.S. Holder should have an aggregate tax basis in the Underlying (including any fractional Underlying for which cash is received) equal to the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Security, plus any exercise price or other amounts paid in connection with exercise of the Security, and should have a holding period in that Underlying beginning on the day after receipt. With respect to any cash received in lieu of a fractional Underlying, a U.S. Holder should recognise capital gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference between the amount of that cash and the tax basis allocable to the fractional Underlying. However, it is possible that receipt of the Underlying could be treated as a taxable disposition of the Security for an amount equal to the fair market value of the Underlying, less any amounts paid by the U.S. Holder on exercise, in which case the U.S. Holder would recognise gain or loss (subject to potential treatment as a recapitalisation or, in the case of loss, to the possible application of the wash sale rules) as described in the previous paragraph. In that event, the Underlying received would generally be treated as purchased for its fair market value on the date of receipt. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the tax consequences of delivery of the Underlying.

In some cases, a Security may provide for amounts that are fixed or accrue prior to maturity or expiry but are paid at maturity or expiry (or, depending on the terms of the Security, upon an early retirement). In that event, a U.S. Holder might be required to treat such amounts as ordinary income, either at maturity or expiry or as they are fixed or accrue. Alternatively, if the entire amount of the payment at maturity or expiry becomes fixed or subject to a minimum level prior to maturity or expiry, the Security might be treated as terminated for U.S. federal income tax purposes at such time, in which case a U.S. Holder could be required to recognise gain, if any, in respect of the Security and to treat the Security as debt thereafter. See "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt". Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the treatment of such payments.

Securities Treated as Prepaid Forward Contracts or Options with Associated Periodic Payments

The following discussion applies only to Securities that the Issuer treats for U.S. federal income tax purposes as prepaid forward contracts or options with associated periodic payments. Unless otherwise specified in the applicable Issue Terms, this discussion also applies to a Security that provides for non-periodic payment(s) prior to maturity, expiry or early retirement.

Insofar as it has information reporting responsibility in respect of a Security, the Issuer expects to treat the periodic payments (including the periodic payment at maturity or expiry) as ordinary income, which the U.S. Holder would recognise in accordance with its method of accounting for U.S. federal income tax purposes. It is possible that the timing and character of income with respect to a periodic payment could be different, as described below. See "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt" (including, for example, Warrants that the relevant Issuer treats for U.S. federal income tax purposes as prepaid forward contracts linked to one or more non-U.S. equities and that provide for cash payments determined by reference to dividends (if any) on the Underlying (such other cash payments, non-U.S. dividend-linked payments, and each such warrant, an "Access Warrant"). With respect to Delta One Warrants and any other Warrants that the Issuer treats for U.S. federal income tax purposes as prepaid forward contracts linked to one or more non-U.S. equities that provide solely for (i) a payment at maturity, expiry or earlier retirement of cash determined by reference to the value of the Underlying (or physical delivery of the Underlying) and (ii) other cash payments determined by reference to dividends (if any) on the Underlying (such other cash payments, non-U.S. dividend-linked payments, and each such warrant, an Access Warrant), a U.S. Holder generally should not be required to recognise taxable income over the term of the Access Warrants prior to maturity or expiry, except with respect to non-U.S. dividend-linked payments, as discussed below.

Upon a taxable disposition of a Security for cash and/or property (other than the Underlying) a U.S. Holder generally should recognise gain or loss equal to the difference between (i) the cash and/or property received and (ii) the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Security. However, any periodic payment received at maturity or expiry will, and the treatment of any sales proceeds attributable to an accrued but unpaid periodic payment may, be treated as described in the preceding paragraph. A U.S. Holder's tax basis in a Security generally should equal the amount paid to acquire it. This gain or loss generally should be long-term capital gain or loss if at the time of the taxable disposition the U.S. Holder held the Security for more than one year, and short-term capital gain or loss otherwise.

The tax consequences of receipt of the Underlying in settlement of a Physical Delivery Security are not clear. If receipt of the Underlying is treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as the physical settlement of the Security, the U.S. Holder generally should not recognise any gain or loss with respect to the Underlying received. Under this treatment, a U.S. Holder should have an aggregate tax basis in the Underlying (including any fractional Underlying for which cash is received) equal to the U.S. Holder's tax basis in the Security, plus any exercise price or other amounts paid in connection with exercise of the Security, and should have a holding period in that Underlying beginning on the day after receipt. With respect to any cash received in lieu of a fractional Underlying, a U.S. Holder should recognise capital gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference between the amount of that cash and the tax basis allocable to the fractional Underlying. However, it is possible that receipt of the Underlying could be treated as a taxable disposition of the Security for an amount equal to the fair market value of the Underlying, less any amounts paid by the U.S. Holder on exercise, in which case the U.S. Holder would recognise gain or loss (subject to potential treatment as a recapitalisation or, in the case of loss, to the possible application of the wash sale rules) as described in the previous paragraph. In that event, the Underlying received would generally be treated as purchased for its fair market value on the date of receipt. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the tax consequences of delivery of the Underlying.

Securities Treated as Put Options and Deposits

The following discussion applies only to a Security that the Issuer treats as a put option (the "Put Option") written by the U.S. Holder with respect to the Underlying, secured by a deposit equal to the stated principal amount of the Security (the "Deposit"). It generally assumes that the U.S. Holder purchases the Security for its stated principal amount. Under this treatment:

- a portion of each periodic payment made with respect to a Security will be attributable to interest on the Deposit; and
- the remainder will represent option premium attributable to the U.S. Holder's grant of the Put Option (with respect to each payment received and, collectively, all periodic payments received, the "Put Premium").

It is possible that the timing and character of income with respect to a periodic payment could be different, as described below under "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt".

If the term of a Security is not more than one year (taking into account the last possible date that the Securities could be outstanding pursuant to their terms), the Deposit will be treated as a "short-term obligation" generally subject to the rules described under "Securities Treated as Debt - Short-Term Securities" above.

If the term of a Security is more than one year (taking into account the last possible date that the Securities could be outstanding pursuant to their terms), subject to anything to the contrary in the applicable Issue Terms, the Issuer generally intends to treat the Deposit as a fixed rate debt instrument or a "Single-Rate VRDI", depending on the terms of the Security, and the following discussion is based on this treatment. Under this treatment, interest on the Deposit generally will be taxable as ordinary interest income at the time it accrues or is received in accordance with the U.S. Holder's method of tax accounting. If, however, the terms of the Deposit cause it instead to be treated as a "contingent payment debt instrument", as described above under "Securities Treated as Debt – Contingent Payment Debt Instruments", the timing and character of income recognised on the Deposit will be as described in that section.

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

The Put Premium should not be taken into account until the taxable disposition of a Security. Where relevant, the Issuer will provide the percentage of each periodic payment that is allocated to interest on the Deposit and to Put Premium in the applicable Issue Terms. This allocation is binding on a U.S. Holder unless the U.S. Holder discloses otherwise on its U.S. federal income tax return; however, it is not binding on the IRS.

Upon a taxable disposition of a Security prior to maturity, expiry or earlier termination, a U.S. Holder should apportion the amount realised between the Deposit and the Put Option based on their respective values on the date of the taxable disposition. Except with respect to any amount attributable to accrued interest on the Deposit, which, if not previously included in income, should generally be treated as a payment of interest (in the case of a short-term Security, only to the extent of the gain recognised), a U.S. Holder will recognise gain or loss with respect to the Deposit in an amount equal to the difference between (i) the amount realised that is apportioned to the Deposit (the "Deposit Value") and (ii) the U.S. Holder's basis in the Deposit (i.e., the issue price of the Security). Such gain or loss will be long-term capital gain or loss if the U.S. Holder has held the Security for more than one year, and short-term capital gain or loss otherwise. If the amount of a periodic payment in respect of an accrual period is not known until the end of the relevant observation period, it is not clear how much interest, if any, will be treated as having accrued on the Deposit at the time of a taxable disposition prior to maturity or expiry.

Any difference between the amount realised on the taxable disposition and the Deposit Value will be apportioned to the Put Option. If the Deposit Value exceeds the amount realised upon the taxable disposition of a Security, a U.S. Holder will be treated as having made a payment equal to such excess in exchange for the purchaser's assumption of the Put Option. A U.S. Holder should recognise short-term capital gain or loss in respect of the Put Option in an amount equal to the total Put Premium previously received, decreased by the amount deemed to be paid by the U.S. Holder, or increased by the amount deemed to be paid to the U.S. Holder, in exchange for the purchaser's assumption of the Put Option.

The periodic payment received at maturity, expiry or earlier termination should be treated as described above under "Securities Treated as Prepaid Forward Contracts or Options with Associated Periodic Payments".

If a Security is retired for its stated principal amount (without taking into account any periodic payment), the Put Option should be deemed to have expired unexercised, in which case a U.S. Holder should generally recognise short-term capital gain in an amount equal to the sum of all payments of Put Premium received, including the Put Premium received at maturity or expiry.

At maturity or expiry, if a U.S. Holder receives an amount of cash and/or property (other than the Underlying), not counting the final periodic payment, that is different from the stated principal amount, the Put Option generally should be deemed to have been exercised and the U.S. Holder should be deemed to have applied the Deposit toward the cash settlement of the Put Option. In that case, the U.S. Holder should generally recognise short-term capital gain or loss with respect to the Put Option in an amount equal to the difference between (i) the sum of the total Put Premium received (including the Put Premium received at maturity or expiry) and the cash and/or other property the U.S. Holder receives at maturity or expiry, excluding the final periodic payment, and (ii) the Deposit.

If the Underlying is an interest in an entity treated as a partnership for U.S. federal income tax purposes, it is unclear whether any capital gain or loss recognised in respect of the Put Option upon retirement of the Security should be treated as long-term or short-term capital gain or loss, respectively, if the U.S. Holder has held the Security for more than a year at that time. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the tax consequences of purchasing a Security linked to such an interest.

The tax consequences of receipt of the Underlying in settlement of a Physical Delivery Security are not clear. If receipt of the Underlying is treated for U.S. federal income tax purposes as the physical settlement of the Security, the Put Option will be deemed to have been exercised, and the U.S. Holder should be deemed to have applied the Deposit toward the physical settlement of the Put Option. Under this treatment, a U.S. Holder should not recognise any income or gain in respect of the total Put Premium received (including the Put Premium received at maturity or expiry) and should not recognise any gain or loss with respect to any Underlying received. Instead, a U.S. Holder should have an aggregate tax basis in the Underlying received (including any fractional Underlying) equal to the Deposit less the total Put Premium received over the term of the Securities. A U.S. Holder's holding period for any Underlying received should start on the day after receipt. With respect to any cash received in lieu of a fractional Underlying, a U.S. Holder should recognise capital gain or loss in an amount equal to the difference between the amount of cash received in lieu of the fractional Underlying and the pro rata portion of the U.S. Holder's aggregate tax basis that is allocable to the fractional Underlying. However, it is possible that receipt of the Underlying could be treated as a taxable disposition of the Security for an amount equal to the fair market value of the Underlying, in which case the U.S. Holder would recognise gain or loss as described above (subject, in the case of loss, to the possible application of the wash sale rules). In that event, the Underlying received would generally be treated as purchased for its fair market value on the date of receipt. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the tax consequences of delivery of the Underlying.

Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt

Alternative U.S. federal income tax treatments of the Securities are possible that, if applied, could materially and adversely affect the timing and/or character of income, gain or loss with respect to non-debt Securities. For instance, a Security could be treated as a debt instrument, notwithstanding the Issuer's treatment of it as a non-debt instrument, in which case (i) physical delivery of the Underlying would be a taxable event, and (ii) the consequences of owning the Security would generally be as described above under "Securities Treated as Debt—Short-Term Securities" or "Securities Treated as Debt—Contingent Payment Debt Instruments", as applicable. Moreover, if the payment at maturity or expiry on a non-debt Security were to become fixed or subject to a minimum level prior to maturity or expiry, a U.S. Holder might be required to treat the Security as debt after that date and also possibly to recognise gain at that time. Alternatively, any payments received prior to the disposition of a non-debt Security might be treated as a non-taxable return of capital, which would affect the determination of gain or loss upon the taxable disposition of the non-debt Security. It is also possible that a U.S. Holder could be treated as owning the Underlying, in which case the tax consequences might be materially and adversely affected.

For Securities linked to an Underlying that is not a specific asset, for example a Rate, the IRS may assert that (i) any gain or loss recognised at maturity or expiry of the Security could be treated as ordinary income or loss instead of capital gain or loss and (ii) any loss so recognised as ordinary could be treated as a non-deductible "miscellaneous itemized deduction".

Prospective purchasers should consult their tax adviser regarding the character of gain or loss recognized upon a settlement of the Securities at maturity, expiry or termination. With respect to Securities treated as prepaid forward contracts or options with associated periodic payments and Securities treated as Put Options and Deposits, the periodic payments on the Securities might not be accounted for separately as giving rise to income to a U.S. Holder until the sale, exchange or retirement of the Securities. In the case of Securities treated as Put Options and Deposits, the entire periodic payment on the Security could be treated as ordinary income at the time received or accrued. In either case, such an alternative treatment would affect, among other things, the determination of gain or loss upon the taxable disposition of the relevant Security.

Other possible U.S. federal income tax treatments of the Securities could also affect the timing and character of income or loss with respect to the Securities. In addition, the U.S. Treasury Department and the IRS have requested comments on various issues regarding the U.S. federal income tax treatment of "prepaid forward contracts" and similar financial instruments and have indicated that such transactions may be the subject of future regulations or other guidance. In addition, members of Congress have proposed legislative changes to the tax treatment of derivative contracts. Any legislation, Treasury regulations or other guidance promulgated after consideration of these issues could materially and adversely affect the tax consequences of an investment in the Securities, possibly with retroactive effect. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers concerning the U.S. federal income tax consequences of an investment in the Securities, including possible alternative treatments and potential changes in applicable law.

Possible Application of Section 1260 of the Code

If a Security is linked to an Underlying that is an equity interest in one of a specified list of entities, including an exchange-traded fund or other regulated investment company (e.g., a mutual fund), a real estate investment trust, partnership, trust or PFIC, it is possible, depending upon the specific terms of the Security, that an investment in the Security will be treated as a "constructive ownership transaction" within the meaning of Section 1260 of the Code. In that case, all or a portion of any long-term capital gain otherwise recognised by a U.S. Holder in respect of the Security would be recharacterised as ordinary income to the extent such gain exceeded the "net underlying long-term capital gain". Although the matter is unclear, the "net underlying long-term capital gain" may equal the amount of long-term capital gain a U.S. Holder would have realised if on the issue date the U.S. Holder had invested the amount paid to acquire the Security in the relevant Underlying and sold those Underlying units for their fair market value at the time the relevant Security is sold, exchanged or retired (which would generally reflect the percentage increase, if any, in the value of the Underlying over the term of the Securities). However, the "net underlying long-term capital gain" could be calculated in other ways. The amount of "net underlying long-term capital gain" is treated as zero unless the actual amount of "net underlying long-term capital gain" is established by clear and convincing evidence. Any long-term capital gain recharacterised as ordinary income under Section 1260 would be treated as accruing at a constant rate over the period the U.S. Holder held the Security, and the U.S. Holder would be subject to a notional interest charge in respect of the deemed tax liability on the income treated as accruing in prior tax years. Moreover, if a Security that is treated as a constructive ownership transaction is physically settled, Section 1260 is applied to any gain that would be recognized on the Security if the U.S. Holder had disposed of the Security for its fair market value upon such settlement in a taxable disposition. Securities linked to certain Underlyings could, if a U.S. Holder is an individual or other non-corporate investor, be subject to tax at the higher rates applicable to "collectibles" instead of the general rates that apply to long-term capital gain. See "Possible Higher Tax on Securities Linked to 'Collectibles'" below. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the possible application of Section 1260 of the Code to the Securities.

Possible Taxable Event Under Section 1001 of the Code

If there is (i) any Adjustment Event, including but not limited to the replacement of the Underlying, (ii) a change in the methodology by which an Index is calculated, (iii) a change in the components of an Index, (iv) any other circumstance resulting in a material change to the Underlying or a rate referenced by a Security, (v) a redenomination, (vi) a designation by the Issuer of a Substitute for itself, or (vii) any other circumstance resulting in a material change to the terms of a Security, it is possible that the Securities could be treated, in whole or part, as retired and reissued for U.S. federal income tax purposes. In the event of a deemed retirement, a U.S. Holder might be required to recognise gain or loss (subject to potential treatment as a recapitalisation or, in the case of loss, to the possible application of the wash sale rules) with respect to the Securities. Moreover, the treatment of the Securities after such an event could differ from their prior treatment. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the risk of such an event.

Possible Application of Section 988 of the Code

If the Underlying in respect of a Security consists of one or more foreign currencies, foreign currency debt instruments, contingent foreign currency debt instruments, or indices or derivatives with respect to the foregoing, it is likely that the Security will be subject to Section 988 of the Code. In that case, subject to the election discussed in the next sentence, any gain or loss recognised on the Security generally will be treated as ordinary income or loss instead of capital gain or loss. While a taxpayer may elect to treat gain or loss on certain non-debt instruments linked to one or more foreign currencies as capital gain or loss (a "Section 988 election"), depending on the terms of the Security, it is unclear whether a "Section 988 election" would be available for Securities treated as prepaid forward contracts or options, and doubtful that it would be available for other Securities. In addition, assuming Section 988 of the Code applies to the Securities and a valid Section 988 election is not made, a U.S. Holder might be subject to special reporting requirements that apply to foreign currency losses that exceed certain thresholds (as described below under "Reportable Transactions"). Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the potential application of Section 988 of the Code and the availability and advisability of making a "Section 988 election".

With respect to Securities treated as Put Options and Deposits, not described in the preceding paragraph, that are denominated in or determined by reference to a foreign currency, the Deposit (but not, generally, a Put Option that references a non-currency Underlying) may be subject to special rules under Section 988 of the Code that are applicable to foreign currency debt as described above under "Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders—Securities Treated as Debt". Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the potential application of Section 988 to the Securities.

Possible Application of Section 1256 of the Code

Special rules will apply if a Security is treated in whole or in part as subject to the mark-to-market rules of Section 1256 of the Code. Section 1256 applies, among others, to "foreign currency contracts", as well as certain options listed on or subject to the rules of a qualified board or exchange. If Section 1256 of the Code were to apply to a Security, a U.S. Holder would be required (i) to recognise gain or loss on all, or a portion, of the Security as if it were sold at its fair market value on the last business day of each year it is held, and (ii) to treat such gain or loss as 40 per cent. short-term capital gain or loss and 60 per cent. long-term capital gain or loss (subject, in the case of a foreign currency contract, to the U.S. Holder's making a valid Section 988 election as described above). In the absence of a valid Section 988 election with respect to a Security treated as a "foreign currency contract", the gain or loss recognised would be ordinary and, in the case of loss, could be subject to special reporting requirements (as described below under "Reportable Transactions"). Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the potential application of Section 1256 of the Code to the Securities.

Possible Higher Tax on Securities Linked to "Collectibles"

Under current law, long-term capital gain recognised on a sale of "collectibles" (which includes, among others, metals) or an ownership interest in certain entities that hold collectibles is generally taxed at the maximum 28 per cent. rate applicable to collectibles. It is possible that long-term capital gain from a taxable disposition of certain non-debt Securities linked to an Underlying that is a collectible or is one of certain entities holding collectibles would be subject to the maximum 28 per cent. rate applicable to collectibles, instead of the lower long-term capital gain rate. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding an investment in a Security linked to a collectible or to an entity holding collectibles.

Tax Consequences to Non-U.S. HoldersSecurities Issued by a U.S. Issuer*Securities Treated as Debt*

This section describes certain generally applicable U.S. federal income tax consequences to Non-U.S. Holders in respect of Debt Designated Securities (as defined above) issued by Citigroup Inc. or CGMHI (each, a "U.S. Issuer"). It generally assumes that the Issuer's intended treatment of the Securities as debt for U.S. federal income tax purposes is respected. Prospective purchasers of the Securities should consult their tax advisers about the risk that the IRS challenges the Issuer's treatment of the Securities. Certain exceptions to these general rules and other special considerations are discussed below under "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations for Non-U.S. Holders" and "FATCA", and therefore this discussion is subject to, and should be read in conjunction with, the discussion contained in those sections.

Interest payments on a Security issued by a U.S. Issuer should not be subject to U.S. federal withholding tax, as long as (1) the Non-U.S. Holder does not actually or constructively own 10 per cent. or more of the total combined voting power of all classes of stock of the U.S. Issuer entitled to vote, (2) the Non-U.S. Holder is not (i) a controlled foreign corporation for U.S. federal income tax purposes that is related to the U.S. Issuer through stock ownership or (ii) a bank extending credit pursuant to a loan agreement entered into in the ordinary course of its trade or business, (3) such interest is not contingent on the U.S. Issuer's profits, revenues or changes in the value of its property and is not otherwise excluded from the definition of "portfolio interest" by Section 871(h)(4) of the Code, and (4) the Non-U.S. Holder provides a statement signed under penalties of perjury that certifies that it is a non-United States person in compliance with applicable requirements (generally, an appropriate IRS Form W-8) or satisfies certain documentary evidence requirements for establishing that it is a non-United States person. Gain realised by a Non-U.S. Holder on the taxable disposition of a Security (which excludes amounts attributable to accrued interest) generally will not be subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax.

If the Issuer designates a Substitute for itself, or there is another change to the Securities that results in the Securities being treated as reissued for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as discussed in "Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders—Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt—Possible Taxable Event Under Section 1001 of the Code", the treatment of the Securities after such an event could differ from their prior treatment. Except where specifically stated, the discussion herein assumes that no such deemed retirement and reissuance has occurred.

As discussed under "Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders—Securities Treated as Debt—Possible Alternative Tax Treatment" above, there is no authority regarding the proper U.S. federal tax treatment of Debt Designated Securities (including certain Credit Linked Notes that are Debt Designated Securities) that do not provide for the return at maturity or expiry of a holder's investment under all circumstances. The Issuer's intended treatment of such Securities is not binding on the IRS, and the IRS could disagree with it. If such a Security were treated as an instrument other than debt, interest payments on the Security, if paid by a U.S. Issuer, could be subject to withholding at a rate of 30 per cent., subject to reduction under an applicable income tax treaty. Insofar as it has responsibility as a withholding agent in respect of such Securities, the Issuer currently does not intend to withhold on payments on such Securities to Non-U.S. Holders (subject to the certification requirements and the exceptions described herein). However, it is possible that other withholding agents may withhold on interest payments on such Securities, and in the future the Issuer may determine that it is required to so withhold. In addition, even if the relevant Issuer treats a Credit Linked Note as debt for U.S. federal tax purposes, the consequences of a Risk Event or a Credit Event may not be clear, depending on the circumstances.

Securities Not Treated as Debt

This section describes certain generally applicable U.S. federal income tax consequences to Non-U.S. Holders in respect of Non-Debt Designated Securities issued by a U.S. Issuer. It generally assumes that the Issuer's intended treatment of the Securities as financial instruments other than debt for U.S. federal income tax purposes is respected. Certain exceptions to these general rules are discussed below under "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations for Non-U.S. Holders" and "FATCA", and therefore this discussion is subject to, and should be read in conjunction with, the discussions contained in those sections. Prospective purchasers should note that a U.S. Issuer will not be required to pay any additional amounts with respect to U.S. federal income taxes, if any, withheld, whether by the Issuer or by another withholding agent, with respect to Non-Debt Designated Securities.

If the Issuer designates a Substitute for itself, or there is another change to the Securities that results in the Securities being treated as reissued for U.S. federal income tax purposes, as discussed in "Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders—Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt—Possible Taxable Event Under Section 1001 of the Code", the treatment of the Securities for Non-U.S. Holders, including withholding tax consequences, after such an event could differ from their prior treatment. Except where specifically stated, the discussion herein assumes that no such deemed retirement and reissuance has occurred. Non-U.S. Holders should consult their tax advisers regarding the risk of a taxable event with respect to the Securities.

Non-U.S. Holders should refer to "Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders – Securities Not Treated as Debt" above for the definitions of certain terms used below.

Securities Treated as Prepaid Forward Contracts or Options

Generally, subject to the discussion in the next paragraph, a Non-U.S. Holder should not be subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax in respect of the taxable disposition of a Security, not providing for any payments prior to maturity, expiry or early termination, that the Issuer treats for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a prepaid forward contract or an option.

In some cases, a Security may provide for amounts that are fixed or accrue prior to maturity or expiry but are paid at maturity or expiry. In that event, such amounts paid to a Non-U.S. Holder might be subject to withholding tax at a rate of 30 per cent (which may be reduced under an applicable income tax treaty). In particular, in the case of Long/Short Certificates it is possible that a Non-U.S. Holder could be subject to withholding tax at a rate of 30 per cent., subject to reduction under an applicable tax treaty, on the portion of the payment at maturity or expiry that is attributable to dividends on the Underlying. While the Issuer currently does not intend to withhold on such payments (subject to the discussion below under "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations for Non-U.S. Holders— Section 871(m) Withholding on Dividend Equivalents"), in light of the uncertain treatment of the Securities other persons having withholding or information reporting responsibility in respect of the Securities may treat some or all of such payment on a Security as subject to withholding tax at a rate of 30 per cent., subject to reduction under an applicable income tax treaty. Moreover, it is possible that in the future the Issuer may determine that it should withhold on such payments. Even if the Issuer or an applicable withholding agent generally treats such amounts as eligible for an exemption from withholding, in light of the uncertain treatment of such amounts the Issuer or an applicable withholding agent might require a Non-U.S. Holder to provide a statement signed under penalties of perjury that certifies that it is a non-United States person in compliance with applicable requirements (generally an appropriate IRS Form W-8) or to satisfy certain documentary evidence requirements for establishing that it is a non-United States person. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the treatment of such payments.

Access Warrants and Convertible Bond Warrants

Subject to the discussion in the next paragraph, a Non-U.S. Holder generally should not be subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax in respect of amounts paid to the Non-U.S. Holder upon the taxable disposition of an Access Warrant or a Convertible Bond Warrant (as defined below).

The U.S. federal income tax consequences of non-U.S. dividend-linked payments and non-U.S. interest-linked payments (as defined below) are unclear. While the Issuer currently does not intend to withhold on such payments, in light of the uncertain treatment of the Access Warrants and Convertible Bond Warrants other persons having withholding or information reporting responsibility in respect of the Access Warrants or Convertible Bond Warrants may treat some or all of such payments on an Access Warrant or a Convertible Bond Warrant as subject to withholding tax at a rate of 30 per cent., subject to reduction under an applicable income tax treaty. Moreover, it is possible that in the future the Issuer may determine that it is required to withhold at such rate on such payments. Further, in order to treat such payments as exempt from withholding, the Issuer or an applicable withholding agent may require a Non-U.S. Holder to provide a statement signed under penalties of perjury that certifies that it is a non-United States person in compliance with applicable requirements (generally, an appropriate IRS Form W-8) or to satisfy certain documentary evidence requirements for establishing that it is a non-United States person. Prospective purchasers should consult their tax advisers regarding the treatment of such payments.

For the purpose of this discussion, a "Convertible Bond Warrant" is a Warrant that the Issuer treats for U.S. federal income tax purposes as a prepaid forward contract linked to one or more non-U.S. Debt Securities, that provides for (i) a payment at expiry or earlier retirement of cash determined by reference to the value of the Underlying (or physical delivery of the Underlying) and (ii) other cash payments determined by reference to interest (if any) on the Underlying (such other cash payments, "non-U.S. interest-linked payments").

Securities Treated as Prepaid Forward Contracts or Options with Associated Periodic Payments

With respect to Securities treated as prepaid forward contracts or options with associated periodic payments, to the extent the Issuer has withholding responsibility in respect of the Securities, it intends to treat the periodic payments as subject to withholding at a rate of 30 per cent., unless the Non-U.S. Holder provides a properly executed and appropriate IRS Form W-8 claiming eligibility for a reduction of or an exemption from withholding under an applicable income tax treaty. A Non-U.S. Holder generally should not be subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax with respect to the taxable disposition of a Security (although any amount received in respect of a periodic payment may be treated as subject to withholding). Unless otherwise specified in the applicable Issue Terms, this discussion also applies to a Security that provides for non-periodic payment(s) prior to maturity, expiry or early retirement.

Securities Treated as Put Options and Deposits

A Non-U.S. Holder generally should not be subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax in respect of amounts paid on a Security treated as a Put Option and a Deposit, as long as the requirements in the second paragraph under "Securities Treated as Debt" are met. While the Issuer currently does not intend to withhold on payments to Non-U.S. Holders on Securities treated as Put Options and Deposits (assuming these requirements are met), in light of the uncertain treatment of the Securities other persons having withholding responsibility in respect of the Securities may treat some or all of each periodic payment on a Security as subject to withholding tax at a rate of 30 per cent. (which may be reduced under an applicable income tax treaty). Moreover, it is possible that in the future the Issuer may determine that it should so withhold at a rate of 30 per cent., subject to reduction under an applicable income tax treaty, on periodic payments on the Securities. A Non-U.S. Holder generally should not be subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax with respect to the taxable disposition of a Security (other than with respect to amounts attributable to an accrued periodic payment, which are discussed above).

Securities Issued by the Non-U.S. Issuer

Securities issued by CGMFL (the "Non-U.S. Issuer") to Non-U.S. Holders will be designated as "Non-U.S. Securities" in the applicable Issue Terms. For such Securities, subject to the discussions below under "Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations for Non-U.S. Holders—Effectively Connected Income", "Section 871(m) Withholding on Dividend Equivalents", "FIRPTA" and "FATCA", the Issuer currently intends to treat payments made with respect to the Securities as not subject to U.S. federal withholding tax.

Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations for Non-U.S. Holders

Except where specified otherwise, the discussion in this section applies to any Security issued by either the Non-U.S. Issuer or a U.S. Issuer and held by a Non-U.S. Holder.

Possible Alternative Tax Treatments of an Investment in the Securities

Alternative U.S. federal income tax treatments of the Securities are possible that, if applied, could materially and adversely affect the timing and/or character of income, gain or loss with respect to the Securities. If all or any portion of a Security issued by a U.S. Issuer that the Issuer treats as a financial instrument other than debt were recharacterised as a debt instrument, any payment made to a Non-U.S. Holder with respect to the Security generally would not be subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax as long as the requirements in the second paragraph under "Tax Consequences to Non-U.S. Holders - Securities Issued by a U.S. Issuer - Securities Treated as Debt" are met. Moreover, if the payment at maturity or expiry on a non-debt Security were to become fixed or subject to a minimum level prior to maturity or expiry, a Non-U.S. Holder might be required to treat the Security as debt after that date. Alternatively, it is possible that a Non-U.S. Holder could be treated as owning the Underlying, in which case the tax consequences might be materially and adversely affected.

Other U.S. federal income tax treatments of the Securities are also possible. As discussed above under "Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders - Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt", the U.S. Treasury Department and the IRS released a notice requesting comments on the U.S. federal income tax treatment of "prepaid forward contracts" and similar financial instruments and have indicated that such transactions may be the subject of future regulations or other guidance. In addition, members of Congress have proposed legislative changes to the tax treatment of derivative contracts. Any legislation, Treasury regulations or other guidance promulgated after consideration of these issues could materially and adversely affect the withholding tax consequences of an investment in the Securities, possibly with retroactive effect. If withholding is required on Non-Debt Designated Securities, the Issuer will not be required to pay any additional amounts with respect to amounts so withheld.

If all or any portion of a Security issued by a U.S. Issuer that the Issuer treats as a debt instrument were recharacterised as a financial instrument other than debt, certain payments made to a Non-U.S. Holder could be treated as being subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax, as discussed above under "Tax Consequences to Non-U.S. Holders - Securities Issued by a U.S. Issuer - Securities Not Treated as Debt". In addition, even if the Issuer treats a Credit Linked Note as debt for U.S. federal tax purposes, the consequences of a Risk Event or a Credit Event may not be clear, depending on the circumstances.

Effectively Connected Income

If a Non-U.S. Holder is engaged in a U.S. trade or business, and if income (including gain) from a Security is effectively connected with the conduct of that trade or business, the Non-U.S. Holder generally will be subject to regular U.S. federal income tax with respect to that income in the same manner as if the Non-U.S. Holder were a U.S. Holder, unless an applicable income tax treaty provides otherwise. If such a Non-U.S. Holder is a corporation, the Non-U.S. Holder should also consider the potential application of a 30 per cent. (or lower treaty rate) branch profits tax. A Non-U.S. Holder would be required to provide an IRS Form W-8ECI to the applicable withholding agent to establish an exemption from withholding for amounts, otherwise subject to withholding, paid on a Security.

Section 871(m) Withholding on Dividend Equivalents

Section 871(m) of the Code and the Treasury regulations thereunder ("Section 871(m)") impose a 30 per cent. (or lower treaty rate) withholding tax on "dividend equivalents" paid or deemed paid to Non-U.S.

Holders with respect to certain financial instruments linked to U.S. equities ("Underlying Securities", as defined under the applicable Treasury regulations), or indices that include Underlying Securities. Section 871(m) generally applies to specified equity-linked instruments ("Specified ELIs"), which are financial instruments that substantially replicate the economic performance of one or more Underlying Securities, as determined based on tests set forth in the applicable Treasury regulations and discussed further below. Section 871(m) provides certain exceptions to this withholding regime, in particular for instruments linked to certain broad-based indices that meet requirements set forth in the applicable Treasury regulations ("Qualified Indices") as well as securities that track such indices ("Qualified Index Securities").

Although the Section 871(m) regime became effective in 2017, the applicable Treasury regulations, as modified by an IRS notice, phase in the application of Section 871(m) as follows:

- For financial instruments issued prior to 2027, Section 871(m) will generally apply only to financial instruments that have a "delta" of one.
- For financial instruments issued in 2027 and thereafter, Section 871(m) will apply if either (i) the "delta" of the relevant financial instrument is at least 0.80, if it is a "simple" contract, or (ii) the financial instrument meets a "substantial equivalence" test, if it is a "complex" contract.

Delta is generally defined as the ratio of the change in the fair market value of a financial instrument to a small change in the fair market value of the number of shares of the Underlying Security. The "substantial equivalence" test measures whether a complex contract tracks its "initial hedge" (shares of the Underlying Security that would fully hedge the contract) more closely than would a "benchmark" simple contract with a delta of 0.80.

The calculations are generally made at the calculation date, which is the earlier of (i) the time of pricing of the Security, i.e., when all material terms have been agreed on, and (ii) the issuance of the Security. However, if the time of pricing is more than 14 calendar days before the issuance of the Security, the calculation date is the date of the issuance of the Security. Under these rules, information regarding the Issuer's final determinations for purposes of Section 871(m) may be available only after a Non-U.S. Holder agrees to acquire a Security. As a result, a Non-U.S. Holder should acquire such a Security only if it is willing to accept the risk that the Security is treated as a Specified ELI subject to withholding under Section 871(m).

In addition, Securities of a Series that are issued in different Tranches, or otherwise priced on different dates, may have different calculation dates for purposes of determining whether they are Specified ELIs. As a result, Securities acquired by a Non-U.S. Holder may be Specified ELIs, and therefore subject to withholding under Section 871(m), even if other Securities of the same Series are not Specified ELIs. In such a situation, a withholding agent may treat all of the Securities in that Series as being subject to Section 871(m) withholding if it is not able to distinguish among those Securities.

If the terms of a Security are subject to a "significant modification" (for example, upon an Issuer substitution, as discussed above under "Tax Consequences to U.S. Holders—Other U.S. Federal Tax Considerations Applicable to Securities That Are Not Treated as Debt—Possible Taxable Event Under Section 1001 of the Code") the Security generally will be treated as reissued for this purpose at the time of the significant modification, in which case the Security could become a Specified ELI at that time.

If a Security is a Specified ELI, withholding in respect of dividend equivalents will, depending on the applicable withholding agent's circumstances, generally be required either (i) on the underlying dividend payment date or (ii) when cash payments are made on the Security or upon the date of maturity or expiry, lapse or other disposition of the Security by the Non-U.S. Holder, or possibly upon certain other events. Depending on the circumstances, the applicable withholding agent may withhold the required amounts from coupons or other payments on the Security, from proceeds of the retirement or other disposition of the Security, or from other cash or property of the Non-U.S. Holder held by the withholding agent.

The dividend equivalent amount will include the amount of any actual or, under certain circumstances, estimated dividend. If the dividend equivalent amount is based on the actual dividend, it will be equal to the product of: (i) in the case of a "simple" contract, the per-share dividend amount, the number of shares of an Underlying Security and the delta; or (ii) in the case of a "complex" contract, the per-share dividend amount and the initial hedge. The dividend equivalent amount for Specified ELIs issued prior to 2027 that have a "delta" of one will be calculated in the same manner as (i) above, using a "delta" of one. The per-share dividend amount will be the actual dividend (including any special dividends) paid with respect to a share of the Underlying Security. If the dividend equivalent amount is based on an estimated dividend, the Issue Terms will generally state the estimated amounts.

Depending on the terms of a Security and whether or not it is issued prior to 2027, the Issue Terms may contain additional information relevant to Section 871(m), such as whether the Security references a Qualified Index or Qualified Index Security; whether it is a "simple" contract; the "delta" and the number of shares multiplied by delta (for a simple contract); and whether the "substantial equivalence test" is met and the initial hedge (for a complex contract).

The Issuer's determination is binding on Non-U.S. Holders and withholding agents, but it is not binding on the IRS. The Section 871(m) regulations require complex calculations to be made with respect to Securities linked to Underlying Securities and their application to a specific issue of Securities may be uncertain. Accordingly, even if the Issuer determines that certain Securities are not Specified ELIs, the IRS could challenge the Issuer's determination and assert that withholding is required in respect of those Securities.

Moreover, the consequences under Section 871(m) may depend on the particular circumstances of the Non-U.S. Holder. For example, if a Non-U.S. Holder enters into other transactions relating to an Underlying Security, the Non-U.S. Holder could be subject to withholding tax or income tax liability under Section 871(m) even if the relevant Securities are not Specified ELIs subject to Section 871(m) as a general matter. Non-U.S. Holders should consult their tax advisers regarding the application of Section 871(m) in their particular circumstances.

Specified Current Payment Securities

The following discussion applies to certain Securities that are Specified ELIs and that provide solely for (i) a payment at maturity, expiry or earlier retirement or exercise that is determined by reference to the value of the Underlying(s) (or physical delivery of the Underlying(s)) and (ii) cash payments equal to dividends (if any) on each Underlying Security to which the Securities relate multiplied by the number of shares of such Underlying Security to which the Securities relate (such cash payments, ("U.S. dividend-linked payments") and each such Security, (a "Specified Current Payment Security"). It is expected that each U.S. dividend-linked payment will be made on the payment date for the related dividend.

The Issuer will treat each U.S. dividend-linked payment as the payment of a dividend equivalent. Accordingly, Non-U.S. Holders should expect withholding agents to withhold 30 per cent. (or a lower rate under the dividend provision of an applicable income tax treaty) of each U.S. dividend-linked payment. However, because the application of Section 871(m) to Specified Current Payment Securities is not entirely clear, it is possible that a withholding agent could treat such a Security as subject to additional withholding, for example from amounts due at maturity or exercise of the Security. In addition, a withholding agent may withhold at the 30 per cent. (or other applicable maximum) rate regardless of whether the Non-U.S. Holder is eligible for the benefits of an income tax treaty in respect of the payment.

Specified Net Total Return Securities

The following discussion applies to certain Securities that are Specified ELIs and that provide solely for a payment at maturity, expiry or earlier retirement or exercise that is determined by reference to the value of the Underlying(s) (or physical delivery of the Underlying(s)), where such final value, in the case of an Underlying that is an Underlying Security, reflects the deemed reinvestment of any dividends paid over the term of the Security in respect of the number of shares of such Underlying Security to which the Security relates, net of the maximum amount of U.S. withholding tax that would be applicable to each such dividend (currently, 30 per cent.) (such net amount, the Net Dividend Amount). The discussion herein refers to each such Security as a Specified Net Total Return Security.

Upon the payment of a dividend with respect to an Underlying Security in respect of a Specified Net Total Return Security, the Issuer will deposit with the IRS an amount equal to the relevant gross dividend amount multiplied by the maximum applicable U.S. withholding tax rate on dividends (not reduced by the application of any U.S. income tax treaty). Because (i) the Net Dividend Amount plus (ii) the amount to be deposited with the IRS will equal 100 per cent. of the gross dividend amount, the Issuer will treat the aggregate of (i) and (ii) as the payment of a dividend equivalent equal to 100 per cent. of such gross dividend amount for purposes of Section 871(m).

Prospective purchasers of Securities that are Specified ELIs should consult their tax advisers regarding whether they are eligible for a refund of any part of the withholding tax discussed above on the basis of an applicable U.S. income tax treaty, as well as the process for obtaining such a refund (which will generally require the filing of a U.S. federal income tax return). In some circumstances, including when the Issuer or another intermediary performs the withholding required under Section 871(m), it may not be possible for a Non-U.S. Holder to obtain the documentation necessary to support a refund claim under an applicable treaty.

The Issuer, the CGMHI Guarantor and the CGMFL Guarantor will not be required to pay any additional amounts in respect of amounts withheld under Section 871(m).

Prospective purchasers of the Securities should be aware that if a Section 871(m) Event (as defined under "Valuation and Settlement Schedule—Definitions—Section 871(m) Event") occurs, an Early Termination Event may occur, in which case the relevant Securities may be terminated as more fully set out in the terms and conditions of such Securities.

FIRPTA

Section 897 of the Code, commonly referred to as "FIRPTA", applies to certain interests in entities that beneficially own significant amounts of United States real property interests (each, a "USRPI"). As discussed above, the Issuer will not attempt to ascertain whether any issuer of Shares, shares that underlie an Index, or any other equity interest to which Securities relate should be treated as a USRPHC for purposes of Section 897 of the Code (including a non-corporate entity treated for relevant purposes of Section 897 of the Code as a USRPHC). If a relevant issuer were so treated, it is possible that, subject to the exceptions discussed in the following paragraph, a Security could be treated as a USRPI, in which case any gain from the disposition of the Security would generally be subject to U.S. federal income tax and would be required to be reported by the Non-U.S. Holder on a U.S. federal income tax return, generally in the same manner as if the Non-U.S. Holder were a U.S. Holder, and would in certain cases be subject to withholding in the amount of 15 per cent. of the gross proceeds of such disposition. Absent an applicable exception, a person required to perform such withholding may be required to treat a Security as a USRPI in certain circumstances, even if it is not known whether the Security references a USRPHC.

An exception to the FIRPTA rules applies in respect of interests in entities that have a regularly traded class of interests outstanding. Under this exception, a Security that is not "regularly traded" on an established securities market generally should not be subject to the FIRPTA rules unless its fair market value upon acquisition exceeds 5 per cent. of the relevant issuer's regularly traded class of interests as specified in the applicable Treasury regulations. In the case of Securities that are "regularly traded", a holding of 5 per cent. or less of the outstanding Securities of that class or series generally should not be subject to the FIRPTA rules. Certain attribution and aggregation rules apply, and prospective purchasers are urged to consult their tax advisers regarding whether their ownership interest in the Securities will be subject to an exemption from the FIRPTA rules in light of their circumstances, including any other interest they might have in a relevant issuer.

U.S. Federal Estate Tax

An individual Non-U.S. Holder or an entity the property of which is potentially includible in such an individual's gross estate for U.S. federal estate tax purposes (for example, a trust funded by such an individual and with respect to which the individual has retained certain interests or powers) should note that, absent an applicable treaty exemption, a Security issued by a U.S. Issuer that is not treated as debt for U.S. federal estate tax purposes may be treated as U.S. situs property subject to U.S. federal estate tax. A Security issued by a U.S. Issuer that is treated as debt for U.S. federal estate tax purposes generally will not be treated as U.S. situs property subject to U.S. federal estate tax if payments on the Security, if received by the decedent at the time of death, would not have been subject to U.S. federal withholding or income tax because of the exemption from withholding of "portfolio interest". A holder that is such an individual or entity should consult its tax adviser regarding the U.S. federal estate tax consequences of investing in the Securities. A Security that is issued by the Non-U.S. Issuer generally will not be treated as U.S.-situs property.

Reportable Transactions

A taxpayer that participates in a "reportable transaction" is subject to information reporting requirements under Section 6011 of the Code. "Reportable transactions" include, among other things, "loss transactions" that result in a taxpayer's claiming certain losses in excess of specified amounts and certain transactions identified by the IRS. In 2015, the U.S. Treasury Department and the IRS released notices designating certain "basket options", "basket contracts" and substantially similar transactions as reportable transactions. The notices apply to specified transactions in which a taxpayer or its "designee" has, and exercises, discretion to change the assets or an algorithm underlying the transaction. In addition, in July 2024 the U.S. Treasury Department and the IRS released proposed regulations that, if adopted in their current form, would deem any such transactions to be "listed transactions". An exception to the reporting requirements described in the 2015 notices applies to financial instruments that are treated as "variable rate debt instruments" or "contingent payment debt instruments" (including for this purpose Short-Term Securities with contingent payments) for U.S. federal income tax purposes. If the Issuer, an index sponsor or calculation agent or other person were to exercise discretion under the terms of a Security or an index underlying a Security and were treated as a holder's "designee" for these purposes, unless an exception applied (such as the exception for certain categories of debt instruments) certain holders of the relevant Securities would be required to report certain information to the IRS, as set forth in the applicable Treasury regulations, or be subject to penalties. The Issuer might also be required to report information regarding the transaction to the IRS. Holders should consult their tax advisers regarding these rules.

Information Reporting and Backup Withholding

Payments on the Securities, as well as the proceeds of a sale, exchange or other disposition (including retirement) of the Securities, may be subject to information reporting and, if an investor fails to provide certain identifying information (such as an accurate taxpayer identification number for a U.S. Holder) or meet certain other conditions, may also be subject to backup withholding at the rate specified in the Code. A Non-U.S. Holder that provides the applicable withholding agent with the appropriate IRS Form W-8 will generally establish an exemption from backup withholding. Amounts withheld under the backup withholding rules are not additional taxes and may be refunded or credited against a holder's U.S. federal income tax liability, provided the relevant information is timely furnished to the IRS.

FATCA

Legislation commonly referred to as "FATCA" generally imposes a withholding tax of 30 per cent. on payments to certain non-U.S. entities (including financial intermediaries) with respect to certain financial instruments, unless various U.S. information reporting and due diligence requirements (that are in addition to, and potentially significantly more onerous than, the requirement to deliver an IRS Form W-8) have been satisfied. An intergovernmental agreement between the United States and the non-U.S. entity's jurisdiction may modify these requirements. This legislation generally applies to payments of U.S.-source "fixed or determinable annual or periodical" ("FDAP") income, which includes, among other things, interest and certain dividend equivalents (as defined above) under Section 871(m). While the tax treatment of Securities that the Issuer treats as prepaid forward contracts or options with associated periodic payments is uncertain, Non-U.S. Holders should expect that persons having withholding responsibility in respect of those Securities will treat the coupons on those Securities as FDAP income for this purpose. While existing Treasury regulations would also require withholding on payments of gross proceeds from the disposition (including upon retirement) of financial instruments that provide for U.S.-source interest or certain dividend equivalents, the U.S. Treasury Department has indicated in subsequent proposed regulations its intent to eliminate this requirement. The U.S. Treasury Department has stated that taxpayers may rely on these proposed regulations pending their finalisation. A Non-U.S. Holder, or a U.S. Holder holding Securities through a non-U.S. intermediary, should consult their tax advisers regarding the potential application of FATCA to the Securities, including the availability of certain refunds or credits.

THE TAX CONSEQUENCES TO BENEFICIAL OWNERS OF OWNING AND DISPOSING OF SECURITIES MAY BE UNCLEAR. BENEFICIAL OWNERS SHOULD CONSULT THEIR TAX ADVISERS REGARDING THE TAX CONSEQUENCES OF OWNING AND DISPOSING OF SECURITIES, INCLUDING THE TAX CONSEQUENCES UNDER STATE, LOCAL, NON-U.S. AND OTHER TAX LAWS AND THE POSSIBLE EFFECTS OF CHANGES IN U.S. FEDERAL OR OTHER TAX LAWS.

UNITED KINGDOM TAXATION

The following is a summary of the Issuer's understanding of current United Kingdom tax law (as applied in England and Wales) and published HM Revenue and Customs' practice relating only to the United Kingdom withholding tax treatment of payments in respect of Securities and to whether the issue, transfer, redemption, exercise or settlement of a Security could be subject to United Kingdom stamp duty or stamp duty reserve tax. It does not deal with any other United Kingdom taxation implications of acquiring, holding, exercising, disposing or the settlement or redemption of Securities. The United Kingdom tax treatment of prospective Securityholders depends on their individual circumstances and may be subject to change in the future. Prospective Securityholders who may be subject to tax in a jurisdiction other than the United Kingdom or who may be unsure as to their tax position should seek their own professional advice.

In the following paragraphs references to "Notes" include both Notes and Certificates.

Withholding taxes

United Kingdom withholding taxes can apply to a number of different types of payments. Those which could be relevant to securities such as the Securities include: interest, annual payments and manufactured payments. As a general matter, the Issuer may make payments under the Securities without any deduction of or withholding on account United Kingdom income tax if the payments do not have a United Kingdom source and they are not made by the Issuer in the course of a trade carried on in the United Kingdom through a branch or agency.

Payments of interest on the Securities

Whether or not payments or any part of any payment on a Security will constitute "interest" will depend upon, amongst other things, the terms and conditions of the Securities and the basis upon which amounts payable on the Securities are calculated.

Payments of interest on the Securities that does not have a United Kingdom source may be made without deduction or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax. If interest paid on the Securities does have a United Kingdom source, then payments may be made without deduction or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax in any of the following circumstances.

Payments of interest on the Notes may be made without deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax provided that the Notes carry a right to interest and the Notes are and continue to be listed on a "recognised stock exchange" within the meaning of section 1005 of the Income Tax Act 2007 (ITA 2007).

The Luxembourg Stock Exchange, Euronext Dublin, the Stockholm Stock Exchange, the Italian Stock Exchange, the Frankfurt Stock Exchange, the Warsaw Stock Exchange and Euronext Paris are recognised stock exchanges. The Notes will satisfy this requirement if they are officially listed in Luxembourg, Ireland, Sweden, Italy, Germany, Poland or France in accordance with provisions corresponding to those generally applicable in EEA states and are admitted to trading on the Luxembourg Stock Exchange, Euronext Dublin, the Stockholm Stock Exchange, the Italian Stock Exchange, the regulated market of the Frankfurt Stock Exchange (although not the Open Market (Regulated Unofficial Market) (Freiverkehr)), the main market of the Warsaw Stock Exchange or Euronext Paris (as applicable). Provided, therefore, that the Notes carry a right to interest and are and remain so listed on a "recognised stock exchange", interest on the Notes will be payable without deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom tax.

Payments of interest on the Notes may be made without deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax provided that the Notes carry a right to interest and the Notes are and continue to be "admitted to trading on a multilateral trading facility" operated by a "recognised stock exchange" within the meaning of section 1005 ITA 2007 that is regulated in the UK or the EEA. The International Securities Market, the Global Exchange Market, Vienna MTF, NASDAQ Stockholm MTF, the multilateral trading facility of securitised derivatives financial instruments (the SeDeX) and the multilateral trading facility of EuroTLX are multilateral trading facilities for this purpose. Such multilateral trading facility is operated by the London Stock Exchange, Euronext Dublin, the Vienna Stock Exchange, the Stockholm Stock Exchange or the Italian Stock Exchange (as applicable) which is a recognised stock exchange that is regulated in the EEA. Provided, therefore, that the Notes carry a right to interest and are and remain admitted to trading on a multilateral trading facility operated by a recognised stock exchange that is regulated in the UK or the EEA, interest on the Notes will be payable without deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom tax.

Payments of interest on Notes may be made without deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom tax where the maturity of the Notes is less than 365 days and those Notes do not form part of a scheme or arrangement of borrowing intended to be capable of remaining outstanding for more than 364 days.

In other cases, an amount must generally be withheld from payments of interest on the Securities that has a United Kingdom source on account of United Kingdom income tax at the basic rate (currently 20 per cent.), subject to any other available exemptions and reliefs. However, where an applicable double tax treaty provides for a lower rate of withholding tax (or for no tax to be withheld) in relation to a Securityholder, HMRC can issue a notice to the Issuer to pay interest to the Securityholder without deduction of tax (or for interest to be paid with tax deducted at the rate provided for in the relevant double tax treaty).

Annual Payments

If a periodic payment on a Security were not "interest", and not repayment of principal, then such payment could constitute an "annual payment". Whether or not any periodic payment were to constitute an "annual payment" for these purposes will depend upon, amongst other things, the terms and conditions of the Securities and the basis upon which it is calculated. However, if in relation to a Security the Issuer is only required to make a single payment to its holders following redemption or exercise, and there are no amounts due by way of interest, Interest Amount or other periodic payment on that Security, payments should not generally constitute "annual payments".

Payments on a Security which constitute "annual payments" that do not have a United Kingdom source may be made without deduction or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax.

An amount must generally be withheld from "annual payments" on Securities that have a United Kingdom source on account of United Kingdom income tax at the basic rate (currently 20 per cent.). However, where an applicable double tax treaty provides for a lower rate of withholding tax (or for no tax to be withheld) in relation to a Securityholder, HMRC can issue a notice to the Issuer to make payments on the Securities to the Securityholder without deduction of tax (or for the relevant amounts to be paid with tax deducted at the rate provided for in the relevant double tax treaty).

Manufactured Payments

Payments on the Securities should not constitute "manufactured payments" subject to any deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax unless:

- (i) the Securities will or may settle by way of physical delivery;
- (ii) the assets which will or may be delivered are shares issued by a "company UK REIT" or the "principal company" of a "group UK REIT" (all bearing the same meaning as in section 918 ITA 2007) or securities (other than shares) issued by the United Kingdom government, a local or other public authority in the United Kingdom or any other United Kingdom resident body; and
- (iii) the payments are representative of dividends on those shares, or interest paid on those securities (as the case may be).

Payments on a Security which do constitute "manufactured payments" may in any event be made without deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax unless the Issuer makes those payments in the course of a trade carried on in the United Kingdom through a branch or agency.

If such a "manufactured payment" were paid by the Issuer then the Issuer may (subject to reliefs and exemptions) be required to make a deduction of or withholding on account of United Kingdom income tax from such payment on account of United Kingdom income tax at the basic rate. However, where an applicable double tax treaty provides for a lower rate of withholding tax (or for no tax to be withheld) in relation to a Securityholder, HMRC may be able to issue a notice to the Issuer to make the "manufactured payment" to the Securityholder without deduction of tax (or for the relevant amount to be paid with tax deducted at the rate provided for in the relevant double tax treaty).

Payments under the guarantee pursuant to a Deed of Guarantee

The United Kingdom withholding tax treatment of payments by a Guarantor under the terms of a Deed of Guarantee which have a United Kingdom source is uncertain. In particular, such payments by a Guarantor may not be eligible for the exemptions described above in relation to payments of interest. Accordingly, if the Guarantor makes any such payments, these may be subject to United Kingdom withholding tax at the basic rate.

Stamp duty and stamp duty reserve tax

A charge to stamp duty or stamp duty reserve tax may, in certain circumstances, arise on the issue, transfer, exercise, settlement and/or redemption of Securities and stamp duty reserve tax may also be payable in relation to any agreement to transfer Securities. This will depend upon the terms and conditions of the relevant Securities. Securityholders should take their own advice from an appropriately qualified professional advisor in this regard.

LUXEMBOURG TAXATION

The following information is of a general nature only and is based on the laws presently in force in Luxembourg, though it is not intended to be, nor should it be construed to be, legal or tax advice. The information contained within this section is limited to Luxembourg withholding tax issues. Prospective investors in the Securities should therefore consult their own professional advisers as to the effects of state, local or foreign laws, including Luxembourg tax law, to which they may be subject.

Please be aware that the residence concept used under the respective headings below applies for Luxembourg income tax assessment purposes only. Any reference in the present section to a withholding tax or a tax of a similar nature, or to any other concepts, refers to Luxembourg tax law and/or concepts only.

Taxation of the holders of Securities

Withholding Tax

(a) Non-resident holders of Securities

Under Luxembourg general tax laws currently in force, there is no withholding tax on payments (in respect of Securities which are Notes or Certificates, being payments of principal, premium or interest) made to non-resident holders of Securities, nor on accrued but unpaid interest in respect of the Securities (together, "payments"), nor is any Luxembourg withholding tax payable upon redemption, settlement, exercise or repurchase of the Securities held by non-resident holders of Securities.

(b) Resident holders of Securities

Under Luxembourg general tax laws currently in force and subject to the law of 23 December 2005, as amended (the "Relibi Law"), there is no withholding tax on payments, nor is any Luxembourg withholding tax payable upon redemption, settlement, exercise or repurchase of Securities held by Luxembourg resident holders of Securities.

Under the Relibi Law, payments of interest or similar income made or ascribed by a paying agent established in Luxembourg to an individual beneficial owner who is a resident of Luxembourg will be subject to a withholding tax of 20 per cent.. Such withholding tax will be in full discharge of income tax if the beneficial owner is an individual acting in the course of the management of their private wealth. Responsibility for the withholding of the tax will be assumed by the Luxembourg paying agent, if any. Accordingly, payments of interest under Securities coming within the scope of the Relibi Law will be subject to withholding tax at a rate of 20 per cent.

AUSTRIAN TAXATION

This section on taxation contains a brief summary of the Issuer(s) understanding with regard to certain important principles which are of significance in connection with the purchase, holding or sale of the Securities in Austria. This summary does not purport to exhaustively describe all possible tax aspects and does not deal with specific situations which may be of relevance for certain potential investors. The following comments are rather of a general nature and included in this Base Prospectus solely for information purposes. They are not intended to be, nor should they be construed to be, legal or tax advice. This summary is based on the currently applicable tax legislation, case law and regulations of the tax authorities, as well as their respective interpretation, all of which may be amended from time to time. Such amendments may possibly also be effected with retroactive effect and may negatively impact the tax consequences described. It is recommended that potential investors in the Securities consult with their legal and tax advisors as to the tax consequences of the purchase, holding or sale of the Securities. Tax risks resulting from the Securities (in particular from a potential qualification as a foreign investment fund within the meaning of sec. 188 of the Austrian Investment Funds Act 2011 (Investmentfondsgesetz 2011)) shall in any case be borne by the investor. This summary applies to Securities that are certificated and legally and factually offered to an indefinite number of persons in the sense of sec. 27a(2)(2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act (Einkommensteuergesetz). Deviating rules may apply to Securities that are uncertificated and/or not legally and factually offered to an indefinite number of persons.

Income Taxation

Individuals having a domicile (Wohnsitz) and/or their habitual abode (gewöhnlicher Aufenthalt), both as defined in sec. 26 of the Austrian Federal Fiscal Code (Bundesabgabenordnung), in Austria are liable to income tax (Einkommensteuer) in Austria on their worldwide income (unlimited income tax liability; unbeschränkte Einkommensteuerpflicht). Individuals having neither a domicile nor their habitual abode in Austria are liable to income tax only on income from certain Austrian sources (limited income tax liability; beschränkte Einkommensteuerpflicht).

Corporate entities (Körperschaften) having their place of management (Ort der Geschäftsleitung) and/or their legal seat (Sitz), both as defined in sec. 27 of the Austrian Federal Fiscal Code, in Austria are liable to corporate income tax (Körperschaftsteuer) in Austria on their worldwide income (unlimited corporate income tax liability; unbeschränkte Körperschaftsteuerpflicht). Corporate entities having neither their place of management nor their legal seat in Austria are liable to corporate income tax only on income from certain Austrian sources (limited corporate income tax liability; beschränkte Körperschaftsteuerpflicht).

Both in case of unlimited and limited (corporate) income tax liability Austria's right to tax may be restricted by double taxation treaties.

Pursuant to sec. 27(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, the term investment income (Einkünfte aus Kapitalvermögen) comprises:

- (a) income from the letting of capital (Einkünfte aus der Überlassung von Kapital) pursuant to sec. 27(2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, including dividends and interest; the tax basis is the amount of the earnings received (sec. 27a(3)(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act);
- (b) income from realised increases in value (Einkünfte aus realisierten Wertsteigerungen) pursuant to sec. 27(3) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, including gains from the alienation, redemption, settlement and other realisation of assets that lead to income from the letting of capital (including zero coupon bonds); the tax basis amounts to the sales proceeds or the redemption or settlement amount minus the acquisition costs, in each case including accrued interest (sec. 27a(3)(2)(a) of the Austrian Income Tax Act);
- (c) income from derivatives (Einkünfte aus Derivaten) pursuant to sec. 27(4) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, including cash settlements, option premiums received and income from the sale or other realisation of forward contracts like options, futures and swaps and other derivatives such as index certificates (the mere exercise of an option does not trigger tax liability); e.g. in the case of index certificates, the tax basis amounts to the sales proceeds or the redemption or settlement amount minus the acquisition costs (sec. 27a(3)(3)(c) of the Austrian Income Tax Act); and

- (d) income from crypto currencies (Einkünfte aus Kryptowährungen) pursuant to sec. 27(4a) of the Austrian Income Tax Act.

Also the withdrawal of the Securities from a securities account (Depotentnahme) and circumstances leading to a restriction of Austria's taxation right regarding the Securities vis-à-vis other countries, e.g. a relocation from Austria (Wegzug), are in general deemed to constitute a sale (cf. sec. 27(6)(1) and (2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act). The tax basis amounts to the fair market value minus the acquisition costs (sec. 27a(3)(2)(b) of the Austrian Income Tax Act).

Individuals subject to unlimited income tax liability in Austria holding the Securities as non-business assets are subject to income tax on all resulting investment income pursuant to sec. 27(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act. Investment income from the Securities with an Austrian nexus (inländische Einkünfte aus Kapitalvermögen), basically meaning income paid by an Austrian paying agent (auszahlende Stelle) or an Austrian custodian agent (depotführende Stelle) within the meaning of sec. 95(2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, is subject to withholding tax (Kapitalertragsteuer) at a flat rate of 27.5 per cent.; no additional income tax is levied over and above the amount of tax withheld (final taxation pursuant to sec. 97(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act). Investment income from the Securities without an Austrian nexus must be included in the investor's income tax return and is subject to income tax at the flat rate of 27.5 per cent. In both cases upon application the option exists to tax all income subject to income tax at a flat rate pursuant to sec. 27a(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act at the progressive income tax rate (option to regular taxation pursuant to sec. 27a(5) of the Austrian Income Tax Act). The acquisition costs must not include ancillary acquisition costs (Anschaffungsnebenkosten; sec. 27a(4)(2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act). Expenses such as bank charges and custody fees must not be deducted (sec. 20(2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act); this also applies if the option to regular taxation is exercised. Sec. 27(8) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, inter alia, provides for the following restrictions on the offsetting of losses: negative income from (i) the realisation of assets that lead to income from the letting of capital, (ii) derivatives and (iii) crypto currencies may be neither offset against interest from bank accounts and other non-securitised monetary claims vis-à-vis credit institutions (except for cash settlements and lending fees) nor against income from private foundations, foreign private law foundations and other comparable legal estates (Privatstiftungen, ausländische Stiftungen oder sonstige Vermögensmassen, die mit einer Privatstiftung vergleichbar sind); income subject to income tax at a flat rate pursuant to sec. 27a(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act may not be offset against income subject to the progressive income tax rate (this equally applies in case of an exercise of the option to regular taxation); negative investment income not already offset against positive investment income may not be offset against other types of income. The Austrian custodian agent has to effect the offsetting of losses by taking into account all of a taxpayer's securities accounts with the custodian agent, in line with sec. 93(6) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, and to issue a written confirmation to the taxpayer to this effect.

Individuals subject to unlimited income tax liability in Austria holding the Securities as business assets are subject to income tax on all resulting investment income pursuant to sec. 27(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act. Investment income from the Securities with an Austrian nexus is subject to withholding tax at a flat rate of 27.5 per cent. While withholding tax has the effect of final taxation for income from the letting of capital, other types of investment income must be included in the investor's income tax return (but are nevertheless subject to income tax at the flat rate of 27.5 per cent.). Investment income from the Securities without an Austrian nexus must always be included in the investor's income tax return and is subject to income tax at the flat rate of 27.5 per cent. In both cases upon application the option exists to tax all income subject to income tax at a flat rate pursuant to sec. 27a(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act at the progressive income tax rate (option to regular taxation pursuant to sec. 27a(5) of the Austrian Income Tax Act). The flat tax rate does not apply to income from realised increases in value of financial assets, from derivatives and from crypto currencies if realising these types of income constitutes a key area of the respective investor's business activity (sec. 27a(6) of the Austrian Income Tax Act). Expenses such as bank charges and custody fees must not be deducted (sec. 20(2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act); this also applies if the option to regular taxation is exercised. Pursuant to sec. 6(2)(c) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, depreciations to the lower fair market value and losses from the alienation, redemption, settlement and other realisation of financial assets, derivatives and crypto currencies in the sense of sec. 27(3) to (4a) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, which are subject to income tax at the flat rate of 27.5 per cent., are primarily to be offset against income from realised increases in value and appreciations in value of such assets within the same business unit (Wirtschaftsgüter desselben Betriebes); only 55 per cent. of the remaining negative difference may be offset against other types of income.

Pursuant to sec. 7(2) of the Austrian Corporate Income Tax Act (Körperschaftsteuergesetz), corporate entities subject to unlimited corporate income tax liability in Austria are subject to corporate income tax on income in the sense of sec. 27(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act from the Securities at a rate of 23 per cent. Income in the sense of sec. 27(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act from the Securities with an Austrian nexus is generally subject to withholding tax at a flat rate of 27.5 per cent. However, pursuant to sec. 93(1a) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, the withholding agent may apply a rate of 23 per cent., if the debtor of the withholding tax is a corporate entity. Such withholding tax can be credited against the corporate income tax liability. Under the conditions set forth in sec. 94(5) of the Austrian Income Tax Act withholding tax is not levied in the first place. Losses from the alienation of the Securities can be offset against other income.

Pursuant to sec. 13(3)(1) in connection with sec. 22(2) of the Austrian Corporate Income Tax Act, private foundations (Privatstiftungen) pursuant to the Austrian Private Foundations Act (Privatstiftungsgesetz) fulfilling the prerequisites contained in sec. 13(3) and (6) of the Austrian Corporate Income Tax Act and holding the Securities as non-business assets are subject to interim taxation at a rate of currently 23 per cent. (from 2026: 27.5 per cent.) on generally interest income, income from realised increases in value of assets that lead to income from the letting of capital, income from crypto currencies and income from derivatives (inter alia, if the derivatives are in the form of securities). Pursuant to the Austrian tax authorities' view, the acquisition costs must not include ancillary acquisition costs. Expenses such as bank charges and custody fees must not be deducted (sec. 12(2) of the Austrian Corporate Income Tax Act). Interim tax is generally not triggered insofar as distributions subject to withholding tax are made to beneficiaries in the same tax period. Investment income from the Securities with an Austrian nexus is generally subject to withholding tax at a flat rate of 27.5 per cent. Such withholding tax can be credited against the tax triggered Under the conditions set forth in sec. 94(12) of the Austrian Income Tax Act withholding tax is not levied.

Individuals and corporate entities subject to limited (corporate) income tax liability in Austria are taxable on income from the Securities if they have a permanent establishment (Betriebsstätte) in Austria and the Securities are attributable to such permanent establishment (cf. sec. 98(1)(3) of the Austrian Income Tax Act, sec. 21(1)(1) of the Austrian Corporate Income Tax Act). In addition, individuals subject to limited income tax liability in Austria are also taxable on interest in the sense of sec. 27(2)(2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act and accrued interest (including from zero coupon bonds) in the sense of sec. 27(6)(5) of the Austrian Income Tax Act from the Securities if the (accrued) interest has an Austrian nexus and if withholding tax is levied on such (accrued) interest. This does not apply to an individual being resident in a state with which automatic exchange of information exists, if the individual provides a certificate of residence to the withholding agent. Interest with an Austrian nexus is interest whose debtor has its place of management and/or its legal seat in Austria or is an Austrian branch of a non-Austrian credit institution; accrued interest with an Austrian nexus is accrued interest from securities issued by an Austrian issuer (sec. 98(1)(5)(b) of the Austrian Income Tax Act). The Issuer(s) understand that no such limited income tax liability applies in the case at hand.

Pursuant to sec. 188 of the Austrian Investment Funds Act 2011, the term "foreign investment fund" comprises (i) undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities whose member state of origin is not Austria; (ii) alternative investment funds pursuant to the Austrian Alternative Investment Fund Managers Act (Alternative Investmentfonds Manager-Gesetz) whose state of origin is not Austria; and (iii) secondarily, undertakings subject to a foreign jurisdiction, irrespective of the legal form they are organised in, whose assets are invested according to the principle of risk-diversification on the basis either of a statute, of the undertaking's articles or of customary exercise, if one of the following conditions is fulfilled: (a) the undertaking is factually, directly or indirectly, not subject to a corporate income tax in its state of residence that is comparable to Austrian corporate income tax; (b) the profits of the undertaking are in its state of residence subject to corporate income tax that is comparable to Austrian corporate income tax, at a rate of less than 13 per cent.; or (c) the undertaking is subject to a comprehensive personal or material tax exemption in its state of residence. Certain collective investment vehicles investing in real estate are exempted. In case of a qualification as a foreign investment fund, the tax consequences would substantially differ from those described above: A special type of transparency principle would be applied, pursuant to which generally both distributed income as well as deemed income would be subject to Austrian (corporate) income tax.

Inheritance and gift taxation

Austria does not levy inheritance or gift tax.

Certain gratuitous transfers of assets to private law foundations and comparable legal estates (privatrechtliche Stiftungen und damit vergleichbare Vermögensmassen) are subject to foundation transfer tax (Stiftungseingangssteuer) pursuant to the Austrian Foundation Transfer Tax Act (Stiftungseingangssteuergesetz) if the transferor and/or the transferee at the time of transfer have a domicile, their habitual abode, their legal seat and/or their place of management in Austria. Certain exemptions apply in cases of transfers mortis causa of financial assets within the meaning of sec. 27(3) and (4) of the Austrian Income Tax Act (except for participations in corporations) if income from such financial assets is subject to income tax at a flat rate pursuant to sec. 27a(1) of the Austrian Income Tax Act. The tax basis is the fair market value of the assets transferred minus any debts, calculated at the time of transfer. The tax rate currently is 2.5 per cent. (from 2026: 3.5 per cent.), with higher rates applying in special cases.

In addition, there is a special notification obligation for gifts of money, receivables, shares in corporations, participations in partnerships, businesses, movable tangible assets and intangibles if the donor and/or the donee have a domicile, their habitual abode, their legal seat and/or their place of management in Austria. Not all gifts are covered by the notification obligation: In case of gifts to certain related parties, a threshold of EUR50,000 per year applies; in all other cases, a notification is obligatory if the value of gifts made exceeds an amount of EUR15,000 during a period of five years. Furthermore, gratuitous transfers to foundations falling under the Austrian Foundation Transfer Tax Act described above are also exempt from the notification obligation. Intentional violation of the notification obligation may trigger fines of up to 10 per cent. of the fair market value of the assets transferred.

Further, gratuitous transfers of the Securities may trigger income tax at the level of the transferor pursuant to sec. 27(6)(1) and (2) of the Austrian Income Tax Act (see above).

BELGIAN TAXATION

Set out below is a summary of certain Belgian tax consequences of acquiring, holding and selling Securities. This summary is not intended to be an exhaustive description of all relevant Belgian tax considerations and the investors should consult their own professional tax advisors regarding the Belgian tax and other tax consequences (including the applicability and effect of tax treaties for the avoidance of double taxation) of acquiring, owning and disposing of Securities in their particular circumstances. The description of certain taxes in the Kingdom of Belgium ("Belgium") set out below is for general information only and does not purport to be comprehensive. In particular, it does not cover the situation of non-residents nor the tax treatment of securities which may be received upon repurchase or settlement of the Securities.

This summary is based on current legislation, published case law and other published guidelines and regulations as in force at the date of this document and remains subject to any future amendments, which may or may not have retroactive effect. Each investor should consult a professional adviser with respect to the tax consequences of an investment in the Securities, taking into account the applicable terms and the influence of each regional, local, federal or national law.

Any payment of interest (as defined by Belgian tax law) on the Securities made through a paying agent or other financial intermediary in Belgium will in principle be subject to Belgian withholding tax on the gross amount of the interest, currently at the rate of 30 per cent.

For Belgian tax purposes, if interest is in a foreign currency, it is converted into euro at the exchange rate applicable on the date of payment or attribution.

Belgian income tax

Variable Income

If the repurchase, redemption or exercise by the Issuer(s) is in full or in part settled by means of a delivery of securities or other assets, interest includes any positive difference between the sales value of those assets on the date of their payment or attribution and the initial issue price of the Securities.

Under Belgian tax law, 'interest' income includes: (i) periodic interest income; (ii) any amount paid by the Issuer(s) in excess of the Issue Price; and (iii) only if the Securities qualify as 'fixed income securities' (in the meaning of Article 2, §1, 8° Belgian Income Tax Code of 1992), in the case of a realisation of the Securities between two interest payment dates, the pro rata interest accrued during the holding period. In general, securities are qualified as 'fixed income securities' if there is a causal link between the amount of interest income and the holding period of the security, on the basis of which it is possible to calculate the amount of pro rata interest income at the moment of the sale of the Securities during their lifetime. On 25 January 2013, the Belgian tax authorities issued a circular letter on the Belgian tax treatment of income from structured securities characterised by an uncertain return on investment due to the variation of the coupons or the repayment terms at maturity or on exercise, such as securities whose return is linked to the evolution of underlying products. According to the circular letter, the transfer of structured securities to a third party (other than the issuer) results in taxation as interest income of the "pro rata interest", calculated on an unclear formulae. In addition, any amount paid in excess of the initial issue price upon redemption or repayment of the structured securities by the issuer is considered as interest for Belgian tax purposes. It is highly debatable whether the circular letter is in line with Belgian tax legislation. Furthermore, it is unclear whether the Belgian tax authorities will seek to apply the principles set out in the circular letter to the Securities.

In the event interest is paid in the form of delivery of listed securities, the market value of those securities will be deemed at least equal to the closing price on the day prior to the date of the payment or attribution based on information in the specialised financial press and/or via specialised electronic data bases. If the Securities are not listed on a Belgian or similar foreign market, then the taxpayer needs to determine the sales value under the supervision of the tax administration.

It is assumed that any gains realised upon redemption or repayment by the Issuer(s) will indeed be viewed as interest by the Belgian tax authorities (and any such gains are therefore referred to as "interest" for the purposes of the following paragraphs), but that the effective taxation of the "pro rata interest" in case of sale to a third party (i.e. other than the Issuer(s)) would not be possible, on the basis that it is currently impossible to determine the amount of the "pro rata interest".

Repayment or redemption by the Issuer(s)

- Belgian resident individuals

Belgian resident individuals, i.e. individuals who are subject to Belgian personal income tax (Personenbelasting/Impôt des personnes physiques), who are holding the Securities as a private investment are subject to the following tax treatment with respect to the Securities in Belgium. Other rules may be applicable in special situations, in particular when Belgian resident individuals acquire the Securities for professional purposes or when their transactions with respect to the Securities fall outside the scope of the normal management of their own private estate or are speculative in nature.

Payments of interest (as defined above) on the Securities made through a paying agent or other financial intermediary in Belgium will in principle be subject to a 30 per cent. withholding tax in Belgium (calculated on the interest received after deduction of any non-Belgian withholding taxes). The Belgian withholding tax constitutes in principle the final income tax for Belgian resident individuals. This means that they do not have to declare the interest obtained on the Securities in their personal income tax return, provided Belgian withholding tax was effectively levied on these interest payments.

Nevertheless, Belgian resident individuals may elect to declare interest on the Securities in their personal income tax return if that is beneficial from a tax perspective. Also, if the interest is paid outside Belgium without the intervention of a Belgian paying agent or other financial intermediary, the interest received (after deduction of any non-Belgian withholding tax) must be declared in the personal income tax return. Interest income which is declared this way will in principle be taxed at a flat rate of 30 per cent. (or at the relevant progressive personal income tax rate(s), taking into account the taxpayer's other declared income, whichever is more beneficial) and no local surcharges will be due. If the interest income is declared, the Belgian withholding tax levied may be credited against the personal income tax liability and any excess will normally be refundable.

- Belgian resident companies

Belgian resident companies, i.e. companies that are subject to Belgian corporate income tax (Vennootschapsbelasting/Impôt des sociétés), are subject to the following tax treatment with respect to the Securities in Belgium.

Interest received by Belgian resident companies on the Securities will be subject to Belgian corporate income tax at the ordinary corporate income tax rate of 25 per cent. Small and medium-sized companies are taxable – subject to conditions – at a reduced corporate tax rate of 20 per cent. for the first EUR100,000 of taxable profits. If the income has been subject to a foreign withholding tax, a foreign tax credit will be applied on the Belgian tax due. For interest income, the foreign tax credit is generally equal to a fraction where the numerator is equal to the foreign tax and the denominator is equal to 100 minus the rate of the foreign tax, up to a maximum of 15/85 of the net amount received (subject to some further limitations). Capital losses are in principle tax deductible.

Interest payments (as defined above) on the Securities made through a paying agent or other financial intermediary in Belgium are in principle subject to a 30 per cent. withholding tax, but can be exempt from Belgian withholding tax, PROVIDED THAT certain formalities are complied with (Articles 108 and 117, §12 of the Royal Decree of 27 August 1993 implementing the Belgian Income Tax Code of 1992). For zero or capitalisation bonds, an exemption from withholding tax will only apply if the Belgian company and the Issuer(s) are associated companies within the meaning of article 105, 6°, b of the Royal Decree of 27 August 1993 implementing the Belgian Income Tax Code of 1992. The withholding tax that has been levied is creditable in accordance with the applicable legal provisions and any excess will normally be refundable.

- Belgian non-profit legal entities

Belgian non-profit legal entities, i.e. legal entities that are subject to Belgian tax on legal entities (Rechtspersonenbelasting/Impôt des personnes morales), are subject to the following tax treatment with respect to the Securities in Belgium.

Payments of interest on the Securities made through a paying agent or other financial intermediary in Belgium will in principle be subject to a 30 per cent. withholding tax in Belgium and no further tax on legal entities will be due on the interest.

However, if the interest is paid outside Belgium without the intervention of a Belgian paying agent or other financial intermediary and without the deduction of Belgian withholding tax, the Belgian non-profit legal entity itself is responsible for declaring the interest income and for the payment of the 30 per cent. withholding tax.

Sale to a third party

No Belgian withholding tax should in principle apply to the Securities.

- Belgian resident individuals

Subject to the assumptions stated above under the heading "Variable Income", Belgian resident individuals, i.e. individuals who are subject to Belgian personal income tax (Personenbelasting/Impôt des personnes physiques), are currently not liable to Belgian income tax on the capital gains (if any) realised upon disposal of the Securities to a third party, PROVIDED THAT the Securities have not been used for their professional activity and that the capital gain is realised within the framework of the normal management of their private estate and is not speculative in nature. Capital losses realised upon disposal of the Securities held as a non-professional investment are in principle not tax deductible.

However, under current law, capital gains on the Securities may be subject to a 33 per cent. Belgian income tax (plus local surcharges) if they are deemed to be speculative or outside the scope of the normal management of a private estate. Capital losses arising from such transactions are not tax deductible, except for losses incurred in the previous five years which can be deducted from gains realised on such type of transactions.

However, under the new Belgian federal government agreement (2025), capital gains realised by private individuals on the sale of any financial assets on or after 1 January 2026 will be taxed at a rate of 10 per cent., with an annual exemption of the first EUR10,000. It is highly likely that this new measure (yet to be introduced in Belgian tax legislation) will apply to capital gains realised on sales of the Securities. Capital losses are deductible from gains on the same type of financial assets realised in the same tax year by the same taxpayer.

Capital gains realised upon transfer of Securities held for professional purposes are taxable at the ordinary progressive income tax rates (plus local surcharges), except for Securities held for more than five years as fixed assets, which are taxable at a separate rate of 16.5 per cent. (plus local surcharges). Capital losses on the Securities incurred by Belgian resident individuals holding the Securities for professional purposes are in principle tax deductible.

- Belgian resident companies

Belgian resident companies, i.e. companies that are subject to Belgian corporate income tax (Vennootschapsbelasting/Impôt des sociétés), are liable to Belgian corporate income tax on the capital gains (if any) realised upon disposal of the Securities to a third party, irrespective of whether such Securities relate to shares or other underlying assets or indices. The current standard corporate income tax rate in Belgium is 25 per cent. Small and medium-sized companies benefit from a 20 per cent. corporate tax rate on the first EUR100,000 of taxable profits, subject to conditions.

Capital losses realised upon disposal of the Securities are in principle tax deductible.

- Belgian non-profit legal entities

Belgian non-profit legal entities, i.e. legal entities that are subject to Belgian tax on legal entities (Rechtspersonenbelasting/Impôt des personnes morales), are currently not liable to Belgian income tax on capital gains (if any) realised upon disposal of the Securities to a third party.

Capital losses realised upon disposal of the Securities are in principle not tax deductible.

However, under the new Belgian federal government agreement (2025), capital gains realised by (non-profit) legal entities on the sale of any financial assets on or after 1 January 2026 will be taxed at a rate of 10 per cent., with an annual exemption of the first EUR10,000. It is highly likely that this new measure (yet to be introduced in Belgian tax legislation) will apply to capital gains realised on sales of the Securities.

Tax on stock exchange transactions

The sale and acquisition of the Securities on the secondary market is subject to a stock exchange tax (Taks op de beursverrichtingen/Taxe sur les opérations de bourse). It will be levied on the acquisition and disposal of the Securities for consideration on the secondary market executed through a professional intermediary in Belgium or if the order is transmitted directly or indirectly to a financial intermediary established outside of Belgium by either a physical person with habitual residence in Belgium or by a legal person for the account of a seat or establishment located in Belgium. The tax is due separately from each party to any such transaction, i.e. the seller (transferor) and the purchaser (transferee), and in both cases collected by the professional intermediary. Where the intermediary is established outside of Belgium, the tax will be due by the party giving the order, save where evidence is provided that the tax was already paid.

The tax rate is in principle 0.12 per cent. for transactions in debt instruments (such as bonds) and 0.35 per cent. for transactions in other securities, with a maximum amount of respectively EUR1,300 per transaction and per party and EUR1,600 per transaction and per party.

However, the tax referred to above will not be payable if no professional intermediary intervenes in the transaction or, even if a professional intermediary intervenes in the transaction, for transactions by exempt persons acting for their own account, including investors who are Belgian non-residents provided they deliver an affidavit to the financial intermediary in Belgium confirming their non-resident status and certain Belgian institutional investors, as defined in Article 126-1, 2° of the Code of various duties and taxes (Wetboek diverse rechten en taksen/Code des droits et taxes divers). Transactions on the primary market are not subject to the tax on stock exchange transactions.

Annual Tax on securities accounts

The Law of 17 February 2021 introduced an annual tax on securities accounts (Jaarlijkse taks op de effectenrekeningen/Taxe annuelle sur les comptes-titres). An annual tax of 0.15 per cent. ("Annual Tax on Securities Accounts") is levied on securities accounts of which the average value of the taxable financial instruments (covering, amongst others, financial instruments such as bonds, notes and warrants) held thereon during a reference period of twelve consecutive months (in principle) starting on 1 October and ending on 30 September of the subsequent year, would exceed EUR 1 million. The tax base is established by reference to four reference dates, i.e. 31 December, 31 March, 30 June and 30 September. The tax base is the sum of the values of the taxable financial instruments at the different reference points in time (i.e. 31 December, 31 March, 30 June and 30 September) divided by the number of those reference points in time. The applicable tax rate is equal to the lowest amount of either 0.15 per cent. of the average value of the account or 10 per cent. of the difference between the average value of the account and EUR1,000,000. The tax targets securities accounts held by resident individuals, companies and other legal entities, irrespective as to whether these accounts are held with a financial intermediary which is incorporated or established in Belgium or abroad. The tax also applies to securities accounts held by non-resident individuals, companies and other legal entities with a financial intermediary incorporated or established in Belgium. There are various exemptions, such as securities accounts held by specific types of regulated entities for their own account.

A financial intermediary is defined as (i) the National Bank of Belgium, the European Central Bank and foreign central banks performing similar functions, (ii) a central securities depository included in Article 198/1, §6, 12° of the Belgian Income Tax Code of 1992, (iii) a credit institution or a stockbroking firm as defined by Article 1, §3 of the Law of 25 April 2014 on the status and supervision of credit institutions and stockbroking firms and (iv) the investment companies as defined by Article 3, §1 of the Law of 25 October 2016 on access to the activity of investment services and on the legal status and supervision of portfolio management and investment advice companies, which are, pursuant to national law, admitted to hold financial instruments for the account of clients.

A Belgian intermediary is an intermediary incorporated under Belgian law, as well as an intermediary established in Belgium. A Belgian intermediary withholds, declares and pays the tax to the Belgian treasury.

Intermediaries not incorporated or established in Belgium have the possibility, when managing a securities account subject to the tax, to appoint a responsible representative established in Belgium, who will be approved by or on behalf of the Minister of Finance ("Annual Tax on Securities Accounts Representative"). The Annual Tax on Securities Accounts Representative is jointly and severally liable for the declaration and payment of the tax and for all other formalities.

In cases where no intermediary has withheld, declared and paid the Annual Tax on Securities Accounts, the holder of the securities account needs to declare and pay the tax, unless the holder can prove that the tax has already been withheld, declared and paid by either a Belgian intermediary or an Annual Tax on Securities Accounts Representative of a foreign intermediary.

Certain specific transactions regarding securities accounts executed as from 30 October 2020 were not effective vis-à-vis the Belgian tax authorities, i.e. splitting of a securities account in multiple securities accounts held with the same financial intermediary and the conversion of taxable financial instruments held in a securities account in financial instruments in registered form. In addition, a general anti-abuse provision was introduced in the Code of various duties and taxes with effect from 30 October 2020. The specific anti-abuse provision, as well as the retroactive date of entry into force of the general anti-abuse provision in relation to the Annual Tax on Securities Accounts were, however, annulled by the Belgian Constitutional Court in its decision n° 138/2022 of 27 October 2022.

With effect from 1 July 2025, however, a new specific anti-abuse provision will be introduced targeting the conversion of financial instruments with an average value above EUR1,000,000 held on a securities account into registered financial instruments or the transfer of part of a portfolio of taxable financial instruments on a securities account with an average value above EUR1,000,000 to one or more other securities accounts held with the same or another intermediary by the same account holder or the transferor of which is co-accountholder. The accountholder has the ability to show that such conversion or transfer is not inspired by the wish to avoid the tax.

The Law of 17 February 2021 entered into force on 26 February 2021, i.e. the day following its publication in the Belgian State Gazette, which is now also the date on which the general anti-abuse provision took effect in relation to the Annual Tax on Securities Accounts. The current reference period started on 1 October 2024 and will end on 30 September 2025, with 31 December 2024, 31 March, 30 June and 30 September 2025 as reference dates.

Holders should consult their own tax advisers in relation to this Annual Tax on Securities Accounts.

Belgian estate and gift tax

Individuals resident in Belgium

An estate tax is levied on the value of the Securities transferred as part of a Belgian resident's estate.

Gifts of Securities in Belgium are subject to gift tax, unless the gift is made by way of a purely physical delivery of bearer securities (if any) or otherwise without written evidence of the gift being submitted to the Belgian tax administration for registration purposes. However, estate taxes on donated Securities are avoided only if a person can demonstrate that the gift (not subject to gift tax) occurred more than five years preceding the death of the grantor.

Individuals not resident in Belgium

There is no Belgian estate tax on the transfer of Securities on the death of a Belgian non-resident.

Gifts of Securities in Belgium are subject to gift tax, unless the gift is made by way of a purely physical delivery of bearer securities (if any) or otherwise without written evidence of the gift being submitted to the Belgian tax administration for registration purposes.

BULGARIAN TAXATION

The information provided below regarding certain tax considerations under Bulgarian law is based on the laws in force in the Republic of Bulgaria as of the date of this Base Prospectus and is subject to any changes in law that may take effect after such date. It does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all the considerations that may be relevant to an investment decision and does not purport to deal with the tax consequences applicable to all categories of investors. The acquisition of Securities by non-Bulgarian holders, or the receipt of income under Securities may trigger additional tax payments in the country of residence of the relevant holder, which is not covered by this summary. Furthermore, the receipt of income under Securities may trigger additional tax payments in the country of residence of the relevant Issuer(s), but in such case the provisions of any effective and applicable treaties on the avoidance of double taxation should be taken into consideration. Investors should consult their professional advisers on the tax consequences of their acquiring, holding and disposing of Securities under the laws of their country of citizenship, residence, domicile or incorporation.

Summary

As a general rule and to the extent that the relevant Issuer is not a Bulgarian tax resident (nor does it have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria), only income realised in relation to the Securities by investors who are legal entities and/or individuals resident for tax purposes in Bulgaria (or, as an exception, foreign investors who act through a permanent establishment in Bulgaria) may be subject to taxation in Bulgaria. Provided that the relevant Issuer is not Bulgarian tax resident (nor does it have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria), Bulgarian withholding tax will not apply to income under the Securities realised by investors (legal entities and/or individuals) who are not Bulgarian tax residents.

Tax Residence Status of Holders of Securities

From a Bulgarian tax perspective the mere acquisition, holding or disposal of Securities would not qualify a foreign corporate or individual holder as a Bulgarian tax resident.

In order to qualify as a Bulgarian tax resident under Bulgarian local laws a corporate investor should either (i) be incorporated in the Republic of Bulgaria under the applicable Bulgarian laws or (ii) be an entity established under Council Regulation (EC) №2157/2001 or (iii) be a cooperative society established under Council Regulation (EC) 1435/2003, in case its registered office is within Bulgaria and it is entered in a Bulgarian register.

An individual investor will qualify as a Bulgarian tax resident, without regard to its citizenship, in the event that he or she (i) has a permanent address in the Republic of Bulgaria; (ii) resides in the Republic of Bulgaria for more than 183 days during each twelve month period, (iii) has been sent abroad by the Bulgarian state, its authorities or organisations or by Bulgarian enterprises, or (iv) has a centre of vital interest in the Republic of Bulgaria.

Tax Treatment of Interest Income

Non-resident Corporate Holders

To the extent that the relevant Issuer is not a Bulgarian tax resident (nor does it have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria), Bulgarian tax on interest income of corporate holders that are not Bulgarian tax residents and do not have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria ("Non-resident Corporate Holders") derived under the Securities would not apply. Where any interest income is paid under the Securities to a Non-resident Corporate Holder acting through a permanent establishment in Bulgaria said interest income will be included in the corporate income taxable base of the relevant entity's permanent establishment in Bulgaria which, in turn, is subject to corporate income tax in Bulgaria at the rate of 10 per cent.

Non-resident Individual Investors

To the extent that the relevant Issuer is not a Bulgarian tax resident (nor does it have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria), interest income of non-resident individual investors derived under the Securities would not be subject to Bulgarian tax.

Bulgaria-resident Corporate Holders

Irrespective of whether the Securities are traded on a regulated market in financial instruments (as defined in Directive 2014/65/EU) in Bulgaria or in an EU/the European Economic Area ("EEA") state ("Regulated Market"), the interest income received by a Bulgarian tax resident corporate holder will be treated as a form of business income, and would therefore be included in its financial result. After netting off with recognised business expenses, any resulting profit is subject to general corporate tax at a flat rate of 10 per cent. The Bulgarian resident corporate holder would be liable for payment of the corporate income tax (provided its annual financial result is a positive figure), as well as for complying with certain reporting obligations under Bulgarian law. The annual corporate income tax, if any, should be paid by 30 June of the following year, otherwise interest for the delay shall accrue thereon.

Bulgaria-resident Individual Investors

The interest income derived from Securities issued in accordance with the laws and regulations of Bulgaria, another EU Member State or another EEA state, and received by a Bulgarian tax resident individual is tax exempt in Bulgaria. Interest income derived from Securities issued in accordance with the laws and regulations of a country outside the EU/EEA and received by a Bulgarian tax resident individual are subject to Bulgarian personal income tax levied at a flat rate of 10 per cent.

Special Treatment of Sole Proprietors ("ednolichen targovetz")

An individual who is a Bulgarian tax resident and with regards to the Securities is acting as sole proprietor (ednolichen targovetz) within the meaning of the Bulgarian Commerce Act, whether registered or not, is subject to taxation for any interest as a legal entity at the rate of 15 per cent.

Tax Treatment of Dividend Income

Non-resident Corporate Holders

To the extent that the relevant Issuer is not a Bulgarian tax resident (nor does it have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria) and relevant dividend income is not paid in relation to and based on equity participation in a Bulgaria-tax-resident entity, Bulgarian tax on dividend income of corporate holders that are not Bulgarian tax residents and do not have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria ("Non-resident Corporate Holders") derived under the Securities would not apply.

Where any dividend income is paid under the Securities to a Non-resident Corporate Holder acting through a permanent establishment in Bulgaria and if the issuing entity is not resident for tax purposes within the EU or EEA, said dividend income will be included in the corporate income taxable base of the relevant entity's permanent establishment in Bulgaria which, in turn, is subject to corporate income tax in Bulgaria at the rate of 10 per cent. (unless an exemption is granted under an applicable double tax treaty). Conversely, where dividend income is paid under the Securities to a Non-resident Corporate Holder acting through a permanent establishment in Bulgaria and if the issuing entity is resident for tax purposes within the EU or EEA, said dividend payments will not be recognised income for Bulgarian tax purposes (pass through income) and will not lead to increase of the permanent establishment's taxable result in Bulgaria.

Non-resident Individual Investors

Unless the relevant Issuer of Securities is a Bulgarian tax resident, dividend income of non-resident individual investors derived under the Securities would not be subject to Bulgarian tax.

Bulgaria-resident Corporate Holders

Where any dividend income is paid under the Securities to a Bulgaria-resident corporate holder and if the issuing entity is not resident for tax purposes within the EU or EEA, said dividend income will be included in the corporate income taxable base of the relevant holder in Bulgaria which, in turn, is subject to corporate income tax in Bulgaria at the rate of 10 per cent. (unless an exemption is granted under an applicable double tax treaty). Conversely, where dividend income is paid under the Securities to a Bulgaria-resident corporate holder and if the issuing entity is resident for tax purposes within the EU or EEA, said dividend payments will not be recognised income for Bulgarian tax purposes (pass through income) and will not lead to increase of the Bulgarian holder's taxable result in Bulgaria.

Bulgaria-resident Individual Investors

Unless an exemption is granted under an applicable double tax treaty, any dividend income realised by a Bulgarian tax resident individual is subject to Bulgarian tax levied at a flat rate of 5 per cent.

Special Treatment of Sole Proprietors ("ednolichen targovetz")

An individual who is a Bulgarian tax resident and with regards to the Securities is acting as sole proprietor (ednolichen targovetz) within the meaning of the Bulgarian Commerce Act, whether registered or not, is subject to taxation for any dividend income with Bulgarian tax levied at a flat rate of 5 per cent. (unless an exemption is granted under an applicable double tax treaty).

Tax Treatment of Capital Gains

Non-resident Corporate Holders

To the extent that the relevant Issuer is not a Bulgarian tax resident (nor does it have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria), capital gains income from disposal of Securities realised by Non-resident Corporate Holders would not be subject to Bulgarian tax unless such income is realised by the relevant Non-resident Corporate Holders through a permanent establishment in Bulgaria. In the latter case, the capital gains realised through disposal of Securities by a Non-resident Corporate Holder acting through a permanent establishment in Bulgaria would be included in the corporate income taxable result of the permanent establishment which – if positive (i.e. if there is profit realised) - is subject to corporate income tax in Bulgaria at the rate of 10 per cent.

Non-resident Individual Holders

To the extent that the relevant Issuer is not a Bulgarian tax resident (nor does it have a permanent establishment in Bulgaria), capital gains income from disposal of Securities realised by non-resident individual holders would not be subject to Bulgarian tax.

Bulgaria-resident Corporate Holders

Unless an exemption applies, the tax treatment of capital gains from the disposal of Securities realised by a Bulgaria-tax-resident corporate holder, will be the same as the tax treatment of the interest income from Securities described above with respect to Bulgaria-resident Corporate Holders. The capital gains will be treated as a form of business income of the Bulgaria-tax-resident corporate holder and will be included in its taxable result. Should the taxable result be a positive figure, the Bulgarian investor would be liable for a payment of 10 per cent. corporate tax thereon.

Bulgaria-resident Individual Investors

As a general rule under the Bulgarian Law on Personal Income Taxation, income derived by a Bulgaria-tax-resident individual as a result of disposal of financial instruments shall be exempt from taxation with Bulgarian personal income tax. For the purposes of said exemption "disposal of financial instruments" is defined to include: (i) transactions with shares in collective investment schemes and national investment funds (as defined by law), and with shares, warrants (meaning instruments granting their holder the right to subscribe shares upon capital increase) and state-issued securities carried out on a Regulated Market; (ii) transactions completed under the terms and procedures for re-purchase by collective investment schemes admitted for offering in Bulgaria or in another EU Member State or EEA party; (iii) transactions completed under the terms and procedures for re-purchase (including distribution of money upon liquidation of a closed-type national investment fund) by national investment funds admitted for offering in Bulgaria; (iv) transactions completed under the terms and procedures for takeover bids regulated under the Bulgarian Law on Public Offering of Securities, or for similar transaction in another EU Member State or EEA party.

The income of Bulgaria-tax-resident individuals derived from transfer of Securities which do not fall under the exemptions described above shall be subject to personal income tax at 10 per cent, as part of the overall annual income.

Special Treatment of Sole Proprietors ("ednolichen targovetz")

An individual who is a Bulgarian tax resident and with regards to the Securities is acting as sole proprietor (ednolichen targovetz) within the meaning of the Bulgarian Commerce Act, whether registered or not, is subject to taxation for any capital gains as a legal entity at the rate of 15 per cent.

Other Taxes

There is no Bulgarian value added tax, registration tax, stamp duty or any other similar duty payable in Bulgaria as a consequence of the receipt of interest income from Securities, or holding or disposal of Securities.

Under Bulgarian law, the transfer of Securities by way of succession (through corporate reorganisation of a legal entity or inheritance of an individual) does not trigger separate transfer tax, except for inheritance taxes that may be due in the case of succession by individual holders who are Bulgarian tax residents.

Application of Double Tax Treaties

Bulgaria has a number of double tax treaties in place with various jurisdictions (including the USA and the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg). Each investor should seek further tax advice from qualified advisor(s) on whether any such double tax treaty may apply with respect to a particular type of income derived from the Securities, and if such application may allow the investor to avail of a tax relief from taxes which would otherwise be levied in Bulgaria or in another relevant jurisdiction (e.g. the country where the relevant Issuer(s) is/are resident for tax purposes).

CROATION TAXATION

The following text is a general discussion of certain Croatian tax considerations that may be relevant for the acquisition, ownership and/or disposal of Securities. It does not constitute tax advice nor does it purport to be a comprehensive description of all tax considerations which may be relevant to a decision to subscribe for, purchase, own or dispose of the Securities, and, in particular, does not consider any specific facts or circumstances that may apply to a particular purchaser. It also does not purport to deal with the tax consequences applicable to all categories of investors, some of which (such as dealers in securities or commodities) may be subject to special rules. Investors should note that the appointment of any person through which they hold Securities (custodians, collection agents or similar) in any jurisdiction may have tax implications.

The text is based on laws currently in force in Croatia and applicable on the date of this Base Prospectus, but subject to change, possibly on a retroactive basis.

Prospective purchasers of Securities are advised to consult their own tax advisors as to the tax consequences of the subscription, purchase, ownership and disposition of Securities, including the effect of any state or local taxes, under the tax laws of Croatia and each country of which they are residents or in which they have a habitual abode.

Income tax

General remarks

Income tax is regulated by the Income Tax Act (Official Gazette Nos 115/16, as may be further amended, "ITA").

The tax obligor is a natural person (resident and non-resident) - income earner and heir to all tax obligations arising from income earned by their decedent until the decedent's death. The heir is also the tax obligor to income accrued from inherited sources of income.

A resident is a natural person whose residence or habitual abode is in Croatia. A resident is also a natural person not having the place of residence or habitual abode in Croatia but is employed with a state office of Croatia and receives a salary on that basis.

A non-resident is a natural person not having the place of residence or habitual abode in Croatia but is earning taxable income in Croatia.

The tax base:

- (a) for a resident is the total amount of income gained from capital (and other taxable income) gained by the resident in the country and abroad (world income principle),
- (b) for a non-resident is the total amount of income from capital (and other taxable income) gained by the non-resident in the country (domicile land principle).

The tax base can be reduced by applicable personal deductions. Also, Croatian income tax can be reduced or exempted under an effective double tax treaty.

Capital Income

Income from capital is (amongst other things) a taxable source of income pursuant to the ITA. Income from capital includes (amongst other things) income from interest, capital gains and receipts from dividends and profit based on shares in capital, to which all a 12 per cent. tax rate applies.

Receipts from any type of claim, especially (i) receipts from interest on savings in Euro or foreign currencies, (ii) receipts from interest on securities (in Croatian: vrijednosni papiri), (iii) receipts from interest on loans, and (iv) receipts from distribution of income of an investment fund in form of interest (if they are not taxed as shares in profit on the basis of distribution of profit or income of an investment fund) are considered to be taxable income pursuant to the ITA. The ITA however provides for an explicit statutory exemption from taxation (amongst other things) of receipts from default interest and interest realised through investment in bonds (in Croatian: obveznice) regardless of the issuer and type of bonds.

Capital income from capital gains pursuant to the ITA represents the difference between the purchase value and agreed selling price, i.e. receipts, assessed on the basis of market value of the financial assets that are being disposed of. As receipts are considered receipts from disposal (sale, exchange, gift or other type of transfer) of financial instruments and structured products ("Financial Property"), i.e., receipts from (i) transferrable securities and structured products, including shares of companies and other associations whose shares may be disposed of similarly as shares of companies, (ii) money market instruments, (iii) units in undertakings for collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS), (iv) derivatives, and (v) a proportional part of the salvage value in a case of dissolution of the investment fund and other receipts from ownership shares in a case of dissolution, winding up or withdrawal.

The ITA however explicitly exempts from taxation as capital gains receipts from certain types of disposal (amongst other things) - (i) transfers of shares from one voluntary pension fund to another, (ii) exchanges of securities with the equivalent securities of the same issuer, whereby the ratios among the holders and capital of the issuer are not altered, as well as exchanges of securities or shares (i.e. financial instruments) with other securities or financial instruments and acquisitions of securities or financial instruments in case of status changes, PROVIDED THAT in all these cases there is no cash flow and the sequence of acquisition of Financial Property is ensured (where the value assessed on the date of the first acquisition of Financial Property shall be considered to be the purchase value), (iii) divisions of stocks (in Croatian: dionice) of the same issuer, provided that there is no change of share capital or cash flow, (iv) exchanges of shares among investment sub-funds of the same umbrella fund, or exchanges of shares among investment funds that are managed by the same management company, provided that the sequence of acquisition of Financial Property is ensured (where the value assessed on the date of the first acquisition of Financial Property shall be considered to be the purchase value), (v) repurchases of shares of the Croatian War Veterans' Fund, and/or (vi) disposals of debt and money market instruments issued by the Croatian state and local and regional self-government units.

In addition, capital income from capital gains shall not be taxed if the disposing of was made (i) between spouses and first-degree relatives and other members of the immediate family, (ii) between divorced spouses, if the disposing of is directly related to the divorce, (iii) in relation to inheritance of Financial Property, or (iv) after more than two years from the date of acquisition of Financial Property.

If Financial Property was acquired as a gift and disposed of within two years from the date of acquisition, the capital income shall be assessed as the difference between the purchase value and agreed selling price or receipt assessed on the basis of the market value of the Financial Property that is being disposed of, whereas the date at which the giver acquired the Financial Property is considered to be the date of acquisition, and the market value at the time of acquisition shall be considered to be the purchase value.

In case of interest and receipts from dividends and profit based on shares in capital, this tax is calculated, suspended and paid by payers at the same time as payment of the taxable income, as withholding tax. In case of capital gains, the holder of financial assets has to calculate, suspend and pay the tax by the last day of February of the current year for all capital gains realised in the previous year, minus realised capital losses.

Profit tax

General remarks

Profit tax is regulated by the Profit Tax Act (Official Gazette Nos 177/04, as may be further amended, "PTA").

Profit tax obligors are:

- (a) companies and other legal entities and natural persons residing in Croatia that perform economic operations independently, permanently and for the purpose of making profit, income or revenues or other valuable commercial benefits;
- (b) local business units of a foreign entrepreneur (non-resident);
- (c) a natural person determining income in a manner prescribed for self-employment according to income tax regulations or a natural person commencing self-employment if they declare that they will pay profit tax instead of income tax or if their total turnover in the previous tax period exceeded EUR1 million;

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

- (d) exceptionally, state administration bodies, local self-administration bodies, Croatian National Bank, institutions (and other similar entities enumerated in the PTA), if they perform commercial activities whose non-taxation would lead to unjustified advantages on the market; and
- (e) each entrepreneur and his legal successor not included in entrepreneurs listed above who is not an income tax obligor according to the income tax regulations and whose profit is not taxable elsewhere.

The profit tax rate is 10 per cent. if the income of the tax obligor in the tax period amounts to not more than EUR1 million and 18 per cent. if the income of the tax obligor in the tax period is equal or higher than EUR1 million.

The tax base shall be the profit determined pursuant to the accounting regulations as the difference between revenues and expenditures before the profit tax assessment, increased and reduced in accordance with the provisions of the PTA.

The tax base of a resident taxpayer shall be the profit earned in Croatia and abroad and the tax base of a non-resident shall only be the profit earned in Croatia which shall be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the PTA.

Multinational enterprise groups and large-scale domestic groups are subject to the minimum global profit tax pursuant to the Croatian Minimum Global Profit Tax Act (Official Gazette Nos. 155/2023, as may be further amended). The minimum global profit tax regime prescribes a global minimum level of taxation of 15 per cent. for multinational enterprise groups and large-scale domestic groups with total consolidated revenues exceeding EUR750 million generated in any two of the previous four years.

Croatian profit tax can be reduced or exempted under an effective double tax treaty.

Withholding tax

Within the meaning of the PTA, withholding tax is tax applied to profit made by non-resident legal entities. Profit for withholding tax purposes includes (between others) interest, dividends and shares in profit. Similar as in case of income tax exceptions withholding tax is not calculated on interest realised through investment in bonds.

The tax base is the gross amount of payment paid by a resident payer to the non-resident recipient. The resident payer must calculate, suspend and pay the withholding profit tax at the same time as payment of the taxable income.

Withholding tax rate is 15 per cent., except for dividends and shares in profit for which the withholding tax rate is 10 per cent., while for all kinds of services paid to persons having their registered seat or place of actual administration or supervision in non-cooperative tax countries with which Croatia does not apply double tax treaties the tax rate is 25 per cent.

Croatian withholding tax can be reduced under an effective double tax treaty.

Inheritance and gift taxation

Inheritance and gift tax is regulated by the Local Taxes Act (Official Gazette Nos 115/16, as may be further amended, "LTA").

Any natural person or legal entity who inherits or receives gifts (including securities) with an individual value higher than EUR6,700.00 in Croatia is under obligation to pay tax in respect of such inheritance or gift at a rate of 4 per cent..

Certain exemptions with respect to application of the afore stated tax are available in line with the LTA.

Croatian inheritance and gift tax can be reduced under an effective double tax treaty.

Other Taxes

No stamp, issue or registration taxes or duties will be payable in Croatia in connection with the issuance, delivery or execution of Securities.

REPUBLIC OF CYPRUS

The following is a general summary of certain tax aspects of the Securities under Cypriot law practice in force and applied as at the date of this Base Prospectus and does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all tax aspects relating to Securities. This summary does not analyse the tax position of the Issuer(s) and it does not constitute, nor should it be construed as, tax or legal advice. Prospective investors should consult their tax and other professional advisers as to the specific tax consequences of acquiring, holding and disposing of Securities and of receiving interest on any Securities.

Introduction

In accordance with the provisions of the Income Tax Law, Law 118(I)/2002 (as amended) (the "Income Tax Law") a person (natural or legal) is liable to tax on its worldwide income on the basis of residency.

A person is deemed resident in Cyprus for the purposes of the Income Tax Law if one satisfies either the '183 day rule' or the '60 day rule' for the tax year.

The '183 day rule' for Cyprus tax residency is satisfied for individuals who spend more than 183 days in any one calendar year in Cyprus.

The '60 day rule' for Cyprus tax residency is satisfied for individuals who, in the relevant tax year:

- do not reside in any other single country for a period exceeding 183 days in aggregate
- are not considered tax resident by any other country
- reside in Cyprus for at least 60 days, and
- have other defined Cyprus ties.

In the case of a company, its management and control is exercised in Cyprus. The tax year for the purposes of the Income Tax Law coincides with the calendar year.

Non-Cyprus tax residents are taxed on income derived from sources in Cyprus or from a business activity which is carried out through a permanent establishment in Cyprus. A company is regarded as having a "permanent establishment" in Cyprus, if it has a fixed base of business through which the business is carried out fully or partially, including a management base, a branch or an office.

Interest Income*Non-Cyprus Tax Residents*

Persons (natural and legal) who are not resident for tax purposes pursuant to the provisions of the Income Tax Law will not be liable for any income tax or for the special contribution defence tax (as described below). Payments of interest made by the Issuer(s) to such persons will not be subject to any Cyprus withholding taxes.

Cyprus tax resident individuals

Interest income received by or credited to a Cyprus tax resident individual is subject to special defence contribution levy at the rate of 30 per cent. pursuant to the provisions of the Special Defence Contribution Law, Law 117(I)/2002 (as amended) (the "SCDF Law"). Interest received or credited by a Cyprus tax resident individual, considered to arise in the ordinary course of the individual's business or considered closely connected thereto shall be treated as personal income and subject to income tax pursuant to the Income Tax Law.

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

Cyprus tax resident companies that pay interest in respect of which special contribution defence tax is due to Cyprus tax resident individuals are obliged to withhold the special contribution defence tax at source and remit the tax to the Cypriot tax authorities.

Cyprus non-domiciled individuals

An individual who is a tax resident of Cyprus under the provisions of the Income Tax Law, but is "non-domiciled" in the Republic of Cyprus, will be exempt from special defence contribution levy described above. Therefore, tax residents but non-domiciled individuals will enjoy interest payments income free from special defence contribution levy in Cyprus.

Cyprus tax resident companies

Any interest accruing or received by a Cyprus resident company which is considered to arise in the ordinary course of the business or is considered closely connected thereto shall be subject only to (corporate) income tax at the rate of 12.50 per cent. Such income will not be liable to any tax under the SCDF Law.

Interest income not arising in the ordinary course of business or being considered closely connected thereto shall be exempt from (corporate) income tax and shall be subject to tax under the SCDF Law at the rate of 30 per cent.

Profit from the Disposal of the Securities

Any gains derived from the disposal of Securities by a Cyprus resident individual or company are exempt from income tax in Cyprus.

PROVIDED THAT Securities would fall under the definitions of securities (as this was provided by the Cypriot tax authorities as stated in the paragraph below) any gains from the disposal of Securities are not subject to Cyprus income tax, irrespective of the trading nature of the gain, the number of Securities held or the period for which the Securities were held. Any gain is also outside the scope of application of the Capital Gains Tax Law 1980-2002 (as amended).

The Cyprus tax authorities have issued a circular interpreting the term "securities" as "shares, bonds, debentures, founders' shares and other securities of companies or other legal persons, incorporated in Cyprus or abroad and options thereof". Moreover it was further clarified that this term also includes options on the aforementioned securities, short positions on the aforementioned securities, futures/forwards on the aforementioned securities, swaps on aforementioned securities, depositary receipts on the aforementioned securities (ADRs, GDRs), rights of claim on bonds and debentures (rights on interest of these instruments are not included), index participations only if they result on the aforementioned securities, repurchase agreements or repos on the aforementioned securities, units in open-end or close-end collective investment schemes. Promissory notes or similar instruments would not fall under the definition of securities.

It is not clear if the Securities would fall under the definition of the term "securities" as explained above or if these would be considered as promissory notes or similar instruments and for this reason each Security would need to be assessed on its terms of issuance.

Where the Securities do not fall within the definition of securities (as this was provided by the Cypriot tax authorities), then any gains derived from the disposal of Securities by a Cyprus resident individual or company would be subject to corporate tax or personal income tax.

Interest income would be however subject to the treatment set out above both in the case where the Securities fall within the definition of securities (as this was provided by the Cypriot tax authorities) and where they do not.

Stamp Duty

Following the enactment of the Stamp Duty (Amendment) (No. 2) Law 2002, section 4 of the Stamp Duty Law, Law 19/1963 as amended provides that:

"(1) every instrument specified in the First Schedule shall be chargeable with duty of the amount specified in the said Schedule as the proper duty therefore respectively if it relates to any asset situated in the Republic or to matter or things which shall be performed or done in the Republic irrespective of the place where the document is made."

In accordance with the principles of rulings of the Commissioner of Stamp Duty as of the date of this prospectus, an issue of Securities by the Issuer(s) will not be liable to stamp duty where the proceeds of the issue will remain outside Cyprus, will be utilised for purposes outside Cyprus and the obligation under such Securities will be repaid outside Cyprus.

Transfers of Securities effected outside of Cyprus between non-residents of Cyprus do not attract stamp duty in Cyprus, PROVIDED THAT the transferor and the transferee are not residents of Cyprus.

CZECH REPUBLIC TAXATION

The following text is a general discussion of certain Czech tax consequences that may be relevant to the ownership and disposition of Securities (the "Discussion") by their holders who are Czech tax residents, beneficially own, within the OECD meaning of this term, any income from such Securities, and who, if they are individuals, have held their Securities as private investment and not as part of their business assets (a "Czech Holder"). It does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all tax considerations which may be relevant to a decision to purchase Securities, and, in particular, does not consider any specific features of any of the Securities or any facts or circumstances that may apply to a particular purchaser. It is based on laws currently in force in the Czech Republic and applicable on the date of this Base Prospectus, but subject to change, possibly with retrospective effect. Due to the absence of statutory, judicial or administrative authorities that directly address the Czech tax treatment of structured instruments, such as Securities, significant aspects of the tax treatment of an investment in these Securities are uncertain. Therefore, prospective purchasers of Securities are advised to consult their own tax advisers as to the tax consequences of the purchase, ownership and disposition of Securities, including the effect of any state or local taxes, under the tax laws of the Czech Republic and each country where income from Securities can become subject to tax.

Application of special bonds tax regime

In 2021, new Czech income tax rules for the taxation of bonds came into effect. According to these rules, income from bonds is classified and taxed strictly by reference to the Czech bonds regulations. However, these regulations do not consider securities to be bonds if the right to repayment of a certain amount, which is linked to such securities, depends even partially on the occurrence of a certain event. Therefore, except in cases of a full capital protection ensuring that a holder's investment is returned at redemption, settlement or maturity under all circumstances, it can be reasonably argued that this new tax regime does not cover instruments with complex payoff structures, such as the Securities. This Discussion assumes that the special bonds tax regime does not apply to the Securities.

Classification of Securities and income from them

This Discussion assumes that Securities are treated as debt securities (other than bonds) for Czech tax purposes and that the income from them is considered as interest income. However, alternative treatments are possible, and even if the general characterisation of the relevant Securities as debt is respected there may nonetheless be uncertainty about specific aspects of the tax treatment of the relevant Securities.

Czech interest income sourcing rules

Interest is considered as Czech source income if it is paid by a Czech tax resident or a Czech permanent establishment of a non-resident. As such, there can be uncertainty as to whether the appointment of a paying agent or similar person in the Czech Republic could cause the interest to have a Czech source and become subject to withholding tax. However, it can be argued that the sourcing rules have not been designed to establish a paying-agent withholding tax system. Accordingly, interest income should be treated as having a Czech source only if the relevant Issuer is resident in the Czech Republic for tax purposes or if it has a permanent establishment in the Czech Republic and there is an economic link between Securities on which the interest is paid and that permanent establishment. This Discussion assumes that none of the Issuers is resident in the Czech Republic or has a permanent establishment in the Czech Republic.

Czech income taxation

Withholding tax on interest

All payments of interest in respect of Securities can be made by the Issuer without any deduction or withholding for or on account of any taxes imposed or assessed in the Czech Republic.

Czech Holders – Individuals

The interest accruing on Securities is subject to taxation in the Czech Republic when such interest is paid to the Czech Holders who are individuals.

The gross amount of interest income (including any tax withheld abroad and not reduced by any expenses) is treated as capital income. Such income is included in a general tax base of the Czech Holder which is subject to progressive personal income tax of 15 or 23 per cent., depending on the Czech Holder's income bracket (the higher rate applying on the tax base exceeding CZK1,676,052 in 2025). However, the Czech Holders may decide to include the gross amount of interest into a separate tax base designated for taxation of certain foreign-sourced income in which case a flat personal income tax of 15 per cent. will apply.

Unless exempt from tax, capital gains realised by Czech Holders upon sale of Securities are subject to progressive personal income tax of 15 or 23 per cent., depending on the Czech Holder's income bracket (the higher rate applying on the tax base exceeding CZK1,676,052, in 2025). Any loss will generally be treated as non-deductible, except where such loss is compensated by taxable gains on the sales of other securities in the same year and the income from the sale of Securities is not tax-exempt.

Capital gains realised by a Czech Holder from the sale of Securities are exempt from Czech personal income tax if:

- (a) the individual has held such Securities continuously for more than three years before their sale and the gross income (i.e. not a gain) from their sale (taken together with gross income from the sale of other securities and participations in companies not represented by securities) does not exceed in aggregate the amount of CZK40,000,000 in a given year (income in excess of that threshold is taxable); or
- (b) the total gross income (i.e. not a gain) from the sale of securities (including Securities) in one calendar year does not exceed CZK100,000.

If the income from the sale of the Securities is tax exempt and such income exceeds CZK5,000,000, then the Czech Holder must report such income to the tax authorities.

Czech Holders – Corporations (holders other than individuals)

Interest derived from Securities is included in the general tax base of the Czech Holder, which is subject to corporate income tax at a flat rate of 21 per cent., in 2025. The Czech Holders are generally required to recognize the interest in its profit and loss statement on an accrual (as opposed to cash) basis.

Capital gains realised upon the sale of Securities are included in the general tax base, which is subject to corporate income tax at the flat rate of 21 per cent., in 2025. No exemption from tax is available and losses are generally tax deductible.

A different regime may apply to certain corporations (e.g., pension funds, investment funds).

Withholding obligations for Czech Holders and elimination of double taxation

Czech Holders, including both individuals and corporations, may be subject to withholding tax upon purchasing Securities from holders who are tax resident outside the European Union or the European Economic Area. This withholding is calculated at a rate of 1 per cent. of the gross purchase price of Securities and serves as a preliminary payment towards the Czech tax liability that the non-resident seller may have to self-assess and report on the income (gain) derived from the sale of Securities. The Czech law position may be modified under an applicable tax treaty between the Czech Republic and the country of tax residence of the selling holder of Securities.

Czech tax law does not provide for any unilateral foreign-tax credit or a similar arrangement for tax on any foreign-sourced income from Securities. Therefore, any double taxation relief must be sought by the relevant Czech Holder solely according to an applicable tax treaty, if any.

Stamp, duty, transfer and other similar taxes

No Czech stamp duty, registration, transfer or similar taxes will be payable in connection with the acquisition, ownership, sale or disposal of Securities by Czech Holders.

DANISH TAXATION

The following is a general description of the taxation in Denmark of Securities according to the Danish tax laws in force at the date of this Base Prospectus and is subject to any changes in law and the interpretation and application thereof, which changes could be made with retroactive effect. The following general description does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all the tax considerations that may be relevant to a decision to acquire, hold or dispose of Securities and does not purport to deal with the tax consequences applicable to all categories of investors, some of which (such as professional dealers in securities) may be subject to special rules. Potential investors are under all circumstances strongly recommended to contact their own tax advisor to clarify the individual consequences of their investment, holding and disposal of Securities. The Issuer makes no representations regarding the tax consequences of purchase, holding or disposal of the Securities.

Taxation of Danish Resident Securityholders

Structured securities can be designed in many ways and with many different underlying assets or in a way that the yield will depend on various index or currency flows. The Danish taxation depends on the specific characteristics of the Securities.

The following tax rules generally apply to structured securities.

Gains and losses on structured securities are generally treated as gains and losses on financial instruments in accordance with section 29(3) of the Danish Capital and Exchange Gains Act ("Kursgevinstloven") of 29 September 2022.

However, there are exceptions – for example, securities which are adjusted solely in relation to developments in the consumer prices index (as computed by Statistics Denmark ("Danmarks Statistik")), the net consumer-price index or a similar index within the European Union or any of its Member States.

The gains and losses on structured securities are calculated irrespective of the rules applying to the underlying asset.

Gains and losses on structured securities issued to corporate entities and individuals are predominantly treated as taxable income in accordance with a mark-to-market principle ("lagerprincippet"), such as on an unrealised basis meaning that gains and losses on structured securities will be taxed even if there has been no changes in the ownership of the structured securities.

Individuals who are not deemed to engage in financial trade are taxed on gains as capital income, at a rate up to 42 per cent. in 2025.

Corporate entities are generally able to deduct losses on structured securities, whereas individuals may, in general, only offset losses on structured securities against (previous and future) gains on other financial instruments. However, in both cases, certain restrictions or exceptions apply.

Pension funds and other entities governed by the Danish Act on Taxation of Pension Yield ("Pensionsafkastbeskatningsloven") of 6 January 2023 (as amended) would, irrespective of realisation (whether or not there has been a change of ownership), be taxed on the annual value increase or decrease of the Securities according to a mark-to-market principle as specifically laid down in the act. The yield is taxed at a flat rate of 15.3 per cent.

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

For individuals and corporate entities, income derived from Securities in the form of payments that constitute interests are subject to Danish taxation according to section 4, subparagraph E of the Central Government Tax Act ("Statsskatteloven") of 10 April 1922.

Corporate entities are generally subject to 22 per cent. corporate income tax, whereas individuals are generally taxed as capital income at a rate up to 42 per cent. in 2025.

Individuals and corporate entities are in general entitled to a tax credit in their Danish taxable income according to section 33 of the Danish Tax Assessment Act ("Ligningsloven") of 13 January 2023 (as amended), or in accordance with applicable tax treaties. The refund is calculated in accordance with a net principle ("nettoprincippet") which implies that the expenses relating to the foreign income are deducted.

DUTCH TAXATION

The following summary outlines certain principal Dutch tax consequences of the acquisition, holding, redemption, settlement and disposal of the Securities, but does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all Dutch tax considerations that may be relevant. For purposes of Dutch tax law, a holder of Securities may include an individual or entity who does not have the legal title of these Securities, but to whom nevertheless the Securities or the income thereof is attributed based on specific statutory provisions or on the basis of such individual or entity having an interest in the Securities or the income thereof. This summary is intended as general information only and each prospective investor should consult a professional tax adviser with respect to the tax consequences of the acquisition, holding, redemption, settlement and disposal of the Securities.

This summary is based on tax legislation, published case law, treaties, regulations and published policy, in each case as in force as of the date of this Base Prospectus, and it does not take into account any developments or amendments thereof after that date whether or not such developments or amendments have retroactive effect.

This summary does not address the Dutch corporate and individual income tax consequences for:

- (a) investment institutions (fiscale beleggingsinstellingen);
- (b) pension funds, exempt investment institutions (vrijgestelde beleggingsinstellingen) or other entities that are not subject to or exempt from Dutch corporate income tax;
- (c) holders of Securities holding a substantial interest (aanmerkelijk belang) or deemed substantial interest (fictief aanmerkelijk belang) in the Issuer(s) and holders of Securities of whom a certain related person holds a substantial interest in the Issuer(s). Generally speaking, a substantial interest in the Issuer(s) arises if a person, alone or, where such person is an individual, together with his or her partner (statutorily defined term), directly or indirectly, holds or is deemed to hold (i) an interest of 5 per cent. or more of the total issued capital of the Issuer(s) or 5 per cent. or more of the issued capital of a certain class of shares of the Issuer(s), (ii) rights to acquire, directly or indirectly, such interest or (iii) certain profit-sharing rights in the Issuer(s);
- (d) persons to whom the Securities and the income therefrom are attributed based on the separated private assets (afgezonderd particulier vermogen) provisions of the Dutch Income Tax Act 2001 (Wet inkomstenbelasting 2001);
- (e) entities which are a resident of Aruba, Curaçao or Sint Maarten and that have an enterprise which is carried on through a permanent establishment or a permanent representative on Bonaire, Sint Eustatius or Saba and the Securities are attributable to such permanent establishment or permanent representative; and
- (f) individuals to whom the Securities or the income therefrom are attributable to employment activities which are taxed as employment income in the Netherlands.

For the purpose of the Dutch tax consequences described herein, it is assumed that the Issuer(s) are neither resident of the Netherlands nor deemed to be resident of the Netherlands for Dutch tax purposes nor have a permanent establishment in the Netherlands to which the Securities are attributed.

Where this summary refers to 'the Netherlands' or 'Dutch', such reference is restricted to the part of the Kingdom of the Netherlands that is situated in Europe and the legislation applicable in that part of the Kingdom.

This summary does not describe the consequences of the exchange or the conversion of the Securities.

Dutch Withholding Tax

All payments made by the Issuer(s) under the Securities may be made free of withholding or deduction for any taxes of whatsoever nature imposed, levied, withheld or assessed by the Netherlands or any political subdivision or taxing authority thereof or therein.

Corporate and Individual Income Tax

Residents of the Netherlands

If a holder of Securities is a resident of the Netherlands or deemed to be a resident of the Netherlands for Dutch corporate income tax purposes and is fully subject to Dutch corporate income tax or is only subject to Dutch corporate income tax in respect of an enterprise to which the Securities are attributable, income derived from the Securities and gains realised upon the redemption, settlement or disposal of the Securities are generally taxable in the Netherlands (at up to a maximum rate of 25.8 per cent.).

If an individual is a resident of the Netherlands or deemed to be a resident of the Netherlands for Dutch individual income tax purposes, income derived from the Securities and gains realised upon the redemption, settlement or disposal of the Securities are taxable at the progressive rates (at up to a maximum rate of 49.50 per cent.) under the Dutch Income Tax Act 2001, if:

- (a) the individual is an entrepreneur (ondernemer) and has an enterprise to which the Securities are attributable or the individual has, other than as a shareholder, a co-entitlement to the net worth of an enterprise (medegerechtigde), to which enterprise the Securities are attributable; or
- (b) such income or gains qualify as income from miscellaneous activities (resultaat uit overige werkzaamheden), which includes activities with respect to the Securities that exceed regular, active portfolio management (normaal, actief vermogensbeheer).

If neither condition (a) nor condition (b) above applies, an individual that holds the Securities, must in principle determine taxable income with regard to the Securities on the basis of a deemed return on savings and investments (sparen en beleggen). This deemed return on savings and investments is determined based on the individual's yield basis (rendementsgrondslag) at the beginning of the calendar year (1 January), insofar as the individual's yield basis exceeds a statutory threshold (heffingvrij vermogen) (EUR57,684 in 2025). The individual's yield basis is determined as the fair market value of certain qualifying assets held by the individual less the fair market value of certain qualifying liabilities on 1 January. The individual's deemed return is calculated by multiplying the individual's yield basis with a 'deemed return percentage' (effectief rendementspercentage), which percentage depends on the actual composition of the yield basis, with separate deemed return percentages for savings (banktegoeden), other investments (overige bezittingen) and debts (schulden). As of 1 January 2025, the percentage for other investments, which include the Securities, is set at 5.88 per cent..

However, on 6 June 2024 the Dutch Supreme Court (Hoge Raad) ruled in a number of cases that the current system of taxation in relation to an individual's savings and investments based on a 'deemed return' contravenes with Section 1 of the First Protocol to the European Convention on Human Rights in combination with Section 14 of the European Convention on Human Rights if the deemed return applicable to the savings and investments exceeds the actual return in the respective calendar year. A legislative proposal, i.e. the Dutch Counterevidence Act (Wet tegenbewijsregeling box 3), was submitted to codify the case law of the Dutch Supreme Court, including the calculation of the actual return. If an individual demonstrates that the actual return is lower than the deemed return, only the actual return should be taxed under the regime for savings and investments. The Dutch Counterevidence Act has not yet been adopted by the Dutch parliament.

The deemed or actual return on savings and investments is taxed at a rate of 36 per cent..

Non-residents of the Netherlands

If a person is neither a resident of the Netherlands nor is deemed to be a resident of the Netherlands for Dutch corporate or individual income tax purposes, such person is not liable to Dutch income tax in respect of income derived from the Securities and gains realised upon the redemption, settlement or disposal of the Securities, unless:

- (a) the person is not an individual and such person (1) has an enterprise that is, in whole or in part, carried on through a permanent establishment or a permanent representative in the Netherlands to which permanent establishment or a permanent representative the Securities are attributable, or (2) is, other than by way of securities, entitled to a share in the profits of an enterprise or a co entitlement to the net worth of an enterprise, which is effectively managed in the Netherlands and to which enterprise the Securities are attributable.

This income is subject to Dutch corporate income tax at up to a maximum rate of 25.8 per cent.

- (b) the person is an individual and such individual (1) has an enterprise or an interest in an enterprise that is, in whole or in part, carried on through a permanent establishment or a permanent representative in the Netherlands to which permanent establishment or permanent representative the Securities are attributable, or (2) realises income or gains with respect to the Securities that qualify as income from miscellaneous activities in the Netherlands which include activities with respect to the Securities that exceed regular, active portfolio management, or (3) is, other than by way of securities, entitled to a share in the profits of an enterprise that is effectively managed in the Netherlands and to which enterprise the Securities are attributable.

Income derived from the Securities as specified under (1) and (2) by an individual is subject to individual income tax at progressive rates up to a maximum rate of 49.50 per cent. Income derived from a share in the profits of an enterprise as specified under (3) that is not already included under (1) or (2) will be taxed on the basis of a deemed or actual return on savings and investments (as described above under "Residents of the Netherlands").

Gift and Inheritance tax

Dutch gift or inheritance taxes will not be levied on the occasion of the transfer of the Securities by way of gift by, or on the death of, a holder of Securities, unless:

- (a) the holder of the Securities is, or is deemed to be, resident in the Netherlands for the purpose of the relevant provisions; or
- (b) the transfer is construed as an inheritance or gift made by, or on behalf of, a person who, at the time of the gift or death, is or is deemed to be resident in the Netherlands for the purpose of the relevant provisions.

Value Added Tax

In general, no value added tax will arise in respect of payments in consideration for the issue of the Securities or in respect of a cash payment made under the Securities, or in respect of a transfer of the Securities.

Other Taxes and Duties

No registration tax, customs duty, transfer tax, stamp duty, capital tax or any other similar documentary tax or duty will be payable in the Netherlands by a holder in respect of or in connection with the subscription, issue, placement, allotment, delivery or transfer of the Securities.

FINNISH TAXATION

The following is a general description of certain tax considerations relating to Securities. They relate only to payments by the relevant Issuer(s) and the Guarantor(s) to beneficial owners of the Securities and may not apply to certain classes of persons such as Dealers. It does not purport to be a complete analysis of all tax considerations relating to the Securities, whether in Finland or elsewhere. Prospective purchasers of Securities should consult their own tax advisers as to which countries' tax laws could be relevant to acquiring, holding and disposing of Securities and receiving payments of interest, principal and/or other amounts under the Securities and the consequences of such actions under the tax laws of those countries. This summary is based upon the law as in effect in Finland on the date of this Base Prospectus and is subject to any change in law that may take effect after such date, including changes with retroactive effect.

For the purpose of the Finnish tax consequences described herein, it is assumed that each of the relevant Issuer(s) and the Guarantor(s) is neither a resident nor deemed to be a resident of Finland for Finnish tax purposes or engage in trade or business through a permanent establishment or a fixed place of business in Finland in relation to the Securities.

General

Finnish residents and non-residents are treated differently for tax purposes in Finland. Finnish residents are subject to taxation in Finland on their worldwide income. Non-residents who are not generally liable for tax in Finland are subject to taxation in Finland solely in respect of their Finnish source income. Generally, an individual is deemed to be a Finnish resident if such an individual continuously resides in Finland for more than six months or if the permanent home and dwelling of such an individual is in Finland. A citizen of Finland who has moved abroad is regarded as resident for Finnish tax purposes until three years have passed after the end of the year of emigration, even though the individual does not reside in Finland over six months or the permanent home and dwelling are not located in Finland, if such an individual cannot prove that he/she has not had any essential relationship to Finland in the tax year in question. Entities established under the laws of Finland and entities that have their place of effective management located in Finland are regarded as residents of Finland in accordance with domestic tax law. Double tax treaties may restrict the authority of the Finnish state to tax foreign source income of an individual or entity deemed as resident of Finland pursuant to Finnish domestic tax law.

Resident holders of Securities

Under present Finnish domestic tax law, holders of Securities, who are resident in Finland for tax purposes, are as a general rule subject to Finnish tax on interest payments received under the Securities and on gains realised on the sale, exchange, redemption, settlement or other disposition of the Securities.

Individuals

Interest and any similar income (e.g. interest compensation (jälkimarkkinahyvitys) and index compensation (indeksihyvitys)) received by individual holders of Securities and capital gain accrued on the Securities is generally taxed as capital income unless the Securities are considered to belong to the business activity of an individual. Capital income is taxed at a flat rate of 30 per cent. to the extent the annual capital income of the individual does not exceed EUR30,000. For the part of the capital income that exceeds EUR30,000 during a calendar year, the tax rate is 34 per cent.

Losses realised on the sale or redemption or settlement of Securities should be regarded as capital losses and be deductible against all capital income in the same year and the following five years, at least where the Securities are marketable.

Income and gains from Securities considered to belong to the business activity of an individual for Finnish tax purposes are included in the total business income of such individual. The business income will be divided according to the Finnish Income Tax Act to be taxed as capital income (taxed at the rate of 30 or 34 per cent.) and earned income taxed at a progressive tax rate.

Corporates

Interest and any similar income (e.g. interest compensation (jälkimarkkinahyvitys) and index compensation (indeksihyvitys)) received by corporate holders of Securities and capital gain accrued on the Securities is generally taxed as business income or other income, taxed at the corporate income tax rate of 20 per cent. (applicable rate in 2025). Losses realised should be deductible against business income (where the Securities are considered business assets) or against capital gains from other income in the same year and the following five years (at least where the Securities are marketable).

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

The current Finnish Government intends to decrease the corporate income tax rate from 20 per cent. to 18 per cent.. The change is expected to apply as of 2027, however the change has not yet been passed in Parliament.

Tax exemptions may apply with respect to certain categories of corporate holders of Securities, such as tax exempt investment institutions, pension funds or other entities that are exempt from Finnish corporate income tax.

Non-Resident Holders of Securities

Holders of Securities who are not resident in Finland for tax purposes and who do not conduct business through a permanent establishment in Finland will not be subject to Finnish taxes either on payments in respect of the Securities or gains realised on the sale, exchange, redemption, settlement or other disposition of the Securities. Where the income under the Securities is attributable to a permanent establishment of a Non-resident holder of the Securities, the taxation would generally follow the taxation of resident holders of the Securities (see "Corporates" above).

Withholding

None of the relevant Issuer(s), the Guarantor(s) are under an obligation to perform any withholding or deduction for or on account of any income tax imposed, levied, withheld, or assessed by Finland or any political subdivision or taxing authority thereof or therein in respect of any payments under the Securities. Further, such payments may be made free of any withholding when the recipient of the payment is not resident in Finland for tax purposes, or is a corporate resident in Finland for tax purposes.

An agent or intermediary resident in Finland (or a Finnish permanent establishment of a non-resident paying agent or intermediary, if the payment is made through a such permanent establishment) shall withhold advance income tax of 30 per cent. from any interest, interest compensation (jälkimarkkinahyvitys), index compensation, (indeksihyvitys) or other similar payment paid to an individual residing in Finland where such payment is made through the agent or intermediary.

Transfer Taxation

A transfer of the Securities is not subject to Finnish transfer tax.

FRENCH TAXATION

The following is a summary of certain French tax considerations relating to holding of the Securities. This information is of general nature and aims at addressing only the French compulsory withholding tax treatment of income arising from the Securities and certain transfer tax implications relevant in case of physical delivery in respect of the Securities. This summary is based on the laws and regulations in full force and effect in France as at the date of this Base Prospectus, which may be subject to change in the future, potentially with retroactive effect. Investors should be aware that the summary below is of a general nature and does not constitute legal or tax advice and should not be understood as such. Prospective investors are therefore advised to consult their own qualified advisors so as to determine, in the light of their individual situation, the tax consequences of the acquisition, subscription, holding, redemption, settlement or disposal of the Securities.

Withholding taxes

The following has been prepared on the assumption that the Issuer(s) and the Guarantor(s) are not (and will not be) French residents for French tax purposes (whether actually or constructively) and do not (and will not) have a branch, permanent establishment or fixed place of business in France.

The withholding tax treatment of the Securities issued by the Issuer(s) will depend on their nature and characterisation for French tax purposes.

Securities issued by the Issuers constituting debt instruments for French tax purposes

Payments in respect of the Securities which are treated as debt instruments for French tax purposes made by the Issuer(s) should be made free of any compulsory withholding or deduction for or on account of any taxes imposed, levied, withheld, or assessed by France or any political subdivision or taxing authority thereof or therein.

However, pursuant to Article 125 A I of the French tax code, if the paying agent (établissement payeur) is established in France, and subject to certain exceptions, interest and assimilated income received by individuals who are fiscally domiciled in France are subject to a withholding tax at a rate of 12.8 per cent. (which is deductible from their personal income tax liability in respect of the year in which the payment has been made). Social contributions (CSG, CRDS and solidarity levy) are also levied by way of withholding at an aggregate rate of 17.2 per cent. on such interest and assimilated income received by individuals who are fiscally domiciled in France, subject to certain exceptions.

Securities issued by the Issuers not constituting debt instruments for French tax purposes

Payments in respect of Securities which are not treated as debt instruments for French tax purposes made by the Issuers should be made free of any compulsory withholding or deduction for or on account of any taxes imposed, levied, withheld, or assessed by France or any political subdivision or taxing authority thereof or therein.

French financial transaction tax and transfer tax

The following may be relevant in connection with Securities which are settled, redeemed or repaid by way of physical delivery of (i) certain listed shares issued by a company whose registered seat is located in France (or certain assimilated securities) or (ii) securities representing such shares (or assimilated securities). In circumstances where the Securities are settled, redeemed or repaid by way of physical delivery of assets other than the securities referred to in the previous sentence, investors are urged to consult their advisor to assess the potential French tax consequences.

The French financial transaction tax provided under Article 235 ter ZD of the French tax code (the "Financial Transaction Tax") is applicable, subject to certain exemptions, at a rate of 0.4 per cent. to any acquisitions for consideration resulting in a transfer of ownership of (i) equity securities (titres de capital) as defined by Article L.212-1 A of the French monetary and financial code or assimilated equity securities (titres de capital assimilés) as defined by Article L.211-41 of the French monetary and financial code which are admitted to trading on a regulated stock exchange and issued by a company whose registered seat is located in France and whose market capitalisation exceeds 1 billion Euros on 1 December of the year preceding the year in which the imposition occurs (the "French Shares") or (ii) securities (titres) representing French Shares, irrespective of the location of the registered office of the issuer of such securities. If the Financial Transaction Tax applies to the acquisition of French Shares, this transaction is exempt from transfer taxes (droits de mutation à titre onéreux) provided under Article 726 of the French tax code (the "Transfer Taxes") which generally apply at a rate of 0.1 per cent. to the sale of shares issued by a company whose registered seat is located in France, PROVIDED THAT in case of shares admitted to trading on a recognised stock exchange, Transfer Taxes are due only if the transfer is evidenced by a written deed or agreement.

GERMAN TAXATION

The following is a general discussion of certain German tax consequences of the acquisition, ownership and the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of Securities and the receipt of interest thereon. It does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all tax considerations, which may be relevant to a decision to purchase Securities, and, in particular, does not consider any specific facts or circumstances that may apply to a particular purchaser. This summary is based on the laws of Germany currently in force and as applied on the date of this Base Prospectus, which are subject to change, possibly with retroactive or retrospective effect.

As each Series or Tranche of Securities may be subject to a different tax treatment due to the specific terms of such Series or Tranche, the following section only provides some very generic information on the possible tax treatment and has to be read in conjunction with the more specific information on the taxation of each Series or Tranche of Securities as provided in the applicable Issue Terms. Furthermore, the taxation of the different types of Securities may differ from each other. The following summary only describes the tax treatment of Securities in general and certain particularities with respect to individual types of Securities. Where the term "certificates" is used in the following summary it refers – according to a German understanding of the term – to certain types of Securities linked to an underlying.

Prospective purchasers of Securities are advised to consult their own tax advisors as to the tax consequences of the acquisition, the ownership and the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of Securities and the receipt of interest thereon, including the effect of any state or local taxes, under the tax laws of Germany and each country of which they are residents or citizens or may otherwise be liable to tax. Only these advisers will be able to take into account appropriately the details relevant to the taxation of the respective holders of the relevant Securities.

Tax Residents

Private Investors

Interest/Capital gains

Interest payable on Securities to persons holding such Securities as private assets ("Private Investors") who are tax residents of Germany (i.e. persons whose residence or habitual abode is located in Germany) qualifies as investment income (Einkünfte aus Kapitalvermögen) according to Sec. 20 para. 1 German Income Tax Act (Einkommensteuergesetz) and is, in general, taxed at a separate flat tax rate of 25 per cent. according to Sec. 32d para. 1 German Income Tax Act (Abgeltungsteuer, in the following also referred to as "flat tax"), plus 5.5 per cent. solidarity surcharge thereon and, if applicable, church tax.

Capital gains from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of Securities, including the original issue discount and interest having accrued up to the disposition of a Security and credited separately ("Accrued Interest", (Stückzinsen)), if any, qualify – irrespective of any holding period – as investment income pursuant to Sec. 20 para. 2 German Income Tax Act and are also generally taxed at the flat tax rate of 25 per cent., plus 5.5 per cent. solidarity surcharge thereon and, if applicable, church tax. If the Securities are assigned, redeemed, repaid or contributed into a corporation by way of a deemed contribution (verdeckte Einlage in eine Kapitalgesellschaft) rather than sold, as a rule, such transaction is treated like a sale.

Capital gains are determined by taking the difference between the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement price (after the deduction of expenses directly and factually related to the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement) and the acquisition price of the relevant Securities. Where the relevant Securities are issued in a currency other than Euro, the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement price and the acquisition costs have to be converted into Euro on the basis of the foreign exchange rates prevailing on the acquisition date and the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement date respectively. If the Issuer(s) exercise(s) the right to substitute the Issuer(s) of the Securities, the substitution might, for German tax purposes, be treated as an exchange of the Securities for new notes issued by the new Issuer(s). Such a substitution could result in the recognition of a taxable gain or loss for the respective investors.

Expenses (other than such expenses directly and factually related to the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement) related to interest payments or capital gains under the Securities are – except for a standard lump sum (Sparer-Pauschbetrag) of Euro 1,000 (Euro 2,000 for jointly assessed holders) – in principle not deductible.

According to the flat tax regime losses from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of Securities can only be set-off against other investment income. If the set-off is not possible in the assessment period in which the losses have been realised, such losses can be carried forward into future assessment periods only and can be set-off against investment income generated in these future assessment periods. Losses from a sale of Securities can only be set-off against gains from such. The offsetting of losses incurred by a Private Investor is subject to several restrictions. Losses incurred with respect to the Securities can only be offset against investment income of the Private Investor realised in the same or the following years.

Particularities apply with respect to so-called full risk certificates with several payment dates. According to the decree of the German Federal Ministry of Finance (Bundesfinanzministerium) dated 14 May 2025 (IV C 1 - S 2252/00075/016/070), all payments to the investor under such full risk certificates that are made prior to the final maturity or exercise date shall qualify as taxable income from an "other capital receivable" (sonstige Kapitalforderung) pursuant to Sec. 20 para 1 no. 7 German Income Tax Act, unless the offering terms and conditions stipulate that such payments shall be redemption or settlement payments and the parties act accordingly. Even if there is no final redemption or settlement payment, the final maturity or exercise date shall constitute a sale-like event in the meaning of Sec. 20 para. 2 German

Income Tax Act. If no payments are planned for a full risk certificate at the time of final maturity or exercise because the underlying asset has left a range provided for in the issue conditions, or if the certificate is terminated (prematurely) due to the range being left (so-called "knock-out certificate") without further capital repayments, this constitutes a redemption or settlement at zero and therefore also a sale-like event within the meaning of Sec. 20 para. 2 German Income Tax Act. The acquisition costs of the certificate must be recognised as a loss. The general loss offsetting restrictions (please ref. above) must be taken into account for the losses. The same applies when the knock-out threshold is reached.

Further, the German Federal Ministry of Finance in its decree dated 14 May 2025 (IV C 1 - S 2252/00075/016/070) has taken the position that a bad debt loss (Forderungsausfall) and a waiver of a receivable (Forderungsverzicht) shall, in general, be treated as a sale, so that losses suffered upon such bad debt loss or waiver shall be deductible for tax purposes. It is not clear, whether the position of the German tax authorities may affect securities which are linked to a reference value in case such value decreases.

Withholding

If Securities are held in custody with or administered by a German credit institution, financial services institution (including a German permanent establishment of such foreign institution), securities trading company or securities trading bank ("Disbursing Agent"), the flat tax at a rate of 25 per cent. (plus 5.5 per cent. solidarity surcharge thereon and, if applicable, church tax) will be withheld by the Disbursing Agent on interest payments and the excess of the proceeds from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement (after the deduction of expenses directly and factually related to the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement) over the acquisition costs for the relevant Securities (if applicable converted into Euro terms on the basis of the foreign exchange rates as of the acquisition date and the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement date respectively). Church tax is collected by way of withholding as a standard procedure unless the Private Investor has filed a blocking notice (Sperrvermerk) with the German Federal Central Tax Office (Bundeszentralamt für Steuern).

The Disbursing Agent will provide for the set-off of losses against investment income including capital gains from other securities. If, in the absence of sufficient investment income derived through the same Disbursing Agent, a set-off is not possible, the holder of Securities may – instead of having a loss carried forward into the following year – file an application with the Disbursing Agent until 15 December of the current fiscal year for a certification of losses (Verlustbescheinigung) in order to set-off such losses against investment income derived through other institutions in the holder's personal income tax return.

If custody has changed since the acquisition and the acquisition data is not proved as required by Sec. 43a para. 2 German Income Tax Act or not permitted to be proved, the flat tax rate of 25 per cent. (plus 5.5 per cent. solidarity surcharge thereon and, if applicable, church tax) will be imposed on an amount equal to 30 per cent. of the proceeds from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of the relevant Securities.

In the course of the tax withholding provided for by the Disbursing Agent foreign taxes may be credited in accordance with the German Income Tax Act.

If Securities are not kept in a custodial account with a Disbursing Agent, the flat tax will – by way of withholding – apply on interest paid by a Disbursing Agent upon presentation of a coupon (whether or not presented with the relevant Security to which it appertains) to a holder of such coupon (other than a non-German bank or financial services institution) (Tafelgeschäft), if any. In this case proceeds from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of the relevant Securities will also be subject to the withholding of the flat tax.

In general, no flat tax will be levied if the holder of a Security filed a withholding exemption certificate (Freistellungsauftrag) with the Disbursing Agent (in the maximum amount of the standard lump sum of current Euro 1,000 (Euro 2,000 for jointly assessed holders) to the extent the income does not exceed the maximum exemption amount shown on the withholding exemption certificate. Similarly, no flat tax will be deducted if the holder of a Security has submitted to the Disbursing Agent a valid certificate of non-assessment (Nichtveranlagungsbescheinigung) issued by the competent tax office.

For Private Investors, the withheld flat tax is, in general, definitive. Exceptions apply e.g. if and to the extent the actual investment income exceeds the amount which was determined as the basis for the withholding of the flat tax by the Disbursing Agent. In such case, the exceeding amount of investment income must be included in the Private Investor's income tax return and will be subject to the flat tax in the course of the assessment procedure. According to the decree of the German Federal Ministry of Finance dated 14 May 2025 (IV C 1 - S 2252/00075/016/070), however, for reasons of equity, this may be waived if the difference per assessment period does not exceed EUR500 and there are no other reasons for an assessment under Sec. 32d para. 3 German Income Tax Act. Further, Private Investors may request that their total investment income, together with their other income, is subject to taxation at their personal, progressive income tax rate rather than the flat tax rate, if this results in a lower tax liability (Günstigerprüfung). According to Sec. 32d para. 2 no. 1 German Income Tax Act the flat tax rate should also not be available in situations where an abuse of the flat tax rate is assumed (e.g. "back-to-back" financing). In order to prove such investment income and the withheld flat tax thereon, the investor may request from the Disbursing Agent a respective certificate in officially required form.

Investment income not subject to the withholding flat tax (e.g. if there is no Disbursing Agent) must be included in the personal income tax return and will be subject to the flat tax rate of 25 per cent. (plus 5.5 per cent. solidarity surcharge thereon and, if applicable, church tax), unless the investor requests the investment income to be subject to taxation at lower personal, progressive income tax rate or the investment income is not subject to the flat tax rate according to Sec. 32d para. 2 German Income Tax Act. Foreign taxes on investment income may be credited in accordance with the German Income Tax Act.

Business Investors

Interest payable on Securities to persons holding the relevant Securities as business assets ("Business Investors") who are tax residents of Germany (i.e. Business Investors whose residence, habitual abode, statutory seat or place of effective management and control is located in Germany) and capital gains from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of Securities, including the original issue discount and Accrued Interest, if any, are subject to income tax at the Business Investor's personal, progressive income tax rate (plus currently 5.5 per cent. solidarity surcharge thereon and, if applicable, church tax), or, in case of corporate entities, to corporate income tax at a uniform 15 per cent. tax rate (plus 5.5 per cent. solidarity surcharge thereon). Such interest payments and capital gains may also be subject to trade tax if the relevant Securities form part of the property of a German trade or business. Losses from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of Securities are, in general, recognised for tax purposes; this may be different if certain (in particular index linked) Securities qualify as derivative transactions.

Withholding tax, if any, including solidarity surcharge thereon, is generally credited as a prepayment against the Business Investor's personal, progressive or corporate income tax liability and the solidarity surcharge in the course of the tax assessment procedure, i.e. the withholding tax is not definitive. Any potential surplus will be refunded. However, in general and subject to further requirements, no withholding deduction will apply on capital gains from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of Securities if (i) such Securities are held by a corporation, association or estate in terms of Sec. 43 para. 2 sentence 3 no. 1 German Income Tax Act or (ii) the proceeds from such Securities qualify as income of a domestic business and the investor notifies this to the Disbursing Agent by use of the required official form according to Sec. 43 para. 2 sentence 3 no. 2, sentence 4 German Income Tax Act (Erklärung zur Freistellung vom Kapitalertragsteuerabzug).

Where notes qualify as zero bonds and form part of a trade or business, each year the part of the difference between the issue or purchase price and the redemption or settlement amount attributable to such year must be taken into account as income.

Foreign taxes may be credited in accordance with the German Income Tax Act. Alternatively, foreign taxes may also be deducted from the tax base for German income tax purposes.

Non-residents

Interest payable on Securities and capital gains, including Accrued Interest, if any, are not subject to German taxation, unless (i) the relevant Securities form part of the business property of a permanent establishment, including a permanent representative, or a fixed base maintained in Germany by the holder of the relevant Securities; (ii) the investment income otherwise constitutes German-source income; or (iii) the relevant Securities are not kept in a custodial account with a Disbursing Agent and interest or proceeds from the sale, assignment, redemption or settlement of the relevant Securities are paid by a Disbursing Agent upon presentation of a coupon to a holder of such coupon (other than a non-German bank or financial services institution) (Tafelgeschäft), if any. In the cases (i), (ii) and (iii) a tax regime similar to that explained above under "Tax Residents" applies.

Insofar as the prerequisites for a limited tax liability are not met in the case of a non-resident who has capital income, no withholding tax is to be withheld by the Disbursing Agent for this income, even if the relevant Securities are held in custody with a Disbursing Agent (cf. margin number 313 of the decree dated 14 May 2025 (IV C 1 - S 2252/00075/016/070)). However, where the investment income is subject to German taxation as set forth in the preceding paragraph and the relevant Securities are held in a custodial account with a Disbursing Agent or in case of a Tafelgeschäft, withholding tax is levied as explained above under "Tax Residents". The withholding tax may be refunded based upon German national tax law or an applicable tax treaty.

Inheritance and Gift Tax

No inheritance or gift taxes with respect to any Security will arise under the laws of Germany if, in the case of inheritance tax, (i) neither the decedent nor the beneficiary or, in the case of gift tax, neither the donor nor the donee, is a resident of Germany, (ii) such Security is not attributable to a trade or business for which a permanent establishment is maintained, or a permanent representative has been appointed, in Germany and (iii) the claims under the Securities are not directly or indirectly secured by German situs real estate or ships which are registered with a German ship register (unless the Securities qualify as bonds which are issued as partial debentures). Exceptions from this rule might apply to certain German expatriates.

Other Taxes

No stamp, issue, registration or similar taxes or duties will be payable in Germany in connection with the issuance, delivery, execution or conversion of Securities. Currently, net assets tax (Vermögensteuer) is not levied in Germany. Germany and other EU Member States intend to introduce a financial transaction tax (see below). However, it is unclear if and in what form such tax will be actually introduced. In case such tax is introduced, the acquisition and disposal of Securities (in the secondary market) could be subject to a tax of at least 0.1 per cent. of the acquisition or disposal price.

EU Residents

The Council of the European Union has adopted Directive 2014/107/EU (the "Amending Cooperation Directive"), amending Directive 2011/16/EU on administrative cooperation in the field of taxation so as to introduce an extended automatic exchange of information regime in accordance with the Global Standard released by the OECD Council as of 1 January 2016 (1 January 2017 in the case of Austria). Germany has implemented the Amending Cooperation Directive by means of a Financial Account Information Act (Finanzkonten-Informationsaustauschgesetz, FKAutG) according to which it will provide information on financial accounts to EU Member States and certain other states as of 1 January 2016.

Solidarity surcharge

Please note that the solidarity surcharge was partially abolished as of the assessment period 2021 for certain individuals (Law on the return of the solidarity surcharge 1995 of 10 December 2019 - Federal Law Gazette 2019 I pg. 2115). The solidarity surcharge shall, however, continue to apply for investment income and, thus, on withholding taxes levied. In case the individual income tax burden for a non-business Holders of Securities tax resident in Germany is lower than 25 per cent. such Holder can apply for his/her investment income being assessed at his/her individual tariff-based income tax rate in which case solidarity surcharge would be refunded (see above).

GREEK TAXATION

The following summary describes the principal Greek tax consequences in relation to the subscription, holding, redemption, settlement and disposal of the Securities by tax residents in the Hellenic Republic ("Greece") or investors otherwise subject to Greek taxation (due to a permanent establishment in Greece through which the Securities are held) (for the purposes of this summary). The discussion is not exhaustive and does not purport to deal with all the tax consequences applicable to all possible categories of holders, some of which may be subject to special rules, and also does not touch upon procedural requirements such as the filing of proof of residence of a tax declaration or of supporting documentation required. Further, it is not intended as tax advice to any particular investor nor does it purport to be a comprehensive description of all Greek taxation considerations thereof.

This summary is based on the tax legislation, published case law, guidance Securities and other regulatory acts of the respective Greek authorities as in force at the date of this Base Prospectus and does not take into account any developments or amendments thereof after that date whether or not such developments or amendments have retroactive effect. There are also certain tax issues which have not been clarified, up to this time, by the tax administration.

Individuals are assumed not to be acting in the course of business for tax purposes. "Greek tax residents" includes, as regards legal persons and legal entities, the permanent establishment in Greece of a foreign legal person or legal entity, where the Securities are held through that permanent establishment.

Tax considerations are subject to the more favourable provisions of any applicable bilateral treaty for the avoidance of double taxation.

Prospective purchasers of the Securities are advised to consult their own tax advisors as to the tax consequences of the purchase, ownership and disposal of the Securities.

For the purposes of this section, it is assumed that none of Citigroup Inc., Citigroup Global Markets Holdings Inc., Citigroup Global Markets Funding Luxembourg S.C.A. and Citigroup Global Markets Limited is a resident of Greece for Greek taxation purposes.

Furthermore, it is noted that the Greek tax legislation does not explicitly provide for specific rules for the tax treatment of combined instruments in terms of Securities, the performance of which is linked to the performance of an underlying, financial index or basket of assets. Therefore, the discussion below is limited to the payment of interest under the Securities and their corresponding treatment as debt securities.

Interest payments

(a) Individual Securityholders

Payments of interest under the Securities to individual holders of the Securities are subject to income tax at a flat rate of 15 per cent. If payment of interest is made through a Greek entity or a Greek permanent establishment acting as paying agent, that paying agent will withhold the entire income tax owed (i.e. 15 per cent.). Such withholding tax exhausts the income tax liability of the respective individual recipients of such interest income.

(b) Securityholders that are Legal Persons and Legal Entities

Payments of interest under the Securities by the relevant Issuer(s) to legal persons and legal entities that are Greek tax residents will be treated as part of their annual income from business activities. Income of legal persons and legal entities is taxed at a flat rate, which is currently 22 per cent, (with the exception of credit institutions participating in the scheme allowing for the conversion of deferred tax assets into final claims against the State under certain circumstances, which are taxed at 29 per cent). If payment is made through a Greek entity or Greek permanent establishment acting as paying agent, a withholding of 15 per cent. applies, which will be treated as an advance payment over income tax due for that financial year.

Capital gains realised from the disposal of the Securities

(a) Individual Securityholders

Capital gains realised from the disposal of the Securities are subject to income tax at a rate of 15 per cent. Capital gains will equal the difference between the acquisition and the transfer price of a Security, plus/minus expenses directly related to the acquisition/transfer price of the Security. Capital gains may be set off, under certain circumstances, against capital losses from securities that have been incurred in the last 5 years.

Notwithstanding the above, capital gains over bonds issued by EU, EEA and EFTA issuers are exempted from income tax over capital gains, as is the case with Greek corporate bonds. "Bonds" should be interpreted narrowly for the purposes of this exemption to include debt instruments representing a claim to receive back the entirety of an amount lent, which may be convertible to shares, may be exchangeable with other securities, may provide a right to interest and/or may provide a right to profits.

In this context, the tax authority has expressed the view that the difference between the acquisition value on the secondary market and the payment of principal received upon expiry of a corporate bond does not constitute capital gains. In this case "bonds" should again be interpreted narrowly, as above.

It would be reasonable to assume that payments under the Securities by a guarantor will be classified for tax purposes in the same manner as if the payment were being made by the relevant Issuer, although this point has not been addressed specifically in a general manner.

(b) Holders of the Securities that are Legal Persons and Legal Entities

As a rule, all income of legal persons and legal entities is classified as income from business activities and taxed at a rate of 22 per cent. Income from business activities of credit institutions participating in the scheme allowing for the conversion of deferred tax assets into final claims against the State under certain circumstances are taxed at a rate of 29 per cent..

Notwithstanding the above, as regards capital gains over bonds issued by EU, EEA and EFTA issuers taxation is deferred until capitalisation or distribution, as is the case with Greek corporate bonds. Upon capitalisation or distribution, capital gains will be taxed at the then applicable income tax rate. "Bonds" should be interpreted narrowly for the purposes of this exemption to include debt instruments representing a claim to receive back the entirety of an amount lent, which may be convertible to shares, may be exchangeable with other securities, may provide a right to interest and/or may provide a right to profits.

Digital duty on transactions

The new digital duty on transactions, which abolished stamp duty as of 1 December 2024, by virtue of law 5135/2024, as it has been further consolidated by law 5177/2025, applies to all agreements and transactions enumerated in the new law and concluded after 1 December 2024, if one or more of the contracting parties have their tax residence in Greece, regardless of the location where an agreement is executed or obligations arising from it are performed. Exemptions apply and the digital duty will not be imposed on the acquisition and transfer of shares, bonds, warrants and other types of securities. These exemptions are subject to interpretation by the Greek tax authorities, by virtue of guidelines which have not been issued at 25 June 2025.

HONDURAS TAXATION

Based on the Territorial Tax Principal governing the Honduran tax system, as of 1 January 2017, per Decree 170-2016, and under the enforceable tax laws of Honduras and regulations that are known to us to the date of this Base Prospectus, the profits obtained from the Securities or the sale thereof, are unlikely to be subject to the Honduran Capital Gains Tax or Income Tax. However, it is the investor's sole responsibility to determine whether a tax liability could arise from the profit obtained from the Securities or the sale thereof. We cannot guarantee or foresee in any way that the tax authorities of Honduras will accept our interpretations. The tax legislation referred to, can be amended at any time by the Honduras legislative authorities, which could have a material effect on the comments, interpretations and information included herein.

Please consult your tax advisor regarding your specific legal and tax situation. Information herein is not legal or tax advice. You should make your own independent decision as to whether the profit arising from the Securities or the sale thereof is taxable under Honduran laws, based upon your own judgement and upon the advice from your tax advisors, as you may deem necessary.

You should not rely on any communication (written or oral) of the Issuer(s), the Guarantor(s), any Dealer or any of their affiliates or their respective officers or agents as tax advice.

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

It is being understood that information and explanations related to Securities contained herein shall not be considered to be tax advice or a recommendation on whether taxes should be paid or not. No communication (written or oral) received from the Issuer(s), the Guarantor(s), any Dealer or any of their affiliates or their respective officers or agents shall be deemed to be tax advice.

HUNGARIAN TAXATION

The following is a general discussion of certain Hungarian tax consequences relating to the acquisition and ownership of Securities. It does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all tax considerations which may be relevant to a decision to purchase Securities, and, in particular, does not consider any specific facts or circumstances that may apply to a particular purchaser. It is based on laws currently in force in Hungary and applicable on the date of this Base Prospectus, but subject to change, possibly with retrospective effect. The acquisition of Securities by non-Hungarian holders, or the payment of interest under Securities may trigger additional tax payments in the country of residence of the relevant holder, which is not covered by this summary, but where the provisions of the treaties on the avoidance of double taxation should be taken into consideration. Prospective purchasers of Securities are advised to consult their own tax advisers as to the tax consequences of the purchase, ownership and disposition of Securities, including the effect of any state or local taxes, under the tax laws of Hungary and each country of which they are residents.

Withholding tax (foreign resident individual holders)

Foreign resident individual holders are subject to personal income tax in Hungary if they realise income that qualifies as Hungarian sourced income (i) in accordance with an applicable tax treaty; or, (ii) in the absence of a tax treaty, in accordance with Act CXVII of 1995 on Personal Income Tax (the "Personal Income Tax Act").

If a tax treaty is applicable, then Hungary's taxation right has to be determined based on the treaty. If the income is taxable in Hungary – which is generally the case if the income qualifies as interest or dividend under the treaty – then 15 per cent. Hungarian withholding tax applies but such tax rate may be reduced by the treaty. In the absence of a tax treaty generally any income realised on the Securities is subject to 15 per cent. withholding tax in Hungary. Please note, however, that the Hungarian tax rules and taxation practice are rather ambiguous in relation to source taxation of non-residents' capital income.

The tax on payments of certain income types are to be withheld by the Payor (kifizető) (as defined below).

Pursuant to Act CL of 2017 on the Rules of Taxation ("ART") a "Payor" means a Hungarian resident legal person, organisation or private entrepreneur who provides taxable income, irrespective of whether such payment is made directly or through an intermediary (post office, credit institution). In respect of interest, "Payor" shall mean the borrower of a loan or the issuer of a note, including the investment service provider or credit institution providing the interest instead of it. In respect of a dividend, "Payor" means the entity paying the dividend from its assets. In respect of revenues originating from a transaction concluded with the involvement of a licensed stockbroker, "Payor" shall mean such stockbroker. The Hungarian permanent establishment of a foreign resident entity is also considered as a Payor.

Interest, as defined by Schedule 7 of the ART (which implements the provisions of the Savings Directive), realised on Securities by citizens of any other Member State is not subject to Hungarian tax where a paying agent based in Hungary provides data to the Hungarian state tax authority on the basis of Schedule 7 of the ART.

Please note that the provisions of the applicable double tax conventions, if any, should be considered when assessing the Hungarian tax liabilities of a foreign resident individual holder.

Withholding tax (foreign resident corporate holders)

Proceeds from Securities paid to foreign resident corporate holders who do not have a permanent establishment in Hungary, by resident legal entities or other persons and any capital gains realised by such foreign resident holders on the sale of the Securities is not subject to tax in Hungary.

The tax liability of a foreign resident corporate holder, which has a permanent establishment in Hungary is limited, in general, to the income from business activities realised through its Hungarian permanent establishment.

Taxation of Hungarian resident individual holders

The tax liability of Hungarian tax resident private individuals covers the worldwide income of such persons.

According to the provisions of the Personal Income Tax Act, in the case of tax resident individual holders of Securities, interest, dividends and the capital gains realised upon the redemption, settlement or the sale of publicly offered and publicly traded debt securities is subject to personal income tax at the rate of 15 per cent.. Securities listed on a regulated market of a Member State are considered publicly offered and traded securities. In addition, the private person is liable to pay social contribution tax on any interest income (as specified under section 65 of the Personal Income Tax Act) as calculated on the basis of the personal income tax accrued on interest income, if the date of acquisition of the Securities on which the interest income is based is later than 30 June 2023. Consequently, the interest income generated on the Securities acquired by a Hungarian resident private individual and taxable in Hungary is subject to social contribution tax at the rate of 13 per cent.

The rules of the Personal Income Tax Act may in certain circumstances impose a requirement upon the "Payor" (kifizető) (as defined below) to withhold tax on the certain payments to individual holders.

Pursuant to the ART the definition of a Payor covers a Hungarian resident legal person, other organisation, or private entrepreneur that (who) provides taxable income, irrespective of whether such payment is made directly or through an intermediary (post office, credit institution). In respect of interest, "Payor" shall mean the borrower of a loan or the issuer of a note, including the investment service provider or credit institution providing the interest instead of it. In respect of a dividend, "Payor" means the entity paying the dividend from its assets. In respect of revenues originating from a transaction concluded with the involvement of a licensed stockbroker, "Payor" shall mean such stockbroker. In respect of income that is earned in a foreign country and taxable in Hungary, "Payor" shall mean the "paying agent" (megbízott) (legal person, organisation or private entrepreneur) having tax residency in Hungary, except in cases where the role of a financial institution is limited to performing the bank transfer or payment.

Tax allowance and exemption

Favourable tax treatment could be applied on income from long-term investments in Hungary under Section 67/B of the Personal Income Tax Act. The tax allowance and tax exemption could be applied on the income under a long-term investment contract (in Hungarian, "tartós befektetési számla") ("LTIC") concluded between a private individual and an investment service provider or a credit institution. The LTIC itself is a separate agreement where the parties agree to observe the taxation rules laid down in the Personal Income Tax Act in order the private individual to be eligible for the below tax allowance or exemption.

In accordance with the rules of the LTIC, the private individual shall conclude an LTIC with an investment service provider or a credit institution and place funds (at least HUF25,000) on the LTIC account. The calendar year of opening the LTIC account is regarded as the collection year and funds can only be placed until the 31st of December of such year. The placed funds can be used, in the collection year and the subsequent years, in general, to invest in debt securities and controlled capital market transactions.

The withdrawal of funds, including the yield from the investments, from the LTIC account after the end of the third year following the collection year shall be subject to 10 per cent. personal income tax. The withdrawal of funds, including the yield from the investment, from the LTIC account after the end of the fifth year following the collection year shall be exempt from personal income tax.

An agreement concluded with a foreign investment service provider/credit institution could also be regarded as an LTIC if (i) it is in compliance with the Personal Income Tax Act, (ii) the parties apply the respective rules of the Personal Income Tax Act on their rights and obligations and (iii) the private individual undertakes to (a) tie-up at least cash amounting a minimum of HUF25 000 (approx. EUR70) on the account and (b) not to withdraw its investment for 3 or 5 consecutive years. In such case, the private individual shall report to the Hungarian tax authority that is has concluded such agreement with a foreign entity.

Taxation of Hungarian resident corporate holders

Under Act LXXXI of 1996 on Corporate Tax and Dividend Tax, Hungarian resident taxpayers have a full, all-inclusive tax liability. In general, resident entities are those established under the laws of Hungary (i.e. having a Hungarian registered seat). Foreign persons having their place of management in Hungary are also considered as Hungarian resident taxpayers.

In general, interest and capital gains realised by Hungarian resident corporate holder of Securities will be taxable in the same way as the regular income of the relevant holder. The general corporate tax rate in Hungary is flat 9 per cent.

Financial institutions, financial enterprises, insurance companies and investment enterprises may be subject to local business tax and innovation tax on the basis of the proceeds realised on Securities.

IRISH TAXATION

The following is a summary of the principal Irish withholding tax and stamp duty tax consequences of ownership of the Securities. It is based on the laws and practice of the Revenue Commissioners currently in force in Ireland as at the date of this Base Prospectus and may be subject to change. The statements in this summary are based on the understanding that Securities will be treated as debt for Irish tax purposes. This summary applies to Holders who beneficially own Securities as an investment and who are not associated with the Issuers (otherwise than by virtue of holding the Securities). Particular rules not discussed below may apply to certain classes of taxpayers holding Securities including dealers in Securities and trusts. This summary does not constitute tax or legal advice and the comments below are of a general nature only and it does not discuss all aspects of Irish taxation that may be relevant to any particular holder of Securities. Prospective investors in any Securities should consult their professional advisers on the tax implications of the purchase, holding, redemption, settlement or sale of Securities and the receipt of payments thereon under any laws applicable to them.

Taxation of Holders

(a) Withholding Tax

Tax at the standard rate of income tax (currently 20 per cent.) is required to be withheld from payments of Irish source interest. The Issuer(s) will not be obliged to withhold Irish income tax from payments of interest on any Securities so long as such payments do not constitute Irish source income. Interest paid on Securities should not be treated as having an Irish source unless:

- (i) the relevant Issuer(s) is/are resident in Ireland for tax purposes; or
- (ii) the Issuer(s) has/have a branch or permanent establishment in Ireland, the assets or income of which is used to fund the payments on such Securities; or
- (iii) the Issuer(s) is/are not resident in Ireland for tax purposes but the register for such Securities is maintained in Ireland or (if the Securities are in bearer form) the Securities are physically held in Ireland.

It is anticipated that (i) none of the Issuer(s) are, or will be, resident in Ireland for tax purposes; (ii) none of the Issuer(s) will have a branch or permanent establishment in Ireland; and (iii) bearer Securities will not be physically located in Ireland and none of the Issuer(s) will maintain a register of any Registered Securities in Ireland.

(b) Encashment Tax

Irish tax will be required to be withheld at the standard rate of income tax (currently 25 per cent.) on any interest, dividends or annual payments payable out of or in respect of the stocks, funds, shares or securities of a company not resident in Ireland, where such interest, dividends or annual payments are collected or realised by a bank or encashment agent in Ireland.

Encashment tax will not apply where the beneficial holder of the Securities (i) is not resident in Ireland and has made a declaration in the prescribed form to the encashment agent or bank or (ii) is a company which is within the charge to Irish corporation tax in respect of the payment.

(c) Stamp Duty on Transfer of Securities

As the Issuer(s) will not be registered in Ireland, stamp duty will not arise on a document effecting a transfer of the Securities so long as (i) the Securities do not derive their value or the greater part of their value directly or indirectly from any immovable property situated in Ireland and (ii) the instrument of transfer of the Securities does not relate to:

- (i) any immovable property situated in Ireland or any right over or interest in such property; or
- (ii) any stocks or marketable securities of a company which is registered in Ireland (other than a company which is (i) an "investment undertaking" within the meaning of section 739B of the Taxes Consolidation Act, 1997 ("TCA") or (ii) a "qualifying company" within the meaning of Sections 110 of the TCA.

ITALIAN TAXATION

The following is a summary of current Italian law and practice relating to the taxation of Securities. The statements herein regarding taxation are based on the laws in force in Italy as at the date of this Base Prospectus and are subject to any changes in law occurring after such date, which changes could be made on a retroactive basis. The following summary does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all the tax considerations which may be relevant to a decision to subscribe for, purchase, own or dispose of Securities and does not purport to deal with the tax consequences applicable to all categories of investors, some of which (such as dealers in securities or commodities) may be subject to special rules.

Prospective Holders are advised to consult their own tax advisers concerning the overall tax consequences under Italian tax law, under the tax laws of the country in which they are resident for tax and receiving payments of interest, principal and/or other amounts under the Securities, including in particular the effect of any state, regional or local tax laws.

In any case, Italian legal or tax concepts may not be identical to the concepts described by the same English term as they exist under terms of different jurisdictions and any legal or tax concept expressed by using the relevant Italian term shall prevail over the corresponding concept expressed in English terms.

Prospective tax changes

Law No. 111 of 9 August 2023 published in the Official Gazette No. 189 of 14 August 2023 ("Law 111") delegated the Italian Government to enact, within twenty-four months from its publication, one or more legislative decrees implementing a reform of the Italian tax legislation (the "Tax Reform").

According to Law 111, the Tax Reform is expected to significantly impact the tax regimes of financial instruments including bonds and debentures similar to bonds.

The aim of the Tax Reform is, inter alia, to harmonize the tax treatment of financial instruments, by introducing a single category of financial income that includes both capital income and other income of a financial nature and allowing for the possibility of offsetting income and losses and carrying forward any excess losses to subsequent fiscal years.

The nature, extent, and impact of these prospective changes cannot be foreseen and/or assessed with certainty at the date of this Base Prospectus.

As a result, the information provided in this Base Prospectus may not be comprehensive and compliant with the future tax landscape.

Prospective purchasers of the Securities should be aware that any potential changes to the tax regime of interest income and capital gains could potentially lead to an increased tax cost and, consequently, result in a lower return of their investment.

Prospective purchasers of the Securities should consult their own tax advisors regarding the tax consequences described above.

Italian tax treatment of the Securities

The Securities may be subject to different tax regimes depending on whether:

- (a) they represent a debt instrument implying a use of capital (impiego di capitale), through which the Securityholder transfers to the Issuer(s) a certain amount of capital, for the economic exploitation of the same, subject to the right to obtain a (partial or entire) reimbursement of such amount at maturity; or
- (b) they represent derivative financial instruments or bundles of derivative financial instruments, through which the Securityholders purchase indirectly underlying financial instruments.

Securities representing debt instruments implying a "use of capital"

Securities which provide for full reimbursement of the issue price (at maturity or settlement or upon early redemption)

Italian-resident Securityholders

Legislative Decree No. 239 of 1 April 1996, as subsequently amended, ("Decree No. 239") provides for the applicable regime with respect to the tax treatment of interest, premium and other income (including the difference between the redemption amount and the issue price) from notes falling within the category of bonds (obbligazioni) or debentures similar to bonds (titoli simili alle obbligazioni) (i) issued, inter alia, by companies with shares listed on an EU or EEA regulated market or multilateral trading facility, or in case of issuers whose shares are not listed therein (ii) listed in the aforesaid EU or EEA regulated market or multilateral trading facility or (iii) held by "qualified investors" pursuant to Article 100 of the Legislative Decree No. 58 of 24 February 1998.

For these purposes, debentures similar to bonds are defined as debentures that incorporate an unconditional obligation to pay, at redemption, an amount not less than their principal amount (whether or not providing for interim payments) that do not give any right to directly or indirectly participate in the management of the relevant Issuer(s) or of the business in relation to which they are issued nor any type of control on such management and that do not provide for a remuneration which is entirely linked to the profits of the issuer, or other companies belonging to the same group or to the business in respect of which the securities have been issued.

Where an Italian resident Securityholder is (i) an individual not engaged in an entrepreneurial activity to which the relevant Securities are connected, (ii) a non-commercial partnership pursuant to Article 5 of the Presidential Decree No. 917 of 22 December 1986 ("TUIR") (i.e. partnership other than a società in nome collettivo or società in accomandita semplice or similar partnership), (iii) a non-commercial private or public institution, or (iv) an investor exempt from Italian corporate income taxation, interest, premium and other income relating to Securities, accrued during the relevant holding period, are subject to tax, referred to as "imposta sostitutiva", levied at the rate of 26 per cent. All the above categories are qualified as "net recipients" (unless the Securityholders referred to under (i), (ii) and (iii) above have entrusted the management of their financial assets, including the Securities, to an authorised intermediary and have opted for the so called "risparmio gestito" regime according to Article 7 of Legislative Decree No. 461 of 21 November 1997, as amended ("Decree No. 461") – see "Capital Gains Tax" below). In the event that Securityholders described under (i), (ii) and (iii) above are engaged in an entrepreneurial activity to which the relevant Securities are connected, the imposta sostitutiva applies as a provisional tax.

Subject to certain limitations and requirements (including a minimum holding period), Italian resident individuals not acting in connection with an entrepreneurial activity or social security entities pursuant to Legislative Decree No. 509 of 30 June 1994 and Legislative Decree No. 103 of 10 February 1996 may be exempt from any income taxation, including the imposta sostitutiva, on interest, premium and other income relating to the Securities if the Securities are included in a long-term individual savings account (piano di risparmio a lungo termine) that meets the requirements set forth by Italian law, as amended and supplemented from time to time.

Where an Italian resident Securityholder is a company or similar commercial entity pursuant to Article 73 of TUIR or a permanent establishment in Italy of a foreign company to which Securities are effectively connected and such Securities are deposited with an authorised intermediary, interest, premium and other income from such Securities will not be subject to imposta sostitutiva, but must be included in the relevant Securityholder's income tax return and are therefore subject to general Italian corporate taxation ("IRES") and, in certain circumstances, depending on the "status" of the Securityholder, also to the regional tax on productive activities ("IRAP").

Under the regime provided by Law Decree No. 351 of 25 September 2001, converted into Law No. 410 of 23 November 2001, Law Decree No. 78 of 31 May 2010, converted into Law No. 122 of 30 July 2010 and Legislative Decree No. 44 of 4 March 2014, all as amended, Italian real estate investment funds established pursuant to Article 37 of Legislative Decree No. 58 of 24 February 1998, as amended and supplemented, and Article 14-bis of Law No. 86 of 25 January 1994 and Italian real estate SICAFs (the "Real Estate Funds") are subject neither to imposta sostitutiva nor to any other income tax in the hands of the Real Estate Funds PROVIDED THAT the Securities are timely deposited directly or indirectly with an authorised intermediary. A withholding tax may apply in certain circumstances at the rate of up to 26 per cent. (the "Real Estate Fund Tax") on distributions made by a Real Estate Fund and, in certain cases, a tax transparency regime may apply in respect of certain categories of investors in a Real Estate Fund owning more than 5 per cent. of the Real Estate Fund's units or shares.

If the investor is resident in Italy and is an open-ended or closed-ended investment fund (other than a Real Estate Fund) a SICAF (an investment company with fixed share capital other than a Real Estate Fund) or a SICAV (an investment company with variable capital) established in Italy (the "Fund") and either (i) the Fund or (ii) its manager is subject to the supervision of a regulatory authority, and the relevant Securities are deposited with an authorised intermediary, interest, premium and other income accrued during the holding period on such Securities will not be subject to imposta sostitutiva, but must be included in the management results of the Fund. The Fund will not be subject to taxation on such results but a withholding tax of 26 per cent., will apply, in certain circumstances to distributions made in favour of unitholders or shareholders (the "Collective Investment Fund Tax").

Where an Italian resident Securityholder is a pension fund (subject to the regime provided for by article 17 of the Legislative Decree No. 252 of 5 December 2005) and Securities are deposited with an authorised intermediary, interest, premium and other income relating to such Securities and accrued during the holding period will not be subject to imposta sostitutiva, but must be included in the result of the relevant portfolio accrued at the end of the tax period, to be subject to a 20 per cent. substitute tax (the "Pension Fund Tax"). Subject to certain conditions (including minimum holding period requirement) and limitations, interest, premium and other income may be excluded from the taxable base of the 20 per cent. substitute tax pursuant to Article 1 (92) of Financial Act 2017, if the Securities are included in a long-term individual savings account (piano di risparmio a lungo termine) that meets the requirements set forth by Italian law, as subsequently amended and restated from time to time.

Pursuant to Decree No. 239, imposta sostitutiva is applied by banks, Società di intermediazione mobiliare ("SIMs"), fiduciary companies, Società di gestione del risparmio ("SGRs"), stockbrokers and other entities identified by a decree of the Ministry of Economics and Finance (each an "Intermediary") as subsequently amended and integrated.

An Intermediary to be entitled to apply the imposta sostitutiva must (i) be (a) resident in Italy or (b) a permanent establishment in Italy of a non-Italian resident financial intermediary or (c) an entity or a company not resident in Italy, acting through a system of centralised administration of securities and directly connected with the Department of Revenue of the Italian Ministry of Finance having appointed an Italian representative for the purposes of Decree No. 239; and (ii) intervene, in any way, in the collection of interest or in the transfer of Securities. For the purpose of the application of the imposta sostitutiva, a transfer of Securities includes any assignment or other act, either with or without consideration, which results in a change of the ownership of the relevant Securities or in a change of the Intermediary with which such Securities are deposited.

Where the Securities are not deposited with an Intermediary, the imposta sostitutiva is applied and withheld by any entity paying interest to a Securityholder. If interest, premium and other income on the Securities are not collected through an Intermediary or any entity paying interest and as such no imposta sostitutiva is levied, the Italian resident beneficial owners qualified as "net recipient" will be required to include interest, premium and other income in their yearly income tax return and subject them to a final substitute tax at a rate of 26 per cent.

Non-Italian Resident Securityholders

No Italian imposta sostitutiva is applied on payments of interest or premium relating to the Securities that qualify as obbligazioni or titoli similari alle obbligazioni to a non-Italian resident Securityholder not having a permanent establishment in Italy to which the Securities are affectively connected.

If the Securities are deposited with an Italian bank or other resident intermediary (or permanent establishment in Italy of foreign intermediary) or are sold through an Italian bank or other resident intermediary (or permanent establishment in Italy of foreign intermediary) or in case an Italian resident intermediary (or permanent establishment in Italy of foreign intermediary) intervenes in the payment of interest or premium on such Securities, to ensure payment of interest or premium without application of Italian taxation a non-Italian resident Securityholder may be required to produce to the Italian bank or other intermediary a self-declaration stating that he/she is not resident in Italy for tax purposes.

Capital Gains Tax

Capital Gains Tax – Italian Resident Securityholders

Any gain obtained from the sale, early redemption or redemption of Securities would be treated as part of the taxable income (and, in certain circumstances, depending on the "status" of the Securityholder, also as part of the net value of production for IRAP purposes) if realised by an Italian company or a similar commercial entity (including the Italian permanent establishment of foreign entities to which the relevant Securities are connected) or Italian resident individuals engaged in an entrepreneurial activity to which the relevant Securities are connected.

Where an Italian resident Securityholder is (i) an individual not holding Securities in connection with an entrepreneurial activity, (ii) a non-commercial partnership, (iii) a non-commercial private or public institution any capital gain realised by such Securityholder from the sale, early redemption or redemption of such Securities would be subject to an imposta sostitutiva, levied at the current rate of 26 per cent. Under some conditions and limitations, Securityholders may set off losses with gains.

Subject to certain limitations and requirements (including a minimum holding period), Italian resident individuals not engaged in an entrepreneurial activity or social security entities pursuant to Legislative Decree No. 509 of 30 June 1994 and Legislative Decree No. 103 of 10 February 1996 may be exempt from Italian capital gain taxes, including the imposta sostitutiva, on capital gains realised upon sale or redemption of the Securities, if the Securities are included in a long-term individual savings account (piano di risparmio a lungo termine) that meets the requirements set forth by Italian law, as subsequently amended and restated from time to time.

In respect of the application of the imposta sostitutiva, taxpayers under (i) to (iii) above may opt for one of the three regimes described below.

Under the "tax declaration" regime (regime della dichiarazione), which is the default regime for Securityholders under (i) to (iii) above, the imposta sostitutiva on capital gains will be chargeable, on a yearly cumulative basis, on all capital gains, net of any incurred capital loss, realised by the Italian resident Securityholders pursuant to all sales, early redemption or redemptions of the relevant Securities carried out during any given tax year. These Securityholders must indicate the overall capital gains realised in any tax year, net of any relevant incurred capital loss, in the annual tax return and pay imposta sostitutiva on such gains together with any balance of income tax due for such year. Capital losses in excess of capital gains may be carried forward against capital gains realised in any of the four succeeding tax years. As an alternative to the tax declaration regime, Italian resident individual Securityholders under (i) to (iii) above may elect to pay the imposta sostitutiva separately on capital gains realised on each sale, early redemption or redemption of the relevant Securities (the "risparmio amministrato" regime provided for by Article 6 of the Decree No. 461. Such separate taxation of capital gains is allowed subject to (i) Securities being deposited with Italian banks, SIMs or certain authorised financial intermediaries; and (ii) an express valid election for the risparmio amministrato regime being punctually made in writing by the relevant Securityholder. The depository is responsible for accounting for imposta sostitutiva in respect of capital gains realised on each sale, early redemption or redemption of Securities (as well as in respect of capital gains realised upon the revocation of its mandate), net of any incurred capital loss, and is required to pay the relevant amount to the Italian tax authorities on behalf of the taxpayer, deducting a corresponding amount from the proceeds to be credited to the Securityholder or using funds provided by the Securityholder for this purpose.

Under the risparmio amministrato regime, where a sale, early redemption or redemption of Securities results in a capital loss, such loss may be deducted from capital gains subsequently realised, within the same securities management, in the same tax year or in the following tax years up to the fourth. Under the risparmio amministrato regime, the Securityholder is not required to declare the capital gains in its annual tax return. Any capital gains realised or accrued by Italian Securityholders under (i) to (iii) above who have entrusted the management of their financial assets, including Securities, to an authorised intermediary and have validly opted for the so-called "risparmio gestito" regime (regime provided by Article 7 of Decree No. 461) will be included in the computation of the annual increase in value of the managed assets accrued, even if not realised, at year end, subject to a 26 per cent. substitute tax, to be paid by the managing authorised intermediary. Under the risparmio gestito regime, any depreciation of the managed assets accrued at year end may be carried forward against increase in value of the managed assets accrued in any of the four succeeding tax years. Under the risparmio gestito regime, the Securityholder is not required to declare the capital gains realised in its annual tax return.

Italian Real Estate Funds are not subject to any substitute tax nor to any other income tax in the hands of the Real Estate Fund, but subsequent distributions made in favour of unitholders or shareholders will be subject, in certain circumstances, to the Real Estate Fund Tax; in certain cases, a tax transparency regime may apply in respect of certain categories of investors in a Real Estate Fund owning more than 5 per cent. of the Real Estate Fund's units or shares.

Any capital gains realised by a Securityholder which is a Fund will be included in the result of the relevant portfolio accrued at the end of the tax period. The Fund will not be subject to taxation on such result, but the Collective Investment Fund Tax will apply under certain circumstances.

Any capital gains realised by a Securityholder which is an Italian pension fund (subject to the regime provided for by article 17 of the Legislative Decree No. 252 of 5 December 2005) will be included in the result of the relevant portfolio accrued at the end of the tax period, to be subject to the Pension Fund Tax. Subject to certain conditions (including minimum holding period requirement) and limitations, capital gains realised upon sale or redemption of the Securities may be excluded from the taxable base of the 20 per cent. substitute tax pursuant to Article 1 (92) of Financial Act 2017, if the Securities are included in a long-term individual savings account (piano di risparmio a lungo termine) that meets the requirements set forth by Italian law, as subsequently amended and restated from time to time.

Capital Gains Tax – Non-Italian Resident Securityholders

Capital gains realised by non-Italian resident Securityholders from the sale or redemption of Securities are not subject to Italian taxation, PROVIDED THAT the relevant Securities (i) are traded on regulated markets, or (ii) if not traded on regulated markets, are held outside Italy.

Moreover, even if the Securities are held in Italy, no Italian imposta sostitutiva applies on any capital gains realised upon sale for consideration or redemption of the Securities if the non-Italian resident beneficial owner of the Securities with no permanent establishment in Italy to which the Securities are effectively connected is resident for tax purposes in a State or territory which allows an adequate exchange of information with the Italian tax authorities and is listed in the Italian Ministerial Decree dated 4 September 1996 as amended and supplemented from time to time (last amendment being made by Italian Ministerial Decree dated 23 March 2017) (the "White List"). The same exemption applies where the beneficial owners of the Securities are (i) international entities or organisations established in accordance with international agreements ratified by Italy; (ii) certain foreign institutional investors established in countries included in the White List, even if they do not have the status of taxpayers in their own country of residence; or (iii) central banks or entities which manage, inter alia, the official reserves of a foreign State. Under these circumstances, if non-Italian residents without a permanent establishment in Italy to which the Securities are effectively connected elect for the risparmio gestito or are subject to the risparmio amministrato, exemption from Italian capital gains tax will apply upon condition that they provide in time with the authorised financial intermediary an appropriate self-declaration (autocertificazione) stating that they meet the requirement indicated above. Additional statements may be required for non-Italian resident Securityholders who are institutional investors.

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

Non-Italian resident individuals or entities without a permanent establishment in Italy to which the Securities are connected that may benefit from a double taxation treaty with the Republic of Italy providing that capital gains realised upon the sale or redemption of Securities are to be taxed only in the country of tax residence of the recipient, will not be subject to the imposta sostitutiva in the Republic of Italy on any capital gains realised upon the sale or redemption of Securities. In such a case, in order to benefit from this exemption from Italian taxation on capital gains, non-Italian resident Securityholders who hold the Securities with an Italian authorised financial intermediary and elect to be subject to the risparmio gestito or are subject to the risparmio amministrato, may be required to produce in due time to the Italian authorised financial intermediary appropriate documents which include, inter alia, a statement from the competent tax authorities of the country of residence.

Please note that for a non-Italian resident, the risparmio amministrato shall automatically apply, unless it is expressly waived, where the Securities are deposited in custody or administration with an Italian resident authorised financial intermediary or permanent establishment in the Republic of Italy of a foreign intermediary.

Payments made by a non-resident guarantor

With respect to payments made to Italian resident Securityholders by a non-Italian resident guarantor, in accordance with one interpretation of Italian tax law, any such payment made by the Italian non-resident guarantor could be treated, in certain circumstances, as a payment made by the Issuer(s) and would thus be subject to the tax regime described in the following paragraphs of this section.

Securities which are Notes or Certificates issued by CGMHI will be guaranteed by the CGMHI Guarantor pursuant to the CGMHI Deed of Guarantee. Securities issued by CGMFL will be guaranteed by the CGMFL Guarantor pursuant to the CGMFL Deed of Guarantee. Securities issued by Citigroup Inc will not be guaranteed by any entity.

Securities which do not provide for full reimbursement of the issue price (at maturity or upon early redemption)

Italian-resident Securityholders

In case of Securities representing debt instruments implying a "use of capital" do not guarantee the total reimbursement of the principal, under Italian tax law they should qualify as "atypical securities" (titoli atipici) pursuant to Law Decree No. 512 of 30 September 1983 ("Decree No. 512") and payments in respect of such Securities received by Italian Securityholders would be subject to the following regime:

- (a) if the Securities are placed (collocati) in Italy, payments made to individual Securityholder holding the Securities not in connection with an entrepreneurial activity will be subject to a 26 per cent. final withholding tax. This withholding tax is levied by the entrusted Italian resident bank or financial intermediary, if any, that is involved in the collection of payments on the Securities, in the repurchase or in the transfer of the Securities;
- (b) if the Securities are not placed (collocati) in Italy or in any case where payments on the Securities are not received through an entrusted Italian resident bank or financial intermediary (that is involved in the collection of payments on the Securities, in the repurchase or in the transfer thereof) and no withholding tax is levied, the individual beneficial owners will be required to declare the payments in their income tax return and subject them to a final substitute tax at a rate of 26 per cent. The Italian individual Securityholder may elect instead to pay ordinary IRPEF at the progressive rates applicable to them in respect of the payments; if so, the Securityholder should generally benefit from a tax credit for withholding taxes applied outside Italy, if any.

Subject to certain limitations and requirements (including a minimum holding period), Italian resident individuals not acting in connection with an entrepreneurial activity or social security entities pursuant to Legislative Decree No. 509 of 30 June 1994 and Legislative Decree No. 103 of 10 February 1996 may be exempt from any income taxation, including the withholding tax on interest, premium and other income relating to the Securities that are classified as atypical securities, if the Securities are included in a long-term individual savings account (piano di risparmio a lungo termine) that meets the requirements set forth by Italian law, as subsequently amended and restated from time to time.

The 26 per cent. withholding tax does not apply to payments made to an Italian resident Securityholder which is (i) an Italian resident commercial partnership, (ii) an Italian resident company or a similar Italian resident commercial entity (including the Italian permanent establishment of a foreign entity to which the Securities are effectively connected) and (iii) a commercial private or public institution. In particular, in such cases, payments must be included in the relevant Securityholder's ordinary Italian taxable business taxation and the Securityholders are generally entitled to benefit from tax credit for any withholding tax applied outside Italy.

Non-Italian Resident Securityholders

No Italian withholding tax is applied on payments of interest or premium relating to the Securities issued by the issuer that qualify as "atypical securities" (titoli atipici) to a non-Italian resident Securityholder not having a permanent establishment in Italy to which the Securities are affectively connected.

If the Securities are deposited with an Italian bank or other resident intermediary (or permanent establishment in Italy of foreign intermediary) or are sold through an Italian bank or other resident intermediary (or permanent establishment in Italy of foreign intermediary) or in case an Italian resident intermediary (or permanent establishment in Italy of foreign intermediary) intervenes in the payment of interest or premium on such Securities, to ensure payment of interest or premium without application of Italian taxation a non-Italian resident Securityholder may be required to produce to the Italian bank or other intermediary a self-declaration stating that he/she is not resident in Italy for tax purposes.

Securities representing derivative financial instruments or bundles of derivative financial instruments

Italian-resident Securityholders

Payments in respect of Securities qualifying as securitised derivative financial instruments received by Italian investors (not engaged in a commercial activity (esercizio di attività commerciali) to which the Securities are connected) as well as capital gains realised by such Italian investors on any sale or transfer for consideration of the Securities or redemption thereof are subject to a 26 per cent. capital gain tax, which applies under the "tax declaration" regime (regime della dichiarazione), the risparmio amministrato tax regime or the risparmio gestito tax regime according to the same rules described above under the section "Capital Gains Tax" above.

Payments in respect of Securities qualifying as securitised derivative financial instruments received by Italian investors which carry out commercial activities are not subject to the 26 per cent. capital gain tax, but are included in the relevant Securityholder's ordinary Italian taxable business taxation and the Holders are generally entitled to benefit from tax credit for any capital gain tax applied outside Italy.

Non-Italian Resident Securityholders

Capital gains realised by non-Italian-resident Securityholders without a permanent establishment in Italy to which the Securities are effectively connected from the sale, redemption or settlement of Securities executed on regulated markets in Italy or abroad are not subject to Italian taxation, regardless of whether the Securities are held in Italy. In such a case, in order to benefit from this exemption from Italian taxation on capital gains, non-Italian resident Securityholders who hold the Securities with an Italian authorised financial intermediary and elect to be subject to the risparmio amministrato tax regime or are subject to the risparmio gestito regime, may be required to produce in due time to the Italian authorised financial intermediary an appropriate self-declaration (autocertificazione) that they are not resident in Italy for tax purposes.

Capital gains realised by non-Italian resident Securityholders without a permanent establishment in Italy to which the Securities are effectively connected from the sale or redemption of Securities not executed on regulated markets issued by an Italian or non-Italian resident issuer may in certain circumstances be taxable in Italy, if the Securities are held in Italy. In that case, the tax regime applicable to Securities representing derivative financial instruments or bundles of derivative financial instruments is the same described above under the caption "Capital Gains Tax – Non-Italian Resident Securityholders".

Securities that cannot be qualified as securitised derivative financial instruments, may qualify as "atypical securities" (titoli atipici), whose tax regime is described under section "Securities representing debt instruments implying a "use of capital" - Securities which do not provide for full reimbursement of the issue price (at maturity or settlement or upon early redemption)" above.

Inheritance and gift taxes

Pursuant to Law Decree No. 262 of 3 October 2006, converted into Law No. 286 of 24 November 2006, as subsequently amended, the transfers of any valuable asset (including shares, bonds or other securities) as a result of death or donation are taxed as follows:

- (a) transfers in favour of spouses and direct descendants or direct ancestors are subject to an inheritance and gift tax applied at a rate of 4 per cent. on the value of the inheritance or the gift exceeding, for each beneficiary, EUR1,000,000;
- (b) transfers in favour of relatives to the fourth degree or relatives-in-law to the third degree, are subject to an inheritance and gift tax applied at a rate of 6 per cent. on the entire value of the inheritance or the gift. Transfers in favour of brothers/sisters are subject to the 6 per cent. inheritance and gift tax on the value of the inheritance or the gift exceeding, for each beneficiary, EUR100,000; and
- (c) any other transfer is, in principle, subject to an inheritance and gift tax applied at a rate of 8 per cent. on the entire value of the inheritance or the gift.

If the transfer is made in favour of persons with severe disabilities, the tax is levied at the rate mentioned in paragraphs (a), (b) and (c) above on the value exceeding, for each beneficiary, EUR1,500,000.

The mortis causa transfer of financial instruments included in a long-term savings account (piano di risparmio a lungo termine), that meets the requirements set forth by Italian law, as subsequently amended and restated from time to time, are exempt from inheritance taxes.

Transfer Tax

Contracts relating to the transfer of securities are subject to the registration tax as follows: (i) public deeds and notarised deeds are subject to fixed registration tax at a rate of EUR200; (ii) private deeds are subject to registration tax only in case of use (caso d'uso), explicit reference (enunciazione) or voluntary registration.

Stamp duty

Pursuant to Article 19(1) of Law Decree No. 201 of 6 December 2011 (the "Decree No. 201"), a proportional stamp duty applies on an annual basis to the periodic reporting communications sent by financial intermediaries to their clients for the Securities deposited in Italy. The stamp duty applies at a rate of 0.2 per cent. and cannot exceed EUR14,000, for taxpayers different from individuals; this stamp duty is determined on the basis of the market value or - if no market value figure is available - the nominal value or redemption or settlement amount of the Securities held.

Based on the wording of the law and the implementing decree issued by the Italian Ministry of Economy on 24 May 2012, the stamp duty applies to any investor who is a client (as defined in the regulations issued by the Bank of Italy on 20 June 2021) of an entity that exercises in any form a banking, financial or insurance activity within the Italian territory. The communication is deemed to be sent to the customers at least once a year, even for instruments for which it is not mandatory.

As clarified by resolution No. 20 of 4 February 2025 of the Italian tax authority, stamp duty applies both to Italian resident Securityholders and to non-Italian resident Securityholders, to the extent that the securities are held with an Italian based financial intermediary. Conversely, if the securities are held directly by the Securityholders outside Italy, stamp duty does not apply, and instead, wealth tax is applicable exclusively to Italian resident Securityholders (see "Wealth Tax on securities deposited abroad" below).

Wealth Tax on securities deposited abroad

Pursuant to Article 19(18) of Decree No. 201, Italian resident individuals holding the Securities outside the Italian territory are required to pay an additional tax at a rate of 0.2 per cent. ("IVAFE"). Starting from 2020, Law No. 160 of 27 December 2019 has provided for the extension of the application scope of IVAFE to Italian resident non-commercial entities, simple partnership and equivalent entities, in addition to Italian resident individuals. The IVAFE rate is increased to 0.40 per cent. in case of financial products held in states or territories listed as having a privileged tax regime under Ministerial Decree of 4 May 1999.

This tax is calculated on the market value of the Securities at the end of the relevant year or, if no market value figure is available, the nominal value or the redemption or settlement value of such Securities held outside the Italian territory or where the nominal or redemption or settlement values cannot be determined, on the purchase value of the Securities. The maximum wealth tax amount due is set at EUR14,000 per year for taxpayers other than individuals. Taxpayers are entitled to an Italian tax credit equivalent to the amount of wealth taxes paid in the State where the financial assets are held (up to an amount equal to the IVAFE due). The financial assets held abroad are excluded from the scope of the wealth tax if administered by Italian financial intermediaries pursuant to an administration agreement.

Tax monitoring obligations

Italian resident individuals (and certain other entities) are required to report in their yearly income tax return, according to Law Decree No. 167 of 28 June 1990, converted into law by Law No. 227 of 4 August 1990, as amended from time to time, for tax monitoring purposes, the amount of Securities held abroad (or beneficially owned abroad under Italian anti-money laundering provisions). This also applies in the case that at the end of the tax year, Securities are no longer held by the above Italian resident individuals and entities.

However, the above reporting obligation is not required with respect to Securities deposited for management with qualified Italian financial intermediaries and with respect to contracts entered into through their intervention, PROVIDED THAT the same intermediaries apply a withholding tax or imposta sostitutiva on any income derived from the Securities.

NORWEGIAN TAXATION

Below is a summary of certain Norwegian tax considerations related to the purchase, holding and disposal of the Securities. The summary regarding Norwegian taxation is based on Norwegian laws, rules and regulations as they exist in force as of the date of this Base Prospectus. Such laws, rules and regulations may be subject to changes after this date possibly on a retroactive basis. The summary does not address tax issues in other jurisdictions than Norway.

The following summary is of a general nature and does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all the Norwegian tax considerations that may be relevant for a decision to acquire, own or dispose of Securities. Specific tax consequences may occur for different categories of holders, e.g. if the holder ceases to be tax resident in Norway etc..

Norwegian tax legislation does not currently include statutory legislation relating specifically to Securities. Instead, the tax treatment must be derived from general tax rules and principles applicable to capital income and capital gains. Norwegian tax law is to a large extent based on the substance-over-form principle. If the applicable Issue Terms includes conditions which are common to equity instruments and the relevant Securities, after an overall assessment, have characteristics closer to equity instruments rather than debt, the economic reality might overrule the formalities for income tax purposes. Thus the applicable Issue Terms may cause the taxation of the relevant Securities to depart from the tax treatment described in this summary. In the following, it is assumed that the Securities do not qualify as equity instruments for income tax purposes.

The summary is solely related to holders of Securities who are resident in Norway for tax purposes ("Norwegian holders"). However, companies incorporated and resident abroad are liable to tax in Norway on distribution and gains from Securities in the same manner as Norwegian resident companies, to the extent the Securities are effectively connected to a business carried out in or managed from Norway.

Due to the general nature of this summary, potential investors are advised to consult with and rely on their own tax advisers.

Taxation on Distribution to the holder

Norwegian holders, both natural persons and corporations, are liable to tax in Norway on payments in respect of interest or similar payments on Securities classified as debentures for Norwegian tax purposes. The tax rate is currently 22 per cent.. For financial service companies subject to the Norwegian financial tax (e.g. banks, insurance companies, investment companies etc.) the tax rate is 25 per cent..

If the Securities are not listed in a regulated market within six months following issuance, Norwegian Holders who are natural persons resident in Norway for tax purposes will be subject to additional Norwegian taxes on the interest received. The basis for the additional taxation is calculated by taking the actual accrued interest and first reducing it by the ordinary income tax, which is the accrued interest amount multiplied by the tax rate for ordinary income. After this reduction, a deduction for the risk-free interest rate (Nw. skjemingsfradrag) is applied. The resulting amount is the interest income subject to additional taxation. This amount is then adjusted upwards by a factor of 1.72.

Return on the Securities is taxed on accrual basis, i.e. regardless of when the return is actually paid.

If a Security is repaid with a higher amount than the price at which it was issued (discounted bond), the excess amount shall be a part of the computation of the gain or loss when the Security is sold or redeemed.

Taxation on sale and redemption or settlement of Securities

Norwegian holders, both natural persons and corporations, are taxable in Norway in respect of capital gains on the sale and redemption or settlement of Securities and have a corresponding right to deduct losses that arise from such redemption or settlement or realisation. The tax liability applies irrespective of how long the Securities have been owned and the number of Securities that have been redeemed or realised.

Any capital gain or loss is computed as the difference between the amount received by the holder on realisation and the cost price for the Securities. The cost price is equal to the price for which the holder acquired the Securities. Costs incurred in connection with the acquisition, redemption or realisation of the Security may be deducted from the Norwegian holder's taxable ordinary income in the year of redemption, settlement or realisation.

Gains are taxable as ordinary income in the year of sale, redemption or settlement, and losses can be deducted from ordinary income in the year of sale, redemption or settlement. The tax rate for ordinary income is currently 22 per cent..

Norwegian Withholding Tax

Withholding tax will be applied on interest payments from entities with full or limited tax liability to Norway, to the extent the recipients is a related party to the payor and tax resident in a low-tax jurisdiction.

Norwegian withholding tax should however not apply to payments in respect of interest or similar payments on the Securities or on capital gains on sale, redemption or settlement of the Securities, as the Issuer should not be an entity with full or limited tax liability to Norway.

Net wealth tax

Norwegian holders organised as limited liability companies and similar entities are not subject to net wealth taxation in Norway.

Norwegian holders that are natural persons are subject to net wealth taxation in Norway. Securities are included as part of the taxable base for this purpose. The value for assessment purposes for listed securities is the quoted value on 1 January in the year of assessment. Unlisted securities are generally valued at their estimated value on 1 January in the assessment year. The maximum aggregate rate of net wealth tax (both state and municipality net wealth tax) is currently 1 per cent of net wealth exceeding NOK1,700,000. For net wealth exceeding NOK20,000,000, the marginal net wealth tax rate is 1.1 per cent.

Stamp duty

There is no stamp duty or other charges in Norway on the purchase, redemption, settlement or realisation of the Securities.

Foreign taxes

Income taxes or capital gains taxes payable by Norwegian holders in other jurisdictions, or withholding tax payable on redemption or settlement amounts in respect of the Securities, may be deducted when calculating the Norwegian tax payable on the same income. The deduction is limited, however, to the corresponding amount of Norwegian tax applicable. The right for both Norwegian and other jurisdictions to tax Norwegian holders directly or through the application of withholding taxes may be limited by an applicable tax treaty.

Inheritance tax

Norway does not currently impose inheritance tax or similar tax on inheritance or gifts. However, an heir who has inherited Securities will acquire the donor's tax input value of the Securities based on principles of continuity and will be liable to pay tax on any increase in value of the Securities at the time of the heir's realisation of the Securities.

POLISH TAXATION

The following is a discussion of certain Polish tax considerations relevant to an investor resident in Poland or which is otherwise subject to Polish taxation. This statement should not be deemed to be tax advice. It is based on Polish tax laws and, as its interpretation refers to the position as at the date of this Base Prospectus, it may thus be subject to change, including a change with retroactive effect. This description does not purport to be complete with respect to all tax information that may be relevant to investors due to their individual circumstances. Prospective purchasers of Securities are advised to consult their professional tax advisor regarding the tax consequences of the purchase, ownership, disposal, redemption, settlement or transfer without consideration of Securities.

Taxation of a Polish tax resident individual

Under Art. 3.1 of the Personal Income Tax Act dated 26 July 1991 (the "PIT Act"), natural persons, if residing in the Republic of Poland, are liable for tax on their total income (revenue) irrespective of the location of the sources of revenue (unlimited obligation to pay tax).

Under Art. 3.1a of the PIT Act, a Polish tax resident individual is a natural person who (i) has their centre of personal or business interests located in Poland or (ii) stays in Poland for longer than 183 days in a year, unless any relevant tax treaty dictates otherwise.

According to Art. 17 of the PIT Act, income from the Securities should be treated as money capital (kapitały pieniężne) source of income, which includes (i) interest (discount) from securities (Art. 17.1.3 of the PIT Act), (ii) redemption or settlement of Securities generating periodical proceeds by the issuer (wykup przez emitenta obligacji, od których są należne świadczenia okresowe, the "Redemption") (Art. 17.1.3a of the PIT Act) and (iii) disposal of securities for remuneration (Art. 17.1.6.a of the PIT Act).

Interest income and income from the Redemption

Under Art. 30a.1.2 and Art. 30a.1.2a of the PIT Act interest income and income from the issuer's redemption or settlement of Securities on which periodic benefits are due is subject to a 19 per cent. flat rate tax.

According to Art. 30a.7 of the PIT Act, interest income, including discount, from Securities and income from Redemption by a Polish tax resident individual does not cumulate with general income subject to the progressive tax rate but under Art. 30a.1.2 of the PIT Act (with respect to interest and discount) and Art. 30a.1.2a (with respect to income from Redemption) is subject to tax at a flat rate of 19 per cent.

Under Art. 24.24 of the PIT Act, the income from Redemption is calculated as a difference between the amount obtained from the redemption or settlement of Securities together with proceeds for the last period before the repurchase of the Securities and the expenditures incurred for acquisition of the Securities on the primary or secondary market by the taxpayer or its testator. Amounts of interest paid by the taxpayer or the testator upon acquisition of the Securities in the part in which such interest is free of tax do not constitute expenses for acquisition of the Securities for the purposes of calculation of income from Redemption.

Under Art. 30a.9 of the PIT Act, withholding tax incurred outside Poland (including countries which have not concluded a tax treaty with Poland), up to an amount equal to the tax paid abroad, but not higher than 19 per cent. tax on the interest amount, could be deducted from the Polish tax liability. Particular double tax treaties can provide other methods of withholding tax settlements.

Under Article 41.4 of the PIT Act, the payer of interest or proceeds from Redemption, other than an individual not acting within the scope of their business activity, is obliged to collect flat-rate income tax on any payment of interest or Redemption proceeds.

Under Art. 41.4d of the PIT Act, the entities operating securities accounts for individuals, acting as tax remitters, should withhold this interest (discount) and Redemption income if such income (revenue) has been earned in Poland and is connected with securities registered in said accounts, and the interest payment to the individual (the taxpayer) is made through said entities. These rules should also apply to the entities indicated in Art. 3.2 of the CIT Act (non-residents), to the extent they conduct their business activity through a foreign establishment located within the territory of Poland, if the account on which given securities are recorded is connected with the activity of that establishment. Consequently, foreign entities that do not operate through a Polish permanent establishment, e.g. foreign investment firms, not acting through Polish permanent establishments, should not be obliged to withhold the tax.

There are no regulations defining in which cases income earned (revenue) by a Polish tax resident should be considered income (revenue) earned in Poland. However, we can expect those cases to be analogous to those of non-residents. Pursuant to Art. 3.2b of the PIT Act, income (revenues) earned in the Republic of Poland by non-residents shall include in particular income (revenues) from:

1. work performed in the Republic of Poland based on a service relationship, employment relationship, outwork system and co-operative employment relationship irrespective of the place where remuneration is paid;
2. activity performed in person in the Republic of Poland irrespective of the place where remuneration is paid;
3. economic activity pursued in the Republic of Poland, including through a foreign establishment located in the Republic of Poland;
4. immovable property located in the Republic of Poland or rights to such property, including from its disposal in whole or in part, or from disposal of any rights to such property;
5. securities and derivatives other than securities, admitted to public trading in the Republic of Poland as part of the regulated stock exchange market, including those obtained from the disposal of these securities or derivatives, or the exercise of rights resulting from them;
 - 5.1 redemption, settlement, repurchase, buy-out and otherwise annihilation of participation titles in capital funds established on the basis of the provisions in force in the Republic of Poland and sale of these participation titles for a fee;
6. the transfer of ownership of shares in a company, of all rights and obligations in a partnership without legal personality, or participation in an investment fund, a collective investment undertaking, or other legal entity and rights of similar character or from receivables being a consequence of holding those shares, rights and obligations, participation or rights, if at least 50 per cent. of the value of assets of this company, partnership, investment fund, collective investment undertaking or legal entity is constituted, directly or indirectly, by immovable properties located in the Republic of Poland, or rights to such immovable properties;
7. the transfer of ownership of shares, all rights and obligations, participation or similar rights in a real estate company (as defined in the PIT Act);
8. the receivables settled, including receivables put at disposal, paid out or deducted, by natural persons, legal persons, or organisational units without legal personality, having their place of residence, registered office, or management board in the Republic of Poland, irrespective of the place of concluding and performing the agreement and the income (revenue) referred to in this point is considered to be the revenue listed in Art. 29.1 of the PIT Act, if they do not constitute income (revenue) referred to in points (i)-(vii) above; Art. 29.1 of the PIT Act lists, among others, interest income other than those mentioned in Art. 30a.1 of the PIT Act (which, in turn, refers to interest and discount on securities and income from Redemption); and
9. unrealised gains as referred to in the exit tax regulations.

The above list is not exhaustive; therefore, the tax authorities may also consider that income (revenues) not listed above is sourced in Poland.

Given the above, each situation should be analysed to determine whether interest earned by a Polish tax resident individual from the Securities is considered to be income sourced in Poland and whether the entity operating the securities account for the individual will withhold the tax. Since the Issuer(s) is not a Polish entity, as a rule, interest from the Securities should not be considered as earned in the territory of Poland, unless specific situation occurs (e.g. the Securities are admitted to public trading in Poland).

It should not be expected that the Issuer(s) will collect the Polish withholding tax.

According to Article 45.3b and Art. 45.1 of the PIT Act, if the tax is not withheld, the individual is obliged to settle the tax themselves in their annual tax return. Under Art. 45.1 of the PIT Act, the annual tax return should be submitted by 30 April of the following year.

Separate, specific rules apply to income from interest and from Redemption on securities held in Polish omnibus accounts (within the meaning of the provisions of the Act on Trading in Financial Instruments, hereinafter "Omnibus Accounts"). Under Art. 41.10 of the PIT Act, insofar as securities registered in Omnibus Accounts are concerned, the entities operating Omnibus Accounts through which the amounts due are paid are liable to withhold the flat-rate income tax on such income. The tax is charged on the day of placing the amounts due at the disposal of the Omnibus Account holder. This rule also applies to remitters who are payers of corporate income tax and are subject to limited tax liability in Poland, to the extent they conduct their business through a foreign establishment and it is to that establishment's operations that the securities account is linked.

Additionally, under Art. 30a.2a of the PIT Act, with respect to income (revenue) from interest and Redemption transferred to taxpayers holding rights attached to securities (including the Securities referred to herein) registered in Omnibus Accounts whose identity has not been revealed to the tax remitter in accordance with the Act on Trading in Financial Instruments, a 19 per cent. flat-rate tax is withheld by the tax remitter from the aggregate income (revenue) released for the benefit of all such taxpayers through the Omnibus Account holder. These rules should also apply to the entities indicated in Art. 3.2. of the CIT Act to the extent that they conduct business activity through a foreign establishment located within the territory of Poland, if the account on which given securities are recorded is connected with the activity of that establishment. Consequently, foreign entities that do not operate through a Polish permanent establishment, e.g. foreign investment firms not acting through Polish permanent establishments, should not be obliged to withhold the tax.

Under Art. 45.3c of the PIT Act, taxpayers are obliged to disclose the amount of income (revenue) on interest (discount) and Redemption on securities (including the Securities referred to herein) in the annual tax return if the Securities were registered in Omnibus Account and the taxpayer's identity was not revealed to the tax remitter.

Under Art. 30a.9 of the PIT Act, withholding tax incurred outside Poland (including countries which have not concluded a tax treaty with Poland), up to an amount equal to the tax paid abroad, but not higher than 19 per cent. tax on the interest amount, could be deducted from the Polish tax liability. Double tax treaties can provide other methods of withholding tax settlements.

Income from the Securities other than interest

Income other than interest, including income from transfer of Securities against a consideration, derived by a Polish tax resident individual from financial instruments, such as the Securities, held as non-business assets, qualify as capital gains according to Article 17 of the PIT Act. Such income does not cumulate with the general income subject to the progressive tax scale but is subject to a 19 per cent. flat rate tax. Under Art. 30b.2. of the PIT Act the income from disposal of securities is calculated as the difference between the sum of revenues from a transfer of securities against a consideration and tax deductible costs, calculated on the basis of the relevant provisions of the PIT Act under Art. 30b.2. of the PIT Act. Based on Art. 17.2 and Art. 19.1 of the PIT Act, if the price expressed in the contract without a valid reason significantly deviates from the market value, the amount of income is determined by the tax authority or fiscal control authority in the amount of the market value.

The taxpayer itself is obliged to settle the tax on the transfer of securities (including the Securities) against a consideration. Taxpayers should prepare their annual tax return by the end of April of the year following the tax year in which the income was earned. No tax or tax advances are withheld by the person making the payments.

Furthermore, capital gains are subject to a 4 per cent. solidarity levy calculated on the surplus of various incomes above PLN 1 million in total. The levy must be calculated and settled by the individuals themselves.

In principle, if an individual holds the Securities as a business asset in accordance with art. 30b.4 of the PIT Act, the income should be taxed the same way as other business income taxed in accordance with Art. 30c or Art.27 of the PIT Act. This will either be tax at 19 per cent. rate or the 12 per cent. to 32 per cent. progressive tax rate depending upon the choice and the meeting of certain conditions, and the tax should be settled by the individuals themselves.

Furthermore, business income is subject to a 4 per cent. solidarity levy calculated on the surplus of various incomes above PLN 1 million in total. The levy must be calculated and settled by the individuals themselves.

Taxation of a Polish tax resident corporate income taxpayer

Under Art. 3.1 of the Corporate Income Tax Act dated 15 February 1992 (the "CIT Act") the entire income of taxpayers who have their registered office or management in Poland is subject to tax obligation in Poland, irrespective of where the income is earned.

According to Art. 3.1a of the CIT Act, a taxpayer has a place of management in the territory of the Republic of Poland, inter alia, when the current affairs of this taxpayer are conducted in an organised and continuous manner on the territory of the Republic of Poland, based in particular on:

- (a) an agreement, decision, court ruling or other act regulating the establishment or functioning of the taxpayer; or
- (b) powers of attorney; or
- (c) Affiliations.

Income (revenue) from the Securities, both on account of interest/discount and other income, including transfer of securities against a consideration, earned by a Polish tax resident corporate income taxpayer whose entire income is subject to tax liability in Poland, is subject to income tax following the same general principles as those which apply to any other income received from business activity within the same source of income.

As a rule, for Polish income tax purposes, interest is recognised as revenue on a cash basis, i.e. when it is received and not when it has accrued. Income from a transfer of securities against a consideration is in principle their value expressed in the price specified in the contract. According to Art. 14 of the CIT Act, if the price expressed in the contract, without a valid reason, significantly deviates from the market value, the revenue amount is determined by the tax authority in the amount of the market value. In the case of income from the transfer of securities against a consideration, tax deductible costs are generally recognised when the corresponding revenue has been achieved. The taxpayer itself (without the remitter's participation) settles income tax on interest/discount and on the transfer of securities against a consideration, which is settled along with other income from the taxpayer's business activity within the same source of income.

Regarding the proper source of revenue, in principle, the income (revenue) from the Securities, including their transfer against a consideration, is combined with revenues from capital gains (Art. 7b.1 of the CIT Act). In the case of insurers, banks and some other entities (financial institutions), this revenue is included in revenues other than revenues from capital gains (Art. 7b (2) of the CIT Act).

The appropriate tax rate is the same as the tax rate applicable to business activity, i.e. 19 per cent. for a regular corporate income taxpayer or 9 per cent. for small and new taxpayers, i.e. taxpayers with revenues in the tax year not exceeding EUR 2 million (with certain exceptions listed in Art. 19.1a-1e of the CIT Act), taking into consideration the appropriate source of income (the lower rate does not apply to incomes classified as capital incomes – Art. 7b of the CIT Act).

Although, Polish corporate income taxpayers should not be subject to Polish withholding tax, such tax may be withheld, under specific rules applying to interest income on securities held in Omnibus Accounts, under Art. 26.2a of the CIT Act, for income (revenue) from interest transferred to taxpayers holding rights attached to securities registered in Omnibus Accounts whose identity has not been revealed to the tax remitter in accordance with the Act on Trading in Financial Instruments, a 20 per cent. flat-rate tax is withheld by the tax remitter from the aggregate income (revenue) released for the benefit of all such taxpayers through the Omnibus Account holder. If such tax is withheld for a Polish tax resident corporate income taxpayer, to receive a refund of such tax, the entity should contact its tax advisor.

Any withholding tax incurred outside Poland (including countries which have not concluded any tax treaty with Poland), up to an amount equal to the tax paid abroad, but not higher than the tax calculated in accordance with the applicable domestic tax rate, can be deducted from the Polish tax liability. Double tax treaties can provide other methods of withholding tax settlements.

Securities held by a non-Polish tax resident (natural person or corporation)

Under Art. 3.2a of the PIT Act, natural persons, if they do not reside in Poland, are liable to pay tax only on income (revenue) earned in Poland (limited obligation to pay tax).

Under Art. 3.2 of the CIT Act, in the case of taxpayers who do not have their registered office or management in Poland, only the income they earn in Poland is subject to tax obligation in Poland.

Non-Polish residents are subject to Polish income tax only with respect to their income earned in Poland. Under Art. 3.3 of the CIT Act, income (revenues) earned in the Republic of Poland by non-residents shall include in particular income (revenues) from:

1. all types of activity pursued in the Republic of Poland, including through a foreign establishment located in the Republic of Poland;
2. immovable property located in the Republic of Poland or rights to such property, including from its disposal in whole or in part, or from the disposal of any rights to such property;
3. securities and derivatives other than securities, admitted to public trading in the Republic of Poland as part of the regulated stock exchange market, including those obtained from the disposal of these securities or derivatives, or the exercise of rights resulting from them;
4. the transfer of ownership of shares in a company, of all rights and obligations in a partnership without legal personality, participation in an investment fund or a collective investment undertaking, or other legal entity and rights of similar character or from receivables being a consequence of holding those shares, rights and obligations, participation or rights, if at least 50 per cent. of the value of assets of this company, partnership, investment fund, collective investment undertaking or legal entity is constituted, directly or indirectly, by immovable properties located in the Republic of Poland, or rights to such immovable properties;
5. the transfer of ownership of shares, all rights and obligations, participation or similar rights in a real estate company (as defined in the CIT Act);
6. the receivables settled, including receivables put at disposal, paid out or deducted, by natural persons, legal persons, or organisational units without legal personality, having their place of residence, registered office, or management board in the Republic of Poland, irrespective of the place of concluding or performing the agreement; and
7. unrealised gains referred to in the exit tax regulations.

Similar provisions are included in Art. 3.2b of the PIT Act.

It should be noted that the list of incomes (revenues) gained in Poland, as provided in Art. 3.3. of the CIT Act and Art. 3.2b of the PIT Act is not exhaustive, therefore, other income (revenues) may also be considered as earned in Poland.

Given the above, each situation should be analysed to determine whether interest earned by a Polish tax resident from the Securities is considered to be income sourced in Poland. However, since the Issuer(s) is/are not a Polish entity, income from the Securities should not be considered as earned in Poland and no Polish withholding tax should apply, unless specific circumstances occur, e.g. the Securities are admitted to public trading in Poland.

If income from the Securities is considered as sourced in Poland, the following applies:

Special Exemption for interest obtained by non-Polish tax residents on Securities meeting special conditions

Corporate income tax

Under Art. 17.1.50c of the CIT Act, tax-free income is income earned by a CIT taxpayer subject to limited tax liability in Poland in respect of interest or a discount on securities:

- (a) having a term of at least one year; and
- (b) admitted to trading on a regulated market or introduced into an alternative trading system within the meaning of the Act of 29 July 2005 on Trading in Financial Instruments, in the territory of Poland or in the territory of a state that is a party to a double tax convention concluded with Poland which regulates the taxation of income from dividends, interest and royalties;

unless the taxpayer is an Affiliated Entity, within the meaning of the transfer pricing law, of the Issuer(s) of such securities, and holds, directly or indirectly, together with other Affiliated Entities, more than 10 per cent. of the nominal value of those securities (the "Special Exemption").

Under Art. 26.1aa and 1ae of the CIT Act, remitters are not obliged to withhold tax on interest or discount in respect of the Securities eligible for Special Exemption, provided that the issuer submits to the tax authority a declaration that it has acted with due diligence in informing Affiliated Entities (excluding entities whose Affiliations result solely from connections with the State Treasury (Skarb Państwa) or local government units or their associations), about the exemption conditions applying to those Affiliated Entities.

According to Art. 26.1af of the CIT Act, the declaration referred to above is submitted once in relation to a given Securities issue, no later than the date of payment of interest or discount on these securities. At the payer's request, the issuer is obliged to confirm its submission (Art. 26.1ag of the CIT Act).

The declaration is submitted in electronic form corresponding to the logical structure available in the Public Information Bulletin on the website of the office serving the minister responsible for public finances (Art. 26.7j of the CIT Act)

Personal income tax

Under personal income tax, there are analogous provisions on tax exemption regarding interest and discount referred to above (Art. 21.1.130c of the PIT Act) and releasing tax remitters from the obligation to withhold tax on interest or discount (Art. 41.24-27 of the PIT Act), with the exception that the tax remitters being entities operating securities accounts and Omnibus Accounts are obliged to withhold tax with respect to income (revenue) obtained by Polish tax resident natural person from securities otherwise eligible for the relief (Art. 41.24 in fine of the PIT Act) (PIT Special Exemption). These remitters include entities being Polish tax residents as well as non-Polish tax residents conducting business activities through a foreign establishment located in the territory of the Republic of Poland, if the account on which the securities are recorded is related to the activities of this establishment (Art. 41.4d and 41.10 of the PIT Act).

It must be noted that under Art. 30a.2a of the PIT Act, with respect to income (revenue) from interest or Redemption transferred to taxpayers holding rights attached to securities registered in Omnibus Accounts whose identity has not been revealed to the tax remitter in accordance with the Act on Trading in Financial Instruments, a 19 per cent. flat-rate tax is withheld by the tax remitter from the aggregate income (revenue) released for the benefit of all such taxpayers through the Omnibus Account holder.

Therefore, if the entities operating Omnibus Accounts acting as tax remitters are not able to identify the natural person i.e. whether it is or not tax resident in Poland, they may withhold tax at full rate on income from notes that would otherwise be eligible for the PIT Special Exemption.

Failure to meet the conditions for the Special Exemption or PIT Special Exemption

In the absence of the Special Exemption or PIT Special Exemption referred to above, the following rules apply.

In the case of taxpayers subject to limited tax liability in Poland, the income from interest (discount) on the Securities earned in the Polish territory is taxed as a general rule at a flat rate of 20 per cent. in the case of corporate income taxpayers under Art. 21.1.1 of the CIT Act. The applicable tax rate for the income from interest (discount) on Securities and on the Redemption is 19 per cent. in the case of natural persons (Art. 30a.1 of the PIT Act).

Under Art. 26.1 of the CIT Act, interest payers, other than individuals not acting within the scope of their business activity, are obliged, as tax remitters, to collect, lump-sum income tax on those payments on the day they are made. When verifying the conditions for the application of a withholding tax rate, exemption or the conditions for the non-collection of tax resulting from special provisions or double tax treaties, the remitter must exercise due diligence. When assessing the exercise of due diligence, the nature and scale of activity conducted by the remitter as well as its Affiliation with the taxpayer must be taken into account. Similar provisions are provided in Art. 41.4-4aa of the PIT Act.

Under Art. 26.2c.1 of the CIT Act, the entities operating securities accounts and Omnibus Accounts for taxpayers, acting as tax remitters, should withhold this interest income if such interest income (revenue) was earned in Poland and is connected with securities registered in said accounts, and the interest payment to the taxpayer is made through said entities. Although it is considered that foreign entities do not act as Polish tax remitters, according to the discussed provision, this obligation applies to non-residents to the extent they operate a permanent establishment in Poland and the account, on which securities are registered, is linked to the activity of this permanent establishment. Similar provisions concerning interest payments to individuals are provided in Art. 41.4d of the PIT Act.

The described rules of taxation may be modified by the relevant provisions of double tax treaties concluded by Poland, based on which a reduced tax rate or income tax exemption may apply to income (revenue) obtained from interest/discount or from Redemption (natural persons only) (Art. 21.2 of the CIT Act, Art. 30a.2 of the PIT Act). To benefit from the tax rate or income tax exemption under the tax treaty, the taxpayer should present a valid certificate of its tax residence. As a rule, the tax residence certificate is considered valid for twelve consecutive months from its date of issue (unless a specific date of its validity is included in its wording). Tax remitters may require additional documentation in order to be able to apply double tax treaty benefits described above, such as the confirmation of the recipient's beneficial owner status towards the payment. Tax remitters may require additional documentation in order to be able to apply double tax treaty benefits described above, such as the confirmation of the recipient's beneficial owner status towards the interest payments.

Moreover, regardless of whether the particular tax treaty requires the recipient of the payment to be its beneficial owner, further to the approach presented by the tax authorities and confirmed by administrative courts verdicts, many tax treaties provide protection only for beneficial owners. Pursuant to Art. 4a.29 of the CIT Act and, respectively, Art. 5a.33d of the PIT Act, "beneficial owner" means an entity meeting all of the following conditions:

- (a) it receives the amount due for its own benefit, which includes deciding independently about its purpose, and bears the economic risk associated with the loss of that receivable or part of it;
- (b) it is not an intermediary, representative, trustee, or another entity legally or actually obliged to transfer the receivable in whole or in part to another entity; and
- (c) it conducts actual business activity in the country of its registration (country of domiciliation in case of the PIT Act), if the receivables are obtained in connection with the conducted business activity, whereas when assessing whether the entity conducts actual business activity, the nature and scale of such activity in the scope of received receivables are taken into account.

The definition of the beneficial owner no longer refers to and Art. 24a.18 of the CIT Act and Art. 30f. 20 of the PIT Act. However, those provisions include the following relevant factors that are likely to be considered by the tax authorities when determining if the given entity performs actual business activity:

- (i) the business activity carried out by the taxpayer is performed through an existing enterprise that actually performs activities constituting an economic activity; in particular, it possesses premises, qualified personnel and equipment used for performing business activity;
- (ii) the taxpayer does not create artificial arrangement without a connection with any business activity;
- (iii) the taxpayer's actual premises, its personnel or equipment correspond to the scope of its actual business activity;
- (iv) the agreements concluded by the taxpayer are realistic in economic terms, they have economic justification and they are not noticeably contrary to the general business interest of the taxpayer; and
- (v) the taxpayer carries out its business functions independently, using its own resources, including managers who are present in the country of taxpayer's tax residency.

The majority of double tax treaties concluded by Poland provide for an exemption from income tax on capital gains, including income from the sale of securities obtained in Poland by a tax resident of a given country. The interest treatment differs under particular double tax treaties, some of them providing for general exemption, limiting the exemption to certain categories of recipients or providing for a reduced rate of tax (which may also vary depending on the recipient).

Separate, specific rules apply to interest income and amounts received from Redemption on securities held in Omnibus Accounts. Also, in cases where Polish withholding tax should not apply on interest payable to non-Polish tax residents (natural persons or corporate income taxpayers), under specific rules applicable to interest income (and income from Redemption in case of natural persons) on securities held in Omnibus Accounts there is a risk that such tax would be withheld. Under Art. 26.2a of the CIT Act, with respect to income (revenue) from interest transferred to taxpayers holding rights attached to securities registered in Omnibus Accounts whose identity has not been revealed to the tax remitter in accordance with the Act on Trading in Financial Instruments, a 20 per cent. flat-rate tax is withheld by the tax remitter from the aggregate income (revenue) released for the benefit of all such taxpayers through the Omnibus Account holder.

Under Art. 30a.2a of the PIT Act, with respect to income (revenue) from interest or from Redemption transferred to taxpayers holding rights attached to securities registered in Omnibus Accounts whose identity has not been revealed to the tax remitter in accordance with the Act on Trading in Financial Instruments, a 19 per cent. flat-rate tax is withheld by the tax remitter from the aggregate income (revenue) released for the benefit of all such taxpayers through the Omnibus Account holder. If such tax is withheld for non-Polish tax resident taxpayers, to receive a refund of such tax, the entity should contact its tax advisor.

If a person or an entity subject to limited tax liability in Poland acts through a foreign establishment in Poland, tax remitters should not withhold the income tax on payments to such recipient, provided that such taxpayer delivers the tax remitter its certificate of tax residency along with a statement that the payments it receives are associated with the activity of its Polish permanent establishment (Art. 26.1d of the CIT Act). However, if it holds the Securities on an Omnibus Account, please see the comments on Omnibus Accounts presented above, in the section on taxation of a Polish tax resident corporate income taxpayer.

Pay & Refund

In addition to the rules set out above, in the event of failure to meet the conditions for a special exemption, the following regime applies.

(a) Corporate income tax

Under Art. 26.2e of the CIT Act, if the total amount paid out between Affiliated Entities on account of the items listed in Art. 21.1.1 of the CIT Act (including interest / discount on securities) and Art. 22.1 of the CIT Act to the same taxpayer exceeds PLN2,000,000 in the tax year of the payer, payers are, as a general rule, required to withhold, on the day of payment, a flat-rate income tax at the basic rate (20 per cent. in the case of interest/discount on securities) from the excess over that amount, without being able not to withhold that tax on the basis of an appropriate double tax treaty, and also without taking into account exemptions or rates resulting from special regulations or double tax treaties (hereinafter the "Pay & Refund").

Under Art. 26.2i and 26.2j of the CIT Act, if the payer's tax year is longer or shorter than 12 months, the amount to which the Pay & Refund applies is calculated by multiplying 1/12 of PLN2,000,000 and the number of months that have begun in the tax year in which the payment was made; if the calculation of that amount is not possible by reference to the payer's tax year, the Pay & Refund shall apply accordingly to the payer's current financial year and, in its absence, with respect to the payer's other period with features specific to the financial year, no longer however than 23 consecutive months.

Based on Art. 26.2ca of the CIT Act, the entities making payments through securities accounts or Omnibus Accounts are obliged to provide the entities maintaining these accounts, at least 7 days before the payment is made, with information about the existence of Affiliations between them and the taxpayer and about exceeding the amount of PLN2,000,000. Entities providing this information are required to update it before making the payment in the event of a change in the circumstances covered by the information. In addition, in accordance with Art. 26.2ed of the CIT Act, in the circumstances referred to in section 2c, the excess amount and the existence of Affiliations will be determined by the entity keeping securities accounts or Omnibus Account. The entity keeping securities accounts or omnibus accounts does not take into consideration the amounts of payments on which tax was collected in accordance with Art. 26.2a of the CIT Act.

Under Art. 26.2k of the CIT Act, if the payment was made in a foreign currency, to determine whether the amount to which the Pay & Refund applies was exceeded, the amounts paid are converted into PLN at the average exchange rate published by the National Bank of Poland on the last business day preceding the payment day.

Under Art. 26.2l of the CIT Act, if it is not possible to determine the amount paid to the same taxpayer, it is presumed that it exceeded the amount from which the Pay & Refund applies.

Under Art. 26.7a of the CIT Act, the Pay & Refund does not apply if the payer has declared that:

- (a) it holds the documents required by the tax law for the application of the tax rate or tax exemption or non-taxation under special regulations or double tax treaties;
- (b) after the verification of the conditions to apply an exemption or reduced withholding tax rate resulting from special regulations or double tax treaties, it is not aware of any grounds for the assumption that there are circumstances that exclude the possibility of applying the tax rate or tax exemption or non-taxation under special regulations or double tax treaties, in particular it is not aware of the existence of circumstances preventing the fulfilment of certain conditions referred to in other regulations, including the fact that the interest/discount recipient is their beneficial owner and, if the interest/discount is obtained in connection with the business activity conducted by the taxpayer, that in the country of tax residence the taxpayer carries on the actual business activity.

The above is to be declared by the head of the unit within the meaning of the Accounting Act or a designated member of such head being a collegiate body (e.g. the Issuer's management board). The declaration cannot be made by proxy. The declaration is to be made by in electronic form not later than on the last day of the second month following the month in which the threshold specified above was exceeded, however, the performance of this obligation after the payment is made does not release the payer from the obligation to exercise due diligence before the payment is made. (Art. 26.7b and 26.7c of the CIT Act).

In the case of withholding tax being imposed as a result of the Pay & Refund, if double tax treaties or special regulations provide for a tax exemption or reduced tax rate, the taxpayer or tax remitter (if the taxpayer has paid tax with its own funds and has borne the economic burden of such tax, e.g. as a result of a gross-up clause) may apply for a refund of that tax by submitting the relevant documents and declarations. When recognizing that the refund is justified, the tax authorities shall carry it out within six months.

Pursuant to the Regulation of the Minister of Finance dated 28 December 2022 regarding the exclusion of the obligation to collect flat-rate corporate income tax (the "Regulation"), in respect of securities held on securities accounts or Omnibus Accounts, until 31 December 2025 the application of the Pay & Refund regime is excluded to interest payable to taxpayers having their registered office or management outside the territory of the Republic of Poland.

(b) Personal income tax

Analogous provisions apply to personal income tax, (applying to interest and amounts earned from Redemption), including Art. 41.12 of the PIT Act which provides for an analogous Pay & Refund, while the Regulation of the Minister of Finance of 28 December 2022 regarding the exclusion of the obligation to collect flat-rate personal income tax is the equivalent of the Regulation.

(c) Withholding taxation of certain payments made to tax havens

Based on Art. 26.1m of the CIT Act, if a tax remitter makes a payment on account of certain capital profits (e.g. revenues from financial instruments, including interest and capital gains) to a corporate entity resident for tax purposes in a tax haven, such tax remitter is obliged to withhold tax at 19 per cent. rate calculated from the amount being paid out.

The list of the tax havens is included in the Regulation of the Minister of Finance from 18 December 2024 on the list of countries and territories applying harmful tax competition in the field of corporate income tax.

PORTUGUESE TAXATION

Economic benefits derived from interest, accrued interest, amortisation, reimbursement premiums and other types of remuneration arising from the Securities are designated as investment income (rendimentos de capital) for Portuguese tax purposes.

Capital gains obtained by individuals who are resident in Portugal for tax purposes on the disposal of Securities are subject to a special tax rate of 28 per cent., levied on the positive difference between the capital gains and capital losses of each year unless the individual opts to include the income in his taxable income, subject to tax at the current progressive rates of up to 48 per cent. The annual balance between capital gains and capital losses realized on the disposal of Securities admitted to trading on regulated markets, obtained by Portuguese tax resident individuals, whether positive or negative, is partially excluded from taxation, as follows:

Establishing the income from operations with derivative financial instruments, carried out through intermediaries defined according to the relevant legislation

Profit/Loss from operations with derivative financial instruments represents the positive/negative difference between the income realised from the closed positions and the expenses related to these positions, highlighted in the account, for each type of contract and term, regardless of whether it has reached its term or not.

In the case of derivative financial instruments that provide for periodic settlements between the parties, without closing the position, the gain/loss from operations with such financial instruments represents the positive/negative difference between the incomes realised on the occasion of periodic settlements and the related expenses, highlighted in the account.

The determination of the gain/loss from operations with derivative financial instruments is made by the intermediary, as defined by the relevant legislation, Romanian fiscal resident or non-resident who has a permanent establishment in Romania that has the capacity of an intermediary, at the time of each transaction, on the basis supporting documents.

The income from operations with closed positions with derivative financial instruments represents the actual receipts from all these operations, with closed positions, highlighted in the income recipient's account, less principal receipts.

Establishing the income from operations with derivative financial instruments, which are not carried out through intermediaries defined according to the relevant legislation

Profit/Loss from operations with derivatives that are not carried out through an intermediary defined according to the relevant legislation, a Romanian fiscal resident or a non-resident who has a permanent establishment in Romania that has the capacity of an intermediary, is determined for closed positions starting from the first day of trading of the fiscal year up to and including its last trading day.

The profit/loss from operations with derivative financial instruments represents the positive/negative difference between the revenues realised from the closed positions and the expenses related to these positions, highlighted in the account, for each type of contract and term, regardless of whether it has reached its term or not.

The determination of the gain/loss is carried out in the case of derivative financial instruments that provide for periodic settlements between the parties, without closing the position, within a fiscal year.

The determination of the gain/loss is carried out annually, cumulatively, at the end of the fiscal year, by the income recipient, based on supporting documents.

Tax rate - transfers of securities and derivatives - for transactions carried out through authorised intermediaries

Income in the form of gains from the transfer of securities and operations with derivative financial instruments, determined for transfers/operations carried out through intermediaries defined according to the relevant legislation, investment management companies, self-managed investment companies, managers of alternative investment funds, residents Romanian taxpayers or non-residents who have a permanent establishment in Romania that has the quality of an intermediary, are imposed through withholding tax as follows:

- (a) in the case of securities:
 - (i) by applying a rate of 1 per cent. on each gain from the transfer of securities that have been acquired and disposed of in a period greater than 365 days, inclusive, from the date of acquisition;
 - (ii) by applying a rate of 3 per cent. on each gain from the transfer of securities that were acquired and disposed of within a period of less than 365 days from the date of acquisition;
- (b) in the case of operations with derivative financial instruments:
 - (i) by applying a rate of 1 per cent. on each gain from carrying out operations with derivative financial instruments held for a period greater than 365 days, inclusive, from the date of acquisition;
 - (ii) by applying a rate of 3 per cent. on each gain from carrying out operations with derivative financial instruments held for a period less than 365 days from the date of acquisition.

To determine the period in which they were held, it is considered that the securities and financial instruments are sold/repurchased in the same order in which they were acquired, respectively first in - first out, for each symbol.

The fiscal value is determined by applying the weighted average price method, including the costs related to the transfer/operation, on each token, regardless of the holding period.

The obligation to calculate and withhold income tax rests with intermediaries, for each transfer/operation.

The income tax calculated and withheld at source is declared and transferred to the state budget by the intermediaries up to and including the 25th of the month following the month in which it was withheld and is final tax.

The losses obtained from the transfer of securities and from operations with derivative financial instruments, carried out through the mentioned entities, as the case may be, are not carried forward and are not compensated, they represent definitive losses of the taxpayer.

If we refer to transactions carried out through resident intermediaries, the tax will be withheld at source by them. The losses obtained and not compensated until 1 January 2023 from these transfers/operations carried out through these entities are not carried forward, they represent definitive losses regardless of the date they were recorded.

If we are talking about non-resident intermediaries, natural persons will still have the obligation to calculate, declare and pay income tax.

If the losses are made from transactions carried out through authorised entities and are not compensated until 1 January 2023, they cannot be carried forward.

In certain situations, previous losses can be recovered.

Tax on dividends

It is paid when investing in companies, ETFs or Investment Funds that distribute dividends.

The amount of tax on dividends varies depending on where the company or fund that distributes the dividends has its registered office: in Romania or abroad.

Tax on dividends paid by companies or funds in Romania

Dividends are taxed at a rate of 10 per cent., and the tax is withheld at source.

The tax is withheld and transferred directly to the state on behalf of the investor by the company that distributes it, and the net difference of 90 per cent. of the dividends is received by the investor in the accounts of the broker in which he owns the shares.

Contribution for Social Health Insurance (CASS)

The Social Health Insurance Contribution ("CASS") has a more special regime because it is paid only when the cumulative income obtained by an individual, from one or more sources, exceeds a certain threshold.

As a result, in order to determine whether CASS is also due, to the gains from the investments listed above, the gains obtained from: independent activities, intellectual property rights, association with a legal person, assignment of the use of goods (rental), agricultural activities, forestry and fish farming, trading with crypto currencies or other sources.

This means that even if the cumulative income from dividends and from the transfer of securities does not exceed the threshold for CASS, there is still the possibility that the health contribution will be due if the sum of all types of income mentioned above exceeds the thresholds below.

The tax rate for CASS is 10 per cent. applied to the total amount of income collected throughout the year

- (a) If the incomes are below the level of 6 gross minimum wages per country, no CASS is due-4050 RON is minimum salary starting with 1 January 2025;
- (b) If the incomes are between 6 and 12 gross minimum wages per country, the basis for calculating CASS is the level of 6 gross minimum wages;
- (c) If the incomes are between 12 and 24 gross minimum wages per country, the CASS calculation basis is the level of 12 gross minimum wages;
- (d) If the earned income exceeds 24 gross minimum wages, the CASS calculation basis is the level of 24 gross minimum wages per country.

If the income and gains obtained from Securities are lower than the threshold above, and the resident individual does not obtain revenues from other sources (with the exception of salaries), the contribution is only optional.

Taxation of resident entities holders

Resident entities which are tax resident in Romania (i.e. if they are incorporated in Romania or if they have their effective place of management in Romania or if they are legal entities incorporated according to European legislation with registered office in Romania) will be subject to corporate income tax on their worldwide income, including any income and gains resulting from the holding, redemption, settlement, sale or any other transaction with the Securities. The applicable tax rate is 16 per cent. The tax loss incurred by these entities can be carried forward for 5 consecutive years.

The taxable base for corporate tax purpose is computed as the difference between revenues and expenses registered by entities as per the accounting rules, adjusted with tax items. Therefore, the corporate tax consequences deriving from holding, redemption, settlement, sale or any other transaction with the Securities is dependent also on the accounting treatment applied to such Securities, especially as regards the recognition of the related revenues and expenses.

The Romanian fiscal legislation, exempt from corporate income tax, in certain conditions, the incomes derived from dividends and from evaluation/revaluation/sale of shares.

The Romanian fiscal legislation, states that the losses incurred by a company from selling receivables is deductible within the limit of 30 per cent. In case of credit institutions, if receivables are partially covered by provisions or taken off from the balance sheet and then sold, 70 per cent. of the difference between the value of receivable and their selling price represents taxable income. This restriction no longer applies to transfers of government securities, bonds and other debt instruments that give the holder a contractual right to collect cash, the expenses recorded from such transfers being deductible when calculating the tax result.

The entities with an annual turnover exceeding EUR50,000,000 will be required to pay a minimum turnover tax of 1 per cent, in cases where the corporate income tax due is lower than this minimum tax, in accordance with the applicable legal provisions.

Relief for withholding tax paid in a foreign country in relation with Securities may be available if Romania has in place a double tax treaty in place with the country where the tax was withheld. The relief is granted under the form of deduction from and within the limit of the corporate income tax due in Romania.

Please note that, starting with 1 January 2025, legal entities with an income lower than the RON equivalent of EUR500,000 (the income limit is verified taking into account the income earned by the Romanian legal entity, cumulated with the income of companies related to it), and meeting the other conditions set forth by Romanian legislation, may opt to apply the micro-entity income tax of 1 per cent. or 3 per cent. depending on specific criteria. This tax is applied to income obtained (except for certain income specifically provided) without the possibility to deduct expenses.

Taxation of non-residents

Non-resident (legal entities and/or individuals carrying on independent activities) will be subject to tax in Romania in respect of income derived from the Securities, in case they have a permanent establishment in Romania to which the Securities are attributable.

Stamp duties, transfer taxes, other taxes

There are no stamp duties, transfer taxes or other taxes due in Romania in connection with acquisitions and transactions with Securities, other than those mentioned above.

SLOVAKIAN TAXATION

The below comments have been prepared based on the following assumptions: the Issuers are not tax resident in the Slovak Republic and do not have a permanent establishment in the Slovak Republic; the customers who will buy the securities on the Slovak market are treated as the Slovak tax residents; the income derived from securities held by the Slovak investors is sourced abroad; and none of the Issuers has employees in Slovakia.

General tax obligations of investors

Filing of personal / corporate income tax returns in Slovakia

In general, the tax period in Slovakia is a calendar year unless the taxpayer applies the financial year for accounting purposes. The tax period of the financial year is applicable only for corporate taxpayers. The statutory deadline for filing a tax return is three months following the end of the tax period, i.e. if the tax period is a calendar year, by 31 March of the following year. This deadline can be extended by 3 months based on a written application. An extension by 6 months is applicable if the taxpayer has income sourced abroad.

Avoidance of double taxation

Please note that income sourced outside the Slovak Republic may be subject to withholding tax ("WHT") in the country of source of income. The amount of applicable WHT may be decreased based on the provisions of the Double Taxation Treaty ("DTT") concluded between Slovakia and country of source of income.

To apply the correct amount of WHT the Issuer(s) may request a Slovak investor to present a tax residency certificate proving that the investor is a Slovak tax resident and that they benefit from DTT protection.

Should income received by a Slovak investor be provably taxed abroad, the foreign tax may be either credited against the Slovak tax liability or the income taxed abroad may be exempted from tax in Slovakia. The method of elimination of the double taxation of income is stipulated in the respective DTT. Tax withheld in a non-treaty country cannot be neither credited nor deducted from gross income.

Individual investor

Slovak tax residents are liable to pay tax in Slovakia on their worldwide income.

Generally, tax returns are not required if total taxable income does not exceed a specified minimal threshold (EUR2,823,24 in 2024 and EUR2,876,90 in 2025) with exception of a taxpayer that declared a tax loss.

Please note that the personal income tax and insurance contributions in Slovakia (if any) are borne by the investor (not the Issuer of the Securities).

Tax rate

The personal income tax rate is 19 per cent. on the part of the annual tax base not exceeding EUR48,441,43 in 2025 and 25 per cent. on the part of the annual tax base exceeding this level. Interest income and similar income from capital assets is subject to a 19 per cent. tax rate, irrespective of the taxpayer's tax base.

Dividends and similar types of income relating to profits are subject to a 7 per cent. tax rate (save for 2024 dividends which are subject to a 10 per cent. tax rate), or a 35 per cent. tax rate if paid by an entity from a non-cooperative country.

A tax rate of 15 per cent. is applicable for individual taxpayers for income from business activities (self-employment income) provided that the revenues incurred in the respective tax period did not exceed EUR100,000.

Tax base

The determination of the tax base and applicable tax exemptions stipulated by the Slovak Act No. 595/2003 Coll. on Income Tax as amended (the Slovak Income Tax Act) varies depending on the type of income.

The investor is obliged to include income derived from Securities in their Slovak personal income tax return type B depending on the type of income as follows:

- (i) Separate tax base from capital income according to Article 7 of the Slovak Income Tax Act (19 per cent. tax rate) which includes (among other things) interests, revenues from Securities including revenues from redemption of shares certificates. The mandatory paid health-care insurance, if applicable, may be deducted from taxable income.
- (ii) Partial tax base from other income according to Article 8 of the Slovak Income Tax Act (19 per cent. / 25 per cent. tax rate) which includes (among other things) income from the transfer of options, the transfer of securities, the transfer of a participation (interest) in a limited liability company, limited partnership or from the transfer of membership rights of a cooperative and income from derivative operations. The tax base is determined as a taxable income reduced by provably incurred expenses up to the taxable income (a loss is tax non-deductible).

- (iii) Separate tax base from profit shares (dividends) according to Article 51e of the Slovak Income Tax Act (7 per cent. / 35 per cent. tax rate).

Losses from the sale of assets (securities, bonds etc.) can be offset against gains from sale of other assets with various limitations.

Tax exemptions

Gains from sale of securities that are traded on a regulated market (stock exchange or on a similar foreign regulated market) for more than 1 year are tax-exempt if (i) the period between acquisition and sale of the securities exceeds 1 year and (ii) the period between their admission to a regulated market and the sale exceeds 1 year, PROVIDED THAT the securities did not form a part of the investor's business assets.

Further, gains from the sale of securities (less explicitly stipulated expenses) not qualifying for the above exemption are tax exempt up to EUR500 per calendar year. However, should the taxpayer also declare rental income or income from occasional activities, the exemption would apply first to these types of income while the aggregated amount of the exemption for all of the abovementioned types of income cannot exceed EUR500.

Health-care insurance

Please note, that certain types of income from securities (other income according to Article 8 of the Slovak Income Tax Act and selected types of income under Article 7 of the Slovak Income Tax Act) are subject to a 15 per cent. health-care insurance. The mandatory paid health-care insurance, if applicable, may be deducted from taxable income after it is settled with respective healthcare authorities.

Corporate investor

Tax rate

The capital gain generated from the sale of securities is subject to a general 21 per cent. tax rate (with the exception of corporations with income of less than EUR100,000, which are taxed at 10 per cent., and with the exception of corporations with income of more than EUR5,000,000, which are taxed at 24 per cent.).

The dividends received from / paid to the entity from a non-cooperative country are subject to a 35 per cent. tax rate.

Tax base

In general, in terms of the capital gain generated from the sale of securities or the acquisition value of securities, up to the revenues generated by the sale, is treated as a tax deductible expense (in most cases any loss is tax non-deductible).

A special tax regime is applicable to taxpayers authorised to trade with securities under the special regulation who may treat the acquisition value of securities recognised as cost as tax deductible expense, i.e. the loss is treated as tax deductible.

Starting from 2024 a minimal amount of tax was introduced for corporate taxpayers. Following this provision, taxpayers are obliged to pay a minimum amount of tax (the exact amount depends on the revenues incurred in the respective period) if their actual tax is lower than the amount of minimum tax that would have been applicable. The amount of tax that was paid in excess of the actual amount of tax in the respective period can be deducted in up to three following tax periods, provided that certain conditions are met.

The personal income tax rate is 19 per cent. on the part of the annual tax base not exceeding EUR47,537.98 in 2024 and 25 per cent. on the part of the annual tax base exceeding this level. Interest income and similar income from capital assets is subject to a 19 per cent. tax rate, irrespective of the taxpayer's tax base.

Dividends and similar types of income relating to profits reported for financial years started after 31 December 2023 are subject to a 10 per cent. tax rate, or a 35 per cent. tax rate if paid by an entity from a non-cooperative country. Dividends and similar types of income relating to financial years started before 1 January 2024 are subject to withholding tax at 7 per cent. and 35 per cent. respectively.

A tax rate of 15 per cent. is applicable for individual taxpayers for income from business activities (self-employment income) provided that the revenues incurred in the respective tax period did not exceed EUR60,000.

The capital gain generated from the sale of Securities is subject to a general 21 per cent. tax rate or in special cases a reduced 15 per cent. corporate income tax rate (for the application of the reduced rate, the total revenues generated in a financial year shall not exceed EUR60,000).

The dividends received from / paid to the entity from a non-cooperative country are subject to a 35 per cent. tax rate.

SOUTH AFRICA TAXATION

The following is a general description of the taxation in South Africa of Securities according to the South African tax laws in force at the date of this Base Prospectus and is subject to any changes in law and the interpretation and application thereof, which changes could be made with retroactive effect. The following general description does not purport to be a comprehensive description of all the tax considerations that may be relevant to a decision to acquire, hold or dispose of Securities and does not purport to deal with the tax consequences applicable to all categories of investors, some of which (such as professional dealers in securities) may be subject to special rules. Potential investors are under all circumstances strongly recommended to contact their own tax advisor to clarify the individual consequences of their investment, holding and disposal of Securities. The Issuer makes no representations regarding the tax consequences of purchase, holding or disposal of the Securities.

The following is a non-exhaustive summary of the South African tax consequences of the acquisition, ownership and disposition of the Securities by South African tax residents and non-residents who are beneficial owners of the Securities.

Income Tax on the Securities

Under current taxation law effective in South Africa a "resident" (as defined in section 1 of the South African Income Tax Act 58 of 1962 (the "Income Tax Act")) is subject to income tax on their worldwide income. A person who is not tax resident in South Africa is subject to tax on income from a South African source (subject to domestic exemptions or relief in terms of an applicable double taxation treaty). Any relief under an applicable double taxation agreement may be subject to the application of the Multilateral Convention to implement Tax Treaty Related Measures to Prevent Base Erosion and Profit Shifting ("MLI"). Subject to any available deductions, allowances and exemptions, any amount (including income in the form of interest) received by or accrued to a South African tax resident in respect of the Securities will be subject to income tax.

The tax treatment of resident Securityholders will depend on whether amounts derived in respect of the Securities constitute an amount of a revenue nature or an amount of a capital nature. However, because the Securities may constitute a wide variety of instruments subject to different terms, it may be possible for an amount earned pursuant to the Securities to be capital in nature and not "interest" or revenue in nature, and therefore subject to capital gains tax instead of income tax. The terms of the instrument, and the statutory and/or common law rules and principles that determine whether an amount is "interest" or revenue, or capital in nature, will need to be considered. In addition to the terms of the instrument, the circumstances of the Securityholder could impact the tax treatment of amounts derived in respect of the Securities. The Securityholder could be exempt from tax, may hold the Securities as long-term investments on capital account, or may be trading in the Securities on revenue account. Securityholders are advised to consult their own professional advisers as to the nature of any amount earned pursuant to the Securities, and the tax treatment of the amount.

A person who is not a tax resident of South Africa is subject to income tax on all amounts derived from a South African source (subject to domestic exemptions, such as those for interest income mentioned below, or relief in terms of applicable double taxation agreements). Depending on the nature of the amount, different domestic rules regarding the determination of the source of the income will be applicable. (Regarding the treatment of amounts earned by non-residents of South Africa that are capital in nature, see "Capital Gains Tax" below).

Interest as defined in section 24J of the Income Tax Act (see below) is derived from a South African source if that amount:

- (a) is attributable to an amount incurred by a person that is a South African tax resident, unless the interest is attributable to a foreign permanent establishment of that resident; or
- (b) is received or accrues in respect of the utilisation or application in South Africa by any person of any funds or credit obtained in terms of any form of "interest-bearing arrangement".

The Issuers are not tax resident in South Africa. Accordingly, unless the amounts raised by the Issuers from issuing the Securities are utilised or applied in South Africa by the Issuers or any person, any interest paid to any non-resident Securityholders will not be deemed to be from a South African source and will not be subject to South African income tax. If the interest earned by a Securityholder is from a South African source, it will be subject to South African income tax unless such interest income is exempt from South African income tax under section 10(1)(h) of the Income Tax Act.

Under section 10(1)(h) of the Income Tax Act, any amount of interest that is received by or accrued (during any year of assessment) by or to any person that is not a resident of South Africa is exempt from income tax, unless:

- (a) that person is a natural person who was physically present in South Africa for a period exceeding 183 days in aggregate during the twelve-month period preceding the date on which the interest is received or accrued by or to that person; or
- (b) the debt from which the interest arises is effectively connected to a permanent establishment of that person in South Africa.

If a Securityholder that is not a tax resident of South Africa does not qualify for the exemption under section 10(1)(h) of the Income Tax Act, an exemption from or reduction of any South African tax liability may be available under an applicable double taxation agreement. Furthermore, certain entities may be exempt from income tax. Securityholders are advised to consult their own professional advisers as to whether the interest income earned on the Securities will be exempt under section 10(1)(h) of the Income Tax Act or under an applicable double taxation agreement.

If a Securityholder is a South African tax resident, under section 10(1)(i) of the Income Tax Act, the aggregate amount of any interest from a South African source received by or accrued to a South African tax resident Securityholder (who is a natural person) will be exempt from normal tax as does not during the year of assessment exceed:

- (a) in the case of a person who would have been 65 years of age on the last day of the year of assessment, R34,500; or
- (b) in any other case, R23,800.

The taxation of interest income is generally governed by section 24J of the Income Tax Act, which applies to interest bearing arrangements. Interest income which accrues (or is deemed to accrue) to a Securityholder in accordance with section 24J of the Income Tax Act, is deemed to accrue on a day-to-day basis until that Securityholder disposes of the Securities or until maturity or exercise. This day-to-day basis accrual is determined by calculating the yield to maturity (as defined in section 24J of the Income Tax Act) and applying this rate to the capital for the relevant tax period. If on disposal or on maturity or exercise the Securityholder has included in gross income interest that the Securityholder did not actually receive (i.e. an accrual amount), section 24J allows the deduction of an adjusted loss. Any premium or discount is also treated as interest for the purposes of the exemption under section 10(1)(h) of the Income Tax Act (see above).

To the extent the disposal of the Securities gives rise to a gain or a loss, the normal principles are to be applied in determining whether such gain or loss should be subject to income tax in terms of the Income Tax Act. If the Securities are disposed of on a speculative basis or as part of a scheme of profit making, the gain should generally be revenue in nature and subject to normal tax at the normal income tax rates. If the Securities are held with a capital intention any gain on disposal will likely be subject to the lower capital gains tax (explained in more detail below).

In terms of section 24JB of the Income Tax Act, specific provisions deal with the taxation of "financial assets" and "financial liabilities" of "covered persons" (for example, a financial institution registered in terms of section 1 of the South African Financial Markets Act, 2012, the South African Reserve Bank or a registered banking institution (including companies forming part of a banking group), but excluding long term and short term insurance institutions who determine their taxable income in respect of certain financial instruments by including in or deducting from their income). If Section 24JB applies to the Securities and the Securityholders, the tax treatment of the acquisition, holding and/or disposal of the Securities will differ from what is set out in this section. Securityholders should seek advice from their own professional advisers as to whether these provisions may apply to them.

Income Tax on payment under the guarantee

Securityholders who are South African tax residents will be subject to South African income tax on payments received or accrued under the guarantee, regardless of the source of that income. Non-resident Securityholders will only be liable for South African income tax on payments received or accrued under the guarantee if the source of the guarantee payments is located in South Africa. The statutory source rules contained in the Income Tax Act do not directly address the source of payments made under the guarantee. Accordingly, the source of payments under the guarantee is likely to be determined with reference to relevant rules and principles under South African common law. Any relief under an applicable double taxation agreement may be subject to the application of the MLI.

Securities Transfer Tax

The issue, sale, redemption or settlement of the Securities, other than depositary receipts, are not subject to any Securities Transfer Tax, as they do not constitute "securities" for the purposes of the South African Securities Transfer Tax Act 25 of 2007. Any future transfer duties and/or taxes that may be introduced in respect of (or applicable to) the transfer of the Securities will be for the account of Securityholders .

Value-Added Tax

No value-added tax ("VAT") is payable on the issue or transfer of South African Securities. The issue, allotment, drawing, acceptance, endorsement or transfer of ownership of a debt security constitute "financial services" as defined in section 2 of the Value-Added Tax Act 89 of 1991 (the "VAT Act"), which are exempt from VAT in terms of section 12(a) of the VAT Act. However, commissions, fees or similar charges raised by a South African VAT vendor for the supply of "financial services" will be subject to VAT at the standard rate (currently 15 per cent at the date of initial issuance of the Securities), except where the recipient is a non-resident.

The taxable supply of services (including exempt financial services) rendered by a registered vendor to non-residents of South Africa who are not in South Africa when the services are rendered, are subject to VAT at the zero rate in terms of section 11(2)(l) of the VAT Act.

Capital Gains Tax

Capital gains and losses on the disposal of Securities made by South African tax residents are subject to capital gains tax, to the extent that a resident Securityholder disposes of Securities other than on a speculative basis or as part of a scheme of profit-making.

Capital gains tax under the Eighth Schedule to the Income Tax Act will not be levied in relation to Securities disposed of by a person who is not a tax resident of South Africa unless the Securities disposed of are effectively connected with a permanent establishment of that non-resident in South Africa during the relevant year of assessment. The tax treatment will be subject to the provisions of any applicable tax treaty. Any relief under an applicable double taxation agreement may be subject to the application of the MLI.

A sale of the Securities by a South Africa tax resident holder may result in a capital gain or loss if the Securities were held as capital assets or a revenue gain or loss if the Securities were held as trading stock. Any such capital gain or revenue gain will be subject to capital gains tax or income tax, respectively, in the holder's hands. The gain or loss is determined in accordance with the provisions of the Income Tax Act and any discount or premium on acquisition which has already been treated as interest for income tax purposes, under section 24J of the Income Tax Act will not be taken into account when determining any capital gain or loss. If the Securities are disposed of or redeemed prior to or on maturity or exercise, an "adjusted gain on transfer or redemption of an instrument", or an "adjusted loss on transfer or redemption of an instrument", as contemplated in section 24J of the Income Tax Act, must be calculated. Any such adjusted gain or adjusted loss is deemed to have been incurred or to have accrued in the year of assessment in which the transfer, redemption or settlement occurred. The calculation of the adjusted gain or adjusted loss will take into account, among other things, all interest which has already been deemed to accrue to the Securityholder over the term of the instrument. Under section 24J(4A) of the Income Tax Act, where an adjusted loss on transfer, redemption or settlement of an instrument realised by a holder of a Security includes any amount representing interest that has previously been included in the income of the holder, that amount will qualify as a deduction from the income of the holder during the year of assessment in which the transfer, redemption or settlement takes place and will not give rise to a capital loss.

To the extent that a Securityholder constitutes a "covered person" (as defined in section 24JB of the Income Tax Act) and section 24JB applies to the Securities, the Securityholder will be taxed in accordance with the provisions of section 24JB of the Act and the capital gains tax provisions would not apply.

Securityholders should seek advice from their own professional advisers as to whether a disposal, redemption or settlement of Securities will result in a liability for capital gains tax.

Taxation of Foreign Exchange Gains and Losses

The Securities may be denominated in a currency other than ZAR ("Foreign Currency Securities"). A South African tax resident who holds Foreign Currency Securities and who is (1) a company; (2) a trust carrying on a trade; or (3) a natural person who holds the Securities as trading stock will be required to account for foreign exchange gains and losses on the translation and realisation of the Securities in accordance with the provisions of section 24I of the Income Tax Act. Such persons may be required to take into account any translation and realisation exchange gains and losses on the Securities when calculating their taxable income.

No taxable foreign exchange gains or losses will arise for such South African resident Securityholders where the Securities are attributable to a permanent establishment outside of South Africa and the functional currency of that permanent establishment is denominated in a foreign currency.

No foreign exchange gains or losses on translation and realisation of the Securities in accordance with the provisions of section 24I of the Income Tax Act will arise for non-resident holders of the Securities, unless such Securities are attributable to a South African permanent establishment of such non-resident holder.

Persons holding the Securities as capital assets will be required to take currency fluctuations into account in determining the capital gain or loss in respect of the disposal of the Securities in accordance with the provisions of the Eighth Schedule of the Income Tax Act.

Withholding Tax

A final withholding tax on interest at the rate of 15 per cent. is levied on interest payments made to a non-resident of South Africa in circumstances where such interest is regarded as having been received or accrued from a source within South Africa. There are certain exemptions from the withholding tax on interest in respect of South African sourced interest paid to a foreign person, including payments of interest made:

- (a) in respect of "listed debt", being debt listed on a "recognised exchange", as defined in terms of paragraph 1 of the Eighth Schedule to the Income Tax Act; or
- (b) in respect of a debt owed by another foreign person unless, 1) that foreign person is a natural person who was physically present in South Africa for a period exceeding 183 (one hundred and eighty three) days in aggregate during the twelve month period preceding the date on which the interest is paid and 2) the debt claim in respect of which that interest is paid is effectively connected with a permanent establishment of that other foreign person in South Africa if that other foreign person is registered as a taxpayer in terms of Chapter 3 of the South African Tax Administration Act 28 of 2011.

In both instances in (a) or (b) above the foreign person must submit a declaration in a prescribed form confirming their exemption to the person liable for the payment of the interest before payment of the interest is made.

A foreign person could also qualify for the exemption if the foreign person is an institution listed in section 50D of the Income Tax Act.

If a foreign person does not qualify for any of the above exemptions, then any interest paid to that foreign person will not be exempt from the withholding tax on interest unless another exemption is applicable.

Withholding Tax on Guarantee Payments

The applicability of the interest withholding tax is limited to the payment of "interest" which is defined in the Income Tax Act to include "interest and similar finance charges". In the event that a Guarantor makes a payment in respect of a guarantee, under current South African tax law such payments under the guarantee will not be subject to South African withholding tax. However, payments made in respect of default interest on any guarantee payments may be subject to a final withholding tax on interest levied at a rate of 15 per cent (which rate may be reduced if a double tax agreement applies and certain formalities are complied with) to the extent that the amount is regarded as having been received or accrued from a South African source. The source of payments under the guarantee is likely to be determined with reference to relevant rules and principles under South African common law. Any relief under an applicable double taxation agreement may be subject to the application of the MLI.

Section 8F and 8FA of the Income Tax Act

Section 8F of the Income Tax Act applies to "hybrid debt instruments", and section 8FA of the Income Tax Act applies to "hybrid interest", which are terms defined in the Income Tax Act, with reference to "debt" instruments that have certain equity-like features. Section 8F and 8FA of the Income Tax Act provide that interest on a "hybrid debt instrument" and/or "hybrid interest" are, for purposes of the Income Tax Act, deemed to be a dividend in specie. If either of these provisions apply, the tax treatment of the interest may differ from what is set out above, and such payments may be subject to dividends withholding tax as a result of the deemed classification of interest as dividends in specie. The provisions of section 8F and 8FA of the Income Tax Act are subject to certain exemptions.

Securityholders are advised to consult their own professional advisers to ascertain whether the abovementioned provisions may apply to them.

Definition of Interest

The references to "interest" above mean "interest" as understood in South African tax law. The statements above do not take any account of any different definitions of "interest" or "principal" which may prevail under any other law or which may be created by additional terms and conditions of the South African Securities or any related documentation.

SPANISH TAXATION

The following is a summary of the main Spanish tax implications deriving from the ownership, transfer, redemption, settlement or reimbursement of the Securities referred to in this Base Prospectus by individuals or legal persons who are resident in Spain for tax purposes and by Spanish Non-Resident Income Tax ("NRIT") taxpayers acting, with respect to the Securities, through a permanent establishment in Spain.

This summary is based on the Spanish law in force as of the date of approval of this Base Prospectus and on the administrative interpretations thereof, and therefore is subject to any changes in such laws and interpretations thereof occurring after that date, including changes having retroactive effect. In particular, this description is based on the provisions established in the Personal Income Tax Law (the "PIT Law") (Law 35/2006, of 28 November 2006, as amended), the Corporate Income Tax Law (the "CIT Law") (Law 27/2014, of 27 November 2014, as amended) and in the Consolidated Text of the NRIT Law (the "NRIT Law") (approved by Royal Legislative Decree 5/2004, of 5 March 2004, as amended) and does not take into consideration any special regime applied by individuals or legal persons (such as financial entities, exempt entities, cooperatives, individuals who acquire the Securities by reason of employment, pension funds, collective investment in transferrable securities or look-through entities).

In addition, the following section does not cover those tax laws in force in the Spanish Basque provinces and Navarra as well as the particularities in force in the Spanish autonomous communities (comunidades autónomas), or the special rules applicable to transactions among related persons for Spanish tax purposes.

Accordingly, this summary is for general information only and does not purport to be a tax advice, thus prospective investors in the Securities should consult their own tax advisors as to the applicable tax consequences of their purchase, ownership and disposition of the Securities, including the effect of tax laws of any other jurisdiction, based on their particular circumstances. Also prospective investors should note that the appointment by an investor in Securities, or any person through which an investor holds Securities, of a custodian, collection agent or similar person in relation to such Securities in any jurisdiction may have tax implications. Prospective investors should consult their own tax advisors in relation to the tax consequences for them of any such appointment.

For the purposes of our analysis, we have assumed that the relevant Issuer is, in the case of Citigroup Inc. and CGMHI, a company resident for tax purposes in the United States and for the purposes of the Convention between the Kingdom of Spain and the United States for the Avoidance of Double Taxation and the Prevention of Fiscal Evasion with respect to Taxes on Income signed on 22 February 1990, as amended in October 2019, and entitled to its benefits, and, in the case of CGMFL, is resident for tax purposes in Luxembourg and for the purposes of the Convention between the Kingdom of Spain and the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg for the avoidance of Double Taxation with respect to Taxes on Income and on Capital and the Prevention of Fiscal Fraud and Evasion signed on 4 August 1987, as amended in June 2022, and entitled to its benefits, that the relevant Issuer does not act with respect to the Securities through a permanent establishment in Spain, that the proceeds of the Securities are not used in Spain by the relevant Issuer, and that the investors in the Securities are resident in Spain for tax purposes or NRIT taxpayers acting, with respect to such Securities, through a permanent establishment in Spain.

Spanish tax resident individuals

(a) Personal Income Tax ("PIT") (Impuesto sobre la Renta de las Personas Físicas)

The Spanish PIT is regulated by the PIT Law and supplemented by the PIT Regulations approved by Royal Decree 439/2007, of 30 March 2007, as amended (the "PIT Regulations").

The Securities are deemed securities (activos financieros), in accordance with the definition set forth in Article 91 of the PIT Regulations and its interpretation by the Spanish tax authorities, and hence the rules provided with regard to securities must be taken into consideration.

According to Article 25.2 of the PIT Law and its interpretation by the Spanish tax authorities, interest as well as income arising on the transfer, redemption, settlement or reimbursement of the Securities obtained by individuals who are resident in Spain for tax purposes will be deemed income from movable property and therefore will be included in the investor's PIT savings taxable base and taxed, together with the other savings income obtained by such investor in that same tax year, at the following rates:

- (i) Amounts up to EUR6,000.00: 19 per cent.
- (ii) Amounts from EUR6,000.01 to EUR50,000: 21 per cent.
- (iii) Amounts from EUR50,000.01 to EUR200,000: 23 per cent.
- (iv) Amounts from EUR200,000.01 to EUR300,000: 27 per cent.
- (v) Amounts exceeding EUR300,000.00: 30 per cent.

As a general rule, income earned by Spanish resident individuals under the Securities should be subject to withholding tax at a 19 per cent. rate on account of PIT (creditable against final tax liability).

Notwithstanding the above, as non-resident in Spain entities not acting through a permanent establishment are not bound to withhold on account of PIT on payments made to Spanish resident individuals. Interest payments under the Securities should only be subject to withholding tax in Spain in case they are deposited in a depository entity or individual resident in Spain (or acting through a permanent establishment in Spain) or if an entity or individual resident in Spain (or acting through a permanent establishment in Spain) is in charge of the collection of the income derived from the Securities, PROVIDED THAT such income has not been previously subject to withholding tax in Spain.

However, income deriving from Securities that generate explicit yield and fulfil the following requirements (i) are represented in book-entry form; (ii) are admitted to trading on a Spanish secondary stock exchange, may benefit from a withholding tax exemption when such income arises from the transfer or reimbursement of the Securities. This exemption does not apply to income obtained through accounts entered into with financial institutions, where such accounts are based on financial instruments, such as the Securities. However, under certain circumstances, when a transfer of the Securities has occurred within the 30-day period immediately preceding any relevant coupon payment date such holders may not be eligible for such withholding tax exemption.

Holders of Securities shall compute the gross interest obtained in the taxable base of the tax period in which it is due, including amounts withheld, if any. Income arising on the transfer, redemption, settlement or reimbursement of Securities will be calculated as the difference between (i) the transfer, redemption, settlement or reimbursement value of such Securities (deducting the additional costs and expenses incurred in the transfer, if they are duly justified) and (ii) their acquisition or subscription value (adding the additional costs and expenses incurred in the acquisition, if they are duly justified).

Should a holder of Securities acquire homogeneous securities within the two-month period prior or subsequent to the transfer of such Securities, negative income that may derive from such transfer cannot be included in his or her PIT taxable base until the homogeneous securities are transferred.

The net taxable income related to interest derived from the Securities shall be determined by deducting the management and deposit expenses from the gross income, excluding those pertaining to discretionary or individual portfolio management.

Additionally, tax credits for the avoidance of international double taxation in accordance with the PIT Law or any applicable convention for the avoidance of double taxation entered into by Spain may apply in respect of taxes paid abroad, if any, on income deriving from Securities.

(b) Net Wealth Tax ("NWT") (Impuesto sobre el Patrimonio)

Only individual holders of Securities would be subject to the NWT as legal persons are not taxable persons under NWT.

Relevant taxpayers will be individuals who have their habitual residence in Spain regardless of the place where their assets or rights are located or could be exercised, and non-Spanish resident individuals owning assets or rights which are located or could be exercised in Spain whose net wealth is higher than EUR700,000, as this amount is considered as exempt from NWT.

Taxpayers should include in their NWT self-assessment the Securities (assuming they qualify as debt instruments) for the following amounts:

- (i) if they are listed in an official market, the average negotiation value of the fourth quarter; and
- (ii) in other case, its nominal value (including redemption premiums).

The value of the Securities together with the rest of the taxpayer's wealth, once reduced by the deductible in rem liens and encumbrances which reduce the rights and assets values and the personal debts of the taxpayer, shall be taxed at a tax rate between 0.2 to 3.5 per cent.

Finally, please note that the Spanish regions are entitled to modify (i) the threshold of net wealth exempt from taxation; (ii) the tax rates; and (iii) the tax benefits and exemptions to be applied in their territory. Non-resident individuals may apply the rules approved by the autonomous region where the assets and rights with more value (i) are located, (ii) can be exercised or (iii) must be fulfilled.

(c) Inheritance and Gift Tax ("IGT") (Impuesto sobre Sucesiones y Donaciones)

Individuals resident in Spain for tax purposes who acquire Securities by inheritance or gift will be subject to the Spanish IGT in accordance with the IGT Law (Ley 29/1987, de 18 de diciembre, del Impuesto sobre Sucesiones y Donaciones), without prejudice to the specific legislation applicable in each autonomous region. The effective tax rate, after applying all relevant factors, ranges from 0 per cent. to 81.6 per cent. depending on several factors such as pre-existing heritage of the heir or donee, or the kinship with the deceased or the donor. Additionally, it should be taken into consideration that as IGT management has been transferred to the Spanish Autonomous Regions therefore, a detailed analysis in each specific case should be carried out to analyse the applicable regional legislation since there might be differences in respect of the final taxation under IGT depending on the region in which an investor resides.

Please bear in mind that, in case the Securities are deemed to be exercisable in Spain, non-resident individuals who acquire Securities by inheritance or gift may also be subject to the Spanish IGT.

Tax credits for the avoidance of international double taxation may apply in respect of similar taxes paid abroad, if any, in respect of Securities.

Legal persons resident in Spain for tax purposes are not subject to IGT, thus the income that they may obtain from gift or inheritance, as the case may be, will be subject to Spanish Corporate Income Tax ("CIT") on the market value of Securities received, PROVIDED THAT the legal persons obtaining such income are Spanish CIT taxpayers.

(d) Temporary Solidarity Tax on Large Fortunes ("STLF") (Impuesto Temporal de Solidaridad de las Grandes Fortunas)

STLF is a complementary tax to the NWT, levied on individuals holding a world-wide net wealth of, at least, EUR3,000,000.

Individuals subject to this tax are entitled to a EUR700,000 rebate on their taxable base, meaning the STLF will be triggered for a net wealth exceeding EUR3,700,000.

The value of the Securities together with the rest of the taxpayer's net wealth (exceeding EUR3,000,000) shall be taxed at a tax rate between 1.7 and 3.5 per cent.

The STLF quota, together with the NWT and the PIT quotas, shall not surpass 60 per cent. of the PIT taxable base. If this summation exceeds the threshold, the STLF quota could be reduced by up to 80 per cent.

After applying these limitations, the following deductions can be made from the final STLF tax quota: (i) taxes paid abroad in accordance with the NWT relevant provisions, without prejudice to the dispositions contained in any double tax treaty or applicable international legislation (this applies only to individuals who have their habitual residence in Spain) and (ii) the NWT quota effectively paid.

Although the STLF was conceived as a temporary tax that would only accrue on Fiscal Years 2022 and 2023, Royal Decree-Law 8/2023 of 27 December has established its indefinite nature until the Spanish Autonomous Regions NWT is reviewed.

Spanish legal persons subject to Corporate Income Tax (CIT) (Impuesto sobre Sociedades)

Interest and income arising on the transfer, redemption, settlement or reimbursement of Securities obtained by legal entities resident for tax purposes in Spain and regarded as CIT taxpayers shall be computed as taxable income of the tax period of its accrual, in accordance with the rules contained in the CIT Law and supplemented by the CIT regulations, approved by Royal Decree 634/2015, of 10 July 2015 (the "CIT Regulations").

The general CIT rate for Spanish CIT taxpayers is currently 25 per cent. However, certain CIT taxpayers, such as banks and investment funds, may be subject to higher or lower CIT rates. Taxpayers with an annual net turnover higher than EUR 20 million or who are taxed jointly under a CIT group will be subject to a minimum 15 per cent. effective CIT rate of the adjusted taxable base (additional requirements or limitations may apply depending on the nature and circumstances of a given taxpayer). Please note that the CIT Law allows further reduction of this minimum taxation threshold by offsetting, among others, international double tax credits if any are available.

Tax credits for the avoidance of international double taxation in accordance with the CIT Law or any applicable convention for the avoidance of double taxation entered into by Spain may apply in respect of taxes paid abroad, if any, on income deriving from Securities.

As a general rule, interest payments and income upon transfer, redemption, settlement under the Securities shall be subject to withholding tax at 19 per cent. rate on account of CIT (creditable against final tax liability).

Notwithstanding this, as non-resident in Spain entities not acting through a permanent establishment in Spain are not bound to withhold on account of CIT on payments made to Spanish resident entities, interest payments and income upon transfer, redemption settlement under the Securities should only be subject to withholding tax in Spain in case they are deposited in a depository entity resident in Spain (or acting through a permanent establishment in Spain) or if an entity or individual resident in Spain (or acting through a permanent establishment in Spain) is in charge of the collection of the income derived from the Securities, PROVIDED THAT such income has not been previously subject to withholding tax in Spain.

However, when (i) the Securities are represented in book-entry form and are admitted to trading on a Spanish secondary stock exchange or on the Spanish Alternative Fixed Income Market ("MARF"); or (ii) the notes are listed on a market in an OECD member state; holders who are Corporate Income Tax taxpayers can benefit from a withholding tax exemption in respect of interest payments and income arising from the transfer, redemption, settlement of the Securities, exception made of income derived from accounts entered into with financial entities, PROVIDED THAT such accounts are based on financial instruments, such as Securities.

Non-resident investors subject to NRIT (Impuesto sobre la Renta de no Residentes)

Based on the fact that none of the Issuers(s) are resident in Spain for tax purposes, that the payments of the Securities are not effectively allocated to a permanent establishment in Spain of the Issuer(s) and that the proceeds of the Securities are not used in Spain by the Issuer(s), no Spanish NRIT should, in principle, be levied on investors that are not resident in Spain for tax purposes, unless they are acting with respect to Securities through a permanent establishment in Spain.

In addition to the above, and in accordance to binding ruling V0185-20 of 27 January 2020, certain securities (such as financial derivatives) may be classified, for the purposes of the relevant double tax treaty, as business profits or other income and, as mentioned above, should not be considered, in general terms, as Spanish-source income, subject to the provisions of any relevant double tax treaty.

According to the general principles of the Spanish NRIT Law, permanent establishments in Spain of non-Spanish tax resident persons are taxed under the NRIT Law in a similar manner to Spanish CIT taxpayers, although some specific rules may apply. Due to the complexity of this matter, non-Spanish tax resident investors acting in Spain, with respect to Securities, through a permanent establishment in Spain are strongly urged to seek appropriate advice in respect of their own tax position in this regard.

Spanish Withholding Tax

Where a financial institution (either resident in Spain for tax purposes or acting through a permanent establishment in Spain) (a) acts as depository of Securities, (b) manages the collection of any income under Securities, (c) intervenes in their transfer or (d) carries out the redemption, settlement or reimbursement of the Securities, on behalf of Holders either (i) resident in Spain for tax purposes or (ii) holding the Securities through a permanent establishment located in Spain, such financial institution will be responsible for making the relevant withholding on account of Spanish tax on any income deriving from the relevant Securities. The current withholding tax rate in Spain is 19 per cent. Amounts withheld in Spain, if any, can be credited against the final Spanish PIT, CIT or NRIT liability, as applicable to the Holder.

Other Spanish taxes (indirect taxation)

The acquisition, transfer, redemption, settlement and reimbursement of Securities will be exempt from indirect taxes in Spain, i.e. exempt from or not subject to Transfer Tax and Stamp Duty, as the case may be, in accordance with the Consolidated Text of such tax approved by Royal Legislative Decree 1/1993, of 21 September 1993, and exempt from Value Added Tax, in accordance with Law 37/1992, of 28 December 1992, regulating such tax.

SWEDISH TAXATION

The following discussion is a summary of certain material Swedish tax considerations relating to Securities issued by any of the Issuer(s) where the holder is tax resident in Sweden or has a tax presence in Sweden. This summary of certain tax issues that may arise as a result of holding Securities is based on current Swedish tax legislation and is intended only as general information for holders of Securities who are resident or domiciled in Sweden for tax purposes, unless otherwise stated. This description does not deal comprehensively with all tax consequences that may occur for holders of Securities, nor does it cover the specific rules where Securities are held by a partnership or are held as current assets in a business operation. The summary does, moreover, not cover Securities held on a so-called investment savings account (investeringssparkonto). Special tax consequences that are not described below may also apply for certain categories of taxpayers, including investment companies and life insurance companies. It is recommended that potential investors in Securities consult their own tax advisers for information with respect to the special tax consequences that may arise as a result of holding Securities, including the applicability and effect of foreign income tax rules, provisions contained in double taxation treaties and other rules which may be applicable.

Tax residency

An individual is considered to be tax resident in Sweden based on domicile, continuous stay exceeding 183 days or having essential ties to Sweden after moving abroad. Essential ties is not limited to any specific requirement but rather a complete assessment based on all relevant circumstances. However, some circumstances are of greater weight such as keeping a permanent dwelling in Sweden. A company is generally deemed tax resident in Sweden based on incorporation under the Swedish Companies Act (e.g. limited liability company). In case registration has not taken place, the seat of the board or similar circumstances are decisive for determining residency.

Withholding of tax

There is no Swedish withholding tax (källskatt) applicable on payments made by the Issuer(s) in respect of the Securities. Sweden operates a system of preliminary tax (preliminärskatt) to secure payment of taxes. In the context of the Securities a preliminary tax of 30 per cent. will be deducted from all payments treated as interest in respect of the Securities made to any individuals or estates that are resident in Sweden for tax purposes provided the paying entity is tax resident in Sweden and subject to reporting obligations. A preliminary tax of 30 per cent. will also be deducted from any other payments in respect of the Securities not treated as capital gains, if such payments are paid out together with payments treated as interest. For limited liability companies (aktiebolag) all capital income is taxed from business operations at a rate of 20.6 per cent.. Depending on the relevant holder's overall tax liability for the relevant fiscal year the preliminary tax may contribute towards, equal or exceed the holder's overall tax liability with any balance subsequently to be paid by or to the relevant holder, as applicable.

Taxation of individuals resident in Sweden

Capital Income

For individuals and estates of deceased Swedish individuals, capital gains, interest payments, dividends and other income derived from the holding of an asset should be reported as capital income.

Capital gains and losses

Individuals and estates of deceased Swedish individuals, who sell their Securities, are subject to capital gains taxation. The current tax rate of the gain is 30 per cent.. The capital gain or loss is equal to the difference between the sales proceeds after deduction of sales costs and the acquisition cost of the Securities. The acquisition cost is calculated according to the so-called average method. This means that the costs of acquiring all Securities of the same type and class are added together and calculated collectively, with respect to changes to the holding. Optionally, the so-called standard rule under which the acquisition cost is deemed to be the equivalent of 20 per cent. of the net sales price may be applied on the disposal of listed Securities (except for options and forward contracts) that are taxed in the same manner as shares. A Security should be regarded as listed for Swedish tax purposes if it is listed on the Official List and admitted to trading on the Regulated Market of the Luxembourg Stock Exchange, Euronext Dublin or any other foreign market that is considered to be a stock exchange under Swedish tax law.

As a main rule, 70 per cent. of a capital loss is deductible against any other taxable income derived from capital.

Capital losses on listed Securities that are taxed in the same manner as shares, are, however, fully deductible against taxable capital gains on such assets or capital gains on listed shares. Capital losses on listed Securities may be deductible against 5/6 of capital gains on non-listed shares in Swedish limited liability companies and foreign legal entities. Any excess amount is deductible at 70 per cent., according to the main rule.

Capital losses on listed Securities qualifying as Swedish receivables (i.e. denominated in SEK) are currently fully deductible in the capital income category. Moreover, under EC law receivables denominated in foreign currency are also fully deductible.

If a deficit arises in the capital income, a reduction of the tax on income from employment and from business, as well as the tax on real estate, is allowed. The tax reduction allowed amounts to 30 per cent. of any deficit not exceeding SEK100,000 and 21 per cent. of any deficit in excess of SEK100,000. Deficits may not be carried forward to a subsequent fiscal year.

Interest

Interest as well as other income derived from the holding of an asset is subject to tax at a rate of 30 per cent. The tax liability arises when the interest (or other income) is actually paid, in accordance with the so-called cash method.

No formal interest accrues on zero-coupon bonds. The profit from a redemption of a zero-coupon bond is regarded as interest, subject to tax at the time of redemption. However, the appreciation in value is regarded as interest compensation, should the zero-coupon bond be disposed of prior to maturity. If there is a loss on the bond, this is deductible as a capital loss in accordance with the principles referred to above.

Stamp duty

There is no stamp duty on the issuing, transfer, redemption or settlement of Securities in Sweden.

Gift, Inheritance and Wealth taxes

There is no gift, inheritance or wealth tax in Sweden.

Taxation of Swedish legal entities

Limited liability companies and other legal entities, except for estates of deceased Swedish individuals, are taxed on all income (including income from the sale of Securities) as income from business activities at a flat rate of 20.6 per cent.. Regarding the calculation of a capital gain or loss and the acquisition cost, see "Taxation of individuals resident in Sweden" above. However, interest income as well as other income derived from the holding of an asset is taxed on an accruals basis.

Capital losses on Securities that are taxed in the same manner as shares (see further above) incurred by a corporate holder of a Security may only be offset against taxable capital gains on shares or such Securities. Such capital losses may also, under certain circumstances, be deductible against capital gains on shares and Securities that are taxed in the same manner as shares within the same group of companies, provided the requirements for group contributions (tax consolidation) are met.

Capital losses on shares and Securities that are taxed in the same manner as shares which are not deducted against capital gains within a certain year may be carried forward and offset against taxable capital gains on shares and Securities taxed in the same manner as shares in the future.

For limited liability companies and economic associations, capital gains on shares and certain share related rights held for business purposes are tax exempt. As a result, capital losses on shares and share related rights that are held for business purposes are not deductible. Securities under this offer are not treated as share related rights held for business purposes. However, a capital loss on the Securities is not deductible should the underlying assets, directly or indirectly, consist of shares or certain share related rights held for business purposes.

As mentioned above, there is no stamp duty on the issuing, transfer, redemption or settlement of Securities in Sweden.

Taxation of non-residents in Sweden

Holders of Securities who are not fiscally resident in Sweden and who are not carrying on business operations from a permanent establishment in Sweden are generally not liable for Swedish capital gains taxation on the disposal of Securities. The holders may, nevertheless, be subject to tax in their country of residence.

However, as far as non-resident individuals are concerned, capital gains on the sale of certain Securities (such as Securities taxed in the same manners as shares) may in some cases be subject to Swedish tax if the individual has been resident or permanently lived in Sweden at any time during the calendar year of the sale or any of the 10 preceding calendar years. This provision is, nevertheless, in many cases limited by tax treaties for the avoidance of double taxation, which Sweden has concluded with approximately 80 other countries.

SWISS TAXATION

The following discussion is a summary of certain material Swiss tax considerations relating to (i) Securities issued by any of the Issuer(s) where the Holder is tax resident in Switzerland or has a tax presence in Switzerland or (ii) Securities where the Paying Agent, custodian or Securities dealer is located in Switzerland. The discussion is based on legislation as of the date of this Base Prospectus. It does not aim to be a comprehensive description of all the Swiss tax considerations that may be relevant for a decision to invest in Securities. The tax treatment for each investor depends on the particular situation. All investors are advised to consult with their professional tax advisors as to the respective Swiss tax consequences of the purchase, ownership, disposition, lapse, exercise or redemption of Securities (or options embedded therein) in light of their particular circumstances.

Swiss Withholding Tax

Payments on a Security are currently not subject to Swiss federal withholding tax PROVIDED THAT the respective Issuer(s) is at all times resident and managed outside Switzerland for Swiss tax purposes.

Income Taxation

Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder

(a) Structured Securities

If a Security classifies as a structured note, its income taxation depends on whether the bond and the derivative financial instrument(s) embedded therein are recorded separately from each other and whether the Security classifies as a structured note with or without a predominant one-time interest payment:

- (i) Non-transparent derivative financial instruments: If the embedded bond is not recorded separately from the embedded derivative financial instrument(s), the Security classifies as a non-transparent structured note and any return over the initial investment classifies as a taxable interest payment. Non-transparent derivative financial instruments generally include a predominant one-time interest payment and are taxed in accordance with the principles set forth below under "Transparent derivative financial instruments with a predominant one-time interest payment".
- (ii) Transparent derivative financial instruments without a predominant one-time interest payment: If the embedded bond is recorded separately from the embedded derivative financial instrument(s) and the yield to-maturity predominantly derives from periodic interest payments and not from a one time interest payment (see below "Transparent derivative financial instruments with a predominant one-time interest payment"), then any periodic interest payment and the one-time interest payment, if any, is taxed when paid to the holder of the Security. A gain, including interest accrued, realised on the sale of a Security is a tax-free private capital gain. A loss realised on the sale of a Security is a non-tax-deductible private capital loss, (see below "Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder"). The same applies if the Security is redeemed except that interest accrued is taxed when paid.
- (iii) Transparent derivative financial instruments with a predominant one-time interest payment: If the embedded bond is recorded separately from the embedded derivative financial instrument(s) and the yield to maturity predominantly derives from a one-time interest payment such as an original issue discount or a repayment premium and not from periodic interest payments, then any periodic interest payments and on the redemption, settlement or sale of the Security the difference between the value of the embedded bond at redemption, settlement or sale, as applicable, and its value at issuance or secondary market purchase, as applicable, converted, in each case, into Swiss Francs at the exchange rate prevailing at the time of sale, redemption, settlement, issuance or purchase, respectively (modified differential taxation method) constitutes taxable income. A value decrease on the embedded bond respectively realised on the sale, redemption, settlement of the Security may be offset against any gains (including periodic interest payments) realised within the same taxation period from all instruments with a predominant one-time interest payment. Any residual return realised on the embedded derivative financial instrument(s) is a tax-free private capital gain, and any residual loss is a non-tax-deductible private capital loss, respectively (see below "Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder").

(b) Bonds

Bonds without a predominant one-time interest payment: If a Security classifies as a pure bond without a predominant one-time interest payment (i.e. the yield-to-maturity predominantly derives from periodic interest payments and not from a one-time interest payment), Swiss resident private investors will be taxed on the periodic and any one-time interest payments, if any, converted into Swiss Francs at the exchange rate prevailing at the time of payment. A gain, including interest accrued, realised on the sale of a Security is a tax-free private capital gain. A loss, realised on the sale of a Security is a non-tax deductible private capital loss (see below "Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder").

Bonds with a predominant one-time interest payment: If a Security classifies as a pure bond with a predominant one-time interest payment (i.e. the yield-to-maturity predominantly derives from a one-time interest payment such as an original issue discount or a repayment premium and not from periodic interest payments), Swiss resident private investors will be taxed on any periodic interest payments and on any gains, including capital and foreign exchange gains, realised on the Securities (differential taxation method).

(c) Pure Derivative Financial Securities

Periodic and one-time dividend equalisation payments realised on a Security which classifies as a pure derivative financial instrument (such as pure call and put options, including low exercise price options with a term not exceeding one year, pure futures, static Securities replicating an index or a basket of at least five shares and with a fixed term or an annual redemption or exercise right) and which is held as part of their private assets constitute taxable investment income. Any other return will be classified as a tax-exempt capital gain or a non-tax deductible capital loss (see below "Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder").

(d) Low Exercise Price Options

According to the current practice of the Swiss Federal Tax Administration low exercise price options are given if the underlying of an option has been pre-financed by at least 50 per cent. at the time of issuance.

For low exercise price options with a term exceeding one year the interest component of the low exercise price option (i.e. issue discount) constitutes taxable investment income. Any other return will be classified as a tax-exempt capital gain or a non-tax deductible capital loss (see below "Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder").

(e) Fund-like Securities

A Security classified as a fund-like instrument will be considered a pass-through instrument for Swiss tax purposes if dividend and interest income (less attributable costs) from, and capital gains and losses (less costs attributable) realised on, the underlying investments, are reported and distributed separately. Under such conditions, an individual holding a fund-like Security as part of private assets only receives taxable income (which he or she must report annually) over such portion of the distributions (in case the fund is distributing the income realised on the underlying investments) or earnings credits (in case the fund is reinvesting the income realised on the underlying investment) as derive from dividends and interest (less attributable costs) on the underlying instruments. Any distributions or credits deriving from capital gains realised on the underlying investments constitute a tax-free private capital gain, and any respective loss on the underlying investments is a non-tax-deductible private capital loss. Any gain realised within a taxation period on the sale of a fund-like instrument (including accrued dividends and interest) is exempt from income taxation as a private capital gain, and, conversely, any loss realised a non-tax-deductible capital loss (see below "Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder").

Securities held as Assets of a Swiss Business

Corporate entities and individuals who hold Securities as part of a trade or business in Switzerland, in the case of residents abroad carried on through a permanent establishment or a fixed place of business in Switzerland, are required to recognise any payments on, and any capital gains or losses realised on the sale, redemption or settlement of, such Securities (irrespective of their classification) in their income statement for the respective taxation period and will be taxed on any net taxable earnings for such period.

The same taxation treatment also applies to Swiss-resident individuals who, for income tax purposes, are classified as "professional Securities dealers" for reasons of, inter alia, frequent dealing and leveraged investments in Securities.

Capital Gains TaxationSecurities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder

A gain, realised by an individual resident in Switzerland for tax purposes upon the sale or other disposal of a Security held as part of his or her private assets is a tax-free private capital gain. A loss, realised by an individual resident in Switzerland for tax purposes upon the sale or other disposal of a Security held as part of his or her private assets is a non-tax deductible capital loss. In the case of a gain or a loss, unless such individual is classified, for income tax purposes, as a "professional Securities dealer" for reasons of, inter alia, frequent dealing and leveraged investments in Securities. If an individual is classified as a "professional Securities dealer" he or she will be taxed in accordance with the principles set forth above under "Securities held as Assets of a Swiss Business". Concerning the bifurcation of a tax exempt capital gains component, non-tax deductible capital loss component, respectively, from taxable income components of a Security see the bifurcation principles set forth above with regard to the different instruments under "Securities held as Private Assets by a Swiss resident Holder".

Securities held as Assets of a Swiss Business

Capital gains realised on Securities held as Assets of a Swiss Business are taxed in accordance with the taxation principles set forth above under "Securities held as Assets of a Swiss Business").

Stamp TaxesSwiss Federal Issue Stamp Tax

The Securities are not subject to Swiss federal stamp tax on the issuance of Securities.

Swiss Federal Securities Turnover Tax

The issuance of Securities to the initial holders at the original offering price (primary market) is not subject to the Swiss federal securities turnover tax, except that the issuance of Securities which classify as fund like instruments may be subject to Swiss federal securities turnover tax of up to 0.3 per cent. on the offering price, however, only if a Swiss securities dealer (as defined in the Swiss federal stamp tax act) is a party or an intermediary to the transaction and no exemption applies.

Dealings in Securities (secondary market) which classify as pure derivative financial instruments (such as pure call and put options, including low exercise price options with a term not exceeding twelve months, pure futures with a maximal pre-financing of 25 per cent., static Securities replicating an index or a basket of at least five shares and with a fixed term or an annual redemption or exercise right) are not subject to the Swiss federal securities turnover tax.

Dealings in Securities which have been issued by an issuer outside of Switzerland and which classify as structured notes, share-like instruments (including low exercise price options on shares with a term exceeding twelve months) or fund-like instruments are subject to Swiss federal securities turnover tax of up to 0.3 per cent. on the consideration paid, however, only if a Swiss Securities dealer (as defined in the Swiss federal stamp tax act) is a party or intermediary to the transaction and no exemption applies.

Dealing in bonds and structured notes with a maturity not exceeding one year are exempt from Swiss federal securities turnover tax.

TAXATION OF SECURITIES

The delivery of an underlying taxable Security at exercise or redemption to the holder of the Security is subject to Swiss federal securities turnover tax of up to 0.3 per cent. if a Swiss Securities dealer (as defined in the Swiss federal stamp tax act) is a party or intermediary to the transaction and no exemption applies.

Gift, Inheritance and Estate Taxes

Subject to an applicable tax treaty in an international scenario, transfers of Securities may be subject to cantonal and/or communal inheritance tax, estate tax or gift tax if the deceased person has had his or her last domicile in Switzerland, the donor is resident in Switzerland, respectively, or in the case of a foreign deceased or resident person the transfer involves an unincorporated business in Switzerland and Securities are held as part of such business. No such taxes exist at the federal level. Rates depend upon the existing relationship (i.e. the relationship between the deceased and the heirs, or between the donor and the donee) and the size of the inheritance or gift. Interspousal gifts and gifts to descendants and inheritances collected by the surviving spouse and descendants are frequently exempt or taxed at very low rates (up to 6 per cent.). Gifts and inheritances received from unrelated persons attract rates ranging from 20 per cent. to 40 per cent. The taxable base is usually the market value of the property transferred.

Net Worth and Capital Taxes

A holder of Securities who is an individual resident in Switzerland for tax purposes or is a non-Swiss resident holding Securities as part of a Swiss business operation or a Swiss permanent establishment is required to report Securities as part of private wealth or as part of Swiss business assets, as the case may be, and is subject to annual cantonal and/or communal private wealth tax on any net taxable wealth (including the Securities), in the case of non-Swiss resident individual holding Securities as part of a Swiss business operation or a Swiss permanent establishment to the extent the aggregate taxable wealth is allocable to Switzerland. Incorporated holders of Securities are subject to cantonal and communal capital tax on net taxable equity, in the case of a non-Swiss resident person holding Securities as part of a Swiss permanent establishment, to the extent the aggregate taxable equity is allocable to Switzerland. No net worth and capital taxes exist at the federal level.

Non-Swiss resident Holders

A holder of a Security who is not resident in Switzerland for tax purposes and who during the taxation year has not engaged in trade or business carried on through a business operation or permanent establishment in Switzerland, will neither be subject to income tax and capital gains tax nor net wealth or capital tax in Switzerland.

Swiss Facilitation of the Implementation of the U.S. Foreign Account Tax Compliance Act

Switzerland has concluded an intergovernmental agreement with the U.S. to facilitate the implementation of FATCA. The agreement ensures that the accounts held by U.S. persons with Swiss financial institutions are disclosed to the U.S. tax authorities either with the consent of the account holder or by means of group requests within the scope of administrative assistance. Information will not be transferred automatically in the absence of consent, and instead will be exchanged only within the scope of administrative assistance on the basis of the double taxation agreement between the U.S. and Switzerland. On 8 October 2014, the Swiss Federal Council approved a mandate for negotiations with the U.S. on changing the current direct-notification-based regime to a regime where the relevant information is sent to the Swiss Federal Tax Administration, which in turn provides the information to the U.S. tax authorities.

Automatic Exchange of Information in Tax Matters

On 19 November 2014, Switzerland signed the Multilateral Competent Authority Agreement (the "MCAA"). The MCAA is based on article 6 of the OECD/Council of Europe administrative assistance convention and is intended to ensure the uniform implementation of Automatic Exchange of Information (the "AEOI"). The Federal Act on the International Automatic Exchange of Information in Tax Matters (the "AEOI Act") entered into force on 1 January 2017. The AEOI Act is the legal basis for the implementation of the AEOI standard in Switzerland.

The AEOI is being introduced in Switzerland through bilateral agreements or multilateral agreements. The agreements have, and will be, concluded on the basis of guaranteed reciprocity, compliance with the principle of speciality (i.e. the information exchanged may only be used to assess and levy taxes (and for criminal tax proceedings)) and adequate data protection.

Based on such multilateral or bilateral agreements and the implementing laws of Switzerland, Switzerland exchanges data in respect of financial assets, including, as the case may be, Securities, held in, and income derived thereon and credited to, accounts or deposits with a paying agent in Switzerland for the benefit of individuals resident in an EU member state or in a treaty state.

SECTION G.10 – DESCRIPTION OF THE PREFERENCE SHARES AND THE PREFERENCE SHARE COMPANY

The issuer of the Preference Shares is Citigroup Global Markets Funding Luxembourg S.C.A. ("CGMFL") or any other entity specified as such in the applicable Issue Terms (the "Preference Share Company"). CGMFL is also an issuer under the Programme and a description of CGMFL is set out in the section entitled "Description of Citigroup Global Markets Funding Luxembourg S.C.A." above.

Preference Shares will be issued from time to time in different Classes (each a Class).

Each issue of Preference Share Linked Securities will give exposure to the performance of a separate Class of Preference Shares that in turn have a defined return which will depend on the exposure to one or more Preference Share Underlying(s). It is expected that the Preference Share Company will only issue a small number of Preference Shares of each Class and that, unless otherwise specified in the applicable Issue Terms, these will be issued fully paid at GBP1.00 each and will be held by Citigroup Global Markets Limited or another affiliate of the Issuer until their redemption date.

A copy of the Preference Share Company's constitutional documents and the terms and conditions of each Class of Preference Share (the "Preference Share Terms and Conditions") are available to investors in the Securities on written request (free of charge) from (i) where the Preference Share Company is CGMFL, the registered office of CGMFL at 31, Z.A. Bourmicht, L-8070 Bertrange, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg and (ii) in respect of any Preference Share Company, from the distributor of the relevant Securities. If specified in the applicable Issue Terms, the Preference Share Terms and Conditions of the relevant Class of preference shares will also be available on the website specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

The Preference Share Company may issue redeemable Preference Shares of any kind, including but not limited to Preference Shares which have a defined return dependant on the performance of one or more underlying asset(s) or reference basis(es) (each a "Preference Share Underlying") (which may include, but will not be limited to, one or more security indices, one or more commodity indices, one or more commodities, one or more shares, one or more depositary receipts, one or more exchange traded fund shares, one or more mutual fund interests or one or more currency exchange rates) and will be issued on such terms as may be determined by the Preference Share Company and specified in the applicable terms and conditions of the relevant Class of Preference Shares.

The Preference Share Terms and Conditions of each Class provide that the applicable preference shares will be redeemable on their final redemption date at a defined amount as determined in accordance with the relevant Preference Share Terms and Conditions. The Preference Share Terms and Conditions may also provide that the Preference Share Company may redeem the Preference Shares early if:

- (i) the performance of the Preference Share Company's obligations under the Preference Shares has or will become unlawful, illegal or otherwise prohibited for any reason; or
- (ii) a change in applicable law or regulation occurs that results, or will result, in the Preference Share Company being required to be regulated by any additional regulatory authority, or being subject to any materially onerous additional legal requirement or regulation or tax; or
- (iii) an early redemption event in respect of a Preference Share Underlying occurs; or
- (iv) a financial product issued by the Preference Share Company or any of its affiliates any proportion of the return on which matches the return on the Preference Shares or is otherwise dependent on the value of the Preference Shares, has or will become subject to early redemption or is or will be cancelled.

The conditions of the Preference Shares contain provisions relating to early redemption events and adjustment events relating to the Preference Share Underlying(s) to which the relevant Preference Shares give investment exposure. Such early redemption events and adjustment events are substantially similar to the provisions relating to the equivalent type of Underlying contained in the Underlying Schedules of the Conditions of the Securities and consequently, investors should also read the considerations relating to Securities linked to the relevant Underlying(s) in these risk factors in order to fully understand the provisions relating to such Underlying(s) (and consequently the Preference Share Underlying(s)) and the associated risks.

DESCRIPTION OF THE PREFERENCE SHARES AND THE PREFERENCE SHARE COMPANY

If the Preference Shares are redeemed early pursuant to the above, the Issuer will notify holders of the Securities in accordance with General Condition 15 (Notices) and each Security will be redeemed at its Early Redemption Amount determined as specified in Preference Share Conditions 6(d) (Early Redemption for tax reasons or illegality, following an Event of Default or following an Early Redemption Event and the Early Redemption Amount) and 6(e) (Realisation Disruption).

The value of the Preference Shares is scheduled to be published on each scheduled trading day on the Electronic Page specified in the applicable Issue Terms or on such other information source as may be specified in the applicable Issue Terms.

The value of the Preference Shares depends on the Preference Share Terms and Conditions of the relevant Class, the performance of the Preference Share Underlying(s) to which the relevant Preference Shares give investment exposure and the financial condition and standing of the Preference Share Company. In determining the value of the Preference Shares, the Calculation Agent shall employ the calculation procedure and methodology set out in the applicable Preference Share Terms and Conditions. Investors should review the Preference Share Terms and Conditions to ensure that they understand how the defined return and performance of the Preference Share Underlying(s) will affect the value of the Preference Shares and, therefore, the return on the Securities.
